Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, JR.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Horteuse Podes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Gauld, School of Design.

Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this Institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar14 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1,50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following,

Liberal Inducements to Agents,

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. Ed.
sept28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College	$30 00
Contingent Fee	3 00
Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School	$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee	2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C RAIFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 50 Camp street, New Orleans.

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC.

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N.O.
SAMUEL SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENEFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO W. HENSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
nly Between Natchez street and Times Office.

GEORGE STROUD,
Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Mantle Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE,"

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-6m

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia, or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements,—of many years standing,—affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package,	$1 00	Postage	6 cts.
Six packages,	5 00	"	27
Twelve packages,	9 00	"	43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.
e 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Easton, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

apr1 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
n25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

WALLACE & CO.,

Importers and Jobbers of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, and

PLANTATION CLOTHING,

CORNER MAGAZINE AND COMMON STREETS, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

Sales guaranteed at New York prices. a18 1y

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

112 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH-WEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25

AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c

THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL; WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder... $1 50

PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00

SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with Instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25

NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L. Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

"ALBERT N'YANZA: Or, the Great Basin of the Nile." Baker $5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt 6 50

ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans.. 2 00

BILL ARP 1 50

PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme; Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS 10 00

KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans;
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months	$150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos.,	60
" " Preparatory " "	40
Fuel, for Boarders,	15
" " Day scholars,	8
Music on Piano,	50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each,	0

No extra charge for Greek or Latin.

Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of pianos.

Oil Painting	$30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each,	25

No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi-annually, in advance.

For further information, apply to july-6 3m B. ARROWAST, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healty one. The place is free from many evils connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months	$15 00
Primary Department	20 00
Collegiate	25 00
Music and Piano	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Vocal Music	2 50
Incidental fee	2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month	18 00
Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks	$30 00
Music	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Languages, each	10 00
Incidental Fee	2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month	20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing	16 00

aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,

Corner of St. Andrew Street,

oct6 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course,	$50 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee,	10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information:

Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
Je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE,

SUMMERFIELD, ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80,00
Incidental Fee	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75,00
Incidental Fee	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing,	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board Trustees.
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
FEB.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
MAR	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
APR				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
MAY						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
JNE		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30

MONTHS.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JLY				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
SEP.				1	2	3	4
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
OCT					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
NOV	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
DEC			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31

To AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received and a half-circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

With the advance in season there is, of course, some diminution in the volume of business in the general market, but still there is a moderately fair amount of business doing in several departments of trade. Flour has been in fair request, and at full prices, the market having been influenced very materially by the accounts from the West, while corn and oats, of which there is but a light supply, though in only moderate demand, are also quite firm as to prices. There has not been much business done in provisions, but prices remain without special change. In the grocery line jobbers continue to do a pretty fair business, and there is something doing also in dry goods, though the attendance of country buyers has sensibly decreased.—The only transactions in sugar and molasses, in the wholesale way, are in the product of Cuba, and the demand has been moderate. The cotton market, with small receipts and very light stocks on hand, has exhibited much firmness.

COTTON.—On Saturday the morning telegrams from Liverpool reported that market as buoyant and active, at improved prices, which had the effect of imparting considerable activity to the demand here, and about 1,200 bales were soon taken at prices generally about ¼ a cent above those obtained on the day before. Nothing further, however, was done through the day, owing to the tenor of the subsequent dispatches, which noticed a reaction in prices at Liverpool. Buyers were not disposed to continue operations unless at reduced figures, and as holders would not make the concessions asked for, the market lost its buoyancy, and closed with a heavy feeling, but, as well as could be ascertained in the absence of sales, without any marked change as to prices. Following the course of business at Liverpool, where there was an improved demand for cotton on Monday morning, our market on that day soon gave evidences of a better feeling, and a very fair demand prevailed throughout, resulting in sales to the extent of fully 2,700 bales. Tuesday was a remarkably quiet day in our market, and the sales only embraced about 1,000 bales. In the early part of the day it was supposed that a fair business might be done, but the unfavorable telegrams from Liverpool and New York, both markets being reported heavy and inactive, checked the inquiry, and the market became dull and to some extent depressed also, notwithstanding that there were few evidences of any disposition to give way on the part of holders.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 4,900 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 1,998 bales, against 3,020 during the corresponding period last week, showing a decrease of 1,022 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 572,926 bales, against 664,034 bales the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 346,829 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 123,302 bales to Great Britain, of 40,412 to France, and of 114,549 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	— to —
Ordinary	— to —
Good Ordinary	29 to 29½
Low Middling	30½ to 30¾
Middling	31½ to 32
Strict Middling	— to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales	15256
Arrived past three days. 2792
Arrived previously	640716–643508
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc	3239—646747
	662003
Exported past three days	1517
Exported previously	602513—604030
Stock on hand and on ship-board; bales	57973

SUGAR.—There is very little Louisiana sugar here, and only a limited retail business, at 14½ cents per lb. for fair, 15½ for prime, 16½ for yellow clarified, and 17¼ for white. The market for Cuba sugar is very dull, and there are no regular prices. One hundred and fifty hogsheads and thirty tierces grocery grades sold on private terms. There are no settled prices for Cuba.

MOLASSES.—There is very little Louisiana molasses in market. It is retailing at 70 to 85 cents per gallon. The market for Cuba molasses is dull. A lot of 300 barrels good Cuba sold at 58 cents per gallon. It is quoted in hogsheads, by the cargo, at 46c. per gallon for common, 48 to 50 for good, and 52½ to 55 for choice.

Cattle Market.

JEFFERSON CITY, Tuesday Evening, May 5, 1868.

Western Beef, choice, per lb net	12c to 15
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net	— to —
Texas Cattle, choice, per head	$55 to 70
Texas Cattle, 2d qual, per head	40 to 50
Texas Cattle, 3d qual, per head	25 to 30
Hogs, per lb gross	7c. to 10
Sheep, 1st quality, per head	— to 4 00
Sheep, 2d " "	— to 3 00
Sheep, 3d " "	— to 1 25
Milch Cows, choice, per head	80 to 125
Milch Cows, per head	50 to 87
Texas Cows, with Calves	— to 20
Yearlings, per head	6 to 12
Calves, per head	3 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales on the Levee.)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements
Cotton and Sugar Hoes	4 00	20 00
Yoes (Hoes and scrapers	8 50	15 00
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	12 00
Spades	11 00	12 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₱ yard:
Kentucky	15½	16
East India		23½
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₱ lb		9
Bran, ₱ 100 lbs		1 65
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs: Pilot		5 00
Crackers		6 00
Bricks, Lake, ₱ M	15 00	16 00
English, Fire	25 00	30 00
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow	20	21
Adamantine	21	21
Star	18	25
Chocolate, No 1 ₱ lb	35	45
Sweet and spiced	55	67
Cider, Western ₱ bbl
Northern	13 00
Coal, Cannel ₱ ton		15 00
Anthracite ₱ ton		10 00
Western, ₱ barrel		55
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₱ lb	14½	15
Havana	15	15
Java	30	30
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	15 00
Hulled, ₱ bushel	35	35
Copper, Brazier ₱ lb		35
Sheathing		35
Copper Bolts	35	35
Yellow Metal	28	28
Cordage, Manilla, ₱ lb	23	24
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₱ bbl	4 50	4 75
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y		3½
—St. Domingo	4	4
Fustic, Tampico	5	5
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 00	1 00
Madder	13	15
Eggs, ₱ doz. Western	19	20
Feathers, ₱ lb	40	50
Fish, Cod, ₱ box		1 50
Herrings		60
Mackerel, No. 1 ₱ bbl	19 00	20 00
——— No. 2	16 00	16 50
——— No. 3		13 00
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	4	6
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Superfine	9 25	9 50
Extra	9 75	14 50
Fine	8 25
Fruit, Prunes, ₱ lb		16
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	8	8½
Currants, Zante		14
Almonds, soft shell	30	32
Raisins, M R, ₱ box	none	here
——Layer	4 40	4 50
Lem's Sicily ₱ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₱ box
Oranges, La. ₱ 1000
——Sicily ₱ box	5 50	6 00
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 50
——— 10 x 12	3 90	4 00
——— 12 x 18	4 40	4 50
Grain, ₱ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 90	3 10
——Canada	3 15	3 20
Oats	76	77
Corn, shelled ₱ bushel	1 03	1 10
Beans, ₱ bbl	22 00	24 00
Hops, ₱ lb	40	50
Gunpowder, ₱ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₱ bag	20
Hay, Western, ₱ ton	20 00	22 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₱ lb:
Dry salted Mexican	15	17
Wet salted, city slaughter	8½	8½
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₱ piece
Iron, Pig ₱ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₱ lb	5	6
English, ₱ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₱ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Boiler	8	9
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	7	7½
Castings, American	6½	8
Lime, Western ₱ bbl
Shell Lime
Rockland, &c	1 75
Cement	2 50
Molasses, ₱ gallon:
Louisiana	70
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	75	85
Moss, ₱ lb:
Gray, Country	3
Black do	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	6½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 to 8d. ₱ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
——— English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₱ bbl:
Tar	3 00	6 00
Pitch	4 40	5 00
Rosin A No. 1	4 00
——No. 2	3 25
——No. 3	3 00
Spirits Turp ₱ gallon		60
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₱ gallon	1 50
Coal Oil	40
——In cases	58	62½
Cotton Seed, Crude		75
——Refined	95	1 00
Tanners' ₱ gallon	90	1 00
Oil Cake, Linseed ₱ ton
Cotton Seed		35 00
——Meal
Provisions, ₱ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	20 00	21 00
" North half bbl	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₱ lb	15	16
Tongues ₱ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess	29 50
Prime Mess	27 00
Hog, round, ₱ lb	14
Bacon, Hams, ₱ lb	15
Do., canvassed	19	20
Sides	17½	19
Shoulders	14½	14½
Green Shoulders		14½
Lard, Prime, in tierces		20
——in kegs		21
Fair, in tierces
Butter, Northern	40	55
——Western	20	37
Cheese; American	7	15
Potatoes, ₱ bbl	2 50	3 00
Onions
Green Apples	2 50	4 00
Rice, ₱ lb, Louisiana	3	11
India	11½	12
Carolina	11½	12
Saltpetre, refined, ₱ lb	14	22
Crude	13½	15
Salt ₱ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 30	2 35
——from store	2 40	2 45
——coarse, cargo
——from warehouse	2 40	2 45
——from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₱ bushel	2 00	2 10
Soap, ₱ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	15	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₱ lb:
In the city	14½	17½
Havana, White	15	15½
——Yellow	12	14
——Brown	11	12
Tobacco, in hhds, ₱ lb:
Balers & Cutters	25
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9	12
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	7½	9
Good Refused	5½	7
Common Refused	4½	5½
Twine, Cotton, ₱ lb	60	80
Hailing	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₱ lb	32	35
Burry	12	15
Louisiana, Native	17	20
Texas, ¼@1 Merino	21	22

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—No. — Magazine Street,
Between Felicity and First Sts.,
NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je2 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as references for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine, during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 93 Carondelet street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

ATLANTA, February 13, 1865.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Colier's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana. THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D,
Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D,
Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wynn parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Colier, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible cure for Cancer

REV J F BELLAMY,
REV J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years. I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Colier's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar.—I believe Dr Colier can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y MOORE

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the cure

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Colier

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES,

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $20.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's, unabridged, Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sunday School Union's Biblical, and Author's Classical.

Books for

PRIZES, HOLIDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS,

beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care.

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound.

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell, $1 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, prepaid, for 30 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

fe23 1m

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,
GREENSBORO ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman D D LL D,
Rev. E Wadsworth A M D D,
O as A M,
Rev. J C Wills A M,
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this institution will open on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term $40 00
Incidental fee 5 00
Tuition in Preparatory school per term $30 to $40
Contingent fee $1 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

jly 2 1y O F CASEY Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has two old schools, which is designed to be permanent in succession, location, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He will board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elementary Branches $20 00
Higher Branches 25 00
Latin, Greek, etc 30 00
French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B. CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja4 1y

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,
WASHINGTON CO., VA.

On the 9th of January next we begin our Spring session. We invite those seeking Collegiate advantages to consider ours. To our Southern friends, desiring repose and exemption from many of their peculiar annoyances, our location and surroundings are especially attractive. One hundred and fifty dollars will cover the expenses of a session of five months, including tuition, board, fuel, room rent, washing and contingent fee. A catalogue of other information can be obtained by addressing

E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
Emory P. O., Va.
[dec 7]

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin 60c.
Sent by mail at 70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan $1 50.
" Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep $1 25
Roan 1 50
Roan Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
S. S. Bells (single) $4 25 per doz.
" " (Double) 6 50
Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13 R J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

july 27 tf

H. F. GIVEN, W. O. BROWN.
D. A. GIVEN, R. K. DUNKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186 COMMON STREET 186

feb3-67 1y

$100 A MONTH

SALARY WILL BE PAID FOR Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample, retailing at $4 50 for 50 cents. A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,
48 Broad street, New York.
[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 3m

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY,
308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(JOHN GEDDES—JOS. A. SHAKSPEARE—S. SWOOP.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 18 '67, 6m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondelet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

jan 26 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally.

53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBERG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Foundries and Steamboats. nov3 1y

T. H. HIGGINBOTHAM, C. W. HODGE W. E. MAYO, New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants.

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS,

nly6 1y LA.,

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 11 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN ARTISTS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Canton Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Cornice Poles, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Tapis and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Brass Cornices, Bright, Plain Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Fringe and Moquette.

G. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 48 Poydras street, New Orleans, La.

Are agents for the following brands of flour, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

Mechanicsburg Mills & Co., choice XXX. W. Breckenridge & Co., choice XXX. Socker State Mills, No. 1. Sparta Mills, choice superfine.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J. L. DUNNICA & CO.

sep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A large assortment of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE,

S. B. ALBERS Agent, 231 St Charles st.,
Opposite Tivoli Circle, New Orleans.

[dec 14-1y]

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION

AND

FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No. 104 North Commercial Street,

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled. aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR,

AND

COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART. NEW ORLEANS
Late Stuart & James.

Represented by CAPT. J. A. BISFORD, Duck Hill, Miss. oct 20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS.

General Commission Merchants,

And Commercial Agents. aug25 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchoupitoulas Street,

And 8 and 10 New Levee,

aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F. G. BARRIERE G. W. BABCOCK

F. G. BARRIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

No. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.

n10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

WM. EDWARDS.
EDWD. J. GAY. sep15 1y

J. G. ELLIS. W. C. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. jan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co.
SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 UNION STREET,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. C. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

apr 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS,

New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Payne & Harrison)
Edward Harrison,
J. P. Harrison, Jun.,
Sidney Harrison,
John N. Harrison. july7 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No. 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar1 6m

A. D. GRIEFF,

Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st.,

aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS.

aug 8'67 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 116, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

COLGATE & CO.'S

FRAGRANT TOILET SOAPS are prepared by skilled workmen from the best materials, and are known as the Standard, by dealers and consumers.

Sold everywhere. mar28 3m

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom House Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

J. A. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS. M. J. WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

ly 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

51 Poydras street,

Cotton Office—192 Common street—in charge of RICHARD J. NUGENT. aug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. R. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., corner Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. feb18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 34 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON,
W. H. DAMERON, H. M. PAYNE.

je23-1y

G. M. STEIRER. THOS. C. FALTH

G. M. STEIRER & CO.

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market.)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves;

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER,

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar9-6m-67

D. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS,

AND

General Commission Merchants,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb2 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. M. SWENSON, N. Y., late of Austin, Tex. WM. PERKINS, D. L. KERNION, Of Perkins & Co., N. O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

No. 45 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

se29 1y

E. S. KEEP. C. CAULFIELD.

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oc13 1y

R. ATKINSON & CO. New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO. Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants

188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Cash advances made on consignments to us, by HEWITT, SWISHER & Co., Galveston, Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding

MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA.

REFERENCES: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Sandidge, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. L. Walker, New Orleans, La. july 5

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 155, Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS

W. A. VIOLETT. R. Y. BLACK. S. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants

15 6m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans.

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D F. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

july-5-6m

F. L. RICHARDSON J. D. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW,

No. 5 Commercial Place,

feb1y New Orleans.

AGENTS WANTED.—WE WANT first-class agents to introduce our NEW 'STAR SHUTTLE' SEWING MACHINES. Extraordinary inducements to good salesmen. Further particulars and sample work furnished on application to W. G. WILSON & CO., Cleveland, Ohio; Boston, Massachusetts; or Saint Louis, Missouri. fe15 3m

CANCERS CURED without pain, use of the knife or caustic Burning. Circulars sent free of charge. Address DRS. BABCOCK & SON, apr4 3mp 700 Broadway, New York

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 17.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 679.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1868.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

For the Advocate.

COLUMBUS DISTRICT MEETING.—MOBILE CONFERENCE.

Mr. Editor: This meeting was organized in the Methodist church at Brooksville, Mississippi, on Thursday, 23d day of April, 1868, at 3 P. M.—Bishop W. M. Wightman, presiding; Rev. T. Y. Ramsay, presiding elder; J. K. Dixon, secretary; W. L. Lipscomb, assistant secretary.

The Rev. T. S. Abernethy, Jr., of Enterprise, Mississippi, at 11 A. M., preached an able, eloquent and impressive sermon, introductory to the exercises of the district meeting.

The representation from the different charges embraced within the bounds of this district was not so full as anticipated, in consequence of excessive rains and the urgent demands of the farming interest, at this busy season of the year, for the presence of the planter at home.

Bishop W. M. Wightman delivered a spirited address explanatory of the status of district meetings, their necessity, nature and design, and the importance of the duties devolving upon its members.

Committees were appointed on the various subjects usually considered in such meetings. They met their responsibilities faithfully and with ability.

The several reports and resolutions presented were largely and profitably discussed by both preachers and lay members. These discussions were instructive and entertaining, and conducted in fine taste and spirit.

The presiding elders and pastors of the several stations and circuits made full reports of their respective pastoral charges, showing the organization of the district to be thorough and complete: all the churches opened, the preachers at their post, and a lively faith and intelligent zeal observable in their manner and spirit; the people manifesting an increased interest in the preaching of the word, finances hopeful, an active local ministry, family religion on the increase; greatly increased interest in Sabbath schools, showing that the membership as well as the ministry are fully awake to the vital importance of this institution in the future growth and progress of the church.

The following brethren were elected delegates and alternates to the ensuing session of the Mobile Annual Conference, to be held in Meridian, Mississippi:

Delegates.—John Terry, W. L. Lipscomb, Dr. Landrum, J. K. Dixon.

Alternates.—Rev. Elzie Williams, Ananias Herron.

Pickensville, Alabama, was selected as the place for the convening of the next session of the Columbus district meeting.

The generous Christian hospitality on the part of the citizens of Brooksville and vicinity was highly appreciated by the members of the meeting, for which resolutions of commendation and thanks were—by a rising vote—unanimously adopted.

The official members of the meeting went away convinced that these meetings must be sources of much good to the church.

The services on the Sabbath were replete with interest, commencing with appropriate addresses to the combined Sabbath schools in the place. At 11 A. M. a sermon by Bishop Wightman, to a congregation beyond the capacity of the house (large) to seat; after which the administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, by Rev. J. T. Heard.

The pulpit was occupied at 3 P. M. by the Rev. A. S. Andrews, of Columbus, Mississippi. The subject of his discourse was—"Denominational Education." At the close of this hour's services the ordination, by Bishop W. M. Wightman, of Rev. Jonathan Harrison as local deacon took place.

The secretary having, by resolution, been requested to have such items as he deemed proper published in our church organ, I inclose for publication the recommendations of the Committee on the State of the Church, together with resolutions adopted with the reports of a few important committees.

Respectfully,

J. K. Dixon, Sec'y.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

I.—ON THE STATE OF THE CHURCH.

W. L. Lipscomb, chairman of this committee, with a few remarks, forcible and pertinent to the subject, presented their report, which was adopted with the following recommendation:

The preachers are recommended to let their preaching be mainly directed to the revival of the great doctrines of justification by faith, and a present salvation by Jesus Christ, and the sanctification of the church.

And their special efforts to be devoted to the cultivation of personal piety in the membership, organizing for their assistance church meetings, class meetings and prayer meetings, and insisting upon the constant use of those all-prevailing means of grace, private and family prayer.

With a church full of the Holy Ghost all of the fruits of religion may confidently be expected. Regular attendance upon church, liberal support of the ministry and our church enterprises. Christian zeal and brotherly love will be the good fruit on the good tree, and Zion will prosper in all her borders.

Without vital religion, blight and mildew and declension will hang like a pall on all the interests of the church.

They are further recommended to pay particular attention to the children, the young people of their charges, and to cultivate with careful assiduity the germs of religion starting therein, and to organize Sunday schools in every church for their instruction and care.

The official members of the church at large are recommended to yield a cheerful obedience and submission to the orders and wishes of the pastors, and a hearty co-operation in all their projects and designs.

They are especially recommended to receive with kindness and profit the efforts of their pastors to inquire into their individual spiritual conditions, and endeavor to make this the long-deferred year of complete consecration of all they have and are to God.

W. L. LIPSCOMB,
L. MASSINGALE,
P. CRYMES,
R. K. WOOTTEN,
Committee.

II.—ON SABBATH SCHOOLS.

Rev. T. P. Crymes, chairman of this committee, presented their report, which was adopted with the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves, as pastors and people, to increased diligence and zeal in this good cause.

Resolved, That we will use our best endeavors to have schools of our own organized at every place where it may be practicable.

T. P. CRYMES,
W. C. HEARN,
W. HOPKINS, Jr.,
Committee.

III.—ON THE RELATIONS OF THE COLORED PEOPLE TO THE CHURCH.

Dr. Wm. Murrah, chairman of this committee, presented their report, which, after applying remarks, participated in generally by the members of the meeting, and the reading of an essay on the subject, prepared by the Rev. Alexander Hood, the report, as amended by the subjoined resolutions, offered by Rev. A. S. Andrews, was adopted.

Resolved, That notwithstanding the fact that grave difficulties have grown out of the separation of the colored people from our church, making it difficult to reach them, still we feel bound, in so far as we are able to do so, to labor for the welfare and salvation of the colored people in our midst.

Resolved, That this district meeting requests the president to appoint Dr. Wm. Murrah as general superintendent of the colored people within the bounds of our district.

IV.—ON DENOMINATIONAL EDUCATION.

On motion of Rev. A. S. Andrews, chairman of this committee, the report adopted at the last annual Conference on this subject was adopted by this district meeting.

On motion, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That our profound gratitude is due to Almighty God for the preservation of our lives, calling us together again, as a district meeting, in the representation of the interests of his church, and to the enjoyment of his blessed spirit and peace, and would earnestly pray for their continuance with us.

Resolved, That our fraternal commendation and thanks are due to the officers of this meeting, the president and secretaries, for the able, faithful and courteous manner and spirit in which they have performed the duties of their offices.

Adjourned sine die, with apostolic benediction by the bishop.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

A DISORDERLY SCENE IN THE UNITED STATES SENATE.—THE GALLERIES CLEARED.

We copy as follows from a special Washington dispatch, dated the 6th:

Bingham closed his speech at half-past 2 o'clock in an eloquent manner. The crowds of people in the galleries arose to catch his closing remarks. When he concluded, an unrestrained round of applause broke forth from the occupants of the galleries, lasting some minutes. The Chief Justice rapped and the Sergeant-at-Arms called loudly for order, but the applause was unchecked, and the galleries continued to applaud Mr. Bingham's speech. The Chief Justice arose and ordered the galleries to be cleared, but no one moved.

Senator Grimes insisted that the order of the Chief Justice should be enforced, and in this Senator Trumbull united. The galleries commenced to hiss loudly, and the Chief Justice again arose, but he was greeted with loud hisses. Never before was such a scene witnessed in the Senate chamber.

Mr. Cameron took sides with the galleries, and moved that the order clearing them out be suspended.

The Chief Justice refused to entertain it, and in a very emphatic manner called upon the Sergeant-at-Arms to see that the galleries were cleared.

Policemen then forced themselves inside the galleries and commenced to move out the vast assembly. In about twenty minutes all the galleries were cleared except the reporters' gallery.

The reporters, numbering about sixty, did not stir, but maintained their position.

The chamber soon became quiet, and Senator Morrill, of Maine, then arose and offered a motion that when this court adjourn it be until Saturday next.

Senator Cameron called attention to the fact that the reporters' gallery was not cleared, and that the motion of Morrill was made apparently under the idea that no persons but Senators were present.

All eyes were then turned toward the reporters' gallery, when nearly every correspondent gave vent to his feelings in a loud laugh.

This amused the Senators, who joined in, and for a few minutes an indescribable scene took place, the Senate chamber resounding with laughter.

The scene, however, the Chief Justice did not appreciate, and he ordered policemen to clear the reporters' gallery.

Several policemen came in, and under protest the correspondents were ordered to retire.

In about twenty minutes the doors were again thrown open, and the court then took a recess for fifteen minutes.

The occupants of the galleries who had been forced out commenced to fill up the galleries again.

New York, May 9.—The following is from the Herald's Abyssinian news: Every building in Magdala was burned. The king's widow and son were protected to the Tiger country. The young Prince Theodore goes to England for education. When the English approached the enemy was in grand array. The fight opened with mortars. Soon four thousand Abyssinians, with shouts and triumphal songs, charged the British batteries, and were repulsed, leaving seven hundred killed, including two chiefs. Abyssinian tactics and courage were good.—Theodorus then sent a flag demanding peace. Napier demanded an unconditional surrender. Theodorus replied that he would never accept arbitrary terms, and would rather fight, but asked Napier to take the English prisoners and go away. All the prisoners were released, but the king refused to surrender. The storming of Magdala followed.

London, May 9.—Rt. Hon. Henry Brougham, Lord Brougham and Vaux, an eminent lawyer, reformer, legislator and ex-Chancellor of England, died at his rural retreat in Cannes, France, to-day, in the ninetieth year of his age. The announcement, although his demise has been looked for at any moment during the past few days, has produced a profound sensation as people realized that the last visible link which connected the present political situation of the country with reform, anti-slave trade and freedom of press agitations of 1810 and '12 has been removed at a most vital moment in the history of Great Britain.

London, May 10.—Evening.—Dispatches from Cannes, France, state that Lord Brougham died easily. He fell into a pleasant slumber, from which he never awoke.

Washington, May 11.—No mere pen description is adequate to portray the intense interest and excitement that was manifest this afternoon and to-night with reference to the discussion in the Senate upon the impeachment articles.

At an early hour, say two o'clock, this afternoon the Radicals were confident and jubilant. Shortly after that period the Republicans wore elongated faces and were blue, whilst the Conservatives were bright and hopeful, and even confident. Notwithstanding the general doubt about Messrs. Fessenden, Trumbull, Grimes and Henderson, the Radicals appeared to be astonished at the position taken by them in debate, and directly after their sentiments were made known there was a panic among the Republicans in the halls and vestibules of the Senate wing of the capitol. There were congregated the representative newspaper men, members of the House and others, anxiously waiting for indications as to the sentiments expressed by Senators.

Never perhaps has such deep interest been manifested by this class of men. From time to time messages were sent by these intensified persons to Senators, and replies received which were reduced to form in telegrams to the various leading journals of the country.

To-night, in every direction, we find excited knots of men discussing the situation, and the sum total of public opinion is that the President will be acquitted.

Up to this writing, however, nothing has occurred to change the status of Senators as placed by well-advised persons.

The persons best informed expected Messrs. Trumbull, Fessenden, Grimes and Henderson to oppose impeachment. Those who are expected to follow or support them have not been heard from officially or legitimately.

But it is generally conceded that when the votes shall be taken finally the President will be acquitted; how well founded this belief will prove to be remains to be seen.

The Senate has not yet reached the consideration of the proposition to postpone the further consideration of the verdict, nor the proposition of the Chief Justice to charge the Senate upon the law and the evidence.

The President to-night attended the annual exhibition of Morini's dancing academy, of which his grandchildren are pupils.—N. O. Times.

Washington, May 11.—Impeachment Court.—The following is the form proposed by Chase and adopted by the Senate:

Mr. Senator—How say you—is the President, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, guilty of a high misdemeanor or crime, as charged in this article?

The Senator shall respond "guilty," or "not guilty," only.

At 10 o'clock the Senate will proceed to consider the articles. Each Senator having fifteen minutes, will continue the session to a late hour.

The following is gathered from several sources and may be regarded as reliable:

Grimes and Fessenden went through the list of charges, arguing against conviction.

Trumbull and Henderson were partly through when the expiration of their fifteen minutes stopped them. They argued in favor of acquittal.

Howe and Sherman argued acquittal on the first but conviction on the second.

The Radicals acknowledge that it will be very close, but they insist definitely that they have thirty-eight votes. Only six mentioned above of the fourteen doubtful Senators have yet spoken.

House.—A joint resolution of the Ohio Legislature protesting against the reconstruction acts and instructing Senators and requesting Representatives to vote against such laws, was referred to the Reconstruction Committee.

A resolution to adjourn from the 16th to the 21st passed—68 to 67. The recess is for the Chicago Convention.

Stevens introduced the following:

Whereas, the people of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama have, in pursuance of the provisions of an act entitled an act for the more efficient government of the rebel States, passed March 2, 1867, and the acts supplementary thereto, framed constitutions of State governments, which are republican in form, and have adopted said constitutions by large majorities of the votes cast at the elections held for the ratification or rejection of the same:

Therefore, be it enacted, 1. That the States of North Carolina, South Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia and Alabama shall be entitled to and admitted to representation in Congress as States of the Union, when the legislatures of said States respectively shall have duly ratified the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, proposed by the Thirty-ninth Congress, and known as article 14, upon the following fundamental conditions: That the constitutions of said States shall never be so amended or changed as to deprive any citizen or class of citizens of the United States of the right to vote who are now entitled to vote by said constitutions respectively, except for such crimes as are now felonies at common law, whereof they shall have been duly convicted; and no person shall ever be held to service or labor as a punishment for crime in said States, except by public officers charged with the custody of convicts by the laws thereof.

Section 2. That if the day fixed for the meeting of the Legislatures of said States by the constitution thereof shall have passed before the passage of this act, such Legislatures may be convened within thirty days after the passage of this act, by the president of the convention which framed the constitution of such States.

Section 3. That the first section of this act shall take effect when the President of the United States shall officially proclaim the due ratification by the Legislatures of said States respectively of article 14 of the Constitution of the United States, proposed by the Thirty-ninth Congress.

This bill was made the special order for Wednesday, and to be continued from day to day until disposed of.

Washington, May 12.—The Court of Impeachment adjourned until Saturday on account of the illness of Senator Howard. No vote was taken.

Immediately after the adjournment of the court the Senate proceeded to legislative business, but adjourned without consummating anything.

The House is in session, transacting business. Nothing important has transpired.

Senate.—After adjournment of the court the Senate passed the bill extending the city charter.

On the motion to adjourn, Drake said he moved to adjourn over because he believed the Senators were not in a condition to attend to business. Coukling asked what was the matter. Drake said if the Senators could not see what was the matter, it was useless for him to tell them. The whole country now was trembling in agony of suspense. If in view of the throes in which the country was now suffering there were Senators here who were possessed of such composure as to be insensible to it, then he envied them. After further unimportant business the Senate adjourned to the usual hour.

Forney has resigned the Secretaryship of the Senate.

A full cabinet meeting was held to-day, including Thomas.

The White House was crowded with visitors to-day.

Washington, May 12.—Senator Grimes concluded as follows: "Whatever may be my opinion of the incumbent, I cannot consent to trifle with the high office he holds. I can do nothing which by implication may be construed into an approval of impeachment as a part of future political machinery. However widely, therefore, I may differ from the President respecting his political views and measures, and however deeply I have regretted and do regret the differences between himself and the Congress of the United States, I am not able to record my vote that he is guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors by reason of these differences.

"I am acting in a judicial capacity, under conditions whose binding obligation can hardly be exceeded, and I must act according to the best of my ability and judgment, and as they require. If according to their dictates the President is guilty, I must say so; if according to their dictates the President is not guilty, I must say so. In my opinion the President has not been guilty of an impeachable offence by reason of anything alleged in either of the articles preferred against him at the bar of the Senate by the House of Representatives." Edmunds' speech decreases the chances of conviction on the 11th article, which has been regarded as the Gibraltar of impeachment. Regarding the 10th and 11th articles he expressed the opinion that they did not come within the constitutional meaning of high crimes and misdemeanors.

Washington, May 13.—The Secretary of War and Gen. Grant were called on for all documents regarding the elections in Southern States.

The bill admitting Arkansas is up.

The President's friends are tranquil under the certainty of acquittal.

Howard is still very sick. There is little probability of a vote until after the Chicago races.

Chief Justice Carter to-day refused to admit Surratt to bail, on the ground that the prosecution was ready for the trial and that it was at the instance of the counsel for the prisoner that the case was continued.

Washington, May 13.—Senator Grimes was taken sick this afternoon. Symptoms premonitory paralysis. He is able to converse with his friends to-night.

Coukling is also sick—confined to his bed.

Howard is no better to-night.

This morning's New York Times says: "Impeachment has failed. The postponement of the vote until Saturday is a confession of the fact, and the declaration on behalf of the prosecution that it will not be taken even then, unless conviction be certain, indicates a belief that the whole thing must be abandoned."

It is reported that a member of Congress has received a dispatch stating that the Chicago Tribune supports acquittal.

Horace Greeley was in the House to-day.

Both parties seem equally confident of impeachment results.

Washington, May 13.—A voluminous communication from Grant, covering information from the Southern States, was referred to the Military Committee.

The chair presented the constitution of South Carolina, which was referred to the Committee on Territories.

Sherman presented resolutions of the Ohio Legislature protesting against the reconstruction acts, and instructing Senators and requesting Representatives to vote for their repeal; also, protesting against the bill limiting the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Sherman regarded this as extraordinary, and at his instance they were tabled.

Forney's resignation was laid on the table against Cameron's motion that it be accepted immediately.

Adjourned to Saturday.

House.—The bill admitting several Southern States was taken up. Stevens offered the following amendment: "Provided that the provisions of the 17th section of the constitution of the State of Georgia shall not apply to a debt due to any person who, during the whole time of the late rebellion, was loyal to the United States and opposed to secession."

Stevens gave notice that he would call the previous question, that a vote might be taken the first thing to-morrow. Adjourned.

The jest that gives pain is no jest.

SUPPLICATION.

BY WILLIAM H. BURLEIGH.

I.

Forbid my feet to stray,
Oh, Father! from the way
That leads to Thee and to Thy perfect rest;
Though rough that way and steep,
Right onward would I keep—
The path Thou choosest for me is the best!

II.

The best—though on its flints
My feet leave bloody prints,
And every step is added toil and pain;
The best—though hard and straight—
Since through its narrow gate
The Golden City shall my soul attain.

III.

Misled by sinful pride,
Too long I turned aside,
Placing in human wisdom all my trust;
Too long, in sorest need,
Leaned on a broken reed,
And fed my heart with hopes that turned to dust.

IV.

I thank Thee for the care
That waited not my prayer,
But kindly, through the ministry of woe,
By loss and bitter pain,
Hath called me back again,
To taste Thy love and Thy forgiveness know.

V.

And now Thy work complete,
Consoler! Paraclete!
Thy will be done, and may that will be mine,
Till, through Thy grace, I win
The victory over sin,
And all my soul is filled with love divine!

For the Advocate.

EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIANITY.

NO. XII.—DOCTRINES OF THE BIBLE.

The doctrines taught in the Bible—their harmony with the most enlightened deductions of reason, their accordance with experience, and their adaptation to the moral, spiritual and immortal wants of men—powerfully tend to the confirmation of their claims to inspiration. "Hear, oh! Israel: the Lord our God is one Lord." Reason could never have proved that there is but one God. That it could not is obvious from the fact that never, in any age or land, did it certainly reach this conclusion. But men ever had gods many and lords many. This great truth—like many great truths in natural philosophy, when once made known—seems almost self-evident. The unity of design, the order and harmony of the universe, in its utmost expansion and minutest details, reveals that it is the product of one great Being—the bodying forth and realization of one sublime and beneficent idea. The more astronomy learns of the stellar orbs, and their laws and motions; the more geology teaches of the strata of the earth; the more botany teaches us of vegetable life; the more chemistry teaches us of the primary elements of things; the more zoology teaches us of animated nature, the more reasonable and certain becomes the doctrine of the unity of God. There is one Creator in nature, one Law-giver, who rules in high authority over all worlds and all creatures.

When we turn to the moral branch of the divine administration we find the same unity and harmony. The righteous Lord has always loved righteousness and commanded its performance—has always hated iniquity and forbidden its commission.

The Bible teaches that God is unoriginated and eternal, and reason is forced to the same conclusion. For example: something always was, or there was a time when there was nothing; but as there is something now—yourself, for example—something must have ever been, or there was a time when nothing began to be something. But this is absurd and impossible; therefore something always was, "without beginning of days." As all visible things bear marks of being the production of some superior and previously existing power, we are forced back to the first and unoriginated cause of all things, to wit: God. Of course our finite intelligence must accept this truth, though sublime and overwhelming; infinitely surpassing our utmost powers. We cannot explain; we can only in the dust adore.

The Bible teaches that "God's understanding is infinite." When we attempt some survey and analysis of God's works we feel that his wisdom surpasses human thought—is marvelous and past finding out. Let us examine this a moment. Let us dismiss the worlds we see by night as being too numerous and vast to be the subjects of critical survey. Let us confine ourselves to this one light, that but twinkles amongst countless flames. Take a branch of natural philosophy—say botany, for example. One man has a fondness for the study of vegetable life. He devotes a score or two of years to the pleasing task, then embodies and condenses his life's labors in a systematic treatise. Another comes after him, smitten with a like love of nature, as it blooms in flowers, ripens in fruits, and towers in trees, and runs and climbs in vines. He seizes and reads with avidity the book which his predecessor's toils and studies have bequeathed. He soon masters its contents. Thus furnished he goes forth with an educated eye and a memory stored with facts. Botany is the study of his life. He, too, writes a book. Another comes after, and then another. Many lives are thus exhausted, but the subject is not exhausted. So with zoology, so with conchology—in short, all the ologies. But men of science feel that in all scientific pursuits much land remains to be conquered. Now the time was when all sciences—all forms, all qualities, and all beings, with their laws—existed in pattern, in idea, in the infinite mind. How overwhelming is this conception of the divine intelligence. But God has scattered worlds by millions along the milky way. These worlds may have botanics, zoologies and geologies peculiar to themselves; yet God once had all these mighty orbs and all their manifold wonders in his mind—in idea, in pattern—before they had a tangible being or had rolled from his creating hand—for known unto him from eternity are all his works.

The Bible reveals the almightiness of God. Nothing is too hard for the Lord. All that does not involve a contradiction is possible to God's illimitable power. "The worlds were framed by the word of God," so that things which are seen were not made of the things which do appear. God created. Heathen reason could never get further than the immortals God fashioned and governed, but were themselves governed by an inexorable fate. Now the power that can create can have no limit. We can conceive of no boundaries.—"He speaks and it is done, he commands and it is made fast." "He upholdeth all things by the word of his power." We can only get at some faint appreciation of this by contemplating it in detail. What an exhibition of power would it be to upheave and bear through the air, at the rate of a hundred miles per hour, an Alpine mountain! And yet our earth, so many millions of times larger, flies at the rate of more than a thousand miles per hour. Then the sun is thirteen hundred thousand times larger than our earth, and there are stars fifty millions of times larger than our sun! Yet these ponderous globes are "upheld by the word of his power," and perhaps are all going forward on a sublime march through the illimitable and pathless solitudes of space. Thus do we find the Scriptures, in their revelations of the character of God, presenting him to our adoring contemplation as the infinite embodiment of all perfection, as being alone capable of the creation, support and government of the sublime materialities revealed to us by the grand discoveries of modern science.

W.

JAPAN is said to be in a state of anarchy.

For the Advocate.

Vermilion Letters from China.—No. III.

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 12, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: My engagement as superintendent of the Government Anglo-Chinese School in this place terminated on the 24th of December last. The school has been in operation four years, and numbers upward of forty pupils. The official limit is sixty, but the highest number admitted and in attendance at any one time has not exceeded fifty.

The government is very impatient to realize the services of the pupils now under instruction, and my first class of ten, (several of whom are Chinese Bachelors—A. B.,) though far from proficient as yet, are to be withdrawn. Four or five of them will go to Pekin at the earliest opportunity, this spring, to be disposed of by the government. The others are to be transferred to the government arsenal at this place.

A few days since I was solicited to take charge of the school again for the present year, and as we have heard nothing favorable from the board in reference to the further support of the mission, I reluctantly consented, as the only alternative left us. We had hoped to be free this present year, but we are still bound and our future beclouded.

The first week of January, as is our custom here, was devoted to prayer. All the missionaries, ignoring national and state lines, sects and prejudices, assembled from evening to evening in Union Chapel, and, notwithstanding the weather continued unfavorable, realized an abundant blessing on their unity of mind. "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Immediately after the week of prayer Brother Wherry, of the Presbyterian mission, and myself set out to visit our respective stations in the interior. Besides those places at which we have stations, we visited quite a number of walled cities and large towns, and found the people everywhere ready to receive our tracts and hear our exhortations. A wonderful change, within the last few years, has been wrought in public opinion concerning Christianity and its teachers—indeed in reference to foreign influence generally. The country is now regarded as accessible, and Christianity tolerated far beyond our present limited ability to occupy. Missionary enterprise is now invited into the far interior, and already quite a number of large cities and towns have been occupied by both native and foreign evangelists. No more new missionaries are desired for the "treaty ports." The great want is men for the interior.

Some time since I saw in the Pekin Gazette a memorial addressed to the Emperor, setting forth the evils, and the causes thereof, which have long afflicted China, and among them was enumerated the influence of Budhism and Tonism, which the memorialists prayed the Emperor might at once suppress. They argued that the Taiping rebellion had so far subdued the power of those sects, by the destruction of their temples and extermination of the priests, as that it would be an easy matter now to interdict them altogether, and prevent their future rise. And while in the country, during the trip above mentioned, I heard that the Emperor had so far complied with the memorial as to interdict the repair or rebuilding of any of the temples formerly used by those sects, which were denounced as Zia Kyau. The Confucian temples alone are to receive attention. In the large fie city of Su-Chow we found a proclamation, also denouncing locally the Budhists and Touists, who were charged with a constant violation of ancient rites, deceiving and cheating the people, and seducing the women whom they could entice to come as worshipers to their temples. Heavy penalties were also proclaimed against them and all concerned.

Idolatry has proven a heavy burden on the neck of this people, and, since the fury of the iconoclastic Tai-pings has swept it quite away, there seems to be no desire to submit to its galling yoke again. Hence, Mr. Editor, there is now an open door, especially in this region, for Christianity to enter and appropriate the praises and offerings, once devoted to idols, to Jehovah the Lord. Appearances indicate the drawing near of the "set time to favor Zion" in this uttermost end of the earth. A large field is now ready, not for the sower, but for the sower. Is the church ready to sow? If not, how shall it gather the increase? Or is it waiting, unlike St. Paul, to enter into the labor of others—to reap those fields whereon it has bestowed no labor?

This country is beautifully adapted to our itinerant system; and, besides, we already have quite a number of Christian families at various accessible points in the interior, who are urgent and anxious to have us extend our labors and incorporate them.

I hope the time will soon come when we shall number as many missionaries here as we have conferences.—Shall I say when each conference shall have its own representative here, sanctioned, prayed for and supported by those who know and sympathize with him?

The want of individuality and directness of interest in the missionary enterprise is doubtless the great secret of our failure.

Connect the missionary work more directly with those who support it, and a knowledge of the field, the work required and the means necessary to promote and accomplish the object of missions will all result. Instead, then, of being, as in the past, as if buried alive; the missionary will feel that he is not alone in his work, but that there are strong ties still binding him to his own conference, and mutually identifying him and his brethren with the same interests. But I will desist, lest my pen should betray me into heresy.

The mission families are all well.

Your's truly,

YOUNG J. ALLEN.

BRINGING BACK THE ARK.

After the preparations for this important celebration had been made the king went forth, in company with the great multitude which had assembled around him from all corners of the land, to Kirjath-jearim, "to bring up from thence the ark of God the Lord of hosts, that dwelleth between the cherubims." It is known that the ark, according to the command of God, was made of the durable shittim or acacia-wood, and was covered over, both outside and inside, with plates of gold, and that the two tables of the Law were laid up within it, (on which account it was called the "Ark of the Covenant,") along with Aaron's rod that budded,* and the pot of manna, which corrupted not, from the wilderness. A heavy golden plate, called the "Propitiatory," or Mercy-Seat, served as a lid to the ark. Two cherubims of gold, with their faces one toward another, were raised up at each end of the "mercy-seat," and overshadowed it, looking down with outspread wings, in devotional attitude, to the ark. They represented the majesty of Jehovah watching over the Law and the people of Israel, and ruling in the midst of them. The whole symbolically represented the throne of the God of Israel as the eternally Holy One, but also as the God rich in mercy and reconciled to the world. The Law, with its commands and threatenings, appeared covered—a prophetic indication this of the future redemption—and the cherubims stood there representing those who, as the apostle Peter afterward expresses it, desire to look into the mysteries of redemption. Once every year, on the great day of atonement, the high priest drew near to the holy ark, yet not without the blood of sacrifice that had been offered—a shadow of that which, typically represented in the Holy of Holies of the temple, would one day find its realization. God then revealed himself to the high priest, as we read of Moses and Samuel, that Jehovah spake to them "from between the cherubim." Whether he always revealed himself to the priest after the same manner is uncertain. But the mercy-seat was in itself a divine pledge that the Lord was with his people, and that he would remain faithful to his word and covenant to the end.

After David and the people had reached Gibeah, a new cart, constructed for this special purpose, was brought, and the ark of God, covered with a curtain, was brought out of the house of Abinadab and placed upon it. Then there followed a solemn offering up of sacrifice, after which the immense procession was set in motion and followed the ark. Harpers, trumpeters, and a great band of other players on diverse kinds of instruments of music, went before the procession. Psalms which David himself had composed for this celebration, and which he had probably also provided with their music, were sung by many thousands of voices in harmonious accord. The king himself, clothed in the simple robes of a Levite, without any of the insignia of his royal dignity, followed immediately behind the wagon drawn by the oxen, joining in the choir with an animation which displayed itself not only in his countenance, radiant with joy, and in his powerful ringing voice, but also in his whole deportment. Thus they went on, in undisturbed jubilee, till they came to Nachon's threshing-floor, not far from Jerusalem, when the solemnity was suddenly interrupted. The oxen, which were driven by Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab which drew the cart, stepped aside, perhaps enticed by the grain on the neighboring threshing-floor. This caused the cart to shake and rock to and fro, so that the ark appeared to be in danger of falling from it. Then Uzzah sprang forward and seized hold of it, with the well-meant intention of saving it, and in that same moment, smitten by the anger of God, he sank down dead to the ground.

One may conceive the surprise and terror which now took possession of all. The procession is arrested. The instruments and the song are silent. We share in the terror of the people. But the surprise which at the same time that event raises within us is greater than that which the children of Israel experienced. One must look somewhat deeper for the cause of it. The Mosaic law, known to every Israelite, ordained expressly that the "holy thing," i. e., the ark, should be borne on staves, and that no one should directly touch it, "lest he die." This commandment was forgotten at the bringing up of the holy thing. They were negligent about this law, and had followed the manner in which the Philistines had once brought back the holy treasure, rather than kept before their eyes the Mosaic order. The ark must be carried, and not borne on a conveyance, and moreover carried by priests, and not, as it had this time happened, by two youths, who besides were not even of the tribe of Aaron. Thus by this solemnity there was again brought to view the general neglect of religious observances which prevailed in Israel; and it showed the necessity of raising again before the eye of the people, in a very distinct manner, the law which had so deeply sunk out of view. Through the familiarity of daily observation of that old ark in the house of their father Abinadab, the sons had apparently lost all reverence for it, so that they saw no longer anything in it particular; and this sinful indifference toward the mysterious treasure was the cause of Uzzah's thoughtlessly laying hold of it—an act which he must atone for with his life, according to the divine threatening, as a warning to the whole people. A similar judgment from God once fell upon Nadab and Abihu, the sons of the high priest Aaron himself, when they, as wantonly as Uzzah, instead of the holy fire from the altar of burnt-offering, presented strange fire with the frankincense before the Lord. Fire from the Lord destroyed them also. If they had, by an unseasonable and immoderate partaking of wine and strong drink, as seems indeed to have been the case, deprived themselves of that presence of mind and sobriety appropriate to the service of the tabernacle, they were certainly doubly guilty and worthy of punishment.

If the occurrence at the threshing-floor of Nachon may be regarded as having a spiritual import, it lays to our hearts a solemn warning. It teaches us that we trench upon the honor of God if we allow ourselves to be anxiously afraid particularly about the triumph and the progress of his cause, and that we overstep in a suspicious manner the limits of modesty befitting us as often as we entertain the presumptuous thought, that it lies upon us to save from destruction the ark of the covenant, when at any time the cart (church) on which it is carried appears as if about to be overthrown, through the negligence and unfaithfulness of those who are appointed for its direction. Indeed, in our own days, there are not awanting men like Uzzah, who act as if it were all over with Christianity, if they did not maintain it against the power of modern negations. Then, at one time, we see them with strange blindness busy themselves about bringing it into concord with the ruling public taste, whatever that may cost, and not observing that in doing so they themselves surrender it to a process of decomposition, by which it is stripped of its essential qualities, and goes forth as something altogether different from what it originally was and must be. Again, we find them in the sweat of their brow laboring to overcome the unbelief that is around them, perhaps also their own; or, in default of the Holy Spirit, striving by all manner of means chosen by themselves—sometimes oratorical, sometimes artistic, sometimes liturgic—to support the kingdom of God and save it from destruction. This zeal, notwithstanding its good intention, is yet unholy, because it is faint-hearted as it is presumptuous. Perhaps they may experience a divine forbearance, which would not have corresponded with the spirit and character of the Old Testament; yet they will scarcely be spared the sorrows of sanctifying trials that will come upon them. The Lord needs not such helpers.

"The breach," as our history expresses it, which the Lord made upon Uzzah, filled the whole of Israel with not a little alarm. The king himself trembled at such a manifestation of the divine anger. "How shall the ark of the Lord," he cried with a sorrowful heart, "come to me?" He feared lest in bringing it up he had taken an arbitrary step, and therefore one displeasing to the Lord, and he could not find courage to carry it farther forward. He therefore left it by the way, in the house of a Levite named Obed-edom, and returned home without it, in deep dejection of spirit, along with his trembling people. This interruption of a joyful festival was to every one a new admonition, that the kindness and grace of God are never alone, but are always accompanied by his holiness. God never permits it that any one should sin, and yet, sinning, should rejoice and be glad before him. If his benevolence tends to draw us aside to levity and presumption, we will soon see him exchange gentleness for severity, though he thereby embitter to us the fairest day of our lives. In educating us, God cares more that we should fear him (with the more of a child-like spirit the better) as the Holy One, and as demanding holiness in us, than that we should always prosecute our pilgrimage-journey here below with unclouded joy. He therefore causes it frequently to happen that we are compelled, in the midst of the superabundance of our prosperity and our joy, suddenly to join in the lamentation of Job, "Thou art become cruel to me; with thy strong hand thou opposest thyself against me." But how speaks the prophet, "Wherefore doth a living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sins?" The Lord may for a time withdraw his countenance, but he is always faithful in his purposes toward his people, and after the storm he always brings them at his own fitting time into the sunshine again. However sorely he may chastise them, he yet remains faithful by his word of promise, "Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee. Behold, I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands."—David, the King of Israel, by Krummacher.

* Heb. ix.

THE Moravian missionaries in Labrador labor under every external disadvantage. This is painfully evident by little facts which their reports incidently mention. In Zoar their harvest consisted of a barrel of potatoes, about the size of walnuts, and a plentiful supply of radishes, all raised in a little garden made of sand mixed with earth brought from a more southern soil. In Hebron the garden-plot is at a great distance from the mission premises, as no sufficiently sheltered ground can be found near them; and, as it is, the garden must be kept constantly watered to prevent the gales from sweeping away the soil and its produce. In Umanak, Greenland, the missionaries have scraped off the turf over the pebbles, dried it and rubbed it in their hands, and carried it in barrels to the garden-plot, where it is spread thinly over a layer of refuse bone collected from before the doors of the Greenlanders' huts. Several years of such labor will finally accumulate a soil thick enough to dig up with a spade. The failure of a seal-fishery or of the ptarmigan hunt reduces them and their docile flocks almost to a state of starvation.

THE Protestant Syrian College at Beirut has now two classes, of which the sophomore contains eleven students and the freshman nineteen. Especial attention is given to the thorough mastery of the classical Arabic, which is so highly prized in the East. There is a very valuable medical department connected with the college, for which funds are being collected in this country. The officers of the institution gained great credit by predicting the meteoric shower of Nov., 1865, when on the predicted night there was such a brilliant storm of meteors that the most bigoted were obliged to confess the superiority of Christian learning. A prediction of the eclipse of the sun gave them similar support. The course of study pursued is of the same grades of our own younger colleges.

THERE is at the present time an unusual interest in the circulation of the Scriptures in Russia. The synod of the Greek church is putting thousands of copies into the hands of the people; and the priests and clergy are everywhere encouraging the people to read them. Officers in the army and navy are directed to see that the men under them are taught to read, and copies of the New Testament are the first books put into their hands after they have learned to read.

IT is said that Fiji Islanders, to the number of 100,000, about half of the population of the island, have been supplied with the Bible, and are under instruction. There are 17,000 church members, 40,000 scholars in the schools, 38 native ordained missionaries, and a thousand other native helpers. The English Wesleyans have control of this important mission.

A FRENCH exchange informs us that eleven Protestant churches were built in France during 1867. Of these six were connected with the National Church; and the remaining five, including two Methodist, were built without aid from the state. Seventeen had been built in 1866. This does not look like a decline of Protestantism in France.

MR. SPURGEON defends the system of replacing the present sectarian system of English schools with a purely secular one. He says that "village lads could generally carry in a hollow tooth all the religion they receive at the charity schools."

THE HUGUENOTS ARMING.

It may be said that, if over there was a time when Christians were justified in resorting to the sword, it was the present. The laws in favor of the Huguenots were constantly and systematically broken. The massacre at Vassy was only the first of a series of outrages equally barbarous. At Sens, in Burgundy, a Huguenot having insulted a Catholic procession, the tocsin was rung, and there was a general onslaught upon the Reformed, without regard either to age or sex. The bodies of the victims, stripped and fastened to planks, were thrown into the river and floated down to Paris, twenty leagues distant. One of them, that of a Gascon officer, was dragged through the streets by boys leaping and shouting: "Take care of your pigs, for we have got the pigkeeper." The fanatic populace destroyed everything, even rooting up the vines in the Calvinist vineyards. For three days the hideous carnival of murder went on, and ceased only from want of victims.*

The massacre of Sens took place in April, while the Baron de la Garde was on his mission of peace in the Protestant camp. It was said to have been perpetrated at the instigation of the Cardinal of Lorraine, who was archbishop of that city, and who took no steps to prevent the murders. As soon as the news reached the ears of Conde he broke off all negotiations, and declared that he would not lay down his arms "until he had driven his most cruel enemies (the Guises) out of France." The nuncio Santa Croce seems to allude to two massacres: "Since the massacre at Sens, of which I wrote in my last, another great slaughter of eighty Huguenots has happened, and some thirty of their houses have been burned in that city." Perrenot de Chantonnay, the Spanish ambassador, writes exultingly: "Already, in many parts of this kingdom, as at Sens, Toulouse, Castel-Navarre and Villefranche, the Catholics have risen against the Huguenots, who have had the worst of it; and in some places the preachers were burned in the market-place."

All over France, from the Channel to the Mediterranean, similar ferocious outbreaks occurred. At Sisteron, beneath the shadow of the Lower Alps, three hundred women and children, refugees from all parts of Provence, were pitilessly murdered, the men having made their escape. One poor woman with a baby in her arms was taken outside the town and put to death, and her body buried beneath the ruins of the house where she used to worship.

All comment on these things† would be superfluous. Is it wonderful that in such a state of lawlessness the Reformed nobles and gentlemen armed in self-defense? With indignant eloquence Agrippa d'Aubigne vindicates the rebellion in which the Huguenots sought to protect themselves: "So long as the adherents of the new religion were destroyed merely under the form of law, they submitted themselves to the slaughter, and never raised a hand in their own defense against those injuries, cruel and iniquitous as they were. But when the public authorities and the magistracy, divesting themselves of the venerable aspect of justice, put daggers into the hands of the people, abandoning every man to the violence of his neighbors; and when public massacres were perpetrated to the sound of the drum and of the trumpet, who could forbid the unhappy sufferers to oppose hand to hand, and sword to sword, and to catch the contagion of a righteous fury from a fury unrestrained by any sense of justice?"

This appeal to arms was quite contrary to the principles of the founder of the French church. In 1556, when Calvin had reason to fear that the Reformed would resist if they were attacked, he wrote to the church of Angers: "I pray you put aside such counsels; they will never be blessed by God, or come to a good issue." And to the church of Paris he wrote in the same strain: "Show yourselves like lambs against the rage of the wolves, for you have the Good Shepherd, who will never fail you. It is better that we be all destroyed than for the gospel to be reproached with leading the people to sedition and tumult. God will always fructify the ashes of his servants, whilst violence and excess will bring nothing but barrenness."‡

It is with great hesitation that I venture to differ from so high an authority as Calvin; but—to oppose authority to authority—St. Augustine acknowledges that overwhelming necessity may justify Christians in drawing the sword.§ And Knox went still farther, maintaining in his "Appellation" that it was not only the duty of a nation to resist a persecuting sovereign, but (as in the case of the Marian persecutions) also to depose the queen, and even "punish her to death, with all the sort of her idolatrous priests." But the propriety of arming in defense of religion can hardly in these days be maintained on such grounds. The Huguenots of 1562 felt that their only choice lay between extermination, hypocritical conformity, or rebellion. They were contending against intolerable oppression; the laws were no protection to them; and in such circumstances they believed resistance to be justifiable. Why should they apostatize, or be burned, while they had strength to wield the sword, especially as the letter of the law was in their favor? Such a line of argument may fall below the great ideal of the Founder of Christianity, in which the highest victory is gained through suffering: "Unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek, offer also the other." But how can we apply such a rule to a whole nation, the mass of which consists of ordinary individuals? Upon men of low moral constitutions persecution has a searing, hardening, revengeful effect. It would not raise the victims into martyrs, or lift them up to the divine Crucifixion. To forbid the use of the sword for any and every cause, as one very narrow sect does, is intelligible; but to say that we may draw it in defense of our homes and our goods, but not in defense of our faith, is to count the latter of less value than the former. Those who sympathize with Calvin argue that the midnight assassin, or the violator of woman's purity, may be lawfully resisted, even unto death; not so another who would force a man to abjure his faith. This is putting the purse above the conscience. Calvin had never been tested in the fire. Brentius and Languet, who had both been face to face with the enemy, thought differently.* The latter, speaking of a meeting at La Cerisaye, which had been attacked, says: "There were some who would have rather been beaten than draw their swords, but I was not of their opinion."† It may indeed be urged that the difference between the Romanists and Huguenots were not important enough to justify armed resistance; but the alternative appeal is to the conscience; and if men and women, young and old, rich and poor, through a long series of years, held their faith as dearer than their life, we must infer that the differences to them were vital.

There is, however, a potent element of evil in armed resistance. When Christians unite into armies they are too apt to become a political party, and losing sight of the motives and principles which first banded them together, to contend for mere temporal objects like any other body of men. It was perhaps a misfortune that the Reformed were so numerous in France; had they been a small, insignificant body, they would hardly have created such malignant animosity, and might have escaped being mixed up in the civil war, which was sooner or later inevitable between the political parties.

Both armies now began to prepare for the coming struggle. Never before in all history, and only once since, has anything been seen like the discipline at first maintained among the Huguenots. A form of prayer, drawn up by Beza, was repeated every night and morning; and the troops were "to beware of oppressing the poor commons." As they marched over the opened country "they neither spoiled nor misused their hosts, but were content with a little. . . . . Most of them paid honestly for all things." La Noue aptly describes it as a "well-ordered disorder." Speaking of the discipline of the army while it lay for a fortnight in the camp at Vassadonne, near Orleans, he says: "Among all this great troop ye should never hear God's name blasphemed. There was not a pair of dice or cards, the fountains of many brawls and thefts, walking in any quarter. . . . . Truly, many wondered to see them so well-disposed, and my late brother the Lord of Teligny and myself, discoursing thereof with the Lord Admiral, did greatly commend it. Whereupon he said unto us: 'It is indeed a goodly matter if it would continue; but I fear this people will pour forth all their goodness at once, so as within these two months they will have nothing but malice left. I have a great while governed the footmen, and do know them. They will fulfill the proverb: A young saint, an old devil. If this fail, we may make a cross upon the chimney.' We smiled, but took no farther heed thereof, until experience taught us that herein he was a prophet." The admiral had not long to wait for the fulfillment of his prophecy. At Beaugency the Huguenot force treated with more cruelty the Protestants who had been made to escape than they did the Catholic soldiers who had held the town against them. "Thus," continues the amusing chronicler, "thus did our footmen lose their virginity, and of this unlawful conjunction ensued the procreation of Lady Piccree, who is since grown into such dignity that she is now termed madame; yea, if this civil war continue, I doubt she will become a princess. Of the Catholics, I will say that at the beginning they were likewise well ordered, and did not much annoy the commons." The Huguenots were the first to make war support itself by contributions levied upon the enemy. When the admiral was in Normandy the Catholic population of Caen was required to furnish the sum of 10,000, not, however, until Beza's appeal to his co-religionists for money had utterly failed.*—"Massacre of St. Bartholomew," by Henry White.

---

* "Ut meridierorum pennula interficiendi finem fecerit." Eytzinger: Leo. Belg. p. 31.

† It may be objected that, as some of the cases cited in the text occurred after Condu's revolt, they cannot be used to justify it. They are introduced to show the state of public feeling at the time.

‡ See also letter to church of Blois, 18th September, 1557.

§ "Nobis bellum non esse bona voluntatis, ut pax, sed necessitatis . . . . necessitas quæ nos premit nullam patitur legem contra naturam."

* The reformer Brentius was at one time a decided advocate of the principle of non-resistance; but as he grew older, and witnessed the terrible persecutions of the emperor, he altered his mind, and contended that the subordinate powers, as being also of God, were called upon to resist the higher powers, if they should turn their swords against the people of God.

† "Fuerunt aliqui, qui maluerint, plagas accipere quam stringere gladios, ego non fui in ea sententia." Epist. ii. 149 (12th October, 1562.)

* Trebution: Caen, Precis de son Histoire; also, Recherches et Antiquites de Caen.

Technical Education a National Want.

BY J. SCOTT RUSSELL, F. R. S.

(CONTINUED FROM LAST WEEK.)

Let us now see how the question of technical education and manufacturing supremacy is regarded from the workman's point of view, and so try to understand the under side of the question.

What do our technical workers think of their own skill, intelligence, taste, judgment, knowledge, culture, refinement? What do they think of their education, of their school-training, and apprenticeship? What do they think of the opportunities provided for the matured workman who wishes to study, to copy, to increase his stores of science, and rise to higher grades of skill? What do they think are the duties of government to him and his fellows? Do they think foreign governments wiser in their care for their working people than ours? Do they think the systematic education of their people to be waste of pains or wise foresight? In short, do they find in the institutions of any other country any social amelioration which they would wish to introduce into our own?

On all these points, and a great many more, we have the evidence of eighty-eight witnesses, all workmen, most of them evidently superior workmen, and who are entitled by their acquirements to be termed at least self-educated men. Among so many witnesses we cannot call up all; but as we have enjoyed the pleasure of reading the whole book, we will only call such witnesses as appear to have made a special study of each point.

1. On Early Technical Training — Mr. Lucraft, the chairmaker, says: 'Seeing some lads at work with the men, in the carvers' shop, I went to the bench of one about fourteen. He was carving a chairback of a mediæval form, from a working drawing. I expressed my surprise that one so young was found capable of carving so well, and was informed that boys at school are specially prepared for the trade they fancy; so that a boy about to be apprenticed to learn carving is instructed in ornamental drawing, modeling and designing. Further, I am bound to repeat, that in the race we are nowhere. Without the least doubt or hesitation, yet with the most profound regret, I say that our defeat is as ignominious, and I fear as disastrous, as it is possible to conceive. We have not only made no progress since 1862, but it seems to me we have retrograded.' He adds that the mere mechanical workman stands not the slightest chance with the workman of a cultivated taste. 'The art-workman of France has a great advantage over us in England; in Paris they are surrounded by works of taste, which none but the most obtuse can long remain uninfluenced by; their museums are central and numerous; they are surrounded by works they venerate and love, and their very nature gets impregnated with them. Something must be done, or the working classes will be grievously wronged, and the whole nation suffer.'

Mr. Connelly, stonemason, says: 'The Frenchman's familiarity with art, and his early training in its principles, enables him to outstrip us; and as every building in Paris is more or less decorated with carving, you are at a loss to know how they get all their art-workmen; but the difficulty would not appear so much if you could read the large placards in French which are posted up at the ends of the bridges, and other public places, informing workmen where they can be taught drawing and modeling every evening free of expense. That he outstrips the Englishman in this respect does not, I feel certain, arise from the possession of an especial art-genius, but because whatever of it is with him is fully developed, and encouragement is given to its practice; and if English workmen are behind in this respect it is not because art-genius is deficient in our nature, but because it is not developed and encouraged sufficiently. It is impossible to estimate the loss which is entailed upon England through the neglect of art-culture in every department of our industry. Through it we are reduced to mere 'hewers of wood and drawers of water' for other nations. The bulk of our manufacturing population is engaged in manufacturing goods to be sold cheap, or in producing raw materials for other people to work on a tongue of iron, for the labor of which we get less than £1, they are sure to put £100 of labor before it leaves their hands.'

2. Artisans' Opinions on the Responsibility of a State for the Technical Education of its People.—Mr. Randall, china-painter, says: 'When we come to high class ornamentations in iron, earthen-ware, china, or glass, the superiority of French art is obvious. As long as we confine ourselves to geometrical forms in hammering, turning on the lathe, or printing on the surface, we have no difficulty in holding our own; but where an intellectualism is concerned, or a free educated hand is required in decoration, our deficiencies become apparent. The fault is less our own than our rulers', who have denied us education, or who have at least given us nothing to fit us for our destination in life, but have left us groping in the dark, forever feebly attempting to overtake lost opportunities. As we heard an English workman in another branch of trade observe in Paris—'There is much more credit to an English workman if he is clever, for a Frenchman has so many advantages that if he only has moderate talents he can scarcely help but be a good workman. He has excellent schools to give him a primary education; and, go where he will, there is something to educate his eye and elevate his taste.' We have been groping our way in ignorant and bigoted security, and quarreling in which way education should be given, or denying it altogether, while other nations have been getting before us; and if this Exhibition have no other effect in England than to convince us of our deficiencies, it will have had its mission so far as we are concerned. The present prosperity of this country is so unmistakably interwoven with its manufactures, and the pre-eminence of these depends so much upon new adaptations, and discoveries and improvements, as to demand for the workers in iron, china and other departments the readiest and best educational training and enlightenment this nation can give them. It is not only idle, but suicidal, to dream of remaining where we are. We must strike out in new paths, we must advance with the world, or lose caste and trade together. How many men know anything at all of the materials with which they work? Yet such knowledge would sweeten daily toil, would open the treasure-house of thought, enable a man to convert to new uses elements of force by which he is surrounded, and enrich the nation by adaptations and modes of economizing means now in use.—Every man ought to have the means within his reach to enable him to become master of his art. With how many would a knowledge of geology, chemistry, geometry, drawing and mechanics smooth the path of daily toil, and render labor pleasant! Why should not the miner find compensating pleasure for the darkness and drudgery of the mine in a knowledge of the gases by which he is surrounded, and of the minerals he is extracting from their long resting-place in their subterranean storehouse? Let him know something of their history, of the changes and natural processes to which they were subject to bring them to their present state. How cheaply purchased is the pleasure of astonishment with which he might go on reading the hieroglyphics and paintings of nature in the mine, interpreting at each stage the emblems of earlier states and existences.

Mr. Winstanley says: 'I should like to see a number of institutions—they might be called colleges, or any other name. I would have them fitted up with a number of workshops for different trades, and one large room, to be used as a lecture room, and for periodical exhibitions. I would have lectures delivered twice a week by the best professors upon different branches of art-manufacture. There should be a well-stocked library and reading room, all on art-manufacture. There should be schools attached for drawing and modeling. Why I propose workshops is because working men in large towns have a great difficulty in finding convenience to do anything for themselves by way of improvement. * * * I would also have a committee or council established, by government or the Society of Arts, that should receive working men presenting certificates for examination in their different branches, and grant them certificates according to their merits.'

Mr. Mackie, wood-carver, reports: 'I visited the 'Ecole Imperiale Speciale pour l'Application des Beaux Arts a l'Industrie.' On that occasion there was an exhibition of the works of the students, and the number and variety were considerable and interesting. Conspicuous among the exhibits were some large models in clay. The Minister of Instruction had dictated the subject, and the following were the particulars given: A somewhat large tympanum of a pediment, to have the head of a bull for a centre, resting upon a shield, with accessories of boys and festoons of fruit and flowers. The best was a very successful interpretation of the order given. * * * These studies were little more than good sketches in clay, but it was evident that the students were learning a most useful lesson, that would stand them in good service when they went forth into the world. * * * It seemed abundantly clear that the system pursued was simple and varied, and that the teaching and practice produced valuable results. It seems to have great vitality, never being without deep and varied interest to the student, features that should distinguish every school, and without which they will assuredly fail in accomplishing the objects sought to be obtained. * * * A visit to the exhibition of the works of the students of the 'Ecole Imperiale Speciale de Dessin pour les Jeunes Personnes' showed that the young ladies practiced the same system with very profitable results. * * * I am informed that the fees are little more than nominal, the main expense of the schools being borne by government.'

Mr. Whiteing, in his special report, says on this subject: "The notion of the functions of government entertained in this country would not be tolerated for a moment across the Channel, and it may be doubted whether our dislike to what is called special legislation — to legislation, that is to say, which proposes as a direct aim the improvement of the social condition of our people—has not its weak as well as its strong side. The constant difficulties experienced by individuals struggling alone to effect social reforms, often never aided by government till the necessity of all aid has passed away, would seem to indicate that it has. From the view of the obligations of government taken by the French people it necessarily arises that instruction, both superior and elementary, has long held that recognized position under the protection of the state which it is only just beginning to have here. A due provision for art education, for instance, is no favor on the part of the administration, but one of the conditions of its existence. In every town of any importance, in a manufacturing point of view, in every district of all the principal cities, there is to be found the art school, just as there is to be the church or the baker's shop. * * * * It is not denied that similar institutions are to be found in our own country; but among us there is a very perceptible want of government responsibility for the welfare of the schools, and they are not placed under the direct patronage of the officials of the district, who in France commonly attend to give a solemn character to the distribution of the awards. * * * * In France the Minister of Instruction has confided to him, as it were, a nation in a certain state of knowledge, and he is expected, when he resigns the seals of office, to show that under his care that nation has steadily progressed. He may demand certain aid from the government. His claims have a recognized place in the budget, and he is entitled to speak, by the admitted importance of the interests over which he presides. It would be well if with us some such system could be devised, in place of that which gives us an irregular and spasmodic support to art on the part of our public representatives, and which too often leaves its fate in the hands of only one or two well-meaning members of Parliament. * * * * * * * What is above all wanted is government countenance as well as government aid. In France, as we have seen, the distribution of prizes, the opening of schools, is always made more or less a ceremony; the whole population of the district in which the school is situate cannot fail to hear of what is going on. Publicity and eclat are given to all the proceedings, and the school immediately reaps the benefit. Of course it is not to be inferred that the government of France does everything for art-education, and private individuals nothing. There is a considerable amount of private patronage, though to nothing like the same extent as among us; but it is always desirable to substitute for the irregular action of individuals, however well-disposed, the order, economy, and persistent effort of an efficient body. Let us now consider what the state does for education in France, both for primary instruction and for the special training required later, when an art or trade has been chosen. The system of primary instruction so very much resembles our own, both in the nature of the instruction given and in the mode in which support is obtained, that no detailed account of it will be necessary, but it is in the facilities for the higher education which ought to follow this primary teaching, where the inclination exists, that the great divergence between the English and the French begins. The ease with which a poor boy may obtain an entry to one of the Imperial Lyceums or larger public schools which prepare for the universities, which very properly are in the capital itself, and are all free, is something marvelous, and is only equaled by the excellent facilities of a like kind which exist in Germany. The technical education of French workmen is of two kinds—elementary and advanced. In the first, the child, having been early destined to a particular trade, is placed in an institution, where he serves a kind of preliminary apprenticeship to that trade, and where primary instruction goes hand in hand with the special training requisite to give him a more enlarged knowledge of his business. These technical schools for children are, however, only just beginning to be established, but the results in the last, of which accounts were published, were in the highest degree satisfactory. The children are occupied in all about nine hours of the day. In the morning they receive instruction of the ordinary kind, which is also given for an hour in the evening, and during the day they work in every respect as if they were apprenticed to private individuals, only that a certain portion of the time is devoted to teaching them the rationale of their art. It has been stated that at present these institutions are very few in number, and hitherto they have only been regarded in the light of an experiment, so that only a very limited number of trades can be taught in them; but there is little doubt that, as an experiment, they have been successful, and that, when their success shall have obtained general recognition, the government will take measures for establishing them in all the principal towns.

An equally important tentative effort in the way of technical education has recently been made in the establishment under government patronage of an institution for the higher technical training of youth, that is to say, for the union of the highest theoretical with the best practical teaching in the manufacturing arts. This institution is somewhat in the nature of the 'Ecole des Arts et Metiers,' only is not so exclusively theoretical as that, but aims at supplying a want long felt in France, namely, that of skilled foremen competent to superintend, or at least fully understanding all the operations of a large manufactory.'—Macmillan's Magazine.

MUSIC A STIMULANT TO MENTAL EXERTION.—Alfieri often, before he wrote, prepared his mind by listening to music: 'Almost all my tragedies were sketched in my mind either in the act of hearing music, or a few hours after,' a circumstance which has been recorded of many others. Lord Bacon had music played in the room adjoining his study; Milton listened to his organ for his solemn inspirations; and music was even necessary to Warburton. The symphonies which awoke in the poet sublime emotions might have composed the inventive mind of the great critic in the visions of his theoretical mysteries. A celebrated French preacher, Bourdaloue or Massillon, was once found playing on a violin, to screw his mind up to the pitch, preparatory to his sermon, which, within a short interval, he was to preach before the court. Curran's favorite mode of meditation was with his violin in his hand; for hours together he would forget himself, running voluntaries over the strings, while his imagination, in collecting its tones, was opening all his faculties for the coming emergency at the bar.—D'Israeli on the Literary Character.

IN 1838 a small band of Christian Protestants in Belgium founded an Evangelical Society, for the purpose of diffusing amongst the Roman Catholics a knowledge of the Word of God. As the result of the work undertaken by the Belgian society, no less than 18 churches have been founded. Some of these have attained considerable strength as to numbers, the church at Charleroi having nearly 700 members.

A GREAT awakening has occurred at the American Methodist mission station of Shahjehanpore. It has taken hold on high-caste and low-caste natives, leading them in some instances to come in families for Christian baptism. The uncommon sight of women as well as men coming publicly to this ordinance served still further to move the community. Ninety-nine persons were baptized within two weeks.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order. If this cannot be had, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

THE CHINA MISSION PROPOSITION, to wit: One dollar and your initials; children, twenty-five cents:

J. C. K.	$1 00	W. H. F.	$1 00
R. J. H.	1 00	Mrs. W. H. F.	1 00
G. G.	1 00	W. F. F.	25
Mrs. G. G.	1 00	G. E. F.	25
E. J. W.	2 00	Dr. N. A. W. D.	5 00
J. K. R.	1 00	R. B. M.	2 00
S. P. W.	2 50	F. F. C.	1 00
R. W. W.	2 50	M. E. C.	1 00
J. T. M.	2 00	E. A. C.	1 00
J. H. M.	2 00	J. M. P.	1 00
J. V. P.	1 00	H. O. P.	50
L. T. P., by catching mice at 50 cts. a dozen	25	W. W. P.	25
		Coaster	1 00
A. M. W.	1 00	Mrs. B. F. A.	1 00
G. H. W.	25	G. H. W.	25
S. H. C.	2 00	W. W.	25
Mrs. J. J. L.	1 00	Dr. J. J. L.	1 00
S. L. L.	25	E. R. L.	25
H. I. L.	25	L. K. L.	25
A. P.	1 00	W. H. M.	1 00
Three ladies of Shreveport	3 00	Mrs. M. S. and others	1 25
Mrs. E. R. R.	2 00	Rev. J. M. M.	2 00
C. W. C.	1 00	Col. J. B. S.	2 00
Col J B S.	1 00	C. L. C.	1 00
J M M.	2 00	Mrs E B R.	2 00
A H.	1 50	J M G (De Kalk)	6 00
Mrs J W C.	1 00	Dr J W C.	1 00
H C M.	25	J H B.	1 00
J H.	1 00	W D M.	25
From Rev. W. P. Powers, Havana, Alabama	12 70	R B N.	25
		Rev R J T, for self and S G T, England
Mrs M T.	1 00	F L T
Mrs P A C.	1 00	S A F T (spec.)	2 50
J O S.	1 00	Alice H.	25
J G H.	1 00	R E Lee H.	25
E H.	1 00	Various persons, by Rev R D N.	2 50
Sue H.	25	P H	1 00
Sallie H.	25	M E H.	1 00
Charlie H.	25
Ida H.	25

LETTERS FROM CHINA.

We are glad to present the readers of the ADVOCATE with a "No. 3" letter from one of our missionaries in the Celestial Empire. "No. 2" has miscarried. These letters are the "Vermilion" series of which we spoke. Our readers may expect to find in them many items of interesting information in regard to the society, customs, arts, religion, industries, agriculture and politics of the "Flowery Kingdom." No church could have or reasonably expect to have any greater success than ours has had in her Chinese mission. When we consider that a language had to be acquired, and a character established, and connections with a people who by policy avoided all interconrse with foreigners, fifty years would have been a moderate period to assign for laying the fonadations of so great an enterprise. For it was an effort to open the doors of the knowledge of Christianity to more than one-third of the earth's population by a single movement. But our missionaries found much already accomplished by the labors of a Morrison and a Gutzlaff. The language was rendered into English and much of the Scriptures had been rendered into Chinese. Then, not long after they arrived, God raised up to them a native convert who was a prince in Israel, intellectually, spiritually and socially. Now many seals have been given to their ministry, and they can move forward in the glorious work full as fast as the church at home is ready to sustain and accompany them.

By the streets of "by-and-by" one arrives at the house of never.

"ADDRESS OF THE BISHOP OF LOUISIANA."

As the name of the author of this address does not appear in the pamphlet bearing this title, it is presumed that every one knows or ought to know who "the bishop" is. The principal part of this address consists of an account of the Council at Lambeth, at which the bishop was present. There were bishops there from Scotland, Ireland, Canada, New Zealand, Africa and the United States. This meeting had been heralded for months; it was the first of its kind ever held; the questions to be considered were vital to the doctrinal and canonical integrity of the Church of England. It met, partook of the sacrament—and dispersed. The bishop says: "three or four days sufficed for the deliberations of the Conference; a few questions of grave importance were then intrusted to a committee; a pastoral address was issued, and the members dispersed." The gravest evil which could exist in a church had found not only a lodgment but a secure and lofty position in the English church; one that constituted in itself an enormous scandal, not only to that particular body, but to the whole Protestant church of Christendom. When, therefore, the San Pan-Anglican was announced, the general church looked forward to it with unusual interest in the prospect of its being able to afford a prompt relief and deliverance from what "the Bishop of Louisiana" designates as "the most portentous heresy of the age." The surprise of the American bishops present must have been great when they learned from the presiding archbishop that the whole matter of the Bishop of Natal was precluded in advance by express understanding between the primate and certain other lord bishops, that that subject was not to be introduced or entertained by the Council at Lambeth, and that upon this condition, and this only, was the requisite assent given to its convocation. It is true that the case of the Bishop of Natal was ventilated somewhat. The venerable Bishop Hopkins, and others from a distance, quite insisted upon a sentence or some "deliverance" which should vindicate the faith and abate the scandal; but the whole thing was checked in mid-career by the archbishop. This collected body of bishops, who vaunt themselves to be the only true apostolic line, had to swallow their mortification, and acknowledge themselves powerless to maintain "sound doctrine" in the church of God. That charge of the apostle to Titus which they have been accustomed to claim as directed to themselves by emphasis—"In doctrine showing incorruptness, gravity, sincerity"—they not only do not obey, but officially, in their highest capacity, and with "gravity" disobey. They declare that by the very organization of their church, with its secular head, its political courts and its connection with the government, they cannot "hold fast the faithful word" and the "sound doctrine" which St. Paul says a bishop must enforce. When a church speaks in its embodied dignity, through its chief personages and its most august assembly of prelates, and refuses to purge itself of those who have openly denied the faith, it surely ceases to be the only church of Christ.

The "Bishop of Louisiana" attempts to make a strong point out of this "silent but solemn judgment" against Natal, that consisted simply in letting him alone. "Never can it be said," he adds, "that the verdict upon the Bishop of Natal is wanting in solemnity and force, or that the church is left to blush with the shame of repulse and disappointment." It occurs to us that it is exactly that which can be said, for there was no "verdict" rendered or permitted. The bishop then proceeds to show by what course of reasoning he has reached this wonderful conclusion, that a judgment not declared is yet a very weighty and solemn verdict. "In one of the palaces of Venice the visitor is ushered into a hall where the portraits of the ancient doges are suspended upon the walls, and preserved with pious veneration. In the midst of this illustrious group the eye rests upon one panel which is left vacant or covered with a veil to hide it from view. What is the meaning? It means that the person whose portrait occupied that place has been guilty of a crime which dishonored his high position, that his presence in that noble array of the honored dead was an offense not to be tolerated by the nation. * * The church has the same redress for its wounded honor. And where you behold, in that congregation of bishops gathered to represent the apostolic college, one seat unoccupied, dark shadows fall upon the absent one, and a memorial more affecting than words attests the enormity of his guilt in the judgment of the church. * * * The public voice of the church cannot remain unheeded: 'his bishopric let another take.'" This is all very ingenious and well worked up, but unfortunately a vacant seat at Lambeth Council does not imply that the seat of Natal is vacant, which it occurs to us is the principal vacancy to be argued from. If only the "seat" is vacant, it seems like an attempt to draw the attention of the public away from the still occupied See of Natal to the unoccupied seat in "the venerable hall at Lambeth," and looks much more like a solemn dodge than a Venetian doge. And as for letting another "take his bishopric"—will that august "apostolic college" venture to declare it vacant? "I trow not." In what sense then does the "Bishop of Louisiana" say "his bishopric let another take?" If Colenso would only go and hang himself, as Judas did, it would be a great relief to the "apostolic college" of the Church of England; but that he won't do, and so no one else can take that "bishopric." He won't go out and the "successors of the apostles" can't put him out. So that when the "Bishop of Louisiana" exclaims, "his bishopric let another take," he quotes a Scripture which he hopes will some day be pertinent, but which at present has no application to Natal.

This "address" is in the main an apology for the Council at Lambeth, which died in three days, because it had not vitality enough to deal with heresy, or with that Jesuitism which defies the "apostolic college", chaunts the service, burns candles, swings the censer and elevates the host at a Protestant altar.

One would suppose that all this patent imbecility would be enough to take the starch of pretension out of these "successors of the apostles." Not so.—It is bred in the bone. "On the 21st of July," records the bishop, "I preached to a congregation in Cheltenham, (England,) newly organized and actively engaged in the erection of a magnificent church. * * * Around the walls of the edifice will be sculptured in stone the likenesses of the chief representatives of the Church of England. Conspicuous among them it is proposed to include the head of John Wesley, in recognition of his dying testimony to the scriptural integrity of this church, and his entreaty to his followers, 'never to forsake the church, lest God should forsake them.'" We think it is about time they should build something in commemoration of departed orthodoxy. As to "including the head of John Wesley," it will not be the first time in the history of Pharisaism that men have built monuments to the memory of those whom their fathers stoned. It occurs to us that a much better thing would be to erect a statue to "ICHABOD" in the hall at Lambeth, with a basso relievo of Capetown on its pedestal.

Change in the Time of the Mobile District Meeting.

The Rev. Dr. Dorman writes that circumstances beyond his control have made it necessary to change the meeting of the Mobile District from Wednesday, the 24th, to Wednesday, the 17th of June next.

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.—The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement, in another column, of effervescing Citrate of Magnesia, prepared by Dr. Rogers, New York.

PIC-NIC.

The blooming month of May is the chosen time amongst our New Orleans people for these usual gatherings and excursions. Select parties of friends, societies, schools and Sabbath schools must have their day in the country. Our country friends, who breathe fresh air all the time, who enjoy the woods and fields the year round, and whose lives are a sort of prolonged pic-nic, cannot appreciate the luxury and zest of a few hours under the trees, as they are felt and prized by those who are mostly doomed to pavements and walls. Most of all are these occasions valued by the children, especially if they give relief from town and school all at once.

On Wednesday last Capt. G. L. Kouns placed the steamboat Fannie Gilbert at the service of the Felicity street Sunday school. The children, their superintendent, W. H. Foster, Esq., invited guests, parents, members of the church and many friends were on board at 8 o'clock in the morning. There was a boat load of this choice freight—gentlemen, ladies, children—with their baskets of supplies for the tables to be spread in the grove.

Eighteen miles above the city is the Sauve plantation, noted for the great crevasse which occurred there several years ago, and which spread its devastating floods as far as the rear and upper portions of the city. Here in the grounds of the old mansion the excursion party found a spot admirably suited for their purpose, within a few yards of the river, dry and grassy, and abundantly shaded. Swings were up in no time, and divers romping games and plays were organized as if by magic. Before the rear guard of older people were fairly off the boat, the boys and girls were redeeming the time. They seemed to realize the importance of improving every moment, and to think that every precious hour was worth more than a month of ordinary time.

These gatherings have their value in bringing our people together. The cultivation of acquaintance and sociability amongst the friends and members of the church is vastly important. Besides the pleasure of the children and the advancement of the Sunday school interest, the improvement and strengthening of our social relations are worth a great deal.

When we saw the multitude on the boat, and afterwards on the ground, we had misgivings about bread for so many. But the stock of baskets, the long tables spread, and ice water and lemonade by the barrel, put an end to all apprehension. As should be the case always, the children occupied the first tables, and afterward the grown folks. There was no lack. Some baskets went back nearly as full as they came; and a cloud of the newly enfranchised, besides dogs not a few, came in for a hearty meal, for the first time, we should judge, in many a long day.

Some mischievous boy rang the bell earlier than was absolutely needful. It turned out well, however, as some groups had straggled at least a mile off toward the blackberry range, and the third long and loud whistle scarcely brought them aboard in time. At four P. M. the staging was hauled in, and we steamed pleasantly homeward with but one regret—that all our friends and children could not have been with us. The steamboat trip was felt by all to have been a most delightful and satisfactory feature of the excursion. To have a whole steamboat for a whole day, and to go where we pleased—a Sunday school all afloat, with captain, pilot, engineers and everybody at our service! Think of it! And all a free gift from that generous lover of Sunday schools, Capt. G. L. Kouns.

On the trip homeward a mass meeting was held in the cabin, and the following resolutions were unanimously adopted, after which three cheers were given for Capt. Kouns and the "Fannie Gilbert:"

"Resolved, That the officers, teachers, scholars and friends of the Felicity street Sunday school, here present, tender our hearty thanks to Capt G. L. Kouns and the other officers of the boat for their delightful pic-nic excursion on the steamer Fannie Gilbert, and for the many kind attentions received.

"Resolved, That we sincerely invoke the divine blessing upon these gentlemen for the interest displayed by them in the young and in the Sabbath school cause.

"Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

Thus closed a day of unalloyed happiness to those who were fortunate enough to participate in our pic-nic. There were no games of chance, no dancing. No accident marred the pleasure and success of the occasion. The weather, the river, the scenery and the company were in their best humor and sweetest attire.

THE IMPEACHMENT.

Six Senators are required, in addition to the Democrats in the Senate, to convict the President. This momentous question, which will either maintain or subvert the structure of this government from its foundation to its copestone, depends, it would seem, upon a single vote, and that vote may be the vote of Senator Wade, Vice President pro tem. Here is a rare chance for the exhibition of virtue. We fear that Mr. Wade is not willing to sacrifice himself to the Constitution and his country. The best symptom in favor of acquittal that we have noticed is the abuse which some of the Northern journals are heaping upon Mr. Evarts, the President's counsel. The adjournment of the decision until Saturday will give Senators time to look into the depth of that gulf over which the country is suspended, and on the other hand afford the twenty-five hundred million bond power of New England an opportunity to exert its peculiar pressure. Where so momentous interests are suspended upon a single point, we remember the words of Solomon: "The king's heart is in the hands of the Lord, as the rivers of water: he turneth it whithersoever he will."

First Annual Report of the Board of Domestic Missions.

The Rev. Dr. McFerrin, the secretary, says:

"Two years ago—April, 1866—the General Conference substituted the Missionary Society by two Boards—Foreign and Domestic. The Domestic Board, according to the constitution, was designed and expected to operate in connection with the several Annual Conferences of our church; hence it required time to inaugurate the plan—each conference was to act upon the recommendation of the General Conference. The secretary of the board brought the subject before the conferences in the autumn and winter succeeding, and as far as this board has information each annual conference adopted the plan suggested by the General Conference; so that in each and every annual conference in our church there is now a Board of Domestic Missions, auxiliary to this board, sustaining the cause of missions among the necessitous of our own people, and extending over a very wide field. After one year it was expected, and the constitution requires it, that each Conference Board, through its secretary and treasurer, would make a full and complete report to the Parent Board, so that in their reports your board might lay before the church a general view of the work in this department of our Zion. Your board regrets to say that up to this date they have no reports from several of the Annual Conference Boards."

Our Missionary Society suffered in common with the whole South from the war. It lost organization and its resources, and is now slowly creeping out to its fields of labor, but is steadily gaining strength. As poor people are usually more hospitable and generous than rich ones, we believe that this blessed zeal for the kingdom of Christ now burns in the hearts of our members and ministers with increased strength. May the depth of our poverty abound unto the riches of our liberality!

In this report there are extracts from the secretaries of the societies in the following Conferences: Missouri, St. Louis, Arkansas, Little Rock, West Texas, Texas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Virginia, South Carolina, Holston, Montgomery, Mobile, North Georgia, South Georgia and North Carolina. The secretary adds:

"From the following conferences we have no returns, hence we can not make this report complete. This we sincerely regret, for we know that in all of those fields of labor we are cultivating missionary ground; treasurers have reported the ten per centum, but no reports from the secretaries: Western Virginia, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Kentucky, Louisville, East Texas, Northwest Texas, Trinity, Columbia, Pacific."

We should have valued a statistical table of these items that would at a glance show what has been done. In several conferences of the Southwest every circuit and station is very nearly missionary ground, if by that we mean a region where the people need help to support the preacher.

THE METHODIST QUARTERLY REVIEW,—Contents of the April number: The Divine Element in Inspiration, Limits between Physiology and Psychology, History of the Christian Church, Physical Cause of the Death of Christ, The Afrieo-American, Our Past and Present Relations to Slavery, The Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada, Foreign Religious Intelligence, Foreign Literary Intelligence, Synopsis of the Quarterlies, Quarterly Book Table.

This number is overloaded with two articles on Dr. Curry's "coming man." The editor's part of the Review is worth the balance of it. This work is highly creditable to the M. E. Church.

APPLETON'S RAILWAY AND STEAM NAVIGATION GUIDE.—The May number of this valuable hand-book.

HARPER'S PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE GREAT REBELLION, Nos. 25, 26, 27 and 28.—This is in quarto form, finely illustrated. Designed as it is to be a permanent work on the war, it is defeating itself by the partial cast of its estimate of Southern talent and martial enterprise. The Red river expedition is to be found in these numbers, and it is in the main correct. For sale by G. Ellis, No. 7 Old Levee street.

The Speech of Mr. Stanbery in Defence of the President.

We copy the following abstract of the argument in defence of the President, delivered in the Senate on the 2d inst., by Mr. Stanbery:

Mr. Stanbery resumed his speech, arguing that if it be held that Mr. Stanton did come within the purview of the tenure-of-office act, then his removal is the gravamen of the charges. The tenor of every article is, that Mr. Stanton never had been removed in law or fact, and that there has been at no time a vacancy, and that his official acts continue to be recognized.

The act contains no provision forbidding an attempt to cause a removal, or making it a penal offence for issuing an order for that purpose. But if the Senators should be of opinion that the tenure-of-office act protected Stanton, and that the attempt to remove him was equivalent to a removal, he argued first, that the President had the right to construe the law for himself, and that if, in the exercise of that right, he committed an error of construction, and acted under that error, he is not to be held responsible. Second, that if he had so construed the law as to be of opinion that Stanton was intended to be protected by it against his power of removal, and render an opinion that the law in that respect was unconstitutional, he is not to be held responsible if he therein committed an error.

Mr. Stanbery argued these points at length, reading from Jefferson, Jackson and Van Buren to sustain his views. He next argued that the tenure-of-office act was never held by the Supreme Court to be constitutional; but even if it had been, what ground would there be for holding the President guilty of a high crime and misdemeanor in forming an opinion sustained by three of his predecessors. He cited from the Federalist, that no legislative act contrary to the Constitution can be valid; and from Chancellor Kent, Chief Justice Marshall and others, in support of his position that the President is vested with discretion. Mr. Stanbery then proceeded to consider the corresponding articles, arguing that not a word of proof had been adduced in their support, and that the Emory article had no substance or foundation; and the tenth article, he said, was in violation of the right of free speech, valued by our people as a jewel beyond price, and expressly protected by the first article of the Constitution. The eleventh article was a more indefinite allegation, unsustained by proof, and was already subsequently answered. Mr. Stanbery then denied that any injury had been caused to any individual or officer of the government, or that any public interest has suffered by the action of the President. He continued, maintaining that the order for the removal of Mr. Stanton was issued by the President in the exercise of an undenied power, sanctioned by the Constitution and indorsed by every incumbent of the Presidential office. Then how can you punish him for following in good faith that oath he has been compelled to take, "to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States." Nothing is plainer than the duty of the President to resist the encroachments of the legislative departments, and whenever a President is deliberately of the opinion that an act of Congress calls upon him to exercise a power not given to him by the Constitution, he violates that Constitution if he follows it. Again, when he is called upon to execute the law which deprives him of constitutional power, he violates the Constitution as well, by executing it, as the great trust committed to his hands, sanctioned by a solemn oath, and he cannot evade the one or violate the other. Mr. Stanbery then adverted to the fact that for the first time in the history of the country a law was passed on the 2d of March, 1867, purporting to change the order of Executive action; observe, however, he said, that neither in the preventive clauses of the second section of the military appropriation act, nor in the sixth section of the tenure-of-office act, is the President of the United States so much as mentioned; whoever drew these acts shrunk from referring to the office by name; it is under the general description of personal or civil officers that he is made liable to fine and imprisonment for failing to carry out the new provisions of the law, and there is no question that it is the President, and President alone, that is meant; the law was made for him, the punishment was for him, and he is left no choice, no appeal to the courts. The language in effect is, "this or the penitentiary; do our bidding or take the consequences of impeachment."

In the history of legislation nothing like this is anywhere to be found. The language of the Constitution, said Mr. Stanbery, is too plain to be misunderstood; the President is to be impeached only for conviction of treason, bribery and other high crimes and misdemeanors. Besides the two first crimes of treason and bribery, follows that other phase of "high crimes and misdemeanors," and what sort of crimes and miedemeanors? Why, such as are assimilated to those enumerated. Look through all the correlative provisions of the Constitution, on the subject, and examine the proceedings of the convention, and see how studiously they rejected all impeachments for misbehavior in office and how steadily they adhered to the requirement that nothing but high crime and misdemeanor should suffice. Was there ever a more abortive attempt than to make this a case of impeachment under the Constitution? There never was any real life in it. Long since its show of vitality vanished, and now it lies bereft of life, a hopeless mass that gives no sign of life. Mr. Stanbery then contended that there was no violation of law in the ad interim appointment of General Thomas, and after a review of the testimony concluded his remarks with an eloquent appeal to the Senate for the President, closing as follows: "But if, Senators, as I cannot believe, but as has been boldly said, with almost official sanction, your votes have been canvassed, and the doom of the President is sealed, then let that judgment not be pronounced in this Senate chamber; not here, where our Camillus, in the hour of peril, single-handed, met and baffled the enemies of the Republic; not here, where he stood faithful among the faithless; not here, where he fought the good fight for the Union and the Constitution; not in this chamber, whose walls re-echoed with that clarion voice that in the days of our greatest danger carried hope and comfort to many a desponding heart, 'strong as an army with banners;' no, not here. Seek out the darkest and gloomiest chamber in the subterranean chambers of this capitol, where the cheerful light of day never enters, and there erect the altar and immolate the victim."

An Indian came to a certain agent in the northern part of Iowa to procure some whisky for a young warrior who had been bitten by a rattlesnake. At first the agent did not credit the story, but the earnestness of the Indian and the urgency of the case overcame his scruples. He asked the Indian "how much he wanted?" "Four quarts," answered the Indian. "Four quarts," repeated the agent, with much surprise, "as much as that?" "Yes," replied the Indian, frowning as savagely as though about to wage a war of extermination on the whole snake tribe. "Four quarts—snake very big."

To be angry is to revenge the faults of others on ourselves.

The General Conference of the M. E. Church.

We condense from the New York Christian Advocate the following items of its proceedings:

THE ORGANIZATION.

At a few minutes before the hour announced for the opening, Bishops Morris, Janes, Scott, Simpson, Ames, Clark, Thomson and Kingsley took their seats upon the platform, and at precisely nine o'clock A. M. the venerable senior bishop, T. A. Morris, arose and opened the Conference by announcing the order of the devotional exercises. Bishop Scott read for the first Scripture lesson the sixty-first chapter of Isaiah; Bishop Simpson read the two hundred and third hymn, "The Saviour, when to heaven he rose," etc., which was sung by the entire congregation, led by Philip Phillips. Peter Cartwright, D. D., then opened with prayer, in which he poured out grateful thanksgiving for the preservation and prosperity of the church, and invoked the blessing of Heaven upon the present session of the Conference, the church, the nation, and the world.

The second Scripture lesson was read by Bishop Ames: 1 Cor. xiii. Bishop Clark then announced the 237th hymn:

I love thy kingdom, Lord,
The house of thine abode, which was sung as before; when Rev. Geo. Peck, D. D., continued in prayer, earnestly imploring God's watch-care over the Conference, and his guidance in its deliberations. The entire congregation then repeated the Lord's Prayer in concert.

Dr. Carlton moved that Rev. Dr. W. L. Harris be declared the secretary of this Conference by acclamation. Revs. G. W. Woodruff, R. H. Pattison, E. H. Waring, and a number of other names were announced for the position, but were all withdrawn. Dr. Harris was without a competitor, and was elected by a forest of hands. This is the third time he has been honored by an acclamation vote. No one seriously thought of any one else for the position, and it is doubtful if there will be any rotation in office as long as he is about.

The rules of order governing the General Conference of 1864 were adopted for the government of this Conference until otherwise ordered, and a committee of three was appointed to draft a code of rules for the governance of the present body.

On motion of Dr. Foster, a committee, to be appointed by the chair, was ordered to examine the credentials, and decide on the admission of delegates from Mission Conferences. The adoption of this resolution was urged in some pertinent and forcible remarks by Dr. Curry, and finally prevailed, after an animated discussion, in which Drs. Reid, Gilbert Haven, Lanahan, and others participated, in which all references to the freedmen, favoring their recognition to all the constitutional rights of white men, was received with favor or applause. Drs. Foster, Reid, E. O. Haven, Curry, Lanahan, Bruce and Hitchcock were appointed said committee.

A committee of nine on the State of the Country, of five on African Colonization, and of seven on the American and Foreign Christian Union, was appointed.

A prayer meeting, to be held every morning at eight o'clock, was ordered, and the members of the Conference, as far as practicable, were invited to attend.

SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Bishop Simpson occupied the chair. Rev. T. M. Hudson, of Pittsburgh, conducted the devotional exercises.

Rev. W. Reddy moved that the secretary be ordered to insert on the roll the Washington and Delaware Conferences. As these two conferences are composed wholly of colored ministers and people, the motion produced some sensation.

The secretary, Dr. Harris, explained the omission, stating that these two conferences were considered Mission Conferences, and as such were not entitled to representation by delegates.

Dr. J. T. Peck suggested that the names of these two conferences be entered on the roll without determining their status for the present.

Dr. W. H. Ferris moved the reference of the motion of Dr. Reddy to the Committee on Credentials of the representatives of the Mission Conference.

Dr. Reddy resisted this diepoeition of his motion in an earnest speech, claiming that the General Conference was fully competent to admit these Mission Conferences to all the privileges of the church, and to do this at once.

Dr. Durbin moved that the whole matter be laid on the table until the bishops made their report as to what they have done in organizing these Mission Conferences. This motion prevailed, and the bishops were requested to make their report as early as possible. It was ordered that the quadrennial address of the bishops be presented on Tuesday, May 5, at ten o'clock.

A person can generally consume the most of his time by minding his own business.

MARRIED.

On the 22d of April, 1868, by Rev. W. Allen, at Hollywood, Mr. J. M. Washington, of St. Mary's parish, to Miss Allie H. Strickland, daughter of Rev. B. R. Strickland.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

MOBILE DISTRICT.

A District Meeting and a Sunday School Convention for this district will be held in the St. Francis street Methodist church, Mobile, commencing on Wednesday, the 17th day of June, at which the preachers and official members are requested to be present. Superintendents of Sunday schools are especially urged to be in attendnace, with full statistics of their respective schools, and such other information on the subject as they may have at hand. Bishop Andrew, and perhaps Bishop Wightman, may be present.

Members, on their arrival, will call at Dr. Neely's office, in the St. Francis street church, and learn their homes.

Thos. W. Dorman, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Camden District, Montgomery Conference, will meet at Pineville, July 10th.

The official members will please be in attendance, prepared to make their reports at the first meeting.

Ansos West, P. E.

N. Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Germaa churches, Saraparae st.	April 19
Germaa Quarterly Conference, at Dryades street	17
N. Orleans circuit, at Gretna	26
Quarterly Conference for do	—
Baton Rouge	May 2, 3
Moreau street	10
Thibodenax, at Napoleonville	17
Felicity street	24
Carondelet street	31
Jefferson City	June 7
Plaqaemine	14

Lay delegates will be aominated at these Coaferences.

J. C. Keener, P. E.

Mobile District — Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul's	Apr. 11, 12
Whistler	18, 19
Cottage Hill Ct., at Haynleville	25, 26
Mobile, Franklin street	May 3
Mobile, St. Fraacis street	10
Eastera Shore, at Donnelly's	16, 17
Citronelle, at Mauvilla	23, 24
Pascagoula, at Aatioch	30, 31
Bay Shore, at Village	June 6, 7
Ocean Springs Ct., at Ocean Springs	13, 14

Thos. W. Dorman, P. E.

Lafayette Dist.—Montgomery Conf'e.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Marble Valley Ct., at Unity	Mar. 28, 29
Chandler Spring circuit, at Chandler's Spring	Apr. 11, 12
Alabucoochee circuit, at Chulafinnee	18, 19
Dadeville Ct., at Camp Hill	25, 26
Lineville circuit, at Copper Mines	May 2, 3
Montevallo circuit, at Camp Branch	9, 10
Montevallo and Isabella mission	16, 17
Lafayette circuit, at Sandy Ridge	23, 24
Fredoaia circuit and Wedowee mission, at Fredonia	30, 31
Pinkaeyville circuit, at Flat Hill	June 6, 7

Jos. T. Curry, P. E.

Tuscaloosa Dietriet—Mobile Conference

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Sammerfield	Mar. 21, 22
Perryville	28, 29
Randolph and Briarfield	Apr. 4, 5
Tuscaloosa	11, 12
Havanna	18, 19
Green	25, 26
Eutaw	May 2, 3
Forkland	9, 10
Greensboro and Newberne	16, 17
Brush Creek	23, 24
Marion	30, 31

The meeting of District Stewards will be held at Greensboro, May 16th.

Jas. L. Cotten, P. E.

Natchez Dist. — Mississippi Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Clinton circuit, at Chapman's S. H.	Mar. 21, 22
Jackson circuit, at Salem	28, 29
Woodville	Apr. 4, 5
Percy's Creek circuit, at Laurel Hill	11, 12
Amite circuit, at Ebenezer	18, 19
Liberty circuit, at Salem	25, 26
St. Helena circuit, at Day's	May 2, 3
East Baton Rouge circuit, at Black Water	9, 10
Wilkinson circuit	16, 17
Kingston circuit	23, 24
Natchez	30, 31

Jas. A. Godfrey, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi and Floyd circuit	May 2, 3
Winsborough circuit	9, 10
Ion circuit, at New Salem	23, 24
Jefferson circuit	30, 31
Bastrop circuit	June 6, 7
Bastrop station	13, 14
Waterproof and St. Joseph, at Waterproof	20, 21

W. G. McGaughey, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Manny Mission, at Ft. Jessup	Mar. 21, 22
Keachie, at Belle Bower	28, 29
Mansfield, at Friendship	April 4, 5
Greenwood, at Greenwood	18, 19
Shreveport	25, 26
Anacoco, at Elizabeth Chap'l	May 16, 17
Pleasant Hill, at Bealah	23, 24
Springville, at Springville	30, 31

B. F. Alexander, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Holmesville ct., at Magnolia	Mar. 14, 15
Boguechitta ct., at Monticello	21, 22
Brookhaven station	Apr. 4, 5
Scotland ct., at Sweetwater	11, 12
Wesson, at Benuregard	18, 19
Hazlehurst ct., at Providence Camp Ground	25, 26
Bayou Pierre ct., at Gallatia	May 2, 3
Chrystal Springs circuit, at Mt. Pleasant	9, 10
Meadville circuit, at ——	16, 17

The newly elected Board of District Stewards are especially requested to meet me at Brookhaven on the 4th of April.

G. F. Thompson, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WANTED—AGENTS.—$200 PER month the year-round, or a certainty of $500 to $1,000 per month to those having a little capital. We guaranty the above monthly salary to good active agents at their own homes. Every agent, farmer, gardener, planter and fruit grower, North and South, should send at once for particulars. Please call on or address

J. AHEARN & CO.,
may16 4t 68 Second St., Baltimore, Md.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR SARATOGA WATERS.

COOLING, REFRESHING AND PLEASANT CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.

In 6 oz. bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick headache, sour or sick stomach, and all febrile cases. For sale by BARNES, WARD & CO., New Orleans; and by most druggists. Prepared by

ARTHUR ROGERS,
may16 3m 193 Spring street, New York.

WANTED! WANTED!—ONE OR two active Agents, of either sex, in every town and village, for the largest One Dollar Pawnbrokers' Sale in the country. Send for circulars. S. C. THOMPSON & CO.,
may2 4tr 30 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's Domestic Family Physician describes all diseases and their remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR. S. S. FITCH,
may2 7mr 714 Broadway, New York.

AGENTS WANTED everywhere, to sell John S. C. Abbott's Life of General Grant. New work. "People's Edition."—Ready for subscribers. Price suited to the times. Address

WHITE, CORBIN, BOUVE & CO.,
may2 4tr Cincinnati, Ohio.

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by

ROBT. FISHER, Agent,
may2 1y No. 213 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile,	$1 50	$1 60
Work of Christ, Marvin,	65	75
Ecce Ecclesia,	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson,	1 25	1 50
Lee and his Generals, half calf,	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles,	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals,	2 60	2 40

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.

ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street.

$250 PER MONTH GUARANteed to agents everywhere selling our Patent Everlasting Metallic Clothes Lines. Write for circulars to the American Wire Company, 162 Broadway, New York, or 16 Dearborn street, Chicago, Illinois. apr18 1m

FOR SALE.

AT TYELL RANCH, ON ONION Creek, Hays county, twenty miles from San Marcos, 200 head of HORSE STOCK, well improved and under good control. To be sold on the 1st of June, 1868. Ranch for sale also.

The stock will be sold in the town of San Marcos.

Terms—Currency, 15 or 20 per cent. down, the balance on a credit of six months, with approved security. R. M. CALDWELL, apr11 6t Trustee.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

RAILROAD ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY are authorized by acts of Congress to construct, with the aid and supervision of the United States Government, the western and principal portion of the National Trunk Line between the Pacific coast and the Mississippi valley. They have built by far the most difficult and expensive portion of their road, and have an unprecedented working force extending the track across the Salt Lake basin. By the close of 1868 it is expected they will have 400 miles in full operation, and that

THE ENTIRE LINE WILL BE COMPLETED IN 1870.

More than Twenty Millions of Dollars have been expended in the work, and the construction resources are ample for the remainder. They consist of

1. United States Bonds to the extent of $35,000 per mile, average, delivered as the work progresses.

2. First Mortgage Bonds to the same amount, issued also according to the progress of the road, and having the preferred claim—superior to that of the Government.

3. Grant of Public Lands along the route, 12,800 acres per mile, or nearly ten million acres in all, which are now selling at the minimum rate of $2 50 per acre.

4. Capital stock of $20,000,000, of which $5,000,000 is subscribed and paid on the work done.

5. Cash resources, comprising donations from California sources amounting to $1,250,000, net earnings, etc., 1865 to 1870, $6,500,000, making a total of more than Seventy Millions Upon the First 726 Miles.

The Company now offer for sale through us, at their

Par Value and Accrued Interest, in currency, a limited amount of the

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS,

bearing six per cent. per annum—both interest and principal being explicitly made "PAYABLE IN GOLD COIN," conformably with the specie laws of the Pacific States.

The Bonds are $1,000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in July and January.

☞ The Company reserve the right to advance the price at any time; but all orders actually in transitu at the time of any such advance will be filled at the present price. They are believed to combine greater attractions of safety, reliability and profit than any other securities now offered, and are recommended to persons seeking desirable steady investments. We receive all classes of Government Bonds, at their full market rates, in exchange for the Central Pacific Railroad Bonds, thus enabling the holders to realize from five to ten per cent. profit and keep the principal of their investments equally secure.

Orders and inquiries will receive prompt attention. Information, descriptive pamphlets, etc., giving a full account of the organization, progress, business and prospects of the enterprise, furnished on application. Bonds sent by return Express at our cost.

FISK & HATCH,
Financial Agents of the C. P. R. R. Co.,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

Offices of the Company—
No. 54 William street, New York.
Nos. 56 and 58 K street, Sacramento, Cal.

Subscriptions Received Through Banks and Bankers Generally.

☞ All descriptions of GOVERNMENT SECURITIES bought, sold or exchanged, at our office and by mail and telegraph, at market rates.

Seven-Thirty Notes converted into the new Five-Twenties, or any other class of Government Bonds.

Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, and favorable arrangements made for desirable accounts.

Gold, Coupons and Compound Interest Notes bought and sold.

Miscellaneous Stocks and Bonds bought and sold at the Stock Exchange, on commission, for cash.

☞ Dealers and investors out of the city desiring to make negotiations in any of the above may do so through us, by mail or telegraph, as advantageously as though personally present in New York.

Fisk & Hatch,
BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOV'T SECURITIES,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.
apr25 4tr

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world, the only true and perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st., New York. mar7 1yr

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

Messrs. Joseph Burnett & Co.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely.—The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Your's, very truly,
SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

East Minnlenbro', Mass., June 9, '64.

Messrs. Burnett & Co.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than former y. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair. With respect,

WM. S. EDDY.

Burnett's Cocoaine is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.
For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may2 3mr

BOOK AGENTS WANTED

TO SOLICIT ORDERS FOR DR. William Smith's Dictionary of the Bible. The only edition published in American condensed by Dr. Smith's own hand. In one large octavo volume, illustrated with over 125 steel and wood engravings.

Agents and subscribers, see that you get the genuine edition by Dr. Smith, and do not be imposed upon by juvenile editions nor imperfect reprints.

The Springfield Republican says this edition, published by Messrs. Barr & Co., is the genuine thing.

The Congregationalist says, whoever wishes to get, in the cheapest form, the best Dictionary of the Bible, should buy this.

We employ no General Agents, and offer extra Inducements to Agents dealing with us. For descriptive circulars, with full particulars and terms, address

J. B. BURR & CO.,
may2 4tr Publishers, Hartford, Conn.

DOTY'S WASHING MACHINE and the Universal Clothes Wringer, improved with Rowell's New Double Gear and the Patent Stop.

Will save half the labor and time of washing, and pay for themselves every year by saving clothes.

Canvassers and dealers supplied everywhere.

R. C. BROWNING,
General Agent.
may2 4tr 32 Cortland St., New York.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOYED.—Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents; twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANE, may2 4tr 94 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.

STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address

A. J. FULLAM,
may2 4tr Springfield, Vermont.

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being exclusively used on children's first-class shoes. Sold everywhere.
may2 8tr

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT for Families.—Every family should have a case of Homœopathic medicine. Its simple directions and inviting sugar Pills are so indispensable for children, and so frequently meet the wants of those of larger growth, as to be a necessity. Sickness prevented is health and money saved, and that these simple remedies do arrest disease and restore health is incontestable. No family having once enjoyed their benefits would be without them. Humphrey's Homœopathic Specifics are prepared expressly to meet the wants of families. They are simple, convenient, safe and reliable, and their value has been confirmed by an experience of many years. A full case of thirty-five large vials and Book of Directions, with Specifics for every disease occurring in domestic practice, is sent to any address, by express, free of charge, on receipt of Ten Dollars. Address Humphrey's Specific Homœopathic Medicine Co., 562 Broadway, New York. Send for our Almanac. apr4 3mr

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge.

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs, of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash, or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly instalments. Second-hand instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.
apr4 1yr HORACE WATERS & CO.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

A MOTHER'S SONG.

BY REV. A. L. FRISBIE.

Nestling so gracefully,
Sleeping so peacefully,
My darling, my dove!
May Jesus approvingly,
Tenderly, lovingly
Look from above.

Eyes that so merrily,
Pleasantly, cheerily
Sparkled and shone;
Eyes that all tearfully,
Wonderingly, fearfully
Viewed the unknown.

Tongue that so wittily,
Saucily, prettily
Prattled at will—
Prattled untiringly,
Mother admiringly
Listening still.

Mouth that appealingly,
Touchingly, feelingly
Trouble did tell;
Mouth which so speedily,
Laughing right readily,
Rang like a bell;

Lips wherein cosiness,
Beauty and rosiness
Sweet kisses hide;
Lips where disdainfully,
Pettishly, painfully
Passion did hide;

Hands that, all beautiful,
Teachable, dutiful,
Fondled and played;
Hands that so skillfully,
Secretly, willfully
Law disobeyed;

Feet that so lightsomely,
Trippingly, blightsomely
Sported and danced;
Feet whose swift cheeriness
Wore into weariness
As they advanced;

All nestling gracefully,
Slumbering peacefully
Are you to night;
Quietly, trustfully,
Silently, restfully
Awaiting the light.

O, best benefaction
And dearest attraction,
Fairest that lives!
In sleep so beautiful,
All that's undutiful
Mother forgives.

Now rest thee securely,
Sleeping so purely,
My darling, my dove!
God's angels descending,
About thee attending,
Keep thee in love.

For the Advocate.

"Mother, Mother, is God Dead?"

It was in a neat, cosy parsonage, away, away in Scotland, where the broken-spirited mother, who had so lately been made a widow, bowed down in her loneliness, bereft and desolate and comfortless. I imagine the sorrowful workings of her crushed heart. He on whom I leaned, in all the tenderness of a wife's devotion, lies still and white and cold in the quiet church yard. My orphaned children, his children, are without the strong arm and brave soul of a kind father. The very roof that shelters us must open its consecrated doors to others. O, in a pitiless world, of dusty, stony hearts, what is to become of my penniless, homeless children?—"Mother, mother, is God dead?" and a pair of young arms clasped the widowed neck, and a pair of warm lips laid warm kisses on the wet cheeks. Rousing herself, and full of reproaches for her want of trust—rebuked into confidence in God's promises—she answered earnestly, tearfully, but hopefully: "Oh! no, no, my child; the Lord liveth, and though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." Beautiful, beautiful childhood! How unalloyed and boundless its simple, happy faith. That young boy was artlessly recalling to his stricken mother the very teachings he had received from her own lips. He knew she was a Christian—a holy, devout minister's wife—and perhaps no word of comfort that his troubled heart could have framed would have been so expressive, or proven so talismanic, as the tender inquiry in which his soul went out in sympathy: "Mother, mother, is God dead?"

The widow reaped the reward of her reliance on the Husband and Father of the widowed and fatherless. The appreciative church secured her a handsome annuity; her children rose up and called her blessed; they developed into useful and polished similitudes of everything worthy and commendable, and Dr. Keener sees, from the "alpha" to the "omega," how I have made out of his Scottish story (which the ADVOCATE told us some weeks ago) a little woof of my own weaving.

"The little children were in mercy sent:
The winning beauty of their happy smiles
Is sorrow's antidote; their artless wiles
Lure gladness from the wretched brow of care:
The ills of life were more than we could bear
Had not kind heaven the children lent—
Fair as the angels, and as innocent."

JULIA WESTWOOD.

HAVANA, Alabama.

MOZART'S OXEN WALTZ.

The sensitive nature of Mozart, that sweetest of all music composers, is well known. The slightest discord produced in him severe irritation, and when engaged in musical composition his feelings grew so intense that he almost lost consciousness of all going on around him. A story is told in Whitney's Musical Guest which strikingly illustrates this. Mozart was engaged in arranging one of the most beautiful airs in an opera he was composing, when the butcher called for his pay, which had long been due. In vain his wife endeavored to attract the attention of the wrapt artist, who scribbled away, utterly unconscious of her presence.

She ran down strairs, with tears in her eyes, telling the butcher that her husband could not be spoken to, and that he must come another time. But the man of blood was not easily to be daunted—he must have his bill settled, and speak with Mozart himself—and he would not send him another ounce of meat. He ascended the stairs. Mozart, distantly conscious that something had passed in his presence, had continued pouring the effusions of his fantasia on paper when the heavy footsteps resounded in the hall. His stick was at hand. Without turning his eyes from the sheet, he held his stick against the door to keep out the intruders.

But the steps were approaching. Mozart, more anxious, hurried as fast as he could, when a rap at the door demanded permission to enter. The beautiful effusion was in danger of being lost. The affrighted composer cast a fugitive glance at his stick—it was too short. With anxiety bordering on frenzy he looked around his room, and a pole standing behind the curtain caught his eye; this he seized, holding it with all his might against the door, writing like fury all the while. The knob was turned, but the pole withstood the first effort. A pause succeeded. Words were heard on the staircase, and the intruders renewed their efforts the second time. But the strength of the composer seemed to increase with his anxiety. Large drops of perspiration stood on his forehead. Stemming the pole against his left breast with the force of despair, he still kept out the visitors. He succeeded but for a moment, yet it was a precious moment—the delightful air was penned upon the paper—it was saved!

'Mr. Mozart,' said the butcher—

'Halt! halt!' said the composer, seizing the manuscript, and hurrying toward the piano forte. Down he sat, and the most delightful air that was ever heard responded from the instrument. The eyes of his wife, and even of the butcher began to moisten. Mozart finished the tune, rose again, and, running to the writing desk, he filled out what was wanting.

'Well, Mr. Mozart,' said the butcher, when the artist had finished, 'you know that I am to marry.'

'No, I do not,' said Mozart, who had somewhat recovered from his musical trance.

'Well, then, you know it now, and you also know that you owe me money for meat.'

'I do,' said Mozart, with a sigh.

'Never mind,' said the man, under whose blood-stained coat beat a feeling heart; 'you make me a fine waltz for my marriage-hall, and I will cancel the debt, and let you have meat for a year to come.'

'It is a bargain!' cried the lively and gifted Mozart; and down he sat, and a waltz was elicited from the instrument—such a waltz as the butcher had never before heard.

'Meat for a year, did I say?' exclaimed the enraptured butcher. 'No! one hundred ducats you shall have for this waltz, but I want it with trumpets and horns and fiddles—you know best—and soon, too!'

'You shall have it so,' said Mozart, who could scarcely trust his ears, 'and in one hour you may send for it.'

The liberal-minded butcher retired. In an hour the waltz was set in full orchestra music. The butcher returned, was delighted with the music, and paid Mozart his one hundred ducats—a sum more splendid than he had ever received from the Emperor for the greatest of his operas.

It is to this incident that the lovers of harmony are indebted for one of the most charming trifles, the celebrated oxen waltz—a piece of music still unrivalled.

FARM AND GARDEN.

THE OLIVE AND ITS CULTURE.

The cultivators in the Southern States seem to have fully made up their minds that it is for their interest to grow a variety of products, and not depend upon one alone. This is wise, and we hope that before many years the capabilities of our Southern States will be more fully tested than they have ever been before, and though there will be some failures in the trial of new products, either from peculiarities of climate or want of experience, the general results of the efforts now being made will be of benefit, not only to a particular region, but to the whole country.

Among the things to which attention has been turned is the olive, and we have been asked to give an article on its culture. There is but little experience in this country to draw upon. We have seen some of the groves that were planted in California by the early Spanish missionaries, but they can hardly be said to be cultivated, and are only moderately productive. In some of the Southern States the tree was introduced several years ago, but what the present condition of the plantations is we are not informed. In the absence of information from home sources, we translate and condense from Du Breuil an account of the culture, as followed in the olive districts of the south of Europe. The olive will stand severe freezing when it is quite dormant, but after vegetation has started it is readily injured by cold. Those localities where late spring frosts occur should be avoided, and in the olive countries an elevated situation is preferred to a low one, on this account.

While the olive will live in almost any soil, and even flourish in a rocky and barren one, yet the crop is greatly affected by the fertility of the soil. Any deep, rich soil, in a situation sheltered from the prevailing cold winds, will answer for starting a plantation.

Propagation may be done in all the various ways, by seeds, cuttings, grafting, etc.; indeed, there are few trees that are multiplied with equal ease. The first question that will be asked by those who wish to experiment in this culture will be, "How can we get a stock to start with?" This is just the point on which we cannot inform them, and it would be well for those who have trees from which cuttings can be spared to advertise them for sale, or offer them for free distribution. It would be a good thing for our new Commissioner of Agriculture to import these and other plants not readily obtained. Congress could do much more good to the country at large with an experimental farm in one of the Gulf States than it can ever do with one at Washington, which is neither North nor South.

Du Breuil enumerates fifteen named varieties cultivated for their oil, and seven, the fruit of which is used for pickling. These varieties differ in the form of the tree, its hardiness, adaptation to different soils, productiveness, and in bearing annually or biennially. The fruit also varies in its shape, color, flavor, and in the quantity and quality of oil it produces. As the fruit presents so many varieties, it is important that those undertaking its cultivation should select those best adapted to the conditions in which they will be placed, and as we cannot give space to the descriptions, we must refer those interested to Du Breuil's Arboriculture, 2d vol., page 993, edition of 1857.

The seeds are sown for the purpose of procuring stocks upon which to graft the desired varieties. The seed is so oily that it is a long time before the moisture necessary to germination can penetrate it, unless it be soaked in strong lye before planting. Seeds when thus treated come up the same year that they are planted. The seed bed is of well-enriched soil, and the nuts are put in in February, in rows about 2 feet apart. A furrow is made about 2 inches deep, and the seeds are dropped about 2 inches apart, and covered; the after treatment is the same as that of other seedlings.

Cuttings are made of branches from ½ of an inch to an inch in diameter, and 10 inches long; they are set like other cuttings, in rich soils, with three quarters of their length below the surface, about 18 inches apart each way. All the buds are allowed to grow the first year, and the second year the strongest shoot nearest to the ground is chosen, and all the rest removed. This shoot is trained to a stake, to insure an upright growth. The fifth year the young trees are set about 5 feet apart, in nursery rows, and by proper pruning made to form a pyramidal or other desired shape. When twelve or fourteen years old the trees are set where they are to remain, and planted about 30 feet apart.

A curious protuberance, or knot, forms on the stem of the olive—an aggregation of undeveloped buds. These are removed from the tree by means of a knife, and planted out like cuttings, or rather like bulbs, which they more resemble.

The layering and grafting of the olive present nothing essentially different from the same processes as applied to other trees. Wild seedlings are used for stocks in Europe, and A. J. Downing suggested that our wild olive, or Devil Wood, (Olea Americana,) which is found in the Southern States, might answer the same purpose.

Pruning, cultivation and manuring are practiced; it is found in France that good cultivation pays with the olive as with other fruit trees.

The tree bears when twelve or fourteen years old, and continues to produce fruit to a great age. Like other fruits, it is subject to the attacks of diseases and insects. Pruning and accidents produce a kind of rot, which has to be cut away, and the cavity filled with mortar. Insects of various kinds attack not only the tree but the fruit, and often cause the loss of a crop in a short time. Sometimes the trees will stop bearing without any discoverable cause.

The uses of the fruit are well known. It produces a most valuable oil, which in some countries is one of the necessaries of life. The pickled fruit is to be considered rather as a condiment than as a food. The fruit is first picked before it is thoroughly ripe, soaked in lye until it penetrates to the nut, then in water for five days, the water being renewed twice each day; it is then put in a strong brine which has been boiled with spices and allowed to cool.

Whether a product that requires to be so long waited for will ever attain much favor with our impatient people we very much doubt. Against this tardiness there is to be placed the longevity of the olive, and the great value of its product when obtained. We shall be glad to hear what success attended the plantations that were made many years ago in Georgia and Mississippi.—American Agriculturist.

THE TWO NEIGHBORS.

There were two men who were neighbors, and each of them had a wife and several little children who depended upon them for support.

Now, one of the men was greatly troubled, saying, 'If I die, or even if I fall sick, what will become of my wife and children?'

The same thought came also to the other father, but he left it go again, whispering to himself, 'God, who knows all his creatures, and who watches over them, will watch over me also, and over my wife and children.' And this man lived in peace, while the other knew neither rest nor joy.

One day when the latter, sad and cast down by reason of this fear, was working in the fields, he saw some birds fly into a bush, come out, and then soon return thither. He approached it and saw two nests, side by side, and in each were several little birds newly hatched, and still featherless. When he had returned to his work he raised his eyes from time to time, and looked at the old birds going backward and forward carrying food to their young ones. Presently, just as one of the mother birds was returning with something in her beak, a hawk seized her and carried her away, in spite of her struggles and piteous cries. At this sight the man felt more troubled than before, for he thought: 'The death of the mother is the death of the little ones. Mine have only me; what will become of them if I fail them.' All the day he was very sad, and when night came it brought him no relief.

The next day, on returning to the field, he said, 'I will see how these poor little birds are; doubtless several of them have already perished.' So he went toward the bush, and looked into the nest; there he saw the birds, and not one of them seemed to have suffered from the loss of its mother.'

He was exceedingly astonished, and hid himself to see what would happen.

After a little while he heard a faint cry, and he perceived the bird of the other nest bringing with haste the food she had found, and this she divided between her own and the motherless little ones. There was enough for all, and the poor orphaned birds were not abandoned in their misery.

The man who had mistrusted God told to his neighbor what he had seen, and the latter answered him: 'Why art thou troubled? God never forsakes his children. His love has secrets that we know not of. Let us believe, hope and love; then we may go on our journey in peace. If I die before you, you will be a father to my children; if you die before me, I will be a father to yours. Or if we both die while they are of tender age, their Father will be our Father, who is in heaven.'—From the French of Lammenais.

Two large trains with machinery for the silver mines of Coahuila, Mexico, recently left Lavaca.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A J Wright, A M, President
Mrs A A Wright, Principal,
Mr R Scott Hicketts
Miss Anna M Ross
Miss C A Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.

Other Instructors will be announced.

This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars Apply to A J WRIGHT,
H G Humphreys, President Board of Trustees,
Port Gibson, Miss. aug 24

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October, 2d, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session, $360.

PAYMENTS.—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

W. H. N. MAGRUDER.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3-6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL.

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets.

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 113 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

On the corner of Camp and Common sts.

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building,)

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals of Book-keepers in a large portion of the old houses of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR,
nov 17 1y President.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.,
102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. jel6 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturer's prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market.

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the Implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest Improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
m17 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,
Next door to the Picayune Office.

oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev J E C Doremus, D D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society?—From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testamentary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans; then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $30 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, Income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not: to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S.; by founding, or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them: according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church the Board of Directors, representing in its body all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God, for except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the heart-cry of the Great Reformation. No forbidding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment: God's Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. a25 1y.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds;
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor,
a 11 20 1y New Orleans

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by J. E. BAILEY, feb 9, 1y Formerly of Chartres Street.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent.....$67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency 27 00
French..... 15 00
Music, with use of instrument,..... 37 50

Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10-3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McOMBER, A M. Pres't and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
GEN. J C MOORE, A M. Prof. of Mathematics.
Rev. B F KAVANAUGH, M D. Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
T H KAVANAUGH, M D. Prof. of Natural Science.
B F BROWN, A B. Principal Preparatory Department.
B V LYNN, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868 closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

collegiate.....$24 00.....Preparatory.....$20 00
lementary.... 16 00.....Primary..... 13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate.....$36 00.....Elementary.....$24 00
Preparatory... 30 00.....Primary..... 20 40
Modern Languages. (extra) $2 00 per month.

No incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie — a proportionate part of which will be returned, in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O. H. McOmber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas.
july-13-tf

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS

129 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J. & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The institution is under control of the M. E. Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address
REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
jy-13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

This great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed, with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent, as Compared with any other Stove.

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to THE GOOD SAMARITAN, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this apparatus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, THE GOOD SAMARITAN to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of COOKING STOVES, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn,) jaly6 1y 62 Camp street, Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. HEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1.

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 120 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1866

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
La'e Chief-Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—THOSE DESIRING THE NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. ROBT. J. HARP, Agt., Lock Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR

For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5..... " 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address..... " 40c
For any number over 25..... " 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays,—Biographical and Descriptive,— Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenæum, The Examiner; The London, Saturday, and Fortnigtly Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly; and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, Evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as, Heary Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs Oliphant, J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will alm to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR AND FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews.....$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews..... 7 "
For any three of the Reviews..... 10 "
For all four of the Reviews..... 12 "
For Blackwood's Magazine..... 4 "
For Blackwood and one Review..... 7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews..... 10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews 13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews 15 "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48,00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the POSTAGE to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORTON, of Yale College. 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8. feb 2

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug24 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS,

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM.

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

92 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $1 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen.

Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
marl4 3m Lock Box 847, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.

Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.

Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.

Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.

Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $45 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, JR.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C L Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Hortense Fodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes.) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Gaild, School of Design.

Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar14 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. ED.
sept28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College.....$30 00
Contingent Fee..... 3 00
Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School.....$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee..... 2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C HAILFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,
Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT, TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellows & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles.....$2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.

sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
aly Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,
Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.

—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-67-6m

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, — of many years standing, —affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package, $1 00 Postage 6 cts.
Six packages, 5 00 " 27 "
Twelve packages, 9 00 " 43 "

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.
e 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Easton, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

apr4 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
a25 6m 95 & 07 Camp street, New Orleans

WALLACE & CO.,

Importers and Jobbers of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, and

PLANTATION CLOTHING,

CORNER MAGAZINE AND COMMON STREETS,

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

a18 1y

☞ Sales guaranteed at New York prices.

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

114 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH-WEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25

AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c

THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50

PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00

SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with Instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25

NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile. Baker.....$5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt..... 6 50

ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans.. 2 00

BILL ARP..... 1 50

PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS..... 10 00

KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth..... 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months..... $150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos., 60
" " Preparatory " " " 40
Fuel, for Boarders, " " 10
" " Day scholars, " " 8
Music on Piano, " " 50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each, 0
No extra charge for Greek or Latin.
Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.
No charge for use of room or use of pianos.
Oil Painting..... $30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each, 20
No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.
Bills payable semi-annually, in advance.
For further information, apply to july-6-3m B. ARNOGAST, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healthy one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months.....$15 00
Primary Department..... 20 00
Collegiate..... 25 00
Music and Piano..... 25 00
Use of Instrument..... 7 50
Vocal Music..... 2 50
Incidental fee..... 2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month... 18 00
Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month.....$16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks.. $30 00
Music..... 25 00
Use of Instrument..... 7 50
Languages, each..... 10 00
Incidental Fee..... 2 50
Board, including everything except Red Coverlid and Towels, per Month.. 20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing 16 00
aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,

Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct6 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, 10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month; if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information,

Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages..... $80,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course..... $75,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing. 20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board of Trustees.
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
FEB.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
MAR	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
APR				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
MAY						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
JUNE		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
SEP.			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
OCT					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
NOV	1	2	3	4	5	6
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
DEC			1	2	3	4
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The general market has given further evidence, since our last review, of the dullness in most departments of business appertaining to the season. The market for flour and provisions has been quite inactive, with prices tending downward, and the transactions in grain have also been light, though this has been more owing to light supplies, however, than to the absence of demand. In the grocery line there has been a moderate business done in the jobbing way, but the transactions in dry goods are growing lighter all the time. Great dullness has prevailed in the cotton market, owing to the continued bad accounts from Liverpool. A good demand has sprung up for Cuba sugars for the West, and there has been quite a general demand for molasses. The stocks of both articles have been very nearly exhausted. Tobacco is in good demand and the market active.

COTTON.—The market on Saturday was again very much depressed in consequence of a further decline in prices at Liverpool, and the sales only amounted to about 1,000 bales. Prices, notwithstanding the very moderate supply offering, gradually softened down until a decline of ¼ to ½ a cent was established. On Monday the accounts both from Liverpool and New York reporting those markets as inactive, with a further decline in prices, tended very materially to depress our market still more. Very few buyers were disposed to enter the market at all, and those that did generally demanded concessions which holders were not willing to grant. The sale therefore, were restricted to some 1,300 bales, and at very irregular prices, though mostly in favor of the buyer. Tuesday's telegrams from Liverpool noticed another decline in prices and continued dullness in that market, and the depression here, as has been almost invariably the case of late, was increased proportionably. The market remained in a very inanimate state throughout the day, and we could only learn of sales to the extent of about 900 bales, prices being very irregular, but, on the whole, showing a further reduction, and make the decline during the three days reach to about one cent, to which our quotations have been made to conform. There has been no pressure to effect sales apparent, and very few holders have any stocks of consequence to sell, but the dearth of buyers has been such that it was impossible to keep up any tone to the market.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 3,200 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 1,022 bales, against 1,998 during the corresponding period last week, showing a decrease of 976 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 574,935 bales, against 668,947 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 344,206 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 108,595 bales to Great Britain, of 42,866 to France, and of 113,104 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	—	to	—
Ordinary	—	to	—
Good Ordinary	27½	to	27¾
Low Middling	28¾	to	—
Middling	29½	to	—
Strict Middling	—	to	—

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales	15256
Arrived past three days. 1842
Arrived previously.....645490-647332
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc..... 3239—650571
	665827
Exported past three days..... 8951
Exported previously.....619199— 628150
Stock on hand and on ship-board, bales	37677

SUGAR.—Since our last review there has been a good and increasing demand for sugar, especially for the West, and with a light stock prices have ruled higher. There were sales on Saturday and Monday of 650 boxes Cuba sugar, on the basis of 11½, 12¼, 12⅝ and 12¾ per lb. for a good style of grocery grades, and 13⅛ to 13¼ cents for some better descriptions. What little Louisiana sugar there is remaining in market is retailing at 14½ cents per lb. for fair, 15¼ to 15½ for prime, 16 to 16¼ for yellow clarified, and 16¾ to 17 for white.

MOLASSES.—There is no Louisiana and very little Cuba molasses in market. Cuba molasses is in request, and offers of advanced prices have been refused since our last review.

Cattle Market.

JEFFERSON CITY,
Tuesday Evening, May 12, 1868.

Western Beef, choice, per lb net	12c	to	15
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net	—	to	—
Texas Cattle, choice, per head	$55	to	65
Texas Cattle, 2d qual, per head	30	to	40
Texas Cattle, 3d qual, per head	18	to	25
Hogs, per lb gross	7c	to	9
Sheep, 1st quality, per head	—	to	4 00
Sheep, 2d " "	—	to	3 00
Sheep, 3d " "	—	to	1 25
Milch Cows, choice, per head	50	to	125
Milch Cows, per head	50	to	67
Texas Cows, with Calves	—	to	20
Yearlings, per head	6	to	12
Calves, per head	3	to	10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 50	10 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	16 00	18 00
Spades	11 00	19 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	18½	20
East India	22½	24½
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₩ lb	8½	9
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs		1 50
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot		8 50
Crackers		9 00
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	15 00	16 00
English, Fire	28 00	30 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow		21
Adamaatlae	17	21
Star	18	25
Chocolate, No 1 ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ hhl
Northern	13 00	15 00
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton		10 00
Anthracite ₩ ton
Western, ₩ osrrel		55
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14½	18
Havana	45	55
Java	30	38
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ toa	15 00
Hulled, ₩ bushel
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb	35	36
Sheathing
Copper Bolts	35	36
Yellow Metal	28	29
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	23	24
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₩ bhl	5 00	5 25
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y		3½
St. Domingo	4
Fustic, Tampico	5
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 00	1 60
Madder	13	15
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western		23
Feathers, ₩ lb	40	50
Fish, Cod, ₩ box		1 50
Herrings		60
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl	19 00	20 00
No. 2	16 00	16 50
No. 3		13 00
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	4	6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine	9 25
Extra	9 75	15 00
Fine	8 25
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb		16
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	8	8½
Currants, Zante		14
Almonds, soft shell	30	32
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	here
Layer	4 40	4 50
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₩ box
Oranges, La. ₩ 1000
Sicily ₩ box	5 50	6 00
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 80
10 x 12	3 90	4 00
12 x 18	4 40	4 90
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 90	3 10
Canada	3 15	3 20
Oats	85	90
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	1 05	1 07
Beans, ₩ bbl	19 00	23 00
Hops, ₩ lb	40	50
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	20
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	20 00	23 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	15	17
Wet salted, city slaughter	9½	9½
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₩ piece
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	6
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Boiler	8	9
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	7	7½
Castings, American	6½	8
Lime, Western ₩ bbl
Shell Lime
Rockland, &c	1 75
Cement	2 50
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	75	85
Moss, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	3
Black do	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	6½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	3 00	6 00
Pitch	4 40	5 00
Rosin A No. 1	4 00
No. 2	3 25
No. 3	3 00
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon		69
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 50
Coal Oil	40
in cases	58	62½
Cotton Seed, Crude		75
Refined	95	1 00
Tanners' ₩ gallon	90	1 00
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton
Cotton Seed		35 00
Meal
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	20 00	21 00
" North half bbl.	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₩ lb	15	16
Tongues ₩ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess	28 75	29 00
Prime Mess	27 00
Hog, round, ₩ lb	14½
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb	15	15½
Do., canvassed	19	19½
Sides	17	18
Shoulders	14
Green Shoulders		14½
Lard, Prime, in tierces		20
in kegs		21½
Fair, in tierces
Butter, Northern	50	60
Western	40	55
Cheese, American	5	18
Potatoes, ₩ bbl	3 00	3 50
Onions	3 25	3 50
Green Apples	3 50	4 50
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	3	11
India	11½	12
Carolina	11½	12
Saltpetre, rofiaed, ₩ lb	14	25
Crude	13½	15
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 40	2 45
from store	2 50	2 55
coarse, cargo
from warehouse	2 60	2 65
from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₩ bushel	1 90	2 00
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	18	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	14½	17
Havana, White	15	15½
Yellow	12½	14
Brown	11½	12½
Tobacco, in hhds, ₩ lb:
Balers & Cutters	25
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9	12
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	7½	9
Good Refused	6½	7
Common Refused	4½	5½
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	60	80
Baling	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	30	32
Burry	10	16
Louisiana, Native	20	23
Texas, 1@1 Merino	24	28

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—080 Magazine Street,
Between Philip and First Streets.
NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as references for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 83 CARONDELET street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

ATLANTA, February 13, 1868.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Colier's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D,
Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D,
Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wynn parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Colier, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible cure for Cancer

Rev J F BELLAMY,
Rev J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years. I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Colier's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar. I believe Dr Colier can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y MOORE

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the cure

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Colier

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES,

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $30.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's unabridged, Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sunday School Union's Biblical, and Anthon's Classical.

Books for

PRIZES, HOLIDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS,

beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care,

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound:

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell, $1 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, prepaid, for 50 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

fe29 1m

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,
GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman, D D., LL D.
Rev. E Wadsworth, A M., D D,
O as , A M.
Rev. J C Wills, A M.,
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term, ...$40 00
Incidental fee, ... 5 00
Tuition in Preparat'y school per term $30 to $35
Contingent fee $2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

july 27-tf C. F. CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has a good school, which is designed to be permanent, in successful operation, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He would board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elemeatary Branches..... $20 00
Higher Branches..... 25 00
Latin, Greek, etc..... 30 00

French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B. CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja 18-1 m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.
WASHINGTON CO., VA.

On the 9th of January next we begin our Spring session. We invite those seeking Collegiate advantages to consider ours. To our Southern friends, desiring repose and exemption from many of their peculiar annoyances, our location and surroundings are especially attractive. One hundred and fifteen dollars will cover the expenses of a session of five months, including tuition, board, fuel, room rent, washing and contingent fee. A catalogue or other information can be obtained by addressing,

E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
[dec 7] Emory P. O., Va.

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHera Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin	60c.
Sent by mail at	70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan	$1 50
" Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep	$1 25
Roan	1 50
Roan Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00
S. S. Bells (single)	$4 25 per doz.
" " (Double)	6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13. R. J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON, A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

july 27 tf

H. F. GIVEN, W. G. BROWN.
A. A. GIVEN, R. K. DUNKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186.....COMMON STREET.....186

feb3-67 1y

$100 A MONTH

SALARY WILL BE PAID FOR Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample, retailing at $4 50, for 50 cents. A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,
48 Broad street, New York.
[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 3m

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY,
308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(JOAN GRAAES—JOS. A. SHAKSPEARE—S. SWOOP.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 18 '67, 6m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondolet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

jan 26 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15-1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.,

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.,

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBURG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Foundries and Steamboats. aug4 6m

T H HIGGINBOTHAM, C. W. HONOR W. R. MAYO, New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants.

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.,

uly6 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Coralees, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

G. L. DUNNICA. G. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 99 Poydras street, New Orleans, La.

Agents for the following brands of flour, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

McCutcheon, Gordon & Co, choice XXX. W. Rosborough & Co, choice XXX. Sucker State choice X. Sparta Mills choice superfine.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J. L. DUNNICA & CO.

sep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A fresh supply of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE.

S. B. ALBERS, Agent, 251 St Charles st.
Opposite Tivoli Circle, New Orleans,
[dec 14-1y]

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No. 64 North Commercial street.
SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled: aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR,

AND

COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART, } NEW ORLEANS
Late Stuart & James.

Represented by CAPT. J. A. BINFORD, Duck Hill, Miss. oc20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS.

General Commission Merchants,

And COMMERCIAL AGENTS. aug23 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchoupitoulas Street,

And 8 and 10 New Levee,

aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F G BARRIERE O W BANCOCK

F. G. BARIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

No. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.

a10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

WM. EDWARDS. }
EDWD. J. GAY. } sep15 1y

J. O. ELLIS. W. C. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. jan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co.
SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 UNION STREET,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. C. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

ap7 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS,
New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Edward Harrison, J. P. Harrison, jun., Sidney Harrison, John N. Harrison.) Payne & Harrison)

july7 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar7 6m

A. D. GRIEFF,

Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st.,

aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS.

aug 8'67 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

COLGATE & CO.'S

FRAGRANT TOILET SOAPS are prepared by skilled workmen from the best materials, and are known as the Standard by dealers and consumers.

Sold everywhere. mar28 3m

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Customhouse Broker,

BELIZE,

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. je25 1y

J. D. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS. M. J WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

aly 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

57 Poydras street,

Cotton Office—192 Common street—in charge of RICHARD J. NUGENT. nug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. R. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., corner Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. feb18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 32 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON,
W. H. DAMERON, H. M. PAYNE.
je23-1y

O. M. STEIRER, THOS. C. SALTER

G. M. STEIRER & CO.

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market.)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas; Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves;

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER,

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar4-6m-67

D. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb2 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. M. SWENSON. W. M. PERKINS,
N. Y., late of Austin, Tex. D. L. KENNON,
Of Perkins & Co., N. O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

s29 1y

E S KEEP. I. CAULFIELD.

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oc13 1y

R. ATKINSON & CO. New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO. Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants,

188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Cash advances made on consignments to us by HEWITT, SWISHER & CO., Galveston, Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA

REFERENCES: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Sundidge, Cuwea & Mayo, Mr. R. L Walker, New Orleans, La. july 20

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 155 Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS.

W. A. VIOLETT. R. Y. BLACK. S. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants

15 6m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans,

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D F. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

july-5-6m

F. L. RICHARDSON J. D. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

.....No. 5 Commercial Place.....

1ely New Orleans.

AGENTS WANTED.—WE WANT first-class agents to introduce our NEW STAR SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINES.

Extraordinary inducements to good salesmen. Further particulars and sample work furnished on application to W. G. WILSON & CO., Cleveland, Ohio; Boston, Massachusetts; or, Saint Louis, Missouri. fe15 3m

CANCERS CURED without pain, use of the knife or caustic burning. Circulars sent free of charge. Address

DRS. BABCOCK & SON,
apr4 3mp 700 Broadway, New York.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 18.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 680.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1868.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The excitement of last Tuesday was repeated to-day at the capital, and was, if anything, more intense than upon that day.

The Hall of the House was crowded with applicants for tickets of admission to the High Court of Impeachment, while the passages leading to the Senate chamber were thronged again. The rules that had been laid down by the Senate for observance on Tuesday last were fully carried out to-day. The force of metropolitan policemen, which has been in attendance for the preservation of order, seemed to have been drilled, and the officers of the law were stationed at all points about the corridors and in the galleries, with instructions to "nip in the bud" any demonstration of approval or disapproval at the action or vote of any Senator, or of the Senate as a body sitting as a High Court of Impeachment.

The House did not assemble until 12 o'clock, but before that hour nearly every member was in the hall, and they gathered in knots at different points, and somewhat excitedly discussed the probable result of to-day's operations. The Democrats generally expressed themselves confident of acquittal, in the event of the vote being taken; while the Republicans, as a general thing, were doubtful, although some of the more sanguine still nursed a hope that Mr. Johnson would be found guilty on a sufficient number of the articles to justify his removal.

But all speculations were destined to come to an end, for at 12.10 a message was received from the Senate, and the House as in Committee of the Whole proceeded in a body to the bar of the Senate.

After order had been restored, and the members of the House had become seated, the question was taken upon Mr. Senator Sumner's motion to vote upon the 11th article first, and it was agreed to, all the Senators voting one way or the other, except Mr. Grimes, who had not yet entered the Senate chamber.

Senator Howard was in his seat, enveloped in a thick shawl. A motion was then made to proceed at once to vote as ordered by the Senate, when Senator Fessenden rose in his place and suggested a postponement of the vote for half an hour, by which time Senator Grimes would be present.

At this moment, however, Senator Grimes, looking pale and feeble, came into the door to the right of the Chief Justice, and took a seat.

The eleventh article was then read and the roll called, and the question was asked each Senator successively. Senator Anthony being first on the roll, and being counted as doubtful, all eyes were turned upon him, and in a faltering voice he voted "guilty."

A buzz ran through the galleries, but having been admonished by the Chief Justice, and squads of policemen being about the hall, no loud demonstration was made.

Then followed two votes for acquittal, Messrs. Bayard and Buckalew. But their votes excited no remark, as this was to be expected.

Cameron, Cattel and Chandler voted successively for conviction, and when Mr. Coles' name was called, curiosity was again excited, because it had been reported that he was one of the doubtful ones upon some of the articles. With a steady voice, however, he voted guilty. Conkling, Couness, Corbett and Cragin voted as it was expected they would, guilty.

So on the other side, Davis, Dixon and Doolittle voted successively for acquittal, the latter responding in a tone of voice loud and clear. Drake was next called, and he tried to throw in his voice a tone of unconcern, when every one knew that he had long ago committed himself, and that he was concerned for the result. Edmunds and Terry next voted successively for conviction.

The Secretary then called Mr. Fessenden. The Senator rose and stretched his tall form to its full length, and stood erect and placed his thumbs in his pants pockets, and thus listened to the reading of the questions by the Chief Justice. Senator Sumner, who sits behind him, leaned over to catch a glimpse at Fessenden's face. The latter was perfectly composed, and, in the clear voice of an honest, conscientious man, voted not guilty.

The Clerk then called Mr. Fowler. The latter was from his seat, to the left of the Chief Justice. He placed his hands upon his desk and listened to the reading of the question. All eyes were turned toward him, for he was considered doubtful, and a tremendous pressure had been brought to bear upon him. The question having been read, he made a response which was not distinctly heard, and he was requested to repeat, when, in a tremendous voice, he answered not guilty.

The friends of the President breathed more freely, while Sumner, Chandler and Howard made a desperate but unsuccessful effort to conceal their disappointment.

The vote now stood twelve for conviction and seven for acquittal, and both parties became nervous.

Senator Frelinghuysen is next on the roll to Fowler, and he voted guilty, although he has been claimed by both parties; still he was not positively counted on.

The name of Senator Grimes was next called. As stated above, that gentleman occupied a chair to the left of the Chief Justice, and the latter, alluding to his recent indisposition, suggested that he be permitted to retain his seat while voting, and no objection was made, and the lown Senator voted for acquittal.

Senator Harlan followed with a vote for conviction.

Senator Henderson was next called, and he rose nervously in his place under a battery of Radical eyes from the Radical side, while Conkling, Thayer, and Patterson of New Hampshire, leaned forward with anxiety. The Missouri Senator had not spoken against the eleventh article, and although his vote was claimed for acquittal, his Radical friends still hoped. He was true to his principles, however, and voted not guilty.

Mr. Hendricks followed with a vote upon the same side. Senator Howard's name came next, and he placed his shawl upon his desk in front of him. The Chief Justice made the same suggestion in his case as in that of Mr. Grimes, but the Michigan Senator preferred to stand, although very weak, and he voted for conviction, and was followed by Senator Howe on the same side. Johnson and McCreery followed, voting not guilty, and Morgan, and Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, and Morton, voted successively for conviction, making the vote stand twenty for conviction and twelve for acquittal. Norton increased the latter to thirteen, and Nye and Patterson, of New Hampshire, increased the votes for conviction to twenty-two.

Mr. Patterson, of Tennessee, was next called, and some one in the reporters' gallery made the remark, "He's a pretty man to be called for a vote," to which a response was made, "The beauty of the thing will be apparent when Wade's name is called." Senator Patterson, of Tennessee, voted for acquittal.

Pomeroy and Ramsey then voted for conviction.

The name of Mr. Ross was then called, and he rose promptly and voted for acquittal, much to the disappointment of his colleagues of the Senate and House.

Saulsbury followed on the same side, making the vote for acquittal sixteen. Sherman voted for conviction, and Sprague followed the lead of his colleague, Mr. Anthony, and voted in the same direction. Stewart, Thayer and Tipton followed on the same side.

Then Mr. Trumbull's name was called, and rising in his seat, pronounced the words not guilty with more emphasis than any other Senator had given them.

Next was called Mr. Van Winkle, and the excitement now became intense. Seventeen votes only had thus far been cast for acquittal. Mr. Vickers was of course certain, and the only dependence now of the President's friends was upon Van Winkle and Willey.

The vast audience on the floor and in the galleries held their breath as the question was asked, and the West Virginia Senator voted not guilty. This secured acquittal, for Vickers was certain, and he followed Van Winkle.

Then the line of voices was again hushed, for Senator Wade's name was called. "Is he going to vote?" was whispered about the galleries, but all curiosity was soon put at rest, for he rose to the left of the Chief Justice and voted guilty.

This, with the exception of the vote given upon the motion to take the vote first on the eleventh article, being the first vote he had cast since the trial.

Now was heard the name of another doubtful Senator, Willey, of West Virginia, and there was much curiosity to know how he would vote, although it did not matter much, because acquittal was already secured; contrary to the best expectations, however, he voted for acquittal.

Williams, Wilson and Yates closed the roll-call, and the President was acquitted on the eleventh article—the last article—two-thirds not having voted for conviction.

The galleries breathed freer now that the result was ascertained, and but for the presence of so many policemen a cheer to almost rend the roof from the Senate chamber would have been heard.

Pending the roll call members and Senators had provided themselves with yea and nay lists, and noted the varying votes.

All the managers were present, occupying the seats they had occupied during the trial, while the President's counsel, including the Attorney General, were also present, occupying their old seats.—They too noted the progress of the vote with much interest.

As soon as the result was known several motions to adjourn immediately and to adjourn for a number of days were made, and severally disposed of, as was also a motion of Senator McCreevy to adjourn the Court of Impeachment sine die.

After a while a motion was made and prevailed that the vote on the eleventh article, just taken, be officially announced. The names were read, and the Chief Justice announced the President acquitted on the eleventh article, and a motion was subsequently made and prevailed that the High Court adjourn until the 26th inst.

The members of the House immediately returned to their hall—Democrats being jubilant, while the Radicals were decidedly nervous and excited, and could do nothing but mutter about bribes and corruption.

The impeachment managers hid their diminished heads, but Messrs. Boutwell and Logan in a short time walked into the hall. Mr. Boutwell, however, soon went, and Mr. Logan snapped out a request for leave of absence, which was granted, and he immediately took his hat and departed. Mr. Stevens faced it out, occupying, as usual, his seat at the clerk's desk.

After the verdict the President was visited by a large number of friends, but no public demonstration took place.—N. O. Times.

OPINIONS OF THE LONDON PRESS ON IMPEACHMENT.—BISMARCK ON THE AUSTRIAN TREATY.

LONDON, May 17.—The London papers comment on acquittal as follows:

The Times says: 'The eleventh article is almost too vague for any substantial charge, but the vote upon it corrects the fear of any party bias, and shows the case to have been judged on its merits alone.'

The Morning Telegraph says: 'Dignity and decorum have marked the whole trial, and non-removal of the President is a most fitting close. Even the most ultra Radicals will be compelled to admit this at no distant day.'

The Standard says: 'The Radical plot has been beaten, and the country saved the shame of deposing its Chief Magistrate for refusing to obey an illegal act of Congress.'

LONDON, May 18.—The Morning Post says: 'The vote on impeachment is conclusive. The result demonstrates the fallacy of the Radicals, as a certainty of success was the only excuse for such a step. After all, if the right is vindicated it is due to accident.'

The News takes the other ground, considering the vote inconclusive.

THE PARIS PRESS ON THE IMPEACHMENT VERDICT.—NAPOLEON SICK.

PARIS, May 19.—Le Temps says Johnson has been saved only by legal forms.

Les Debats says the vote is such as renders Johnson powerless hereafter.

La Liberte says the virdict shows that liberty is the best guarantee of justice.

Le Constitutionel says the vote is fatal to the Radical party.

L'Espagne says a great party could not more clumsily have lost its prestige.

La Presse applauds Republican institutions, which permit the Chief Magistrate of forty millions of people to be brought to trial without bloodshed or national disquiet.

Napoleon is sick.

LONDON, May 19.—The ministry has been defeated on the second reform bill. Disraeli said the ministry must consider their position.

THE DEPOSITION OF BISHOP COLENSO FORBIDDEN.

LONDON, May 20.—The government forbids the deposition of Bishop Colenso.

VIENNA, May 20.—The Emperor has signed the law establishing the legal equality of religious sects.

WEALTH is not his who gets it, but his who enjoys it.

Politics Behind the Scenes.

We copy as follows from the Philadelphia Ledger of a recent date:

That portion of the voting public who feel inclined to break loose from blind adherence to party and to party leaders will find, in certain episodes to the impeachment proceedings, a new array of significant facts to strengthen them in their resolution. The first suggestive event in the order of time has come out in the evidence on the trial, and relates to interviews between Mr. Stanton and Gen. Lorenzo Thomas in the War Department. When Mr. Stanton was encamped en permanence in his office in the War Department—when General Thomas was making his daily and formal demand upon the Secretary to surrender—when Senators were sending urgent messengers to Mr. Stanton to stand firm—when governors of States were sending fiery and grandiloquent telegrams to Congressmen, offering troops to support that body—when superserviceable and officious adherents of the President were organizing regiments to do battle for the cause—when plain, straightforward and simple-minded citizens looked upon all this as an alarming state of affairs, and were eagerly and anxiously scanning every item of information published by the newspapers on the subject—when all this was going on, and large bodies of citizens were apprehending another civil war as possible, Mr. Stanton and Gen. Thomas, as it now appears by the evidence, were having quite a snug and cozy time, and were quietly taking a drink together in the War Office.

That is one point that should warn citizens against going blindly into excited and party contests, without knowing a good deal more of the true state of the case "behind the scenes" than is generally given by the principal actors to the public. Another of these suggestive and instructing episodes is to be found in the "Alta Vela case," now well known by name at least to almost every reader of the papers. This is a dispute between rival claimants for the possession of a guano island in the West Indies, and it is alleged, with much reason, that there is "a good deal of money in it," for whichever side may happen to win. Judge Black has been counsel for the alleged discoverers of the island for many years, and it was supposed that the President favored his clients. Secretary Seward was against Judge Black. Thus the executive branch of the government was divided, while it was supposed to be in harmony, except in the War Department. Subsequently, as it appears, Mr. Seward convinced the President that he ought to side against Judge Black, and this estranged the latter from the President. Then came a new and extraordinary development. It seems that while Gen. Butler was speaking in contemptuous terms of Judge Black during the course of the impeachment trial, plainly intimating that he was not a fit man to have influence with the government, while most people at that time supposed that Judge Black and Gen. Butler were bitterly at war with each other. While this was the state of the case in the popular mind, and the easily deluded adherents of these two conspicuous partisan opponents were ready to fight each other, the opponents themselves, through Col. Shaffer and one of Judge Black's law partners, had quietly struck hands, and Butler went over to the aid of Black in the Alta Vela case, backed by the names of a majority of the House managers of the impeachment trial. Thus we see that when outside parties thought these distinguished public characters were opposing each other to the bitter end, they were all working snugly and harmoniously together, urging the President to send a war ship to take forcible possession of a valuable piece of property, claimed in the interest of one of the rival parties before mentioned.

Now, if anything were wanting to convince people of the utter sham and humbug of a great deal of the party strife among the leaders of parties, these two instances ought to serve the purpose. It ought to show them that before they rush blindly into bitter, abusive and violent contests, under the delusion that it is necessary for the support of their leaders, they had better make sure that their leaders are in earnest, and that there is a real public issue between them. Otherwise, while they are being aroused by their respective party cries, and hot-headed Democrats and overzealous Republicans become so excited as to quarrel and fight, and talk of going into actual armed war against each other in championship of their leaders, they cannot be sure that these very leaders are not somewhere quietly taking a drink together, or cracking their jokes, or making arrangements to push through their little jobs.

Ritualism in St. Michael's Church, Brooklyn, on Easter Day.

An 'Episcopalian' furnishes the following account of Easter doings in a Brooklyn church:

Last Sabbath morn I paid a visit to St. Michael's church in this city, where 'ritualism' is in full blast, and, with your permission, will give your readers some description of the remarkable proceedings I saw there.

The 'church' has already been fully described in your columns, and therefore any description at my hands would be unnecessary. After sitting awhile, watching my ritualistic friends enter the church, and bow to the 'altar,' and cross themselves, and kneel, etc., my attention was attracted by strains of music approaching, apparently, from the street, and soon a 'procession' of boys and men, in surplices, preceded by a handsome lad, carrying a cross, elevated on a long pole, pompously entered the main door, and marched up the aisle, singing as they went. At the last walked 'Father' Webbe, the pet of Brooklyn ritualists, who wore over his surplice, instead of the black scarf, ordered for our ministers, a white cope ornamented with crosses, in gold and red. On reaching the chancel the 'priest' commenced our usual morning service in a sing-song, drowsy voice—the whole of the service, prayers, psalter and amens were sung by the choir, thus preventing the people from taking any part in the worship of God, if such it could be called. When the morning service was over the 'priest' retired with two 'acolytes,' one of whom soon appeared, carrying a long lighted wand in his hand, with which he proceeded to light the candles on the altar, having first bobbed on his knee before the altar. The priest now entered the church, clad in a short pointed cope, over a long white gown, and passing to the front of the richly decorated, flower-covered altar, began a sickening imitation of the 'Mass;' for what with the blowing, and crossing, and squirming, and finally the elevation of the Host—it was nothing less—before beginning his sermon the make-believe priest repeated the popish incantation: 'In the name of the Father,' etc., at which the choir and people crossed themselves with apparently great devotion. But the most blasphemous proceeding was during the communion, when the priest, after saying the words, 'This is my body,' etc., perverted the typical meaning of them by holding up the bread and wine before the people, 'and all the people bowed the knee and worshiped.' At this moment one might have imagined himself in a Romish chapel or a heathen temple. Before him, in front of the 'altar,' with its gaudy trappings of white, and red and gold, with its gilded cross, its flowers and candles, stood the 'priest,' in decorated 'vestments,' and all around were the kneeling devotees at the shrine—it might be of the Virgin, or it might be of Buddha—only the tinkling bell and smoking censer were needed to complete the resemblance in either case. After the communion had been administered, and the 'blessing' given—with the sign of the cross again—the priest, standing in front of the altar, quaffed large quantities of wine, without any apparent reason. When he had satisfied himself, I suppose, the boy with the cross again came forward, and boys, men and priest swept out of church, bowing to the altar, and singing as they went, till their voices were lost in the distance, and thus ended this mockery. Is this not a disgrace to that body to which I belong?

PHILOSOPHY is a bully that talks very loud, when danger is at a distance, but the moment she is hard pressed by the enemy she is not to be found at her post, but leaves the brunt of the battle to be borne by her humbler but steadier comrade, religion, whom on all other occasions she affects to despise.

THOSE orators who give us much noise and many words, but little argument and less wit, and who are most loud when they are least lucid, should take a lesson from the great volume of nature; she often gives us the lightning even without the thunder, but never the thunder without the lightning.

THE TYCOON.

Of the civil government of the country even less still was known until within the last year or so. It had long been customary to admit the anomaly of two jointly reigning emperors: the one the Tycoon, a military and political ruler who possessed the real dominion of the country; and beside, or rather behind him, a religious sovereign, the Mikado, a sort of pope, who shrouded himself in mystery, and, though powerless as an infant, yet receiving from the great ones of the empire, even from the Tycoon himself, the highest marks of outward reverence. In the entertainment of such views the nations of the Occident, first, the United States, and then the others, began, in 1853, to negotiate for diplomatic and commercial admission to the capital, and met with almost unexpected success. Treaties of amity were formed, but difficulties soon arose. The contracting Japanese authorities were either unable or unwilling to execute their engagements, and it was only after infinite perplexity and confusion that faint glimmerings of the real fact in the case began to be understood by the disappointed Europeans. These facts are about thus: The Christian powers had not treated with the real sovereign of the country, but only with one of the nineteen almost independent princes, or dukes, whose collective dominions constitute what we are accustomed to regard as the empire of Japan. In fact, the government of Japan finds a pretty fair counterpart in the France or Germany of the middle ages. The real emperor, the Mikado, possesses more of dignity than power, and is surrounded by powerful princes who are supreme in their own provinces, and yield homage to the emperor only as a means of protection against the jealousies and ambition of each other. The Tycoonate, or office of the so-called temporal sovereign, with whom our treaties were made, is of recent origin, dating only from the close of the sixteenth century, at which period one of the princes succeeded, by talent and fortune, in raising his province and capital, Jeddo, to a sort of military sovereignty over those of his equals. An acknowledgment of this abnormal state of things was forced from the powerless emperor and the other eighteen princes. The latter, as a pledge of their obedience, agreed to reside some months of each year in the capital of the Tycoon, and to leave in his hands when absent a number of relatives or servants. This condition of things was never tasteful to the eighteen provincial rulers, and it only needed some untoward event that should allay their mutual jealousies, and unite them against the Prince of Jeddo, to destroy the prestige of the Tycoonate and release them from their unwilling residence in Jeddo. The signal was given when the Tycoon allowed himself to be persuaded to violate the immemorial usage of the empire and admit foreign diplomats to reside in Jeddo. Since the autumn of 1862 the eighteen princes have refused to reside in Jeddo, and thus resuming their ancient independence, have reduced the Tycoon to the condition of mere prince of one of the nineteen provinces of Japan, owing, as the others, feudal submission to the common emperor, the Mikado. The policy of the Western powers has therefore changed. We are reduced now to making special treaties with the individual local princes. Among the majority of these the old prejudices as to foreigners are still dominant, and civil war against those who have disregarded this antipathy has been the result. The finality of the discord thus created is far from foreseen. If foreigners are, in the end, peacefully admitted, a slow but radical revolution of the whole framework of Japanese society will be inaugurated; but for many years the intercourse of Christian nations with Japan will be little closer than what is implied in mere commercial interchange.—Correspondent of the New York Christian Advocate.

IN one of the Society Islands the Siamese twins are paralleled. Two girls, infants as yet, are united at the hip, but are otherwise physically separate. The sympathy between them is said to be extraordinary. The King and Queen of the Island have adopted them, and lately refused to part with them long enough to carry them to one of the villages to be photographed.

A LADY recently died in Bristol, England, who had not tasted animal food during her lifetime of 84 years, and has always been in good health.

For the Advocate.

"LOVE YE ONE ANOTHER."

BY REBEL RIVERS.

Ye who break His symboled body,
Ye who drink His blood in wine,
Kneeling 'round His holy altar,
Listen to these words divine:

"Love ye one another"—spoken
By our blessed Lord of love.
"Love ye one another"—echoed
By an angel host above.

Not that love that only blesses
Those who give love in return,
Does our blessed Saviour tell us
Should within our hearts sojourn.

But the love that's all-embracing,
Seeks no gain, and whose reward
Is within love's own pure bosom,
And the love of love's great Lord.

Love's great heart is full of mercy:
I might thus have sinned, love says;
Judge not, lest you come to judgment;
Love remembers well, and lays

On her tongue the spell of silence,
Love is ready to forgive,
Lest she too should need forgiveness:
In her heart does patience live.

Love has care for "one another,"
Tender care, as tho' it were Love's own wounded bosom bleeding,
Love's own eye that wept the tear.

Love has thoughts as pure as lilies,
Charity wide as the sky;
Love coins words of precious value—
Happiness with them we buy.

Love's warm hand is always open—
Precious deeds does love embalm;
For the bleeding wounds of sorrow
Love's warm heart is full of balm.

Not a heart without a sorrow!
Not an eye without a tear!
"Bear ye one another's burdens;"
Lift up holy hands in prayer.

HOHOLOCHITTA, Miss.

For the Advocate.

Vermilion Letters from China.—No. IV.

SHANGHAI, CHINA, Feb. 12, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: January 1st witnessed the opening of two new commercial ports, Hi-o-go and O-sa-kn, in Japan, which, together with Nngasahi, Yokahama and Hakodadi, make five now accessible by treaty to foreigners. Two others, I hear, are to be opened soon, inclnding Yeddo, the capital. Business, however, is too limited and dnll in the ports already open in China and Japan for these new acquisitions to prodnce much inflnenee on trade. Indeed merchants nre rather inclined to look npon them as destrnctive rather than promotive of their best interests. Trade is too dull to compensate them for the tronble and expense of the additional outfit necessary to occupy them.

At present there is quite a sqnabble among the Japanese daimios, and an entire revolution of affairs is threatened. The year 1866 closed on the trinmph of Chosiu over the forces of the Tycoon and the death of the defeated prince, and the close of 1867 witnessed the initiation of further hostilities, which seem likely to result in the permanent overthrow of the Tycoonate, if, indeed, that result is not already accomplished.

The apparent cause of the present disturbances appears to be an abuse by the Tycoon of the power delegated to him by other princes. He is only a daimio among other daimios, though holding in addition a nearly sovereign rank, and as he has hitherto arrogated to himself all the benefits from foreign intercourse and trade by opening ports in his own territory only, his peers and rivals, desirous of participating in the advantages they saw neeruing to him, combined to crush his power, and have succeeded.

The present aspect of affairs is truly confused, and, as foreigners have already signified their intention to keep aloof from the struggle, it is impossible to forecast the probable issue.

There is no doubt, however, but that the several independent princes will accomplish their object so far as to prevent futnre arrogations on the part of the Tycoon, should he finally be restored again.

It seems strange that, notwithstanding the respective nations of the West, both Catholic and Protestant, have for a number of years had treaty relations with Japan, nothing should have yet been accomplished toward securing religious toleration. There are a few isolated missionaries there, but their work is proscribed, and none dare openly profess Christianity. A few have done so and received baptism, but it was privately and at night. A valuable initiatory work has been accomplished, however, and a large preparation made, which needs only to be tolerated to manifest its influence. I believe nearly all the missionaries have been engaged teaching government schools, similar to the one I have in Shanghai, and to each of the pupils they have supplied an English Bible. Each pupil received his Bible privately, and though all have them, each one is left to suppose he alone has one, and keeps it secreted accordingly.

By the present outgoing Pacific mail steamer, Hon. Anson Burlingame, recent American minister to China, but now embassador from the court of "the Son of Heaven," together with an ample suite—some thirty Chinese in all—takes his departure to represent his celestial majesty at the respective "barbarian" courts of the West. His appointment has not been regarded nor spoken of in China by foreign residents, and especially by his own countrymen, in very complimentary terms. They all seem to think he has sold himself, and deserted the interests of his own people at a time when his services were most needed. He has certainly maintained a most plansible and dignified inactivity at the capital for the last two years, the secret of which his recent appointment divnlges. It is to be hoped that a more active and efficient minister will soon sneceed him. Judging from opinions expressed in the local papers, bnt few will regret his departure. He has done but little for American interests. It remains to be seen what he will accomplish for his new master.

It is expected that mnch, aside from the direct object of the embassy, will be effected. Two Chinese mandnrins and a nnmber of yonng and intelligent expectants accompany him. They will see and hear much during their absence, and the reports which they will severally bring back will have a large influence on pnblic opinion in the capital. It is certainly one of the events of the age, and shows that China is at last waking from her sleep of ages. There now remains bnt one more step for China to take in order to be fully incorporated into the family of nations, and enjoy all the benefits of reciprocity with the rest of the world—that is for the emperor, when he comes of age and assumes authority, to show himself and receive our embassadors as representing his equals—not vassals, as he has hitherto been pleased to regard them.

The imperialists have recently enjoyed a series of victories over the Nien-fe, (rebels,) between this and Pekin, and they are said to be effectually scattered.

Admiral Bell, of the Hartford, together with his flag lieutenant and ten men, were recently drowned at Osaka, one of the ports just opened in Japan, by his boat upsetting in the surf while going on shore to meet the American minister. His body was recovered. The American squadron has lost several of its most prominent men since its reappearance in the Chinese waters two years ago.

More another time.

Yonr's truly,

YOUNG J. ALLEN.

THE "Order of St. Benedict," founded by Father Ignatius, and patronized by the extreme Romanizing wing of the Anglican church, have lately indulged in a procession, preceded by a tall crncifix, which moved toward the bottom of a long garden, where a large effigy of the Virgin was enshrined in a very gandy and elaborately gilded canopy. Two monster wax candles, lighted, were borne in front, and the host was carried with marked adoration.

For the Advocate.

RESTITUTION.

Have you made restitution for all wrongs which you have done? It may be that in looking carefully over your past life you can find no instance in which you have injured any one by word or deed. Then you are such as can be seldom found. In life we talk so much and act so much that it is indeed wonderful that we do not seriously damage some one every day. It is our indispensable duty to restore, as far as we possibly can, that which we have taken away, whether it be reputation or property.

Just as I was entering the cars, some years ago, a Christian (who is now in heaven!) handed me a roll of money and said: "I commit to you a secret. Carry this money to the town of M———, inquire for Mr. ———, and give it to him. If he asks for an explanation, just say: a man who has been wicked, but is now trying to serve God, took advantage of him in a trade, and now wishes him to receive this money, which is the principal and a large interest, that his conscience and his hands may be pure. Tell him this money has caused me a great deal of trouble.—Though I was very wicked at the time I traded with him, yet I had some conscience left, and as soon as I saw and took the advantage my conscience rebuked me, and it continued to rebuke me day and night for several months. When I began, a few months ago, to seek the salvation of my soul, the great wrong which I had done that poor, honest, hard working man came up before me, and seemed to lift itself as a great mountain in my way, to keep me from the mercy of God! That mountain did not remove until I solemnly promised God that I would restore the money which was not mine. Now I pay my vow!" Tears were in the good man's eyes as he concluded these remarks. They were tears of joy, for a pleasant smile played over his face, which gave evidence that he was happy.

The cars rolled on their way. Arriving at M———, I began my pleasant task of hunting up Mr. ———. He was a shoemaker, hard at work, and in very feeble health. There he sat before me in his shop, with a delicate frame and a care-worn face. Twas then I wanted to be an artist, that I might draw a picture, to go with another which might have been drawn a short while after. Then you and I might look on this and then on that.

I told him who I was, and engaged in conversation with him about his history and his family. He was called to dinner. His new friend must go with him. He introduced me to his wife and his aged mother. The scanty meal was spread before us, and as we ate the poor man said: "I don't know what is to become of us, for I am owing some money, and my creditors are talking of taking my shop and little home from us." I asked if he were a Christian. He replied: "No, sir." "Are your mother and wife Christians?" I inquired. "No, sir." "Now, sir," said I, "the Lord is good to you, for just in this time of your trouble and distress I am happy to be the bearer of this roll of money to you," and I held it before his face, across the table. He was astonished. His wife and mother looked on perfectly amazed. His trembling hand took the roll, while his sunken eyes were fastened upon my face. He spoke, after a moment, and inquired: "What does this mean?" I told him the story was brief. Then I made to him the speech my friend had made to me. He wept, and so did his mother and wife. They could not speak for several minutes. At last he wanted to know the man's name. I told him that was a secret I could not tell. "Well," said he, "this money will pay all my debts, and help to buy supplies for the year. You are right—the Lord is good to me and mine! I now promise you that I will henceforth serve Him." The mother and the wife joined him in the promise. He then handed me the old, dusty Bible, and asked me to read and pray before I left. Selecting an appropriate lesson, I read it, and we all kneeled in prayer around the neglected family altar. It was good to be there! I could but weep with them while they there wept as if their hearts would break!

Promising to remember them at the "throne of grace," I took them severally by the hand and said "farewell."

W. S. TURNER.

DADEVILLE, Ala.

THE French consul at Beyrout, having dug up from the sand at Syria a Roman eagle, such as was borne at the head of the Roman legions, with outspread wings and grasping the globe in its talons, made haste to present it to his imperial master. Louis Napoleon accepted the relic with satisfaction, remarking that the bird had a proud bearing and seemed to threaten some distant object. On this hint the finder spake. "Yes, sire," he answered, "the other side of the Rhine!" It is said "the Emperor smiled."

THE only way for a man to escape being found out is to pass for what he is.

For the Advocate.

LETTER FROM PENSACOLA.

PENSACOLA BAY,
On board the "Ingalls," April 30, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: The rule by which the validity of a common law principle is true might with some propriety be applied to the introduction of Methodism into Pensacola—"from time to which the memory of man runneth not to the contrary"—for not one of the present generation of Pensacolians can remember who was the first Methodist in that city.

True, in the by-gone days, when De Soto pitched his camp there, or, in after days, when those venerable witnesses to the crimes of war and bloodshed were reared up in the forms of forts and redoubts by authority of the British crown, there were no Methodists there; but soon after, when those true "sons of American sires" came, under the direction and authority of General Jackson, to avenge their wrongs, there was a great political and religious change wrought, and Methodism planted its seed at an early period afterward.

The same is nearly true with respect to the other Protestant churches; but not so with regard to Romanism: It went there, doubtless, with De Soto, and was fed there till 1814, and is still fed and fostered by many devotees, and must, for a time, be the most powerful organization in the city.

Methodism has been peculiarly unfortunate in this place, as its history shows.

At what time an organization was effected, and a church-house built, I am not advised; but there was a good church and parsonage there, with only about sixteen hundred dollars unpaid. But soon after the evacnation of that point by General Bragg, in the spring of 1862, our church and parsonage were destroyed by fire, leaving us nothing in the way of real estate save out-lots on Taragona street, 170 feet, and Intendencia street, 80 feet.

There are, in all, probably about fifty members of our church scattered through Pensacola, or rather "wandering about as sheep having no shepherd"—no fold. The newcomers (and there are many of them) are orthodox, and a heavy per cent. of the number are Methodists. This is the state of Methodism in one of our most promising cities. What is to be done?

Let us look about before answering the question. And first, at PENSACOLA PROSPECTIVELY.

At this late period, when the United States Coast Survey has been "read of all men," it is unnecessary to speak of the harbor, affording, as it does, twenty feet of water up to the wharf, on the lowest tide. It is enough for our present purpose to know that Pensacola harbor is the best south of Norfolk, Virginia—far superior to Mobile or New Orleans.

And as far as railroad connection with the interior is concerned, nothing seems more probable at present than the following:

1. Refitting the old A. and F. Railroad to Pollard. Twelve or thirteen miles of this road is now in running order, and only about twenty miles to repair, and that is realized. Of the reliability of the present owners of this road your exchanges say enough. This done, connection is had with the M. and G. N. Railroad, twice daily, and by that road, via Mobile or Montgomery, with any point in the United States.

2. Building a railroad from Pollard to Selma. The expense of this road would be comparatively light, while it would open up the way for the whole of the commerce of that section, "and regions beyond," to Pensacola; and connection being had at Selma with the Selma and Meridian Railroad, all ships of a thousand tuns burden and over would unload at Pensacola for those points in that section, as the additional freight by rail would be much less than the lighterage at Mobile. Now turn to your new map, and you will see a strong prospect of another important railroad connection.

3. From Quincy to Pensacola. This road was surveyed to run north of Pensacola, but the other roads (or the first only) would shorten the Quincy road more than fifty miles, and leave off the line several large water courses, the bridging of which would be the most expensive part of the work.

It is quite likely, then, that this road from Quincy to Pensacola will not cross Yellow, Black Water and Escambia rivers, but cross Choctawhatchie and turn down to the left of Govan's Point, and land opposite Pensacola on the south beach, connecting with the city by boat. This, then, (if a contemplated line, running south from Thomasville, Georgia, to intersect with this line from Quincy, be completed,) would draw from Bainbridge, Tallahassee and intermediate landings, most or all heavy vessels, upon the principle of economy.

It will be seen that all this seems hinged, to some extent, on the road now nearly ready for work, and for the repairing of which over one hundred hands have already been employed.

This is Pensacola prospectively. And in view of these prospects, several magnificent brick houses have been built since the war, and others are in course of construction.

What, then, is to prevent Pensacola being the "Queen City of the Gulf?"

True, it has taken several starts to grow, but none like the present. And heretofore, when it did begin, it began wrong. Men of moderate means, instead of organizing a company able to do work, have gone into the business independently, and their funds being too short to take the work through, the man breaks, and the crash scares off others of the same mind.

But as the brightest prospects are sometimes like dreams, look at PENSACOLA AS IT IS.

A healthy locality, subject to no sickness more than such as is peculiar to the climate—principally yellow fever, which lasts but a few weeks—not so bad as in New Orleans. It is a pleasantly located place. Its geographical situation is beautiful and grand. It is the head fountain of the Southern lumber trade, thousands and tens of thousands of feet of which are daily carried away to almost all sections of the world, and for which thousands and thousands of dollars are left in Pensacola.

In the rear there are several beautiful summer resorts from the heat and dust of the city, and on the railroad, by which all manner of things can be had from the ships and stores in a few minutes. There are about five thousand souls in the city. There are a number of schools, and Baptist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches. Also a first class cotton press, mills, and such other things as add to the wealth and comfort of a city.

Now take your pencil and draw a plan of the real estate belonging to the Methodist church, and then I will answer the question as to what we are to do. Draw three lines north and south; cross these with three others, east and west. Turn your paper before, north up. Name your streets. The left hand is Palafox; the middle one, running north and south, is Taragona; the bottom one is Government; the middle one, running east and west, is Intendencia. The railroad runs down Taragona its whole length. Now that quarter block, just above Intendencia, and to the right of Taragona, belongs to the Methodist church. On the corner is a lot fronting on Intendencia 30 feet, and Taragona 80 feet. Still further up there are three other lots, fronting thirty feet on Taragona, and running back eighty feet.

Now we propose, in our extreme poverty, to sell these four for money to pay our $1,600 debt, and build as much of a church on the lot further from the corner, fronting on Intendencia, as it will, and beg for the rest.

VALUABLE LOTS IN PENSACOLA

We propose to sell the lots on good terms, for cash, and I hope, Mr. Editor, that you will help us. We are poor and disorganized. Can't you help us? All who have seen the above lots regard them as the most desirable lots now offered for sale in Pensacola. They are just two blocks from the depot and one block from the cotton press. This arrangement will leave us a lot eighty by fifty as a church site, and it is the best we can see to do at present.

The preachers will do good service to their friends, who are wishing to purchase lots in Pensacola, by bringing this matter before them. We will sell, but will not sacrifice.

Your's truly,

J. A. PARKER.

"THE DEMON OF CASTE."

Dr. Bond, who keeps on the warm side of the Northern Methodists, is responsible for the following. The Episcopal Methodist frequently reminds us of the big gun at Fort Sumpter:

The hypocrisy of the New England Conference now stands confessed. After having passed resolutions calling on Methodists everywhere to abandon the unchristian policy of caste, and after the organ of the Conference has been for months preaching and scolding and puling about the social and religious rights of negroes to social equality, and exhorting other conferences to take negro preachers into their pulpits, Bishop Ames thought the way open for beginning the practice of mixing his black and white preachers. So he gave notice to the Conference that he wished to transfer a batch of negro preachers to their body. The effect was amusing. They all with one consent began to make excuse. No presiding elder wanted black help on his district. No preacher wanted a black colleague. Even Dr. Haven had no yearning for African association. Next day the bishop told the Conference that he was in earnest and would transfer the negroes. And then nature broke out in strong resistance, and the Conference refused to have black members enrolled among them. Of course they sneaked up to the position; but they took it and keep it, and Dr. Haven, of Zion's Herald, defends it. The Conference passed a resolution that they would receive black preachers "whenever quarterly conferences shall ask for them." So will we. If that is all that is required to make us Christians, we claim to be all right; and we claim it for all the Southern church. Our bishops and conferences will send black preachers to circuits and stations where the quarterly meetings, composed of stewards, leaders, local preachers and Sunday school superintendents, shall vote for black pastors. We are not going to be heathens and lose our souls by insisting upon sending white preachers to people whose tastes lead them to prefer blacks. So Zion's Herald will please report the whole Southern church accepting the New England platform. He will please notify Bishop Simpson to withdraw his bummers from our territory; and we shall expect next Zion's Herald to inform the New England preachers that he was mistaken in calling us Cain and Esau and Satan's index and Mephisto—something or other. The New England Conference will receive negroes when quarterly conferences ask for them. Certainly: they are safe as a delegate to the Maryland Legislature was when he promised "his constituents to vote for a tax on dogs whenever a majority of them should petition for it." The bald hypocrisy of the New England Conference and of Zion's Herald is now pilloried for the scorn of the world. Men of truth may well hereafter consider the New England Methodism as belonging to the out lying regions of honesty.

Even Dr. Nesbit, of the Pittsburg, shames the miserable pretenders thus caught in the act of contemptible falsehood. The indignation of the Pittsburger is actually exalted to the pitch of writing some plain English; a phenomenon similar to that observed in some stammerers who can speak plainly when engaged in devotion.

SINGING.—Though but a poor singer, yet I have a habit of singing when alone. A little thing sets me off—a bit of green on the earth, or a bit of blue in the skies. Yes, yes, I like singing, and often sing with my heart when my lips are silent. I like to hear a milk-maid singing in the green meadow, when her heart is so happy that she cannot help it. I love to hear a song uncalled for. Who asks the birds to sing? They sing to relieve their heart, and this is the sort of singing that I like. I love to hear a loud Hallelujah, not by the clear musical voice of one who is paid for it, but by a thousand tongues singing with the heart and understanding.

You shall have my favorite song. I sang it in my youth and in my manhood, and now I am singing it in my years:

When all thy mercies, O my God,
My rising soul surveys,
Transported with the view, I'm lost
In wonder, love and praise.

—Old Humphrey.

WHY STAND YE HERE ALL THE DAY IDLE?

BY REV. W. MORLEY PUNSHON, M. A.

Two fields for toil—the outer and the inner—
Both overgrown with weeds;
Who to the labor hastes, to be the winnor
Of all the laborer's needs?

To bathe in radiant mornings, daily spreading
Over the heavens anew;
To sit 'neath trees of life, forever shedding
Their bounteous honey-dew.

To rouse a spirit, formed from God, from slumber,
And robe it for the light;
The heirs of heaven from clay to disencumber,
Which clogs their upward flight.

To lift a world, 'neath sin and sorrow lying,
And "pour in oil and wine;"
To warble, in the dulled ears of the dying,
Refrains of hymns divine.

Work for a lifetime, in each path up-springing,
In low or lofty spheres!
Hark to the Master's summons, always ringing
In quick and heedless ears!

Cool brain, strong sinew, heart with love o'erflowing,
Shall all in sloth escape?
Like vine which, fruitless through its wanton growing,
Ne'er purples into grape!

The daylight wanes and dies—"Why stand ye idle?"
Life hasteth to its bourne!
The bridegroom tarries—will ye greet the bridal,
Or in the darkness mourn?

Lo! in the fields the yellow harvest drooping,
As lilies in the rain;
Where are the reapers, that they come not, trooping,
To gather in the grain?

Some in the festive hall disporting gaily;
On slothful pillow some;
Some in delays most blameful, and yet daily
Exclaiming, "Lo! I come."

And some, infatuate, 'mid the alien's scoffing,
Quarrel about their toil;
As wreckers, when ships founder in the offing,
Grow murderous over spoil.

Meanwhile the harvest waiteth for the reaping,
God's patience hath not tired.
Ye cannot say—extenuate of your sleeping—
"We wait, for none hath hired."

Through the hushed noon-tide hear the Master calleth;
Ye cannot choose but hear:
Still sounding when the lengthening shadow falleth,
"Why stand ye idle here?"

Up! for awhile the pitying glory lingers!
Work while it yet is day!
Then rest the Sabbath rest—where angel-singers
Make melody for aye.

MORALS OF THE PLAY-HOUSE.

The New York Tribune furnishes a critique upon the "White Fawn," one of the most popular of plays, drawing a full house on the hundreth night. The writer, who is a "country merchant," looks at the matter only in its moral and social aspects. How far such a place can be visited with advantage by one who seeks Christian purity in life and sentiment the reader must judge:

Now, having visited the spectacle of the White Fawn in your city, I give you my views, from a new stand-point, in comparison with those presented by your dramatic critic, and they will be expressive of what most of the people of the country would think did they visit the White Fawn. I do not say that the sight was new to me, for I witnessed similar exhibitions nearly twenty years ago.

The White Fawn, as I saw it, is called a burlesque; but it is without coherency. So far as the play goes, the plot and story are of no interest, and there is not an idea, good or bad, in the whole of it. The art lies in dividing the play into parts, which correspond to intermissions, and which are witnessed as a relief from the other part of the exhibition. Connected with this pretended play are gaudy scenes, some having a little merit, others to the contrary; crowds of Oriental and Nubian soldiers, in tin helmets, poor clowns and poorer kings, and a company of half-dressed, full-padded young women, all in apparel that glitters with silk, spangles and glass beads. Of course there are the usual trap-doors, sham cottages, pasteboard statues, painted fountains, and unsteady structures, common to the stage, which, being connected with the play, make a series of scenes as heavy as lead. But when, without the least call, connection or necessity, the play is broken in upon by the appearance of the dancing women, singly, in pairs, or in groups, numbering in all as many as thirty, the real object of the performance begins to be manifest.

For three long hours a large and apparently respectable audience witnessed the scenes that were presented with profound attention. I was surprised to note so little applause, for, though the spectacle is confessedly popular, and had already been presented over sixty nights, only few manifested outward pleasure, and the people sat hour after hour perfectly quiet, gazing at those dancers, and seeming to me either fascinated or amazed.

These dancing women, as may be supposed, are as good-looking as can be obtained. They are generally young, and, if old, such arts as are known to make them look young are used. Their dress can be described in a few words. It is fastened to the lower point of the shoulder by a narrow band; it crosses behind along the middle of the shoulder-blades; in front across the middle of the breast; it extends nearly twelve inches below the hip-joints, and the arms are bare. The lower limbs seem tightly covered with a thin flesh-colored fabric, and this is met at the base of the body by a garment of some kind of illusion goods, similar to what we used to sell for Grecian lace, lying in layers or puffs, and totally concealing all that part of the body. The feet are elegantly and lightly clad. The dancing is mostly confined to make a display of the lower limbs, and a common and often-repeated posture is to stand on one limb and to raise the other so as to form of the two a right angle. The latest improvement in this school of art and high culture requires a male assistant, who receives the dancer, in the midst of her dancing, upon some part of his person, so that her head and shoulders will be downward and fronting, or sideways to the audience, while her feet are in such a position that the illusion goods are displayed. One great feat is to have two at one time hang over his shoulders, or he and several other dancers combine to obtain positions that will give variety to the display. If this description is imperfect I am certain that many of your readers will be able to correct me.

The next most important object is the audience. A friend had furnished me a glass for the occasion, which, though not much dissimilar to those in fashionable hands, was made for another purpose, was of great power, and I could see which of the dancers were powdered, which had painted carmine lips, and which were padded. It was so powerful that what to most others appeared as charming faces showed me anxious and distressful eyes, and for the second time in my life I learned that a woman may have the most enchanting smiles on her lips while her heart is sinking with despair. As the hours passed one exposure was followed by another, and, if possible, by a new one. The gaze of the spectator became rigid, each sat like a statue, and tired nature found relief in long-drawn fluttering sighs. It was about an hour before the continued repetition began to have much effect, which was marked by each ceasing to whisper or to smile. Evidently there was a determination to show no emotion, and to the last to gaze unmoved. But some are so constituted that, whatever may be their culture and refinement, they do not have this power, for these insensibly relax; each new exhibition was an assault upon an exposed and crumbling fortress, and, as applause was suppressed, the nerves alone could give an expression.

Every man who goes to such a place at once looks to the ladies in the audience, for he wonders what it is that can be attractive to their eyes. To every man the first sight is repulsive, and it can be no less so to a woman. The change in the mind seems to come gradually, and by a process similar to acquiring a liking for unnatural, or even disgusting stimulants. We know a little, but perhaps enough, of magnetic influences, and it is not improbable that a woman's ideas in such a place are second-hand. In casting my eyes around the audience, near the close of one of the most noted displays, I saw several ladies with trembling lips, but in a moment they assumed their accustomed firmness. Finally, with little beauty and less meaning, with a confusion of fern leaves, a reclining of partly-nude figures, of ascending and descending designs, and amid a gleaming and glare of various colored lights, the curtain fell on the infamous scene. Half stifled by the close air, choked and partly benumbed, the audience slid away like a guilty throng, many huskily remarking to others upon the splendor of the closing view.

The intention of the managers undoubtedly is to make money, and, having studied human nature, they found it easiest to debauch it. One of my first impressions on beholding so many young women capable of adorning society, and being made happy, yet so lost to shame, was that they felt it would be a greater shame to earn an honest living, or that they had sought it in vain. Turning to the audience, I could not help thinking that each had a poor opinion of each. The lady coming in with a gentleman either had been cold to her husband, or had left him, or was in a fair way to leave him, or she had never been married, but had better be; that gentleman bringing a lady whose train swept the aisle had other claims far away, or his domestic life was feverish and unhappy; and the young men, coming by themselves, had come to lay the foundation for domestic infidelity, and for a waste of opportunities and means. The saddest sight was in the young couples with rosy cheeks and hopeful eyes. How many sittings are required to corrupt a young girl I do not know; but I felt that no place can equal this for debauching the soul, and that when a girl, at last, is delighted with these scenes, her day of ruin cannot be far away. For, before one comes to admire these things, the finest sensibilities must be stocked beyond expression, and modesty—that especial jewel of the human soul—must be degraded to the dust. To sit in that place hour after hour calls into being such a feeling as never arises in any intercourse between those who love, and who hope to be united, or between those who have been united long; and it is unknown in any other condition of life. I would liken it to a mephitic vapor from the sea of torment and death, which finds an unguarded entrance to the soul, and wanders from cell to cell in the remote and profound depths of our being, till at last it comes into time and the present, and grapples with all the sweet charities of the heart.

The White Fawn is an evidence of a want of a correct idea of beauty. The sense of sight is incapable of forming a full estimate of the female form, or of a painting, or of any natural and beautiful scene; for if nothing is left to the other faculties, nothing to ideality and the imagination, the object is shocking and deformed. To one of refined taste, of a properly-balanced mind, and an honest soul, no greater insult, no more contemptible imposition, can be presented, than the White Fawn, and it is deserving to be met with inexpressible scorn. Whenever the boundaries which are fixed by nature are passed beauty fades away. The White Fawn is a search beyond these boundaries for that which never shall be found; but instead specters shall arise which will gather to themselves irresistible power, and they will drag their victim beyond help or hope. The first lesson unmistakably given to the human race, and in the May morning of the world's existence, was, that there are things we need not know, and that in seeking to know them we pick up the fruit of the fatal tree.

How feeble are these words! With our wealth, education and refinement, with improvements on every hand, and with everything that could make us happy, except a knowledge of what happiness is, we are not going to stop at any White Fawns. Emboldened by the silence of the laws, by the gradual growth of debauchery, by the taste for strong drink, both in women and men, and impelled by greed for pleasure, we will accumulate still more corruption and obscenity. For already a company has arrived in this city from Paris fully prepared to give the public, so soon as the poison of the White Fawns and the Black Crooks shall have done its work, the next lesson, and this not only in New York, but everywhere through seaboard and interior cities, till at last other Neroes and Caligulas shall reappear in the full light of the blazing sun.

In looking over this whole matter I have been painfully impressed with the thought that if the churches of the country, and particularly in your city, had been faithful to their trust these things never would have appeared.

I HEARD the other day, from the lips of a member of the most fashionable of our up-town Presbyterian churches, a fact which is a very striking illustration of the favorite way of managing church music now-a-days. The "prima donna assoluta" of that holy place being ill, her position in the organ-loft was filled by a new soprano, whose tremulous, melting tones wakened unusual tenderness of sympathy and religious affection in the hearts of those genteel worshipers. "Who is she?" "Who can she be?" was the question. "Poor thing!" the answer was, "she is a young, timid girl, quite unaccustomed to such a congregation. Did you notice how her voice trembled?" Thus spake the worshipers one to another, as they beguiled the homeward way with edifying words. But they were mistaken. It came out the next day that the timid young girl was one of the performers in the Black Crook. There is a moral in this story, but perhaps it is not necessary to mention it.

THERE are within 150 miles of Cape Comorin, the southern extreme of India, 89,000 native Christians. Of these the Church Missionary Society instructs 36,000, the London Missionary Society 29,000, the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel 18,000, and the American Board 6,000. These Christians are very poor, but are doing what they can for supporting the Gospel. Those under the care of the Church Missionary Society pay at the rate of 35 cents each per year for each child and adult for religious purposes. The wages for a day's work is but a few cents.

REV. W. MORLEY PUNSHON.

Mr. Punshon's first appearance in the American pulpit was made, as we have said, at the new St. John's church, Brooklyn, which was dedicated on the day following his arrival. Dr. R. S. Foster was on the programme for the evening sermon, but at ten o'clock in the morning the committee of arrangements received intelligence that he was too sick to preach, and at twelve o'clock they had fortunately secured Mr. Punshon to take his place.

The church holds apparently about sixteen hundred persons, and it was thronged with a most intelligent audience, many of whom had come from neighboring cities to witness the occasion; many of them were ministers. Of the sermon, and the impression made by it, we present the following graphic description by one of our contributors, who was present:

"After the introductory services by other hands, Mr. Punshon came upon the platform, and was appropriately introduced by Bishop Janes, at whose suggestion the entire audience rose to offer him welcome. As they sat down the preacher, without making any remark in response, at once announced his text, and entered upon his discourse. But we must have a look at him before hearing him, and we take it now. You would know his face by his picture in Harper's Weekly a few days ago. You would know it, but the picture flatters him. A deep, inward calm appears in the pictured face that is not on the living one—at least, not this evening; but we must bear in mind that the preacher has been only about thirty hours off the ocean, and old travelers will know what that means. There he stands, simply a burly Englishman; height, say five feet eight inches; weight, above two hundred pounds, certainly; stout build, inclining to corpulency; chest and shoulders deep, round and massive, with a look of prodigious muscle there had it been cultivated; an arm like a blacksmith's, ended by a smallish but compact hand. Of neck there is not much to speak of in length, but the sturdy thickness which gives English John the balance of his nickname. The head belongs with the body; it has a broad, deep foundation. The face is emphatically English. The eyes are probably a light blue, but seem small, deep-set, and can hardly be seen for a tendency in the red cheeks to rise up in a sort of intermittent puffiness behind. Over all is the hair—light brown, dry, thin to semi-baldness in front, long at the sides and behind, rolling, and not even as well dressed as Beecher's. There's your preacher and orator, given in an 'untouched' photograph, severely true, as he stood for the first time before an American audience. Is it prepossessing? Not very; and yet, as your eye runs up and down the figure, and over his strong, yet pleasing head, the presence is impressive. You see, moreover, that the man is entirely at his ease, and betrays at once the well-seasoned veteran.

"His first words are hardly heard through the house. His voice is thick at first, harsh and guttural; it has a fuzzy quality, as if the speaker had wool in his throat. But every word is in its place, and the first sentence drops from his lips like a gold coin from the die, exact in symmetry and significance. With that first sentence he has seized the entire auditory, with the first unconspicuous gesture he has fastened their eyes, and for fifty-three minutes they sit magnetized, and never stir nor turn their heads, except to exchange momentary glances with each other. His introduction is perfect in form and adaptation. He states his theme, and all see that no other can so justly be taken from the text. At one stroke it falls into three divisions—natural, evangelical and cumulative. Immediately he is into the first, and it opens riches at every stroke. His diction is marvelous, short, complete; nervous sentences leap after each other with increasing rapidity as he warms a little in his theme. The rhetorical and logical progression of his theme satisfies the justest rules of art, yet he is neither wholly rhetorical nor wholly logical. Now and then there is a deeply subjective introspection, but objectivity is the characteristic of his thought. He deals in things mentally and morally actual rather than speculative. The mind of speaker and hearer is directed to the real in Christian experience and work rather than to the ideal. In fact we almost wish a little more of the inner man poured forth. There is little of set and amplified illustration. The style is attractive and graphic, but not pictorial. 'To be brought to Jesus is equally the want of the man who knows but one language, and hardly that, and of the man who has graduated the stars and unbraided the light;' such sentences, polished, sparkle all along, yet not excessively. Allusions to the classics, short and apt, occur here and there. The preacher has remembered his Homer wonderfully well, and to good purpose; but his favorite exemplifications are Scriptural, 'comparing spiritual things with spiritual.' His gesticulation is kept well in hand, rather close-reefed, but always appropriate and forcible.

"All this, however, is but the surface of his style. Under this is a gospel warmth and earnestness that draw all hearts. Touches of tenderness make many tears fall at times. Sometimes his voice drops from the oratorical down to a soft, familiar tone, like that of a friend. Then it rises and swells, but never to the trumpet call. At some of his delineations of the Christian's joy and assurance, hearty amens arise from his Methodist hearers. When he dwells on the soul's conscious discovery of the God-man in Jesus, and cries, 'We have found him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write,' there is shouting all around.

"And so the hour is gone like a dream, and the people draw a long breath as they fall back into self consciousness. The organ tones begin to roll over the congregation; 'Praise God from whom all blessings flow' bursts from a thousand hearts; the benediction is pronounced, and we are on the pavement, under the stars. Is that all? No. We cannot escape the feeling that the preacher we have heard was elegant, earnest and magnetic, but to-night, at least, he was not on fire. There was rich, loving, human thought, but little of the kindling power. We shall wait and hear him again. One thing is clear: a noble preacher of the gospel of Jesus has come among us, and he is thrice welcome to our shores."

We have no question that Mr. Punshon will be heard with great pleasure and profit by his brethren of America. At present he is in Canada, but is expected to be in Chicago about the 11th of May.—N. Y. Methodist.

GOOD, EASY METHODISTS.

It seems to us that the Southern Methodists are the most easy, good-natured, catholic-spirited people in the world—so easy as sometimes to abandon self-respect for the sake of catholicity. Take a case: In Hillsborough, Scott county, Mississippi, as is reported by the M. E. press, Rev. James Lynch found a hearty welcome from the members of our church. The church was tendered him—the preacher in charge yielding his own appointment; a prominent official member occupied a seat in the altar, and, as the report reads, "after the sermon, within the walls of the building, the banner of the old M. E church was thrown to the breeze. All the colored Methodists joined, and many of the whites said amen, and a colored leader was licensed, and put in charge." This, too, in the presence of the pastor and officials of the flock, who seemed to have remained where they were, while they thus saw their flock led away to another communion, and said "amen" to it. Did the world ever see such fraternity—such a holding still to be skinned?

Yet this is characteristic of Methodism. Let some new man come along—a Northern or a P. Episcopal preacher, who has no house of worship in which to initiate the work of disintegrating the old and established communions of the towns and neighborhood, and so fearful are our preachers of the cry of "illiberality," "bigotry" and "sectarianism," that they forget that there is such a word as "self-respect" in the English language. Let them but ask reciprocity—ask to have an opportunity to inaugurate their Methodism in a Northern Methodist or a Protestant Episcopal church, and they would be snubbed in short order. The Baptists and Presbyterians understand this thing better than we do.

We are, now and forever, against all such weak surrenders, until there is reciprocity. Admit to your pulpits those who will receive you into theirs, and no others—particularly when they come to build up another communion by making a draft upon yours, perhaps by its ruin. Teach them that the law of religion requires them to do for us what they wish us to do for them—which means reciprocity in the like circumstances. To teach another religion is to teach a false or defective one.—Southern Christian Advocate.

M. GUSTAVE LAMBERT proposes to explore the polar sea by cutting through a bank of ice and navigating the unknown deep. He intends to go by way of Behring's Straits, under the auspices of the French Geographical Society, and to be ready to pass the straits by July of the next year. The expenses will be about $120,000.

THE work of metropolitan drainage, which has been going on in and around London for eight years, has been completed at a cost of twenty millions of dollars. Eighty-two miles of sewers cleanse an area of 117 square miles, and promote the health of three millions of people.

BEAUTIFUL INCIDENT.

BY DR. F. W. KRUMACHER.

Let the world imagine to itself a magnificent Deity whose government is only general. We adhere to the Lord God of Elijah, and rejoice in his providential superintendence of the smallest affairs.

As this God still liveth, a living Saviour, who is always to be found of them that seek him, and is nigh unto them that call upon him, mighty hosts are encamped about his servants, and when he saith "come," they come, or "go," they go. And there has been no end to his wonderful providences, even to the present day. Who else was it but the Lord God of Elijah, who but a short time since, in our very midst, so kindly delivered a poor man out of his distress—not, indeed, by a raven, but a poor little fugitive singing bird! You are all well acquainted with the circumstance. The poor man was sitting at his front door early in the morning, his eyes red with weeping, and his heart crying to heaven, for he was expecting an officer, that very day, to come and sell his property for a small debt which he could not pay. Whilst sitting thus, with a heavy heart, a little bird flew through the street, fluttering up and down, as if in distress, until at length, quick as an arrow, it flew over the good man's head into his cottage, and perched itself upon an empty cupboard. The good man, little imagining who had sent him the bird, closed the door, caught the bird and put it in a cage, where it immediately began to sing very sweetly, and it seemed to him as if it were singing the tune of a favorite hymn, viz.: "Fear thou not when darkness reigns," and as he listened to it he found himself much soothed and comforted by its melody.

Suddenly a knock is heard at the door. "Ah, it is the officer," thought the poor man, and arose to open it with fear and trembling. But no, it was the servant of a respectable lady. He said that the neighbors had seen a bird fly into his house, and he wished to know if he had caught it. "Oh, yes," answered the poor man, "and here it is." In a few minutes the servant returned and said: "You have done my mistress a great service, for she sets a high value upon this bird. She is much obliged to you, and requests you to accept this trifle with her thanks." The poor man received it thankfully, and it proved to be neither more nor less than the very sum for which he was sued.

Soon after the officer came. The poor man handed him the money, saying: "Here is your money. God has sent it. Now leave me in peace."

PRIMARY EDUCATION IN ENGLAND.—The statistical Blue-book, lately published by the British Board of Trade, exhibits in a tabular form the present state of primary education in Great Britain. From this table we learn that the number of schools inspected has increased from 3,825 in 1855 to 8,753 in 1866; the number of children who can be accommodated from 588,000 to 1,724,000; the average number of children in attendance from 461,000 to 1,082,000, and the number of children present at inspection from 473,000 to 1,287,000. There are also a large number of schools throughout the kingdom which do not receive government assistance and are not visited by the inspectors. The number of children in such schools is probably less than that in the schools of the other class. From the same source we learn that the expenditure by the state for public education has increased from £189,000 in 1852 to £813,800 in 1861. In 1863 the grants under the Revised Code commenced, and amounted to £83,000 out of a total expenditure of £721,000. In 1866 the grants under the Revised Code had advanced to £402,000 out of a total expenditure of £649,000. Since 1852 the population of Great Britain has increased by two and a half millions. The total population is more than twenty-four and a half millions. It will be readily seen that the appliances for educating the young Britons are inadequate, that they have not increased in the ratio of the increase of population, and that Mr. Fawcett and his friends are quite right in agitating for a more efficient school system.

THE new Pasha of Jerusalem has interfered with the work of excavation carried on by the exploration committee. We are not surprised, though we hope they will be allowed soon to proceed with the work. If a party of Turkish engineers should begin to undermine the capitol at Washington, we fancy there would be some objection made. Besides, the Haram, around which they are digging and searching, is a Mohammedan holy place, second only to the inclosure of Mecca in sanctity. It is also a fortress, and military men are proverbially jealous about foreign encroachments on their works of defense.

IF we really believe that we are sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty, let us be careful never to demean ourselves so as to disgrace our family relations.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order. If this cannot be had, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

THE CHINA MISSION PROPOSITION, to wit: One dollar and your initials; children, twenty-five cents:

J. C. K.	$1 00	W. H. F.	$1 00
R. J. H.	1 00	Mrs. W. H. F.	1 00
G. G.	1 00	W. F. F.	25
Mrs. G. G.	1 00	G. E. F.	25
E. J. W.	2 00	Dr. N. A. W. D.	5 00
J. K. R.	1 00	R. B. M.	2 00
S. P. W.	2 50	F. F. C.	1 00
R. W. W.	2 50	M. E. C.	1 00
J. T. M.	2 00	E. A. C.	1 00
J. H. M.	2 00	J. M. P.	1 00
J. V. P.	1 00	H. O. P.	50
L. T. P., by catching mice at 50 cts. a dozen	25	W. W. P.	25
		Coaster	1 00
A. M. W.	1 00	Mrs. B. F. A.	1 00
C. H. W.	25	G. H. W.	25
S. H. C.	2 00	W. W.	25
Mrs. J. J. L.	1 00	Dr. J. J. L.	1 00
S. L. L.	25	E. R. L.	25
H. I. L.	25	L. K. L.	25
A. P.	1 00	W. H. M.	1 00
Three ladies of Shreveport	3 00	Mrs. M. S. and others	1 25
Mrs. E. R. R.	2 00	Rev. J. M. M.	2 00
C. W. C.	1 00	Col. J. B. S.	2 00
Col J. B. S.	1 00	C. L. C.	1 00
J. M. M.	2 00	Mrs E. B. R.	2 00
A. H.	1 50	J. M. G (De Kalk)	6 00
Mrs J. W. C.	1 00	Dr J. W. C.	1 00
H. C. M.	25	J. H. B.	1 00
J. H.	1 00	W. D. M.	25
From Rev. W. P. Powers, Havana, Alabama	12 70	R. B. N.	25
		Rev R. J. T, for self and S. G. T, England
Mrs M. T.	1 00	F. L. T.
Mrs P. A. C.	1 00	S. A. F. T (spec.)	2 50
J. O. S.	1 00	Alice H.	25
J. G. H.	1 00	R. E. Lee H.	25
E. H.	1 00	Various persons, by Rev R. D. N.	2 50
Sue H.	25	P. H.	1 00
Sallie H.	25	M. E. H.	1 00
Charlie H.	25
Ida H.	25

CITY MONEY.

Five dollars of city money are now required to pay for the ADVOCATE for one year.

THE RIGHT WAY—for a brother to do.—[Ed.]

MR. EDITOR: I send you a box of vegetables, comprising potatoes, onions, squashes, beets, carrots, peas, beans, etc. If each one of your friends within striking distance would do so you would be supplied with desirable articles for summer use. The only difficulty for me to contend with is transportation, as I have an abundance both for you and myself. When my subscription is due send my bill, inclosed in the paper. I do not want it stopped, and as scolding will not be of any benefit, I thought I would try a box of vegetables. May God's richest blessings attend you and yours, and his Spirit infuse new life and vigor in your administration for Christ's sake.

Your friend,
ADAM HAWTHORNE.

SPECIAL ORDER NO. 103.

We call attention to the Special Order No. 103, of Major General Buchanan, of this district, which appears in the columns of this week's ADVOCATE. It appoints judges, clerks, etc., to fill vacancies existing in the department of Texas.

General Conference of the M. E. Church at Chicago,

The principal item of the week's work was the admission, by a large majority, of the delegates from all the Mission Conferences as full members of the General Conference. Dr. Curry, of New York, spoke one and a half hours against their admission.

DESPAIR.

We occasionally meet with those who are in this condition, and the number of instances is probably greater than many suppose. They do not always tell their sorrow; there are few who can understand it, and concealment is the refuge of sensitive souls. Nothing is more difficult than for the well to sympathize with the sick, and it is only by the most delicate and thoughtful consideration that we are prepared and qualified to minister to the suffering. Religious despair is so far removed from indifference that a mind unacquainted with spiritual awakening has no conception of it whatever. Those who are resting in their own righteousness, and have a peace which is based upon self-deception, cannot comprehend that conviction of sin and danger which is unmixed with a ray of hope. Too often those of a sound and healthful faith find themselves perplexed and consciously incapable of understanding or affording help. This peculiar and gloomy isolation belongs to the case, almost of necessity. The despairing soul is driven back upon itself, and cut off from the aid and sympathy of others.

It is not difficult to locate this experience, as it evidently is associated with serious awakening and deep conviction of sin. Ordinarily, those pungent convictions are followed by true repentance, and the sinner presses on to the appointed means of deliverance. The Lamb of God, as seen by faith, takes away sin, and the alarming sense of guilt gives place to that peace with God which follows pardon. Sometimes, however, the soul lingers amidst these processes of religious concern and awful condemnation. The ground of justification and the condition of it are urged in vain. The promises and invitations are displayed without result. It is a continued state of bondage to fear; a lively and painful apprehension of the law, and a sense of danger which knows no relief.

There is a kind and degree of despair which is present in all genuine contrition. Self-dependence is swept away; the impossibility of creature merit is realized, and every hope out of Christ is taken from us. For a time, under the overwhelming revelations of guilt, there may be a total distrust of mercy. But generally it is a despair so modified as to shut the sinner in to the single ground of the atonement, and to incite to earnest effort to obtain deliverance. It is such a condition as admits and impels to faith, while everything else upon which we have leaned crumbles beneath us. That fearful condition of absolute hopelessness is different from this. It is a state of mind in which the deepest conviction of sin is present, along with the persuasion that there is nothing adequate in the mercy of God, or in the merits of Christ, to reach and save. "The uttermost" of the Saviour's ability does not reach me; the mercy of God, however affecting, does not embrace me. The promises have been canvassed, and they do not apply. The provisions of salvation have been examined, and they afford no relief.

In seeking for the causes of such a religious state, those exceptional cases which arise from mental alienation and derangement afford the solution in some instances. Cowper's sad history, and his darkness and utter despair are known to us, in connection with his gifted muse. In many the cause is to be traced to speculative difficulties, and to conclusions drawn from metaphysics, rather than the legitimate doctrines of the Bible. Sincere penitents do, no doubt, wrest certain Scriptures to their own destruction. The terrible thought intrudes that the sin against the Holy Ghost has been committed under such light and willfulness that "there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries." Passages that can have no application are thus arrayed against the broadest declarations of the divine goodness and compassion.

A peculiarity of this state of mind is, that there is something singular in the individual, which places him beyond the pale of salvation. The sufficiency of mercy for all the world besides may be allowed, and the victim of this delusion is the solitary exception. The chief of sinners have been saved, the murderers of Christ amongst others, but there is a shade of guilt here so much darker than any of these as to exclude all hope. Diabolical agency may be unmistakably recognized in the workings of the soul under conviction. It is a moral crisis, and the turning point for hell or heaven. To keep the soul in a state of slumber is the devil's purpose, but when once awakened, and the sinner's fears cannot be quieted, the success of the adversary depends upon persuading him that there is no salvation for him. Whether Satan has us in the snare of false security and absolute unconcern, or in that of unmitigated despair, his object is effectually accomplished. We are kept back from the Saviour, and are held by the power of darkness. Every step in the processes of salvation is a spiritual battle field, every inch is contested ground, and to yield to the persuasion that there is no hope is an unconditional surrender to this well-devised strategy of the evil one.

Deliverance is half effected when we become aware of the origin of the gloom which shuts out the mercy of God from our view. When we perceive in it, not the legitimate conclusions of the truth, but the devices of Satan, we are then prepared to throw off the dark and horrible spell which he has cast upon us. In this case, to know the enemy is to defeat him. What we had thought to be the doom of infinite justice, outraged beyond the scope of mercy, is after all the machination of the father of lies.

While laboring under this delusion that there is no salvation for them, men often suppose that such a confession only reflects upon themselves. They do not perceive how much their unbelief dishonors God, and how deeply it pours contempt upon the riches and glory of the gospel. The greatest sin of the despairing sinner is that he does despair. He comes nearer to something unpardonable in this than in anything else. No darker crime can be laid to our charge. We fly in the face of all those declarations which make salvation possible to the "ends of the earth," and which describes the Saviour's ability as being "to the uttermost."

Besides, it has its root in an utter and fundamental misconception of the grounds of mercy. These grounds exclude all creature merit; they are vitiated by the supposition of any. They further imply in us nothing but guilt. Gospel mercy has to do with this only—all guilt and no merit. This is the creature saved. Can any one, by reason of guilt, be beyond the reach of a mercy that deals only with the guilty? Our despair thus makes the plan of salvation a contradiction and an absurdity. The nature of some sins may place them beyond the reach of remission, but the degree of guilt is not the cause necessarily. Few people are converted on a dying bed, not because their sins are too many, but because they are in no condition to accept the gospel proffer. Whatever the sin against the Holy Ghost may be, the barrier to pardon may lie in something besides the turpitude of the sin itself; for instance, in that persistent resistance of his reproofs which makes the condition of forgiveness impossible. Whatever these sins are, they do not belong to the awakened and contrite heart. Those whose condition is most desperate are they who "are not troubled as other men," and who not unfrequently have "no bands in their death." Where we despair of ourselves there are no good grounds for it; where there should be well-founded apprehension, none usually exists.

Long and fruitless seeking reduces many to despair. How foolish the conclusion? Does God awaken that he may keep us always in the sharp pains and in the fierce struggles of conviction? Have we not all the time persisted in some fatal misconception of the ground of pardon? The real trouble has not been in any limit to mercy, nor in the magnitude of our sins, but in our failure to see that "the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." Have we in this long endeavor brought ourselves within the range of the promises, where we might be blessed? Christ has loved us while yet in our sins, and he is equally ready and able to wash us "from our sins in his own blood," and to make us "kings and priests unto God." *

"CONFIRMATION, OR THE LAYING ON OF HANDS."

A broad tract of three pages, entitled as above, came to us wrapped up in the expiring number of the Church Visitor. With it was another little piece of tactics in the shape of a piece of printed paper, about the size of six squares of an advertising column, on which this was "well displayed" in "small caps." and italics:

"To the Baptized: Christian, remember that thou art the child of God, and an heir of everlasting salvation: then must therefore follow the example of our Saviour Jesus Christ, etc. So live THAT THOU MAYEST EARLY RECEIVE CONFIRMATION and the Supper of our Lord."

This tract is an argument for "confirmation," in which that peculiar operation of the Protestant Episcopal church is officially set forth and maintained. The "laying on of hands," "confirmation" and "the gift of the Holy Ghost" are mixed in this little treatise as if they were all one and the same thing; and the impression is made upon the inexperienced and unread that in the usage of the apostolic times only apostles confirmed; whereas in only two instances in the Scriptures is it expressly said that any one was "confirmed," and in one of these Judas and Silas, who were not apostles, were the confirming party. In Acts xv: 22 and 23, it is recorded that "the apostles, elders and brethren" chose "Judas, surnamed Barsabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren," to carry letters to the church at Antioch. Upon their arrival they assembled the church, read the letters, "exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them"—Acts xv: 32. But this confirmation tract argues as follows:

"Several things, then, are thus brought to our notice: First, that upon receiving the word of God, believing and being baptized, the people of Samaria were also confirmed. They had the apostles' hands laid upon them, in order that they might receive the Holy Ghost; and secondly, that in order that this might be, it was done by those highest in authority in the ministry, and not by him who could exercise other holy functions, by preaching and baptizing, though restricted in the laying on of hands."

So then, according to this writer, the hands that "confirmed" could thereby give the Holy Ghost, and these hands must be the hands of those only who were "highest in authority in the ministry." The passage we have cited shows, however, that if in one place the apostles, Paul and Barnabas, (Acts xiv: 22) confirmed, yet in another (Acts xv: 32) the brethren, Judas and Silas, did the same thing. But in neither of those instances of confirmation is anything said about the giving or receiving of the Holy Ghost, or the laying on of hands. If the "laying on of hands" is a necessary part of confirmation, and the Holy Ghost accompanies that act, then "the brethren" can exercise this "holy function" as well as "those highest in authority," for the brethren confirmed.

This tract argues that because Philip preached in Samaria and wrought many miracles, and because afterward, when Peter and John came down, the Holy Ghost fell upon Samaria for the first time, that therefore no one less than an apostle can be the instrument for the diffusion of the Holy Spirit, and that bishops are apostles.

We let him state it in his own words:

"Plainly is it to be inferred, therefore, that the act of laying on hands, and praying for the gift of the Holy Ghost upon the converts, appertained to those in higher office than Philip; and hence, if practiced by any now in the same church, founded by its divine head, it should be by those who, having the oversight, may ratify and confirm. The laying on of hands for the strengthening of converts, according to the example now under consideration, does not come under the exercise of deacons, but under that of the successors of the apostles—those in the highest grades of the ministry, the bishops."

Here we have the same importance given to bishops—"successors of the apostles"—as in the case of confirmation; they only can lay on hands, they only can give the Holy Ghost. This is not sustained by the word of God. It is only necessary to cite the case of one in the Acts, who was not an apostle or "a successor," only a brother, who laid his hands upon a new convert, who thereupon received the Holy Ghost: "And there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias, * * and Ananias went his way and entered into the house; and putting his hands on him, said, Brother Saul; the Lord, even Jesus that appeared unto thee in the way, hath sent me that thou mightest receive thy sight and be filled with the Holy Ghost." By this Scripture then it is not plainly to be inferred that the act of laying on of hands and praying for the gift of the Holy Ghost upon the converts appertained to those in higher office than Philip." For Philip was a deacon, and higher in office than Ananias, who was only one of the brethren.

It occurs to us that the assumption, by any man, of being the only channel of the Holy Spirit is something exceedingly blasphemous in itself, and we cannot but warn our people against all such ecclesiastical pretenders. Quackery in medicine or in religion must not be believed because of the stoutness of its assertions, or the boldness of its front. Churchmen who know the least about experimental piety are prone to assume great official, ecclesiastical and functional importance, and offer quite indiscriminately to bestow spiritual gifts upon any young person or old, no matter how worldly, who will consent to be manipulated.

We know a high-minded Episcopal clergyman who ventures, armed with such a document as this three page tract, into the houses of Presbyterians, Methodists and Baptists. He unsheaths its mighty arguments and attempts to lead captive boys and young misses. With wonderful coolness he sets forth the exclusive authority which the right reverend bishop of the diocese has to bestow "the Holy Spirit upon them that ask him!" and attempts to unsettle and destroy any just reverence the young may have for the church in which their parents dedicated them by baptism to God. Our youth should be taught how to answer this reverend proselyter, and our members should detect and dismiss him as the Saviour did the adversary himself.

LETTER FROM BISHOP McTYEIRE.

NASHVILLE, May 13, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: I reached home on yesterday from Louisville, where the bishops' meeting was held, May 7-11. Bishops Andrew and Early were not present. Letters received from them stated their regrets and physical indisposition. Bishop Paine got as far as Nashville, but here his sickness, which has dated a month back, took such power that physicians thought it unadvisable for him to proceed further. He is here now. I saw him this morning, sufficiently improved, he thinks, to leave for home on Friday, taking in his way a district meeting at Pulaski. How much the presence and counsels of these senior bishops were desired, and their absence lamented, I need not say. Bishop Andrew started and got as far as Selma, from which point he wrote us.

I send you the Plan of Visitations which has been fixed upon for the year. The principle governing the formation of the Episcopal districts is somewhat new. Instead of geographical groupings, they (wherever it can be done) begin in the higher latitudes and work on down toward the coast. So each bishop can begin his work earlier, and the conference sessions in the same region are not pressed for time.

From this "outlook" the prospects of the church are hopeful, inspiring gratitude and a consecration to the Master's work.

Your's very truly,
H. N. McTYEIRE.

Plan of Episcopal Visitations, 1868:

FIRST DISTRICT.—Bishop McTyeire.—West Virginia Conference, at Clarksburg, West Virginia, September 16; Louisville, at Louisville, Kentucky, September 30; Tennessee, at Shelbyville, Tennessee, October 21; Memphis, at Paris, Tennessee, November 25; Montgomery, at Greenville, Alabama, December 9.

SECOND DISTRICT.—Bishop Pierce.—Kentucky Conference, at Frankfort, Kentucky, September 9; Illinois, at Canton, Illinois, September 23; Arkansas, at Jacksonport, Arkansas, November 4; Little Rock, at Warren, Arkansas, November 18; Mobile, at Meridian, Mississippi, December 2.

THIRD DISTRICT.—Bishop Kavanaugh.—Missouri Conference, at Weston, Missouri, September 9; St. Louis, at Jefferson City, Missouri, September 23; Mississippi, at Vicksburg, Mississippi, November 18; East Texas, at San Augustin, Texas, December 2; Louisiana, at New Iberia, Louisiana, December 16.

FOURTH DISTRICT.—Bishop Paine.—Holston Conference, at Knoxville, Tennessee, October 21; North Georgia, at Griffin, Georgia, December 2; South Georgia, at Albany, Georgia, December 16.

FIFTH DISTRICT.—Bishop Wightman.—Virginia Conference, at Charlottesville, Virginia, November 18; North Carolina, at Statesville, North Carolina, December 2; South Carolina, at Abbeville, South Carolina, December 16; Florida, at Jacksonville, Florida, January 13, 1869; Baltimore, at Baltimore, Maryland, March 4, 1869.

SIXTH DISTRICT.—Bishop Doggett.—Indian Mission Conference, at Boggy Depot, October 15; Trinity, (North-east Texas,) at Dallas, Texas, October 28; Northwest Texas, at Springfield, Texas, November 11; Texas, at Brenham, Texas, November 25; West Texas, at Corpus Christi, Texas, December 9.

SEVENTH DISTRICT.—Bishop Marvin.—Columbia Conference, at Roseburg, Oregon, September 2; Pacific, at Sacramento, California, October 7.

EIGHTH DISTRICT.—Tennessee Colored Conference, at Memphis, Tennessee, Bishop Paine; Georgia Colored Conference, at ——, Bishop Pierce; Mississippi Colored Conference, at ——, Bishop Kavanaugh.

Bishops Andrew and Early, on account of age and debility, are not assigned to any particular fields. They will travel at large and labor as they may be able.

MARTIAL LAW.

We have in the Greene county affair a specimen of the way Gen. Meade is governing Alabama, under the authority of the Congress Military Bill. Unless the citizens were really on the way to Tortugas one could not credit the published statements of this outrage upon the personal rights of free white men:

OUR PRISONERS.—Seven young gentlemen, from Greene county, Ala., were prisoners aboard the Lavaca, which touched at the wharf yesterday, on their way to Dry Tortugas. They were manacled and chained together, and guarded by sixteen bayonets. They were sentenced by a military court sitting at Selma to hard labor for one and two years. The heinous crime for which they were convicted, as we have understood, was that one of the young men struck a 'carpet-bagger' by the name of Hill—a miserable creature who is said to have been expelled from the Masonic fraternity and the Methodist ministry for stealing hogs from his neighbors. They were all young men of high respectability and refinement. To see these seven young Southern gentlemen standing on the deck of that steamer, chained like dogs, was well calculated to cause the blood to boil and seethe, and the heart to throb with emotions which we are compelled to conceal for fear that an expression of them might condemn us to a like punishment.—Pensacola Observer.

PERSONAL.

The religious element in the meeting was prominent, and work done where fruit will be gathered years to come. We were favored with the presence of Dr. L. Pierce, and occupying, by special request, the morning hour of four consecutive days, he preached with a spiritual power that left a deep impress on the hearts of the hearers, and with an energy and physical force that strikes one with wonder that Dr. Pierce, in his 84th year, has so much vital power left. His health is good; and he is on his way to southern Georgia on a tour of preaching.—Southern Christian Advocate.

DR. BORING, as we learn, has returned from Texas to Atlanta, Ga., where he was cordially received by his numerous friends. He returns to resume a professorship in the Atlanta Medical College.

IMPEACHMENT.

The news from this great trial is immensely satisfactory to all down this way. The Constitution has again escaped the peril of the seas, as a frigate which, driven by fierce winds full upon a rock in mid-ocean, discovers the danger, and ports the helm just in time to graze destruction, and is in a moment out again in deep water. Great battles are most always lost and won by just such seemingly small advantages. When both sides have strained every nerve, the might of the whole is involved in being able to bring up a slight reserve. The country has not passed out of the hands of Chase, Fessenden, Johnson, Seward, etc., into the hands of Stevens, Sumner, Butler and Bingham; for once the more violent have been checked. We are disposed to argue and hope for the best from this turn in the tide of Radicalism.

Many pious bodies of Northern ecclesiastics, of all shades and names, will have to swallow those exceeding patriotic resolutions by which, like the son of Bosor, they have attempted "to curse whom God hath not cursed." The following resolutions, conceived before the President was acquitted, were presented at the General Conference of the M. E. Church North, assembled at Chicago. The last resolution alone passed; and if the Conference prayed earnestly at the appointed time—and who can doubt it?—we may believe that it had no little to do in securing the acquittal of Mr. Johnson! So much for praying the right way, when you intend to pray the wrong.

IMPEACHMENT OF THE PRESIDENT.

Messrs. Gilbert Haven, Newman and Davis offered the following:

WHEREAS, The failure of the impeachment of the President will subject the greatest of our Generals, and all under his authority, to the power of an infuriated Executive, who has opposed every law that has been made to heal the nation on the only true and permanent basis of equal rights to loyal men; and

WHEREAS, His release will also reanimate the dying embers of the rebellion throughout all the South, sacrifice the lives of many of our fellow-citizens, and thus cast all that region into terror, distress and danger; therefore,

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, now in session, solemnly and earnestly invokes upon the Senate of the United States the blessing of Almighty God, that they may be guided in the great responsibility now devolving upon them, that tyrannical usurpation may be rebuked, the authority of the law may be maintained against the most dangerous hostility of an Executive who avers his responsibility to its obligation, and that the peace and safety of our fellow-citizens in all the South may be secured.

Resolved, That we hereby assign the hour of 9 to 10 o'clock, on Friday forenoon next, to be devoted to prayer to our God and Saviour that He may endow our Senators with wisdom, and guide them in the duty they are soon to discharge, so that His righteousness and peace may through them, in our beloved land, spring forth before all nations.

THE PROTESTANT CHURCHMAN.

This is a religious family paper, devoted to the advocacy of evangelical truth against ritualism, rationalism and Romanism in the Protestant Episcopal church; the defence of the 'liberty of preaching' and the cultivation of fraternal relations with evangelical churches. The editors are assisted by a large corps of clerical and lay contributors. Published every Thursday at 633 Broadway, New York. Terms, $4 per annum.

The spirit and orthodoxy of this able organ of the Protestant Episcopal church is defined in the following extract from one of its recent editorials:

We remind the A. C. U. that we live in the nineteenth century, not in the middle ages. Crushed we cannot be, and silenced we will not be. No 'resolution' or 'memorials' or 'moot-courts' can change our convictions—and hundreds of clergymen share them with us—that 'Where Christ is, there is the church,' and that ministerial authority and ministerial power are of Christ, by the Holy Spirit, whether in this or that branch of the Christian church.

To ignore the labors of holy men of other churches, because they never felt the touch of the hands of a diocesan bishop, is to deny the witness of the Lord who has called them to his work, and who gives the harvest to their sowing. It is to brand as irregular the work of the Holy Spirit, in other folds than ours, and to do despite to the spirit of grace.

Neither by volition nor by the compulsion of future canons will we share in such guilt. It is our purpose to do in the future as we have done in the past. We shall recognize the Christianity, acknowledge the ministry, and openly fraternize with every church that, by its labors, its doctrine, and its fruits, gives evidence that 'Jehovah Nissi' is its battle flag, and 'Jehovah Shammah' its source of power.

If excision comes, we are ready to face it, and the world will know where the charge of schism lies; but these principles of the Protestant Episcopal church—taught in her articles, exemplified in the first centuries of her history, and derived from the word of God—we shall maintain in the Protestant Episcopal church, until that church refuses to be in liturgy as in articles, Protestant. When that time arrives it will be our church no longer, for Episcopacy without Protestantism is Antichrist.

LETTER FROM OPELOUSAS.

OPELOUSAS, Louisiana, May 10, 1868.

A THREE DAYS' MEETING.—THE CHURCH IN OPELOUSAS, ITS PARSONAGE, ITS ORGAN.—THE CROPS, THE PRAIRIES, THE COUNTRY—AN IMMIGRATION SOCIETY.

DEAR ADVOCATE: Last week we closed a three days' meeting at this place, inclusive of a district and a quarterly conference. Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, our presiding elder, was with us in labors abundant and effective. The district meeting was well attended. All the stations and circuits and missions in the Opelousas district were represented, except the Franklin and Pattersonville work. The deliberations of the meeting were profitable, and were calculated to promote among the laity a stronger interest in the cause of Methodism.

Our church in Opelousas is gradually increasing in strength. We have had twenty accessions, so far, during the year. The class meetings and prayer meetings have a much better attendance than last year, though we are yet far short of our duties in this respect. The parsonage has just been thoroughly repaired, and what with paint and whitewash, is now one of the most cheerful looking as well as one of the most comfortable dwellings in town. Several of the brethren assisted in the work with their own skillful hands. Their praise should be in all the churches. We are about placing a cabinet organ in our church. It is already sent for. You must not suppose from this we are tending to the exclusive choir system of singing. Of that modern abomination we have a wholesome dislike. Our purpose is to make the organ instrumental in developing among us that glory of old-fashioned Methodist worship—congregational singing. To what extent we may succeed you shall hear at a future time.

The corn and sugar crops in this section of country are looking unusually fine; so far the season has been all that the planter could desire. One good brother whom I visited yesterday told me that the larger portion of his corn would be "laid by" in two weeks. There has not been a great deal of cotton planted here this spring—indeed some of our largest land owners have not planted a single seed. And it is fortunate, for already the consuming caterpillar has made its appearance in several cotton fields around. Some persons are plowing up the cotton, and planting corn instead; others are crossing the cotton with corn.

Our prairies have a magnificent appearance this season of the year. Nowhere under the sun can one behold the vernal splendors of the spring in greater glory than in this Opelousas country. The luxuriance of vegetation which nature spreads out over these beautiful plains cannot be surpassed anywhere. Men who have spent many years planting in other States of the Union pronounce this the finest farming and stock raising country they ever saw; of the soil they say that it is at least the easiest to cultivate, if not the most fertile, through which they ever ran a plow. Talk of Honduras and Brazil! There is a greater than either in this parish of St. Landry.

An immigration society has been recently organized by the prominent citizens of the parish, to make known to the world the great resources of this section of country, and to offer substantial inducements to worthy immigrants. The corresponding secretary of this society is Mr. Thomas Mullett, who takes pleasure in furnishing those who inquire of him reliable information respecting the price and quality and locality of such lands as are for sale in the parish. His post office is: Opelousas, La. J. W.

"LETTERS OF COMMENDATION."

To those whom it may concern we beg leave to call attention to the following. This "Dr. N." came here with letters from responsible ministers. Very good men do sometimes indorse very bad ones, because they lack courage to refuse a favor:

FORTUNE TELLING.—An individual known as Doctor Nicholson was arraigned recently before Recorder Gastinel, charged by Etta Herman with larceny. According to Etta's testimony the accused came to her domicil, No. 202 St. Louis street, and proposed to tell her fortune. He insisted on being left alone in the room, so Etta and a female friend of her's retired, leaving the doctor monarch of all he surveyed. He surveyed a gold watch, valued at $150, hanging on the wall. When Etta returned the doctor was running away, and so was the watch. Etta and her friend gave chase, and the doctor is supposed to have thrown the watch into a vacant lot before he was captured at the corner of Canal and Derbigny streets. The case was sent before the Criminal Court.

SIR ROBERT NAPIER, the victorious British commander, is not related to Lord Napier, formerly embassador at Washington and now governor of Madras; nor to Sir Charles James Napier, noted for his connection with the Indian administration; nor to Sir William Napier, the historian of the Peninsular war; nor to Admiral—Sir Charles—Napier, who took Acre in 1840 and failed before Cronstadt in 1855; nor to Sir George Napier, formerly governor of Cape Colony; nor to Joseph Napier, who was Lord Chancellor of Ireland in 1858-9; nor to John Napier, Baron of Murchiston, whose invention of logarithms was first published in Edinburgh in 1593. He is simply a native of Ceylon, who entered the British army at the age af sixteen, and has been connected with the Indian service upward of forty years. He has literally fought his way to his rank of General, and exhibits as marks of his prowess the badges of Knights of the Bath and of the Star of India.

EVERY person is blessed with an "inward light" to the exact extent that he has the word of God dwelling within; and not a single ray besides.

HE that repents every day for the sins of every day, when he comes to die will have the sins of but one day to repent of. Even reckoning make long friends.

MARRIED.

On the 30th ult., by Rev. John Wilkinson, at the Methodist church, Opelousas, Mr. JAMES H. DAILEY to Miss GEORGIA M. SMITH, both of St. Landry parish.

OBITUARIES.

DEATH OF BELA ELLIOTT JONES.

CENTRAL INSTITUTE, Ala., May 5, 1868.

My dear little Bela is gone to join his mother. She prayed that he might soon join her in the bright home of Jesus, before she left him on the 1st of December last.

He remained to cheer our hearts and to remind us of her most excellent qualities until the 27th of April last, being only about nineteen months old. That fatal consumptive scrofula did for him what it did for her only five months before.

Is it sinful to weep tears of grief when we remember the loveliness and attraction of that perfect form?—when we miss those bright sparkling eyes that so recently spoke in such innocent language of love to the inmost soul? Or shall we check the murmuring sighs that rise when we hear no more that sweet voice, which with joy echoed through the halls, and mingled its soft melodies with the music of the birds among the flowers? No, we cannot, for he was a great lover of flowers, birds and music, and has gone before to join with his mother in the choir above.

Yes, our dear little Bela sleeps by the side of his sainted mother in the silent city near Central Institute, Elmore co., Alabama, and I am left to grapple with stern life alone.

J. P. JONES.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

MOBILE DISTRICT.

A District Meeting and a Sunday School Convention for this district will be held in the St. Francis street Methodist church, Mobile, commencing on Wednesday, the 17th day of June, at which the preachers and official members are requested to be present. Superintendents of Sunday schools are especially urged to be in attendance, with full statistics of their respective schools, and such other information on the subject as they may have at hand. Bishop Andrew, and perhaps Bishop Wightman, may be present.

Members, on their arrival, will call at Dr. Neely's office, in the St. Francis street church, and learn their homes.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Camden District, Montgomery Conference, will meet at Pineville, July 10th.

The official members will please be in attendance, prepared to make their reports at the first meeting.

ANSON WEST, P. E.

N. Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

German churches, Saraparue st.	April 19
German Quarterly Conference, at Dryades street	17
N. Orleans circuit, at Gretna	26
Quarterly Conference for do	—
Baton Rouge	May 2, 3
Moreau street	10
Thibodeaux, at Napoleonville	17
Felicity street	24
Carondelet street	31
Jefferson City	June 7
Plaquemine	14

Lay delegates will be nominated at these Conferences.

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

Mobile District — Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul's	Apr. 11, 12
Whistler	18, 19
Cottage Hill Ct., at Haynieville	25, 26
Mobile, Franklin street	May 3
Mobile, St. Francis street	10
Eastern Shore, at Donnelly's	16, 17
Citronelle, at Mauvilla	23, 24
Pascagoula, at Antioch	30, 31
Bay Shore, at Village	June 6, 7
Ocean Springs Ct., at Ocean Springs	13, 14

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

Lafayette Dist.—Montgomery Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Marble Valley Ct., at Unity	Mar. 28, 29
Chandler Spring circuit, at Chandler's Spring	Apr. 11, 12
Arbacoochee circuit, at Chulafinnee	18, 19
Dadeville Ct., at Camp Hill	25, 26
Lineville circuit, at Copper Mines	May 2, 3
Montevallo circuit, at Camp Branch	9, 10
Montevallo and Isabella mission	16, 17
Lafayette circuit, at Sandy Ridge	23, 24
Fredonia circuit and Wedowee mission, at Fredonia	30, 31
Pinkneyville circuit, at Flint Hill	June 6, 7

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Summerfield	Mar. 21, 22
Perryville	28, 29
Randolph and Brimfield	Apr. 4, 5
Tuscaloosa	11, 12
Havanna	18, 19
Green	25, 26
Eutaw	May 2, 3
Forkland	9, 10
Greensboro and Newberne	16, 17
Brush Creek	23, 24
Marion	30, 31

The meeting of District Stewards will be held at Greensboro, May 16th.

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

Natchez Dist. — Mississippi Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Clinton circuit, at Chapman's S. H.	Mar. 21, 22
Jackson circuit, at Salem	28, 29
Woodville	Apr. 4, 5
Percy's Creek circuit, at Laurel Hill	11, 12
Amite circuit, at Ebenezer	18, 19
Liberty circuit, at Salem	25, 26
St. Helena circuit, at Day's	May 2, 3
East Baton Rouge circuit, at Black Water	9, 10
Wilkinson circuit	16, 17
Kingston circuit	23, 24
Natchez	30, 31

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi and Floyd circuit	May 2, 3
Winsborough circuit	9, 10
Ion circuit, at New Salem	23, 24
Jefferson circuit	30, 31
Bastrop circuit	June 6, 7
Bastrop station	13, 14
Waterproof and St. Joseph, at Waterproof	20, 21

W. G. MCGAUGHEY, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Manny Mission, at Ft. Jessup	Mar. 21, 22
Keachie, at Belle Bower	28, 29
Mansfield, at Friendship	April 4, 5
Greenwood, at Greenwood	18, 19
Shreveport	25, 26
Anacoco, at Elizabeth Chap'l	May 16, 17
Pleasant Hill, at Beulah	23, 24
Springville, at Springville	30, 31

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT,
NEW ORLEANS, La., May 12, 1868.

Special Orders No. 103.

1. Upon the recommendation of his excellency, Governor Pease, approved by Brevet Major General J. J. Reynolds, commanding District of Texas, the following appointments are hereby made to fill existing vacancies in the State of Texas:

Wharton County—J. A. Hamilton, to be Assessor and Collector of Taxes; J. P. Morton, to be County Commissioner.

San Saba County—Wiley J. House, to be Assessor and Collector of Taxes.

Walker County—John A. Gulah, to be Clerk of the District Court; J. Courlade, to be Clerk of the County Court.

Jack County—Jas. W. Robbins, to be County Judge, vice John W. Sellers, resigned.

Collin County—J. W. Thomas, to be Justice of the Peace for Precinct No. 1; J. R. Parker, to be Constable for Precinct No. 1.

Brown County—James M. Johnson, to be Sheriff, vice G. Lee, resigned; Thomas H. Keese, to be Clerk of the District Court, vice Daniel Clark, resigned; David McCalister, to be Clerk of the County Court; James Hudson, to be County Commissioner, vice David Baugh, deceased; Washington Chandler, to be Constable for Precinct No. 1; R. M. Vaughn, to be Constable for Precinct No. 2; David H. Mosley, to be Coroner.

Robertson County—D. P. Wheelock, to be Justice of the Peace for Precinct No. 2.

Brazos County—W. S. South, to be Justice of the Peace for Precinct No. 1.

Uvalde County—George W. Brown, to be Sheriff.

Appointees will transmit to these Headquarters a copy of the required oath, upon acceptance of their appointments.

2. First Lieutenant John N. Cee, Regimental Quartermaster, Twentieth Infantry, in addition to his other duties, will relieve Captain William Fletcher, Twentieth Infantry, from duty in the Quartermaster's Department, in connection with cemeterial operations, at Baton Rouge and Port Hudson, La. Captain Fletcher will assume command of his company.

By command of Brevet Major General R. C. BUCHANAN.

THOS. H. NEILL,
Major, 20th Inf., Br. Brig. Gen., U. S. A.,
Acting Assistant Adj. General.

Official:
NATHANIEL BURBANK,
Sec. Lieut., 37th Inf., Br. F. Lt., U. S. A.,
may23 1m Acting Assistant Adj. General.

WANTED—AGENTS.—$200 PER month the year round, or a certainty of $500 to $1,000 per month to those having a little capital. We guaranty the above monthly salary to good active agents at their own homes. Every agent, farmer, gardener, planter and fruit grower, North and South, should send at once for particulars. Please call on or address
J. AHEARN & CO.,
may10 4t 63 Second St., Baltimore, Md.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR SARATOGA WATERS.

COOLING, REFRESHING AND PLEASANT!
CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.

In 6 oz bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick headache, sour or sick stomach, and all febrile cases. For sale by BARNES, WARD & CO., New Orleans, and by most druggists. Prepared by
ARTHUR ROGERS,
may16 3m 193 Spring street, New York.

WANTED! WANTED!—ONE OR two active Agents, of either sex, in every town and village, for the largest One Dollar Pawnbrokers' Sale in the country. Send for circulars. S. C. THOMPSON & CO.,
may2 4tr 30 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's Domestic Family Physician describes all diseases and their remedies. Sent by mail free. Address
DR. S. S. FITCH,
may2 7mr 714 Broadway, New York.

AGENTS WANTED everywhere, to sell John S. C. Abbott's Life of General Grant. New work. "People's Edition."—Ready for subscribers. Price suited to the times. Address
WHITE, CORBIN, BOUVE & CO.,
may2 4tr Cincinnati, Ohio.

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by HORT. FISHER, Agent,
may2 1y No. 213 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile,	$1 50	$1 00
Work of Christ, Marvin,	65	75
Ecce Ecclesia,	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson,	1 25	1 50
Lee and his Generals, half calf,	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles,	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals,	2 60	2 40

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.
ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street.

$250 PER MONTH GUARANteed to agents everywhere selling our Patent Everlasting Metallic Clothes Lines. Write for circulars to the American Wire Company, 162 Broadway, New York, or 16 Dearborn street, Chicago, Illinois. apr18 1m

FOR SALE.

A T TYELL RANCH, ON ONION Creek, Hays county, twenty miles from San Marcos, 200 head of HORSE STOCK, well improved and under good control. To be sold on the 1st of June, 1868. Ranch for sale also.

The stock will be sold in the town of San Marcos.

Terms—Currency, 15 or 20 per cent. down, the balance on a credit of six months, with approved security. R. M. CALDWELL, april1 6t Trustee.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St., Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world, the only true and perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st., New York. mar7 1yr

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely.—The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Your's, very truly,
SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO', Mass., June 9, '64.

MESSRS. BURNETT & CO.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than former y. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair. With respect,
WM. S. EDDY.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.
For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may2 3mr

BOOK AGENTS WANTED

TO SOLICIT ORDERS FOR DR. William Smith's Dictionary of the Bible. The only edition published in America condensed by Dr. Smith's own hand. In one large octavo volume, illustrated with over 125 steel and wood engravings.

Agents and subscribers, see that you get the genuine edition by Dr. Smith, and do not be imposed upon by juvenile editions nor imperfect reprints.

The Springfield Republican says this edition, published by Messrs. Burr & Co., is the genuine thing.

The Congregationalist says, whoever wishes to get, in the cheapest form, the best Dictionary of the Bible, should buy this.

We employ no General Agents, and offer extra inducements to Agents dealing with us. For descriptive circulars, with full particulars and terms, address
W. B. BURR & CO.,
may2 4tr Publishers, Hartford, Conn.

DOTY'S WASHING MACHINE and the Universal Clothes Wringer, improved with Rowell's New Double Gear and the Patent Stop.

Will save half the labor and time of washing, and pay for themselves every year by saving clothes.

Canvassers and dealers supplied everywhere.
R. C. BROWNING,
General Agent,
may2 4tr 32 Cortland St., New York.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOYED.—Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents; twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANG, may2 4tr 91 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.

STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address
A. J. FULLAM,
may2 4tr Springfield, Vermont.

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips, will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being extensively used on children's first-class shoes. Sold everywhere.
may2 8tr

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT for Families.—Every family should have a case of Homœopathic medicine. Its simple directions and inviting sugar Pills are so indispensable for children, and so frequently meet the wants of those of larger growth, as to be a necessity. Sickness prevented, health and money saved, and that these simple remedies do arrest disease and restore health is incontestable. No family having once enjoyed their benefits would be without them. Humphrey's Homœopathic Specifics are prepared expressly to meet the wants of families. They are simple, convenient, safe and reliable, and their value has been confirmed by an experience of many years. A full case of thirty-five large vials and Book of Directions, with Specifics for every disease occurring in domestic practice, is sent to any address, by express, free of charge, on receipt of Ten Dollars. Address Humphrey's Specific Homœopathic Medicine Co., 562 Broadway, New York. Send for our Almanac. apr4 3mr

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge.

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs, of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash, or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly installments. Second-hand Instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.
apr4 1yr HORACE WATERS & CO.

FARM AND GARDEN.

THE JERUSALEM ARTICHOKE.

Having cultivated the Jerusalem artichoke (Topinambour, in German) with advantage during a number of years in the cold climate of Northern Pennsylvania, in the top of the Alleghany mountains, I am enabled to complete the report of your correspondent from Rome, Ga., in the number for March. The artichokes must be cultivated on a field by themselves, out of the regular rotation of crops, because they are difficult to exterminate; they may remain, however, of the same field six number of years, if they are only manured every second or third year. Although they give a good return on poor soils, they will pay better the more manure they get. I harvested, upon an average, half the number of bushels more than I did of potatoes on equally manured and cultivated fields. They had the advantage of not being touched by the rot, while at the same time the third part of the potatoes were rotten. The soil was a sandy clay, containing no lime, but considerable iron—a soil which may be classified as third rate. My method of cultivation was as follows: I plowed the field in the fall, cross-plowed in the spring as soon as the ground would admit, which generally did not occur there before the latter part of April, harrowed, and then with a one-horse plow made furrows 4 inches deep and 3 feet apart. I laid the artichokes about 20 inches apart in the furrows, and covered them with the plow. I planted once in the fall, but found the soil too much settled in the spring; therefore I prefer planting at the latter time. About a week or a fortnight after planting (according to the weather) I went over the field with a light harrow, to loosen the soil and kill the young weeds. During the summer I went through with the cultivator three times. In the first week of October the stalks were cut with a sickle and put in shocks; in the third year a cradle may be used to advantage, where they are dense and the stalks not too stout; the leaves turn black while drying. Lacking room in my barn, I left the stalks standing in the field, and hauled them in whenever they were needed for food; if they are put together in large shocks, when dry and topped well, they may be left in the field a long time without spoiling. I fed the stalks without cutting them up, and if not given in too large quantities at once to the cattle they would not leave a particle of them. Whenever they had the choice they preferred them to corn stalks, although the latter were cut before the frost killed them. The artichokes may be dug any time during the fall or winter, but as the frost does not spoil them in the ground, I left them always in until spring, because, being fresh and juicy, at that time they are of great value as food for new milch cows, causing them to give a good supply of very rich milk. Horses, old and young cattle, sheep and swine, all devour them with avidity; horses fed with them need but little oats. As soon as the ground was sufficiently dry in the spring I commenced plowing them out; they were picked up clean; some time afterward, before they commenced growing too much, harrowed once or twice and picked up again, and yet there were always enough left in for seed. In the second year the cultivation in rows must generally cease; the dense growth keeps the weeds down pretty well. In the third year and afterward they frequently grow so dense that large quantities of feed can be pulled out during the early part of summer. After the third year, when the knolls are plowed out, the soil should be manured heavily; the more frequently this is done afterward the better; wood ashes have a good effect. I consider the artichokes as nutritious as the potatoes; they contain but little starch, but in place of that more saccharine matter than even the sugar beet. I like to eat them raw, but do not care for them boiled: tastes differ, however. Let me shortly recapitulate the good qualities of the artichoke: 1. They grow in all dry soils. 2. All kinds of cattle devour them eagerly. 3. They are not subject to the rot. 4. The frost does not spoil them; therefore they cause no expense, like potatoes and turnips, to keep them during the winter. 5. They need not be planted anew every year, and require but little culture after the first year. 6. The stalks are consumed by horses, sheep and cattle; when dry they may be used as fuel, particularly for heating baking ovens; when cut up they give good bedding for swine, as the pith in them will retain a good deal of urine.

I know of no plant raised for the purpose of food for cattle which gives so much net profit as the artichoke, and I think every one having cattle to feed ought to have at least one acre planted with them as soon as I get my new farm here cleared. I shall devote several acres to the cultivation of artichokes.—American Agriculturist.

WHY DON'T WE MANURE?

The old-fashioned practice of composting all the barnyard, the sods, and the stables is attended with much labor, and is often imperfectly done, or neglected altogether from want of conviction of its utility. There are the same materials before and after the heaping, the farmer reasons; why will they not benefit the land as much in the one condition as in the other? The question is fairly put, and demands an answer. There are not necessarily the same materials in a compost heap before and after fermentation. If the contents of a yard were swamp-muck, peat, surface loam, various kinds of straw, sea-weed, kelp, and the manure of horses, sheep and cattle, and if to these was added fresh air, manure or night soil, or a few bushels of lime or ashes, the whole mass would be thrown into fermentation, and new chemical combinations would take place, and the new compounds would be more immediately available for plant food. Just how much the mass would be benefited by these new combinations we may not be able to state, but no intelligent farmer has any doubt of the higher value of fermented compost for ordinary farm purposes. Another great advantage from his work is the increased fineness of the manure. Stable manure is often carried out and spread in great frozen or dried lumps, and in this condition is plowed into the ground. It doubtless benefits the soil in this condition, but the roots of plants are a long time in getting at their food. We think it pays to fork over a manure heap twice, and give it the full benefit of a second fermentation. The hay and straw are all broken down by this process, and all the materials of the mass are thoroughly mixed. Much of the immediate effect of manure depends upon its fineness. The time usually allowed for composting is quite too short. The greatly increased effect of well rotted manure has led some to wish for a whole year to complete the process. This is one of the points that we should like to see accurately determined on an experimental farm. The liquefying of all the yard manures is doubtless better than any comminution that we can attain by rotting, but the necessary apparatus for doing this, and applying it economically to the fields, requires more capital than most farmers have to invest. Thorough composting is within the means of all, and would always pay.—American Agriculturist.

OLIVE CULTURE.—"G. C. H." writes: "I have read what you say about 'The Olive and its Culture,' and having resided many years in Syria, where the olive grows luxuriantly and lives to a great age, I may be allowed to add my mite to your statement. From all I can learn the climate of Syria approaches nearer to that of California than to any other part of the United States. The soil in which it flourishes best is a chalky marl or cracked strata of limestone. It seems to delight in penetrating its roots into the clefts of the rock and crevices of flinty marl. If the mould is so deep as not to allow its roots to reach the rock beneath, it is said to suffer in consequence, and the berries become small and juiceless. In places where the soil is sandy a good supply of the chalky marl is applied to the trees; no manure is necessary when the tree can have this marl, which seems to be its natural soil. The tree requires but very little labor or care of any kind; it hardly yields a crop of any consequence until it is fifteen years old. It bears an abundant crop generally every other year. In Syria it does not flourish more than 5,000 feet above the sea, and in the interior not so high. It does not flourish in Egypt, which is warmer than Syria; probably because the soil is not suitable."—American Agriculturist.

PACKING AND KEEPING EGGS.—Two ladies recommend the following: "One pint of salt, one pint of slaked lime, to one pailful of water." The eggs are placed in the vessel containing this and kept covered with the water. The vessel should also be kept closely covered. "Mrs. M. J. B." says she found them good at the end of a year. There are several patent processes for preserving eggs, the proprietors of which have sent us circulars with certificates of their practicability attached. As we know nothing of any of these processes beyond what is claimed by the patentees, we are not yet in a position to advise our readers to invest in these patents.—American Agriculturist.

WHOEVER loves not this beautiful earth must hate himself a good deal, and the rest of the human family as much more.

OPENS AND POULTRY.—Scarcely too much can be said in praise of plants of this kind. They seem to be a preventive and remedy for various diseases to which domestic fowls are liable. Having frequently tested of their virtues, we can speak understandingly. For gapes and inflammation of the throat, eyes and head, onions are almost a specific. We would therefore recommend giving them, and especially young chickens, as many as they will eat as often as twice or three times a week. They should be finely chopped. A small addition of corn meal is an improvement.—Genesee Farmer.

SOFT SOAP AS A FRUIT TREE.—M. J. Case, an old friend of the Weekly Press, says: "Please tell your patrons to whitewash fruit trees with 'soft soap' instead of lime, and they will find it to their advantage. Lime is good in theory—but the soap much more so in practice. Fruit growers, try it."

THE manager of the Ramnad Seminary, in Madura India, in wealth and intelligence perhaps the foremost native gentleman of the district, has been reading the Bible, and has not hesitated to exhibit much interest in the Christian religion, though by no means giving his adhesion to it. He is understood to believe in only one God, and to renounce and denounce idolatry; but, while he admits Jesus Christ to have been a wonderful teacher, first of all the Gurus whom the world has known, he recently challenged the Christians of Madura to a public discussion of the doctrine of his divinity. The challenge was accepted, and the Christians, considering the circumstances, sustained their part well. But the most noticeable result was that all Madura was put in a ferment to know what was going on; and several hundred intelligent natives, many of them Brahmins, had an opportunity to hear something of the Gospel. I learn, also, that since that time the Madura colporteur has found a considerably increased sale of the Scriptures.

THE Baptist Missionary Union was in debt one year ago to the amount of $7,363. That debt has increased, till it now amounts to $30,136. There is a Baptist population in this country of 1,095,000. Three cents apiece would cancel the debt. There are 13,000 churches. A collection of $2.30 each would relieve the association. Or, were the Baptist population of New England and New York to tax themselves for this purpose to the amount of seventeen cents apiece, or the 1,209 churches of those States to raise a special contribution of $17 each for the same purpose, on the first Sabbath in May next, the debt could be wiped out. Where is the church that will not do that? Wherever we have a Baptist reader we call on him to see that his church does its share and more, if it is not too stingy, in showing their gratitude to God, who has entrusted to that church one of the most remarkable and successful missions in the world.

BEHAVIOR IN COMPANY.—On the subject of behavior in company Leigh Richmond gives the following excellent advice to his daughters:

"Be cheerful, but not gigglers. Be serious, but not dull. Be communicative, but not forward. Be kind, but not servile. Beware of silly, thoughtless speeches; although you may forget them, others will not. Remember God's eye is in every face, and his ear in every company. Beware of levity and familiarity with young men; a modest reserve, without affection, is the only safe path. Court and encourage serious conversation with those who are truly serious and conversable; do not go into valuable company without endeavoring to improve by the intercourse permitted to you. Nothing is more unbecoming, when one part of a company is engaged in profitable conversation, than that another part should be trifling, giggling, and talking comparative nonsense to each other."

ENGAGING MANNERS.—There are a thousand pretty, engaging little ways, which every person may put on without running the risk of being deemed affected or foppish. The sweet smile, the cordial bow, the earnest movement in addressing a friend, the inquiring glance, the graceful attention which is so captivating when united with self possession—these will insure us the good regards of even a churl. Above all, there is a certain softness of manner which should be cultivated, and which, in either man or woman, adds a charm that almost entirely compensates for lack of beauty, and inestimably enhances the latter, if it does exist.

A MODERN philosopher, having in mind the motion of the earth on its axis at seventeen miles a second, says that if you lift your hat in the street to bow to a friend, you go seventeen miles bare-headed without taking cold.

FESTINA LENTE.

This golden maxim, 'Make haste slowly,' was adopted by the great poet Goethe, as a fundamental law of life, to lie at the basis of every effort at self-improvement. We should be glad if there could be some means to secure its adoption by every musical student in the land, from the least to the greatest. The prevalence of a rule exactly the opposite of this, or, at least, the practical results of a determination to get through with everything as rapidly as possible, is the great bane of this country in every respect, but in nothing more truly so than in all branches of musical study. There is a universal tendency to disregard the grand orthographic truth upon which this maxim is based, viz.: that the law of improvement must ever be a law of growth. Perhaps at first sight this statement may not seem a very strong one, but the thoughtful reader will soon perceive that it is the strongest that can possibly be made, and that it covers the whole ground as to the right methods of study.

If improvement is go with the laws of growth must be considered whenever improvement is sought to be secured. In practicing upon the piano-forte, for instance, not one iota of progress can be made beyond that which is accomplished by the natural development of the muscles. This ought to be a needless statement for it is simply a self-evident truth, yet it is doubtful whether there is one piano-forte student among a hundred who appreciates the fact or makes a proper application of it in his method of practicing. This is almost the sole reason why we see such insufficient results from the truly immense amount of time that is spent in the study of that instrument in the United States. Here is the word of command in process. The student has a certain exercise or piece to practice. Being anxious to make as rapid progress, i. e., to hasten his growth, he takes the movement faster than the present training of his muscles will properly allow, and the inevitable consequence is that he plays the piece in an uneven, jumbling manner, and makes various mistakes. He plays it again and repeats precisely the same process. Perhaps he is very zealous and practices three, four or six hours a day, but always upon the same, false basis, and utterly unaware of the sad truth that the time he spends at the instrument is for the confirmation of his faults and errors rather than for the gaining of any genuine improvement. After some months have elapsed (possibly a year or two) he begins to wonder at his lack of progress, and perhaps gives up his efforts in disgust.

Now imagine a fair trial of the right method. Let the principle of growth be kept constantly in mind. Let the student say to himself: "I know that the muscles I use in playing are now only capable of a certain degree of action. I know that the process of training and strengthening must be a very gradual one, and I will not allow myself to be hurried into making any motion of the fingers in which I am not conscious of having perfect control of them. Whatever I practice shall be played no faster than can be done with entire correctness throughout. If I find myself making mistakes, I will begin again with a slower movement in order that my muscles may undergo a constant training process by the easy and natural manner in which they are used." Any one who has sense enough to adopt such a plan as this, and determination enough to carry it out, will be surprised not only by the reality of his progress, but also by its rapidity. But this is exactly what is promised by the motto he has adopted. It is not 'Be slow,' but, in effect, 'Be slow enough, and you will surely make haste.'—N. Y. Musical Gazette.

A NEW ZEALAND Acclimatization Society has introduced successfully into that island a large number of starlings, thrushes, blackbirds, chaffinches, linnets, larks, goldfinches, and other birds. The robins all died on the long voyage. There are not a few birds that might be profitably introduced into our own country. The German sparrows which were introduced a few years ago in Jersey City have multiplied wonderfully, and are at home in all the streets, remaining throughout the winter; and in summer have for two years, kept the shade-trees clear of that terrible pest of worms which had become almost unendurable. We advise all our cities to introduce from Jersey this most excellent institution. A stranger going into the quiet streets of that city in the depths of winter hears on every side the twittering of birds.

A CONSTANT man looks up to heaven in full hope, even when it is darkness, as the flowers that open with the sun close not, though he be hid with clouds.

PRACTICE what you learn of spiritual truth, or light communicated will be withdrawn.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT

A. J. Wright, A. M., President
Mrs. A. Wright, Principal
M. E. Scott, Esq.
Miss Anna E. Rose
Miss C. A. Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental Music.
Other Instructors will be employed.

☞ The Institution will be re-opened about 1st October, and has a perfect record of excellence. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and upon its satisfactory completion a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors and rule as the senior pupils, so their mental progress is not retarded. Lessons are continued throughout the course in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of Language, the Art of Composition and Grammar, the Art of Composition and Grammar.

The boarders are spacious, well ventilated, and well supplied. Academic year, FOUR QUARTERS of twelve weeks each. Tuition, $10 per quarter. For circulars and particulars apply to A. J. WRIGHT,
By permission, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. apr 25

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE

NEXT SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October 1st, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a thorough education.

Particular care is bestowed on the morals and manners of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year, and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the tuition in all cases unless prevented by sickness, or some other unavoidable cause.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—and kept so, for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be present at their examinations. A few days advance at the beginning of others is a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS—Board and Tuition per session, $150 00
PAYABLE.—$100 at October—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $50 00, payable one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

W. H. N. MAGRUDER.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. my25-6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cato & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL.

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets,

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov 6 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made. Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

On the corner of Camp and Common sts.

(In the Sparrow and Elcrast Story Building.)

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1857 and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals or book keepers in a large portion of the old houses of this city and over the Southern country. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

LUTUS DOLBEAR,
President.

nov 17 1y

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

Of the late firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.

102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. je16 1y

KNIGHT & CO.

Dealers in

PLANTATION MILL & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Every country or land a large assortment of different patterns of cast ironware, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly any kind of a small, advance above manufacturer's prices and orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market.

The great change in our labor system necessitates a correspondent change in the Implements used and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved suited for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

LABOR SAVING MACHINES,

Also, LIBERAL CASH ADVANCES MADE on Notes, Sawed Lumber, &c., and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at short notice.

172 GRATIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

ap 27 1y

G. W. W. GODWYN, (SUCCESSOR TO GODWYN & GOODWYN)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Near door to the Picayune Office,

NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1860.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev. J. E. C. Sweeney, D. D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the third parallel of North Latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its bounds, collections at public meetings and conferences. Appropriations of the auxiliaries of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testamentary bequests, and the annual donation of Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans: then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $5 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $250 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not: to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S.: by becoming or procuring Auxiliaries, by donating, and urging donations by exploring and reporting the destitute of the Scriptures, by commencing or promoting mite-box societies of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them according to that Scripture which says: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt and where thieves do not break through nor steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church the Board of Directors respectfully submit the foregoing statement of facts with confidence in and them by publication to call a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God. Remember the word is the bread, they labor for that bread is given, pray the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thanks are to the heartiest of the Great Reformation. No beholding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment. God's Word. Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. a25 1y.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,

—AND—

Commissioner of Deeds,

For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 21 Commercial Place, Third Floor,
New Orleans.

a—1126-1y

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8 .....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.

—Also—

GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to by J. E. BAILEY, Formerly of Chartres Street.

feb 9, 1y

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent	$67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency	27 00
French	15 00
Music, with use of instrument,	37 50

Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10-3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McCOMBER, A M. Pres't. and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
GEN. J C MOORE, A M. Prof. of Mathematics.
Rev. B F KAVANAUGH, M D. Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
T H KAVANAUGH, M D. Prof. of Natural Science.
B F BROWN, A B. Principal Preparatory Department.
S V LUNS, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868 closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS.

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

Collegiate	$21 00	Preparatory	$20 00
Elementary	16 00	Primary	13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate	$36 00	Elementary	$24 00
Preparatory	30 00	Primary	20 00

Modern Languages, (extra) $4 00 per month.

No incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie — a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O H. McComber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas july-13-1f

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The Institution is under control of the M. E Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address

REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
jy-13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana;

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent, as Compared with any other Stove.

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to THE GOOD SAMARITAN, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this appuratus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, THE GOOD SAMARITAN to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of COOKING STOVES, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

G. W. W. GOONWYN,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn,) jnly6 1y 62 Camp street,
Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. HEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $16.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1;

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street, or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1866

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
La'e Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—THOSE DESIRING THE NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward Immediately to Rev. Robt. J. Harp, Agt., Lock Box 814 New Orleans,

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.

For Single Copies	each 50c
For any number less than 5	" 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address	" 40c
For any number over 25	" 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays,— Biographical and Descriptive,— Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenæum, The Examiner; The London, Saturday, and Fortnigtly Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs Oliphant, J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swineburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steambont. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR AND FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews	$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews	7 "
For any three of the Reviews	10 "
For all four of the Reviews	12 "
For Blackwoods's Magazine	4 "
For Blackwood and one Review	7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews	10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews	13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews	15 "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48,00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the POSTAGE to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1,50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORTON, of Yale College. 2 vols. Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8. feb 2

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug24 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

92 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $1 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen. Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mar1 3m Lock Box 47, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.

Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.

Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.

Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.

Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $15 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, JR.,
jn 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Hortense Rodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Guild, School of Design.

Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar14 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following,

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. En.
sept28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Full Term in College	$30 00
Contingent Fee	3 00
Tuition—Full Term in Preparatory School	$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee	2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C HAIFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENEFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
nly Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,

Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.

—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. ja 22-67-6m

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, — of many years standing, —affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package,	$1 00	Postage	6 cts.
Six packages,	5 00	"	27
Twelve packages,	9 00	"	43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors,
e 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Easton, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

npr4 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies, all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
a25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

WALLACE & CO.,

Importers and Jobbers of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, and

PLANTATION CLOTHING,

CORNER MAGAZINE AND COMMON STREETS, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

☞ Sales guaranteed at New York prices. a18 1y

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano-Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

114 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH-WEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25

AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c

THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50

PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00

SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25

NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

"ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile. Baker $5 00

Superior Muslin, Gilt 6 50

ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans 2 00

BILL ARP 1 50

PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS 10 00

KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months	$150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos.,	60
" " Preparatory " " "	40
Fuel, for Boarders, " "	16
" " Day scholars, " "	8
Music on Piano, " "	50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each,	0

No extra charge for Greek or Latin.

Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of pianos.

Oil Painting	$30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each,	20

No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi-annually, in advance.

For further information, apply to july 6 3m B. ARMSTRONG, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hamlett, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healty one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities and, especially those on rail roads,—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months	$15 00
Primary Department	20 00
Collegiate	25 00
Music and Piano	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Vocal Music	2 50
Incidental fee	2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month	18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks	$30 00
Music	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Languages, each	10 00
Incidental Fee	2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month	20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing	16 00

aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oc16 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course,	$30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee,	10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information.

Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE,

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80,00
Incidental Fee	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75,00
Incidental Fee	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing	20,00

We commend the institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board of Trustees.
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
FEB.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
MAR	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
APR				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
MAY						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
JNE		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
JLY				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
SEP.			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
OCT					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
NOV	1	2	3	4	5	6
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
DEC			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have no improvement to notice in the general market since our last report, nearly every branch of trade partaking of the prevailing dullness. The principal exception is our leading staple, which, under the favorable accounts from Liverpool and New York on Saturday, was in good request at advanced prices, but has since ruled more in favor of buyers. The business in Louisiana sugar is confined to retail transactions, and operations in Cuba have been restricted by light supplies. In Western produce we notice more firmness in flour, particularly in the higher grades, which are scarce, but a decline in corn, caused by more liberal supplies. Provisions also have ruled rather in favor of sellers, but without any improvement in the demand.

Cotton.—We left the market, at the time of our last report, ruling at 28½c. for Good Ordinary, 29 to 29½ for Low Middling, and 30 to 30½ for Middling, but closing with an upward tendency, and very little to be had at the inside figures. On Saturday, under the influence of further favorable accounts from Liverpool and New York, the demand continued animated, and while the sales were restricted by scant supplies to 1,100 bales, factors were enabled to establish an advance of nearly or quite one-half a cent, Good Ordinary closing at 29c., Low Middling at 29½, and Middling at 30½. On Monday the news being less encouraging, and buyers anticipating a reaction in their favor at Liverpool and New York, or awaiting a better supply from additional receipts, the demand was checked, and the business confined to 800 bales, generally at about previous rates, but partly at rather easier prices. On Tuesday the market opened rather depressed by discouraging accounts from Liverpool and Manchester, and even before the receipt of the telegrams, which came to hand at about 3 P. M., reporting a quotable decline of ⅛d., buyers were enabled to operate to a limited extent at figures about one-half cent lower than Saturday's currency, the sales comprising 700 bales, mostly on the basis of 28¾ to 29c. for Low Middling, and 29¾ to 30c. for Middling, while the bulk of the limited supply offering was held at a fraction higher than the outside figures of our subjoined quotations, and above the limits of most of the pending orders. Nothing was reported after the receipt of the telegrams referred to above.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 2,650 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 470 bales, against 1,022 during the corresponding period last week, showing a decrease of 552 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 576,607 bales, against 673,983 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 337,756 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 118,153 bales to Great Britain, of 34,654 to France, and of 114,392 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	—	to —
Ordinary	—	to —
Good Ordinary	28	to —
Low Middling	28½	to 29
Middling	29½	to 30
Strict Middling	—	to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales	15256
Arrived past three days. 1259
Arrived previously 049068-050327
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc.	3239—653566
	668822
Exported past three days	1583
Exported previously 634028—	635611
Stock on hand and on ship-board, bales	33211

Sugar.—The demand for Cuba sugar continues good, principally for the West, and the stock being light, prices are ruling with an upward tendency. There were sales on Saturday and Monday of 60 hogsheads on private terms, and 1,000 boxes, of which 500 boxes Nos. 11 and 12 at 11 to 12⅝c. per lb., and the balance in small lots at 11½ to 12¾c. per lb. for grocery grades, and 13 to 13¼c. for better descriptions. There is very little Louisiana sugar in market.

Molasses.—There is no Louisiana in market, and a good inquiry has prevailed for Cuba molasses since our last review, but very little has been done, the stock on hand being light and held very firmly at higher prices. It is quoted at 48 to 56c. per gallon, as in quality. Refinery reboiled is quoted at 75 to 85c.

Cattle Market.

Jefferson City, Tuesday Evening, May 19, 1868.

Western Beef, choice, per lb net	12c	to 15
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net	—	to —
Texas Cattle, choice, per head	$45	to 55
Texas Cattle, 2d qual, per head	30	to 40
Texas Cattle, 3d qual, per head	18	to 25
Hogs, per lb gross	10c	to 11
Sheep, 1st quality, per head	$	to 4 00
Sheep, 2d " "		to 3 00
Sheep, 3d " "		to 1 25
Milch Cows, choice, per head	80	to 125
Milch Cows, per head	50	to 87
Texas Cows, with Calves	—	to 20
Yearlings, per head	6	to 12
Calves, per head	3	to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 50	10 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	18 00
Spades	11 00	19 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	18½	20
East India	22½	24½
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₩ lb	8½	9
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs		1 50
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot		8 50
Crackers		9 00
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	15 00	16 00
English, Fire	45 00	50 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow		21
Adamantine	17	21
Star	18	23
Chocolate, No 1 ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ bbl
Northern	13 00
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton		15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton		10 00
Western, ₩ barrel		55
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14½	18
Havana	45	55
Java	30	38
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ ton	15 00
Hulled, ₩ bushel
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb	35	36
Sheathing
Copper Bolts	35	36
Yellow Metal	28	29
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	23	24
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl	5 00
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y		3¾
—St. Domingo	4
Fustic, Tampico	5
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 00	1 60
Madder	13	15
Cultivators		24
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western		50
Feathers, ₩ lb	40	1 50
Fish, Cod, ₩ box		60
Herrings		20 00
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl		18 50
—— No. 2	16 00	13 00
—— No. 3		6
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	4
Flour, ₩ bbl:		9 12½
Superfine	9 00	15 75
Extra	9 50
Fine	8 00	16
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb		21
Figs, Drum	20	8
Dried Apples	7½	14
Currants, Zante		32
Almonds, soft shell	30	here
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	4 50
——Layer	4 40	here
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	nnae	5 25
" Malaga, ₩ box	5 00
Oranges, La. ₩ 1000		6 00
Sicily ₩ box	5 50
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 80
10 x 12	3 90	4 00
12 x 18	4 40	4 90
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 90	3 00
Canada	3 00	3 05
Oats	84	85
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	1 03	1 05
Beans, ₩ bbl	19 00	23 00
Hops, ₩ lb	40	50
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	20
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	20 00	21 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	16	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	9½	10½
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₩ piece
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	6
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Boiler	8	9
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	7	7½
Castings, American	6½	8
Lime, Western ₩ bbl
Shell Lime	1 75
Rockland, &c	2 25
Cement	3 00
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	75	85
Mose, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	3
Black do	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	6½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	3 00	6 00
Pitch	4 50
Rosin A No. 1	3 75	3 80
No. 2	3 25
No. 3	3 00
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	60	65
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 60
Coal Oil	30	42
In cases	50	55
Cotton Seed, Crude		80
Refined	95	1 00
Tanners' ₩ gallon	90	1 15
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton
Cotton Seed		35 00
Meal
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	20 00	21 00
" North half bbl	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₩ lb	15	16
Tongues ₩ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess		29 25
Prime Mess	27 00
Hog, round, ₩ lb	14
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb	15
Do., canvassed	18½	20
Sides	17	18
Shoulders	13½
Green Shoulders		11
Lard, Prime, in tierces	19½	19½
in kegs		20½
Fair, in tierces
Butter, Northern	65	60
Western	50	18
Cheese, American	5
Potatoes, ₩ bbl	3 75	4 00
Onions	4 00	4 25
Green Apples	3 50	4 50
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	6	11
India	10	10½
Carolina	11½	12
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb	14	25
Crude	13	15
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 50	2 55
from store	2 60	2 65
coarse, cargo
from warehouse	2 60	2 65
from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₩ bushel	1 90	2 00
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	18	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	14½	17
Havana, White	15	15½
Yellow	12½	14
Brown	11½	12½
Tobacco, in hhds, ₩ lb:
Balers & Cutters
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9½	12½
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	8	11
Good Refused	7	8
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	60	80
Bailing	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	32	34
Burry	12	16
Louisiana, Native	20	23
Texas, ¡@¡ Merino	24	30

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—630 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets.

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as references for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 83 Carondelet street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

Atlanta, February 13, 1868.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Colier's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D, Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D, Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wyan parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Colier, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible care for Cancer

Rev J F BELLAMY,
Rev J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years, I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Colier's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar. I believe Dr Colier can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y Moore

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the cure

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Colier

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES,

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $30.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's unabridged, Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sundny School Union's Biblical, and Anthon's Classical.

Books for

PRIZES, HOMDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS,

beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care.

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound:

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell, $1 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, prepaid, for 50 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

fe29 1m

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman, D D., LL D.
Rev. E Wadsworth, A M, D D,
O as A M.
Rev. J C Wills, A M.
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term, $40 00
Incidental fee, 5 00
Tuition in Preparat'y school per term $30 to $35
Contingent fee $2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

july 27 tf O F CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has a good school, which is designed to be permanent, in successful operation, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He would board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elementary Branches $20 00
Higher Branches 25 00
Latin, Greek, etc 30 00
French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja 18-1 m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

On the 9th of January next we begin our Spring session. We invite those seeking Collegiate advantages to consider ours. To our Southern friends, desiring repose and exemption from many of their peculiar annoyances, our location and surroundings are especially attractive. One hundred and fifteen dollars will cover the expenses of a session of five months, including tuition, board, fuel, room rent, washing and contingent fee. A catalogue or other information can be obtained by addressing,

E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
Emory P. O., Va.

[dec 7]

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin 60c.
Sent by mail at 70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan $1 50
" Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep $1 25
Roan 1 50
Roan Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
S. S. Bells (single) $4 25 per doz.
" " (Double) 6 50
Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

july 27 tf

H. F. GIVEN, W. O. BROWN.
D. A. GIVEN. E. K. HUNKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186 COMMON STREET 186

feb3-67 1y

$100 A MONTH

SALARY WILL BE PAID FOR Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample, retailing at $1 50, for 50 cents. A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,

48 Broad street, New York.

[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 3m

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY, 308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(John Gennes—Jos. A. Shakspeare—S. Swoop.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 18 '67, 6m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondelet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

jan 20 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.,

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.,

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBURG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses Foundries and Steamboats. nov9 6m

T H HOOINNOTHAM, O. W. HONOR W. R. MAYO, New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants.

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.,

uly6 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS,

Reps, Coraices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

J. L. DUNNICA. G. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 99 Poydras street, New Orleans, La.

Agents for the following brands of flour, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

McCutcheon, Gordon & Co, choice XXX. W Rosborough & Co, choice XXX. Sucker State choice X. Sparta Mills choice superfine.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J L DUNNICA & CO.

sep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A fresh supply of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE.

S. B. ALBERS, Agent, 251 St Charles st. Opposite Tivoli Circle, New Orleans,

[dec 14-1y]

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No. 64 North Commercial street.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled. aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR, AND COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART, NEW ORLEANS
Late Stuart & James.

Represented by Capt. J. A. Binford, Duck Hill, Miss. oc20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS,

General Commission Merchants,

And Commercial Agents. aug25 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchoupitoulas Street,

And 8 and 10 New Levee,

aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F G BARIERE O W BABCOCK

F. G. BARIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

No. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.

n10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Wm. Edwards. Edwd. J. Gay. sep15 1y

J. O. ELLIS. W. C. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. jan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co. SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 Union Street,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. C. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

ap7 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS, New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Payne & Harrison)
Edward Harrison,
J. P. Harrison, jun.,
Sidney Harrison,
John N. Harrison. july7 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar7 6m.

A. D. GRIEFF,

Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st., aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS. aug 8'67 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 110, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

COLGATE & CO.'S

FRAGRANT TOILET SOAPS are prepared by skilled workmen from the best materials, and are known as the Standard by dealers and consumers.

Sold everywhere. mar28 3m

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom-house Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

J. H. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS. M. J. WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

aly 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

57 Poydras street.

Cotton Office—192 Common street—in charge of Richard J. Nugent. aug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. R. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., corner Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. feb18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 32 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. Payne, G. W. Huntington,
W. H. Dameron, H. M. Payne.

jc23-1y

O. M. STEIRER, THOS. C. SALTER

G. M. STEIRER & CO.

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market.)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves;

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER,

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar26-6m-67

D. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

General Commission Merchants,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb2 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. M. SWENSON, N. Y., late of Austin, Tex. W. M. PERKINS, N. L. KERNION, Of Perkins & Co., N. O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street, NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

a29 1y

E S KEAP. I. CAULFIELD.

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans, oc13 1y

R ATKINSON & CO: New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO, Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants,

188 Common Street, New Orleans.

Cash advances made on consignments to us by Hewitt, Swisher & Co., Galveston, Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA

References: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Sandidge, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. L Walker, New Orleans, La. july 20

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 155 Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS.

W. A. VIOLETT. R. Y. BLACK. S. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants

15 6m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans,

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D F. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

july 5-6m

V. L. RICHARDSON J. D. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

No. 5 Commercial Place.

fely New Orleans.

AGENTS WANTED.—WE WANT first-class agents to introduce our NEW STAR SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINES.

Extraordinary inducements to good salesmen. Further particulars and sample work furnished on application to W. G. WILSON & CO., Cleveland, Ohio; Boston, Massachusetts; or Saint Louis, Missouri. fe15 3m

CANCERS CURED without pain, use of the knife or caustic burning. Circulars sent free of charge. Address

DRS. BABCOCK & SON, apr4 3mp 700 Broadway, New York

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 10.
WHOLE NUMBER.....681.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1868.

$3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

LIGHT.

Bright heralds in the air
Announce the morning at the eastern gate,
Coming with glowing train and regal state,
And light is everywhere!

I hail the precious boon,
Not as the Parsee, bending to the sun—
But bless for evermore the mighty One
Who changeth night to noon!

Mine is the light of Day:
The green earth coursing through ethereal space,
'Mid stars and suns—ever in all her race
Illumined by their ray!

Mine is the light of Life:
The glorious boon of his eternal love,
By whom I live and move and being have,
An age with blessing rife!

Mine is the light of Home:
There sacred friendship's calm, unchanging beam,
Love—with its rays, like golden bars between,
Dispel my care and gloom!

Mine is the light of Truth:
The holy book inspired of old by God,
Lamp to my feet, a light in my abode,
Guide of my age from youth!

Mine is the light serene
Of heavenly Hope: behold it coming far
Beyond the circle of the farthest star,
To guide each earthly scene!

But not the golden spires
Of morn, nor light of home nor joy of love,
Nor beam of truth from heaven above,
Most meets my soul's desires:

O Lord, thyself reveal!
Bid days of heaven on days of earth arise!
Shine forth! Less for them cannot suffice
Who bear thy Spirit's seal!

—Congregationalist.

General Conference of the M. E. Church North, at Chicago.

We put together items which we find in the Northern Advocates, giving the proceedings of this body and the attending episodes of its session:

Bishop Clark said he had in his hands a memorial from the Holston Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, making some complaints about our brethren there. They say they have disturbed them. He presented the paper, and asked its reference. (Laughter.) Referred to the Committee on the State of the Church.

On the thirteenth day the Rev. Mr. Punshon, the delegate from the British Wesleyan Conference, made a most admirable address, of which we give extracts elsewhere. Addresses were also delivered by Messrs. E. Ryerson and Ritchie, delegates from the Canada Methodists.

While the Conference was full, directly upon the conclusion of these addresses, Bishop Simpson introduced the vital subject of IMPEACHMENT AGAIN.

Bishop Simpson stated that, as it was feared that the action of yesterday upon the impeachment resolutions might place the Conference in a false light before the world, he would suggest the following be adopted:

WHEREAS, There is now pending in the Senate of the United States the most important question that has ever engaged its attention; and

WHEREAS, The evidence and pleadings in this case have been fully spread before the people, so that they all may form an enlightened opinion; and

WHEREAS, We are deeply impressed that upon its rightful decision will largely depend the safety and prosperity of our nation, as well as the religious privileges of our ministers and members in many parts of the South; and

WHEREAS, Painful rumors are in circulation, that, partly by unworthy jealousies, and partly by corrupt influences, pecuniary and otherwise, most actively employed efforts are being made to influence Senators improperly, and to prevent them from performing their high duty; therefore,

Resolved, That we hereby appoint an hour of prayer, from 9 to 10 o'clock in the morning, to-morrow, to invoke humbly and earnestly the mercy of God upon our nation, and to beseech him to save our Senators from error, and to so influence them that their decision shall be in truth and righteousness, and shall increase the security and prosperity of our beloved Union.

FRANCIS A. BLADES,
GEORGE B. JOCELYN.

Rev. Mr. Blades moved to lay the resolution of yesterday on the table. Carried.

A motion to adopt the above was then made and carried.

Bishop Simpson read a paper, requesting an hour of the morning session to be set apart in prayer for the United States Senate. It was adopted.

The day following he preached before the Conference. Of this occasion the Northwestern Advocate reports:

Long before the hour of service the large amphitheater of the First Church was crowded; then the corridors were jammed, the very stairs were thronged. It was a great congregation both as to numbers and material. A prayer meeting for the country had lasted from nine to ten; the journal was read and there was an effort to proceed with the morning call, but the pressure was too great. Philip Phillips was called for and sang one of his sweet songs. Brother C. C. McCabe was called to the platform and sang with telling effect the song—

"A thousand years."

Mr. Punshon having crowded his way to the platform, the service announced, Dr. Bowman read the hymn—

"From all that dwell below the skies," and Phillips led the vast audience in song. Oh, how greatly rolled that ocean of song! No choir can approach it in worship. The Dr. led in a prayer of simplicity and directness, and then read II. Timothy, 1 chapter. After singing, Mr. Punshon announced the text, "For God hath not given unto us the spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

It soon became evident that he had not taken time to cut the GOSPEL out of it. It was brim-full of evangelical truth. It was a feast of heart and soul! The audience was in his hands until he disappointed them by closing abruptly a full half hour sooner than they wished. The closing appeal was melting, tendering, moving, inspiring.

As he took his seat Phillips began to sing hundred after hundred caught the strain, until the mighty assembly was all vocal! It was a glorious hour of holy baptism.

"Arise, my soul, arise;"

On Sunday afternoon he preached in the Opera House to such an audience as no single sermon was ever preached to in Chicago, except perhaps in the case of that which listened to Bishop Simpson in the Wigwam.

The text was, "Ye are not come unto the mount which might not be touched, but ye are come to Mount Zion."

It was a glorious sermon. A heavenly influence rested on the audience, and many went away with new thoughts.

That our readers may have a clearer view of this culminating hour of this Conference, we give in full that song which "Brother C. C. McCabe" "sang with such telling effect:"

SONG OF A THOUSAND YEARS.

BY H. C. WORK.

[Sung before the General Conference, by Rev. C. C. McCabe, May 15.]

Lift up your eyes, desponding freemen,
Fling to the winds your needless fears,
He who unfurled your glorious banner,
Says it shall wave a thousand years.

Chorus—A thousand years, my own Columbia,
'Tis the glad day so long foretold,
'Tis the glad morn whose early twilight
Washington saw in times of old.

What if the clouds one little moment
Hide the blue sky where morn appears,
When the bright sun that tints them crimson
Rises to shine a thousand years.

Chorus.

Tell the great world these blessed tidings,
Yes! and be sure the bondman hears;
Tell the oppressed of every nation
Jubilee lasts a thousand years!

Chorus.

Envious foes beyond the ocean,
Little we heed your threat'ning sneers;
Little will they our children's children,
When ye are gone a thousand years.

Chorus.

Rebels at home, go, hide your faces,
Weep for your crimes with bitter tears;
You could not bind the blessed daylight,
Though you should strive a thousand years.

Chorus.

Haste thee along, thou glorious noonday;
O, for the eyes of ancient seers!
O, for the faith of Him who reckons
One of his days a thousand years!

Chorus.

A very neat song this, to be followed by—

"From all that dwell below the skies," and a sermon! "Rebels" have become as important to the services of a Radical Methodist Church, and the inspiration of the preacher, as a "chaw" of tobacco to the colored brethren.

On the same day a meeting of the friends of lay representation held two meetings in the First Church.

In the afternoon the house was crowded above and below.

The permanent organization was effected by the choice of Gen. C. B. Fisk, of St. Louis, president, with an array of distinguished gentlemen as vice-presidents; W. P. Moss and Arthur Edwards were chosen secretaries, and a Committee on Resolutions, as follows: R. F. Queal, Esq., Chicago; C. C. North, Esq., New York; G. W. Hoss, Esq., Indianapolis; F. Rand, Esq., Boston; Benj. Horton, Esq., St. Louis.

General Fisk, on occupying the chair, delivered an address full of good sense, and of the best spirit. He scouted the idea of secession,—it was a word of ill omen. The men who want lay representation are loyal to the core. They are of opinion that it is not wise to go outside to contend for what is wanted inside.

Dr. Tiffany followed with an argument for lay representation, based on Scriptural grounds and expediency. Loud calls were made for Bishop Simpson, who arose and stated that he had given his opinions on this subject freely. Years ago, when tossed on the ocean and regarding it possible he might never return, he had written his convictions and sent them to the Northwestern, that he might leave them upon record. He thought the change would come peacefully, quietly, and would bring blessings with it. R. F. Queal, chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, presented resolutions which were adopted and printed in the Daily Advocate. At night the opening address was by Wm. McK. Reiley, D.D., who made an earnest and able plea for the early introduction of laymen into the chief councils of Methodism. The address to the General Conference was read and adopted.

Messrs. C. C. North, Dr. Hatfield, E. O Haven, Dr. Newman and Dr. Eddy also spoke.

On the fifteenth day the address was the special order of the day.

The chair then introduced Oliver Hoyt, Esq., of New York, chairman of the Laymen's Committee, and other laymen. The address of the Laymen's Committee was then presented, and read by the secretary.

On motion of E. O. Haven, the thanks of the Conference were voted to the Committee of the Laymen for the address just read.

G. Haven presented a telegram from the General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, now in session in Washington, which he desired to have read.

Unanimous consent being given, the secretary read the telegram, in substance as follows: "Will a delegation from the General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, with proposals for affiliation and union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, be received in your body?"

Upon the reading of the telegram there was applause, in which both Conference and galleries joined most heartily.

Dr. Curry presented the following, which was unanimously adopted, amid applause:

WHEREAS, A telegram has been received from a committee of the General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, asking if a delegation from that church, with proposals of affiliation and union, will be received by this body; therefore,

Resolved, That we will cordially welcome a delegation from the General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church for consultation in reference to the affiliation and ultimate union of that church with our own.

The secretary was instructed to telegraph this resolution in reply.

On motion, Conference adjourned. Notices were given, and the Conference dismissed with the benediction by A. S. Graves.

To wind up with something clever, we give a sketch of Dr. McClintock:

DR. J. M'CLINTOCK.

Just in front of him sits one of our most eloquent debaters, Dr. McClintock. He is a small man, with a round head, shining gray hair and eyes, and shining ruddy countenance, small mouth, not unlike Dr. Foster's, but much more nervous and vitalized. He can talk like a bon vivant, study like a professor, debate like a Congressman, and preach to the admiration of camp-meeting and cathedral. He is probably the most versatile man in the church, with the rarest commixture of a luxurious gentleman, severe student, brilliant speaker, and solid man of affairs. Full of energy, enthusiasm and progress, as fresh and bold in new projects as if nearer twenty than sixty, he keeps the life-blood of youth and grace dancing happily in unwithering veins.—Though he lapsed not a little in the anti-slavery struggle, he renewed the vows and deeds of his youth in his words and works in England and France during all the war, and to-day will prove, we trust, to be not a whit behind the best advanced in the questions and duties of the hour.—Zion's Herald.

P. S.—The Committee on Itinerancy have decided on districting the bishops by a vote of 29 to 8, and have appointed a sub-committee to draft and submit a plan. It is presumed that the bishops will be expected to preside at the conferences, and to make the appointments as formerly.

FRIGHTFUL VOLCANIC ERUPTION.—The Sandwich Islands have been visited with a series of frightful volcanic eruptions and earthquakes. The great crater Mauna Loa began demonstrations March 27th. March 28th over one hundred earthquake shocks were felt, and during the two weeks following, to April 13th, two thousand earthquake shocks occurred. At Wayschina the earth opened in many places. A tidal wave, sixty feet high, rolled over the tops of the cocoa trees a quarter of a mile inland, sweeping human beings, houses, and everything movable before it. A terrible shock prostrated a church and houses, killing many. In all, one hundred lives were lost, besides one thousand horses and cattle. The craters vomited fire-rock and lava. A river of red hot lava, five or six miles long, flowed to the sea, at the rate of ten miles an hour, destroying everything before it, and forming an island in the sea.

A new crator, two miles wide, opened, and threw rocks and streams of fire a thousand feet high. At one time the illumination extended fifty miles at night. The lava pushed out from shore one mile.

At Wayschina, three miles from shore, a conical island rose suddenly, emitting a column of steam and smoke, while the Kono packet was passing, spattering mud on the vessel.

The greatest shock occurred April 2d. Prior to the eruption there was a great shower of ashes and pumice. During the great shock the swaying motion of the earth was dreadful, and no person could stand. In the midst of this tremendous shock an eruption of red earth poured down the mountain, rushing across the plain three miles in three minutes, and then ceased; then came the great tidal wave, and then the streams of lava.

The villages on the shore were all destroyed by this wave. The earth opened under the sea and reddened the water. The earth eruption swallowed thirty persons, and the sea many more. Great suffering and terror prevailed in the whole region affected. The total loss of lives by the latest dispatches is given at between three and four hundred.

ONE of the conditions under which the Governor of Kazan, a semi-Tartar city of Russia, licensed a theatre, was that "at least once a week the manager should give a performance of such a nature that it should be possible for a mother to take her daughter to see it." In this country such regulations are not imposed.

WATER PROOF cloth is now prepared by a recent patent with balata instead of India rubber, as it will stand a higher heat than that gum.

A Swiss inventor thinks he has found a better motive power than steam, and wants to sell the secret for $10,000,000.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Senate.—Seventy five steamboat captains and pilots protest against the further bridging of the Ohio river with less than 500 feet spans.

Trumbull gave notice that he would endeavor to press the admission of Arkansas to a final vote on Wednesday.

Adjourned.

House.—Chanler introduced a resolution declaring that the control of State governments was in white people, and instructing the Committee on Elections to report resolutions declaring that this is a white man's government. Referred to the Committee on Elections.

A resolution looking to the erection of a commission to investigate illegal and unjust imprisonment during the war, was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Cary introduced a resolution declaring that the letter and spirit of the law justified the payment of 5-20s in legal tenders. Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

A resolution justifying Secretary Seward in retaining possession of the ram Stonewall Jackson, recently sold to Japan, until Japan is pacified, was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

The tax bill was made the special order for Wednesday next. The law covers 360 pages.

A resolution was passed bringing Charles W. Wooley to the bar of the House for contempt. The impeachment managers support the resolution, by a report, the reading of which required over an hour, with copies of private telegrams and evidence, mainly that of Thurlow Weed, showing that the scheme for buying votes for acquittal was canvassed in New York, and that suspicious telegrams and persons passed between the parties here and in New York. Intimate relations were shown to exist between the counsel and the friends of the President and the party who canvassed the purchase of votes in New York. The report claims that the managers have other evidence, but at present only feel justified in presenting such as will justify the arrest of Wooley. Adjourned.

LONDON, May 25.—Great Britain and Austria urge a general European disarming.

LONDON, May 25.—Advices from Antola, May 13th, have been received. The rear of the army had reached that point. The rainy season had commenced.

The German scientific expedition to the magnetic pole has sailed on its voyage of exploration.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Report says that the Republican caucus this morning agreed to postpone the vote on impeachment.

The High Court of Impeachment met at 12 o'clock M.

Senator Williams moved that the order heretofore directing the order of reading the articles and voting thereon be rescinded.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The motion of Williams was decided to be in order.

Mr. Coakling offered a substitute that the court now proceed to vote on the articles in their order, which was lost—twenty-eight to twenty-six.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Senator Trumbull objected that the order partly executed cannot be rescinded, and that, in order to change the rule, notice must be given under the rule—which objection was overruled.

Ross moved to amend by inserting the first Tuesday in September, which was lost by a large majority on all previous votes. Ross voted with the impeachers.

Morrill, of Maine, moved that the court adjourn to the 23d of June, which motion was objected to as out of order.

The Senate decided that the vote is in order by thirty-five to eighteen.

Morrill's motion to adjourn to 23d June was then rejected—ayes twenty-seven, nays twenty-seven.

Williams moved to take the vote on the second article, which was carried.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 26.—Vote on the third article: Guilty, 35; not guilty, 19.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Court then adjourned sine die.

IF you want wisdom, go to the holy prophets and learn the whys and wherefores of God's "becauses" in the vast history of the world.

OF a great many that seem to come to Christ, it may be said that they have not come to Him, because they have not left themselves.

The Old School Presbyterian General Assembly.—Basis of Proposed Reunion with the New School Church.

We copy as follows from a dispatch dated Albany, May 22d:

The Presbyterian Old School Assembly reassembled to-day. Some delegates, who were not present yesterday, presented credentials. After the transaction of some business of minor importance, Dr. Bentley, of Steubenville, Ohio, presented reports of the Joint Committees of the Old and New School branches of the church on the subject of reunion. The committees were appointed in 1866, and consisted of sixteen members from each body. The report is signed by all but three members, and, while they approve it, their signatures could not be obtained in time. The report recommends reunion on the following basis:

First. The reunion shall be effected on the doctrinal and the ecclesiastical basis of our common standard. The Scripture of the Old and New Testaments shall be acknowledged as the inspired word of God, and the only infallible rule of faith and practice. The confession of faith shall continue to be received as containing the system of doctrine taught in the Holy Scriptures.

Second. All the ministers and churches embraced in the two bodies shall be admitted to the same standing in the united body which they may hold in their respective connections up to the consummation of the union.

Third. The boundaries of the General Presbyteries and Synods shall be adjusted by the General Assembly of the United Church.

Fourth. The official records of the two branches of the church shall be held as making up the one history of the church, and no rule which does not stand approved by both shall be of any authority until re-established by the United Church, except so far as such rule may affect the rights of property.

Fifth. The corporate rights now held by the two General Assemblies shall be consolidated and applied for their several objects, as defined by law.

Sixth. There shall be one set of committees, of Boards for Home and Foreign Missions, and other religious enterprises of the church.

Seventh. As soon as practicable the General Assembly shall reconstruct and consolidate the several permanent committees and boards which now belong to the two assemblies.

Eighth. The publications of the Board of Publication, and of the Publication Committee, shall continue to be issued as at present, leaving it to the Board of Publication of the United Church to revise these issues.

Ninth. The theological seminaries that are now under the Assembly control may, if their Boards of Direction so elect, be transferred to the care of one or more of the adjacent Synods.

Tenth. It is agreed that the Presbyteries possess the right to examine ministers applying for admission from other Presbyteries, but each Presbytery shall be left free to decide for itself, when it shall exercise the right.

Eleventh. It shall be regarded as the duty of all our Judicatories, ministers and people in the United Church to study the things which make for peace, and to guard against all needless and offensive references to the causes that have divided us.

Twelfth. The forms of reunion, if they are approved by the General Assemblies of 1868, shall be turned over to the several Presbyteries under their care, and shall be of binding force, if they are ratified by three-fourths of the Presbyteries connected with each branch of the church within one year after they shall have been submitted for approval.

After some discussion it was resolved to take up at once for discussion and consideration this plan for reunion, and continue the discussion without other interruption than by special orders before made.

Rev. Samuel W. Fleeher, of Utica, of the New School Church, and a representative from the Joint Convention of 1867, made an earnest and eloquent appeal in behalf of reunion.

The entire evening session of the Presbyterian General Assembly was occupied in the discussion of the proposed basis of union. Dr. Blanvell, Wm. J. Allen, Stewart, Montford, Day and McLean spoke in favor of union, and Rev. Mr. Smith, Dr. Backus and Rev. Mr. Bergen in opposition. The discussion was earnest and eloquent, and not concluded when the Assembly adjourned until Saturday.

THE MASTER IS NEAR.

BY REV. W. MORLEY PUNSHON, M. A.

He was in the hinder part of the ship, asleep on a pillow; and they awake him, and say unto him, Master, carest thou not that we perish?—Mark iv, 38.

When even was come the ship was in the midst of the sea, and he alone on the land. And he saw them toiling in rowing, for the wind was contrary unto them.—Mark vi, 47, 48.

O'er Gennesaret, mountain-bordered,
Beats the storm and swells the gale,
While the bark, divinely ordered,
Spreads for shore the laboring sail.
Faster falls the cloud-heart's raining;
Lightnings leap from thunder-caves;
Through the dead'ning midnight straining,
Wild eyes shine across the waves.

O how oft men weary, gazing
For some radiant help from far,
While above them, downward blazing,
Gleams some bright and friendly star!
In their billowy danger sharing
Lay their Lord, in human sleep
Calm as childhood's—while unsparing
Surged and strove the furious deep.

From his gentlest slumber parted,
Glance of that awaking eye
Soothes the lone and fretful-hearted,
Bids their fear in faith to die.
What to Him the wild commotion?
Vassals to his sov'reign will,
Fiercest wind or angriest ocean
Instant at his word are still.

O'er Gennesaret, wildly blowing,
Chafe the sullen winds again,
While the voyagers "toil in rowing,"
With a dull impatient pain.
Deeper looms the dark before them,
Wearier grows each slack'ning hand,
No loved presence bending o'er them;
Hopeless night and distant land.

Louder roars the surge's clangor,
Which the troubled moon shines o'er;
And the surf-waves, while with anger,
Dash in battle on the shore;
But the Lord, his own beholding,
Watches o'er their roused alarms,
As some mother watches, folding
Frightened nurslings in her arms.

Wearily the night-watch weareth,
Weareth, sick'ning and forlorn,
Yet the promised help forbeareth;
Hush of blast or glimpse of morn.
Then the waiting Saviour maketh
O'er the storm his path of peace;
From the wave the frenzy breaketh:
In the heart the discords cease.

On our souls be deeply graven
Lessons by these tempests taught:
Willeth Christ to lift the craven
Into realms of braver thought.
When with him we sojourn longer,
And the heart has stronger grown,
Rageth then the storm-cloud stronger,
And we brave the blast alone.

While untried we strive and wrestle
In our yet unripened strength,
Christ will slumber in the vessel,
And will speak the calm at length:
Through the wilder tempest scathless,
While we bravely breast the wave,
Still we hear him, "Be not faithless,
I am watching, I will save."

For the Advocate.

ACCEPTABLE SERVICE.

DOING THE WILL OF GOD FROM THE HEART

We must do the will of God. Mere verbal approval and commendation are not enough. We cannot thus meet the obligations devolved upon us. The Master demands more: "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you." We must do the will of God—not our opinions and wishes, but God's will. When we pray, "Thy will be done," we include and imply ourselves, as well as all others. If desirous to do God's will we can be in no doubt as to the line of duty, for it has pleased God to reveal the duty of all sorts and conditions of men, in all relations, civil, social and domestic.

There are some who do a part of those things that God has enjoined, but they are not done from the heart, but from various other considerations. Some, for example, render partial service, but they do so from policy. They are honest in their dealings—generally speak the truth; they refrain from slander and violence; in short, are law-abiding citizens. All this is done, however, in view of its being the best policy. God is not in all their thoughts. Now we can imagine an unbeliever doing all this without recognizing the will or even the existence of God.

Another class do a part of what may be called the will of God through respect to public opinion. They wish to stand well with the public, so they are careful to abstain from those things which the public condemn. Whenever they are in doubt what to do, they ask: "What will the people think—what will they say?" And when they determine what they suppose the public will think and say, they then make their resolve accordingly. The public whose respect they seek has fully expressed itself in favor of certain habits and practices. They are careful to conform to the public wish. For example, in certain communities it is the fashion for all decent people to attend church service, and observe the decent proprieties of the Lord's day. While they remain in that community they never think, without good excuse, of omitting attendance on public worship, nor presume to visit any place of public amusement on the Sabbath day. But when these people remove elsewhere, into a community that does not require church-going as one of the proprieties of life, nor puts any ban upon visiting places of public amusement on the holy day. The ground of moral obligation with this class—to wit: public opinion—being changed, these people change too, and the church is exchanged for the theatre, and the Sabbath school for the opera and the ball.

And yet another class do a part of those things that God has commanded or forbidden through the mere habit of education. They have been taught—to do some things and to refrain from others, and they do so from habit, without the least reference to the will of God. His love is not in their hearts, nor his fear before their eyes. It cannot with any Scriptural propriety be said that they are "doing the will of God from the heart."

When the will of God is not done from the heart—from a heart in harmony with God's will—it is never done fully, only partially, and not at all from the right motive. They only do so much of that which has been commanded as policy, public opinion or education may require. They propose to make no sacrifices, submit to no self-denial nor bear any crosses beyond the requirements of the authority they recognize. This service is not rendered with pleasure. It is not the choice of the heart; it is but submission to the exactions of policy or public opinion. Such partial servants of the law are not strong in their moral convictions and attachments.—Their service is not from love, nor the grand and all-constraining desire to please God. Whenever, therefore, these people are brought into new circumstances, and relieved from the pressure that influenced them, they easily turn aside and show that they are "lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God."

To do the will of God from the heart supposes as a prime necessity that the heart is in harmony with God. As our hearts are depraved, "deceitful and wicked," we must pass from the power of satan unto God, and become new creatures in Christ Jesus. The carnal mind is enmity against God, and cannot do the will of God from the heart—so true it is that we must be born again. It is only the heart in which the love of God has been shed abroad that finds the law of the Lord perfect—more to be desired than gold, yea than much fine gold, and sweeter than honey or the droppings of the honey-comb. It is the heart renewed, in which Christ is formed the hope of glory; that is glad when it is said: "Let us go up to the house of the Lord;" that is a companion of all them that fear God, and had rather be a doorkeeper in his house than dwell in the tents of wickedness. It is the renewed man that feels the will of God a way of pleasantness and a path of peace, and who can say in humble and loving submission:—"Thy will, not mine, be done."

When the will of God is done from the heart there is a strong likelihood that we shall persevere in the doing. It is pleasant, the heart loves it, the yoke is easy and the burden is light. Animated with love, the man can run through a troop and leap over a wall. The law of the Lord is not only seen, but is felt, to be "holy, just and good." All other service seems unworthy, mean and poor. His motto is: "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ. Only Jesus will I know, and Jesus crucified." If we would render acceptable service we must do the will of God from the heart. Oh! for "A heart in every thought renewed,

And full of love divine."

W.

For the Advocate.

A GALA-DAY AT FARMERVILLE.

FARMERVILLE, La., May, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: This is one of the old settlements in north Louisiana, and yet the first public Sunday school celebration ever witnessed in the place was on the first of May, 1868.

Some years ago a school was organized and conducted by Mr. Henry Barrett. Very little interest was taken in the school by any one save Mr. Barrett, who, in spite of the apathy and indifference, never relaxed his zeal in the good work until death closed his labors. And with him passed away all interest in Sabbath school training for the children, and for years no organization of the kind has existed here.

In January last Rev. H. T. Lewis came to the village and at once went earnestly to work. The beginning was small, but the influence rapidly widened, until scarcely a child in the place was left out, and the interest extended to the adjacent country. The ranks were swelled, and now there is a perfect organization of officers and teachers, a good library, with new additions to the school on every Sabbath.

The celebration of the first of May was impressive and beautiful. The day was one of surpassing loveliness; the fleecy clouds which overcast the sky were just dense enough to temper the sun's rays and moderate the temperature. It is needless that I attempt a description of a Sabbath school celebration. All who may read this are familiar with such exhibitions, and know how transcendently lovely it is to see throngs of happy children, all gaily dressed, their faces beaming with smiles as radiant as rainbow hues, while the groves are made to ring with their merry, musical laughter.

Capt. T. B. Tompkins was the orator of the day. His speech was a chaste and polished production, abounding in many beautiful and forcible illustrations. Mr. L. V. Andrews, the Sunday school secretary, delivered a very neat and appropriate address; and, besides these, there were many little speeches from the pupils of the school. The singing, under the direction of Mrs. and Miss Barrett, was most delightful.

I have never seen, in city, town or country, such a display of beautiful banners.

One peculiarity of the school is that the classes, instead of being numbered, as usual in Sabbath schools, are all named.

Each class was in the procession, was headed by a banner borne aloft, and on the banner, in beautiful characters, was inscribed the name of the class. Among these names I noticed the following: "Little Pilgrims," "Buds of Promise," "Cross Bearers," "Band of Hope," "Pearl Seekers," and many others. I thought the plan of naming the classes a most excellent one. On each Sabbath the children of the different classes can be recognized as they pass to and from the schools, by the name neatly printed on a small slip of satin ribbon, pinned to the shoulder of the dress. Altogether it was a gala-day in Farmerville. Such a scene was never witnessed in this quiet old village before.

The superintendent of the school, W. W. Gutherie, Esq., deserves great praise for his devotion to the work. He gives his time and money with hearty good will to this great interest.

Sabbath schools are now being organized in various parts of the parish, and a deep and all-pervading feeling is spreading over the country. May God speed the good work, for we hail this as an omen of better times for the church.

J. L. B.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

MINDEN, La., May 12, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: We are all pretty well, and hard at work trying to reconstruct the broken-down walls of Zion. As an item of church news, I report that, notwithstanding the times, I have just constructed a comfortable and snug church-house in this town for the colored people. It was dedicated the other day. Bro. Shea preached the sermon. Only a few dollars remains to be paid on the building, and it is the property of the M. E. Church South, for the exclusive use of the freed people of color. So much toward keeping up the distinction of the races. They are desirous to have separate churches and schools. This is the commencement of a circuit for the colored people which I hope to report at the next Conference. Affectionately,

S. B. WHITE.

Opelousas District Meeting—Louisiana Conference.

OPELOUSAS, May 1, 1868.

Delegates present—From New Iberia, Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, presiding elder; Plaquemine Brulee, Rev. J. D. Adams, pastor, Dr. J. W. Chevis, J. B. Clark and Hugh Moss, laymen; Washington, Rev. B. F. White, pastor, C. S. Cozine, E. G. Cropper and Dr. H. T. Chevis, laymen; Bayou Mallett, Rev. J. E. Bradley, pastor; Bellvue, Rev. F. T. Rawson, pastor; Opelousas, Rev. John Wilkinson, pastor, C. Mayo, James M. Porter, William Mason, H. T. Goodloe, L. B. Lassiter, Thos. H. Lewis and U. T. Blackshear, laymen.

The proceedings opened with religious services by the Rev. A. E. Goodwyn, after which the meeting organized by the latter taking the chair, and by the election of Thomas H. Lewis to serve as permanent secretary.

On motion, a Finance Committee of five, to serve for one year, was appointed. The chair nominated the following gentlemen on said committee, viz: New Iberia, W. E. Walker; Washington, C. S. Cozine; Plaquemine Brulee, J. B. Clark; Bayou Mallett, J. W. Swindall; Bellvue, C. Mayo; Opelousas, James M. Porter; Franklin, Dr. Saint; Pattersonville, Geo. Zeno.

On motion, it was agreed that the pastors present make verbal reports of the condition of their several charges, and that a written report be subsequently furnished by each to the secretary, to be recorded in the minutes.

On motion, it was agreed that the report of the Finance Committee on the bishop's and presiding elder's salary, fixing the latter at $160 and the former at $150, be adopted.

On motion, it was resolved that standing committees be appointed on the following interests, to wit: Sunday Schools, Church Extension, Secular Education, Ministerial Efficiency and Church Literature, and that the chairman of each committee prepare and present, at the next district meeting, a written report. The following gentlemen were appointed chairmen, the remaining members to be subsequently supplied: Sabbath Schools, David Riggs; Church Extension, J. D. Adams; Education, B. F. White; Ministerial Efficiency, John Wilkinson; Church Literature, Thomas H. Lewis.

On motion, it was

Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to communicate with the bishop who shall preside at our next Annual Conference, and express to him the earnest request of this body that he will be present at our next district meeting, to be held at this place, and preside over our deliberations:

On motion, it was agreed that the next district meeting be held at Opelousas, after which the meeting adjourned.

THOMAS H. LEWIS, Secretary.

P. S.—A feature of much interest in the meeting was the verbal reports given by the preachers present of their operations on their stations and circuits. They demonstrated that the ministerial work in this section was being performed zealously and with much success.

The meeting was our first one, and was well attended. We hope to have the bishop at our next, and we look forward to it as an occasion of much interest and profit to the church.

Very respectfully your's,

T. H. L.

SATAN is never likely to do more mischief than when he puts on Samuel's coat.

PEOPLE who like so much to talk their mind, should sometimes try to mind their talk.

HISTORY tells us of illustrious villains, but there never was an illustrious miser in nature.

Shooting Niagara: and After?

BY THOMAS CARLYLE.

"It is indeed strange how prepossessions and delusions seize upon whole communities of men; no basis in the notion they have formed, yet everybody adopting it, everybody finding the whole world agree with him in it, and accept it as an axiom of Euclid; and, in the universal repetition and reverberation, taking all contradiction of it as an insult, and a sign of malicious insanity, hardly to be borne with patience. 'For who can change the opinion of these people?' as our Divus Imperator says. No wisest of mortals. This people cannot be convinced out of its 'axiom of Euclid' by any reasoning whatsoever; on the contrary, all the world assenting, and continually repeating and reverberating, there soon comes that singular phenomenon, which the Germans call Schwarmerey, ('enthusiasm' is our poor Greek equivalent,) which means simply 'Swarmery,' or the 'gathering of men in swarms,' and what prodigies they are in the habit of doing and believing, when thrown into that miraculous condition. Some big queen bee is in the centre of the swarm; but any commonplace stupidest bee, Cleon the Tanner, Beales, John of Leyden, John of Bromwicham, any bee whatever, if he can happen, by noise or otherwise, to be chosen for the function, will straightway get fatted and inflated into bulk, which of itself means complete capacity; no difficulty about your queen bee; and the swarm once formed, finds itself impelled to action, as with one heart and one mind. Singular, in the case of human swarms, with what perfection of unanimity and quasi-religious conviction the stupidest absurdities can be received as axioms of Euclid, nay as articles of faith, which you are not only to believe, unless malignantly insane, but are (if you have any honor or morality) to push into practice, and without delay see done, if your soul would live! Divine commandment to vote ('manhood suffrage'—horsehood, doghood ditto not yet treated of;) universal 'glorious liberty,' (to sons of the devil in overwhelming majority, as would appear;) count of heads the God-appointed way in this universe, all other ways devil-appointed; in one brief word, which includes whatever of palpable incredibility and delirious absurdity, universally believed, can be uttered or imagined on these points, 'the equality of men,' any man equal to any other; Quashee nigger to Socrates or Shakspeare; Judas Iscariot to Jesus Christ; and Bedlam and Gehenna equal to the New Jerusalem, shall we say? If these things are taken up, not only as axioms of Euclid, but as articles of religion burning to be put in practice for the salvation of the world—I think that you will admit that Swarmery plays a wonderful part in the heads of poor mankind; and that very considerable results are likely to follow from it in our day!

But you will in vain attempt, by argument of human intellect, to contradict or turn aside any of these divine axioms, indisputable as those of Euclid, and of sacred or quasi-celestial quality to boot; if you have neglected the one method (which was a silent one) of dealing with them at an early stage, they are thenceforth invincible; and will plunge more and more madly forward toward practical fulfillment. Once fulfilled, it will then be seen how credible and wise they were. Not even the queen bee but will then know what to think of them. Then, and never till then.

By far the notablest case of Swarmery, in these times, is that of the late American war, with settlement of the nigger question for result. Essentially the nigger question was one of the smallest; and in itself did not much concern mankind in the present time of struggles and hurries. One always rather likes the nigger; evidently a poor blockhead with good dispositions, with affections, attachments—with a turn for nigger melodies, and the like; he is the only savage of all the colored races that does'n't die out on sight of the white man; but can actually live beside him, and work and increase and be merry. The Almighty Maker has appointed him to be a servant. Under penalty of heaven's curse, neither party to this pre-appointment shall neglect or misdo his duties therein; and it is certain (though as yet widely unknown) servantship on the nomadic principle, at the rate of so many shillings per day, cannot be other than misdone. The whole world rises in shrieks against you, on hearing of such a thing; yet the whole world, listening to those cool Sheffield disclosures of rattening, and the market rates of murder in that singular 'Sheffield Assassination Company (limited,') feels its hair rising on end—to little purpose hitherto; being without even a gallows to make response! The fool of a world listens, year after year, for above a generation back, to 'disastrous strikes,' 'merciless lockouts,' and other details of the nomadic scheme of servitude; nay is becoming thoroughly disquieted about its own too lofty minded flunkeys, mutinous maid servants (ending, naturally enough, as 'distressed needle-women' who cannot sew; thirty thousand of these latter now on the pavements of London,) and the kindred phenomena on every hand; but it will be long before the fool of a world opens its eyes to the taproot of all—that—to the fond notion, in short, that servantship and mastership, on the nomadic principle, was ever, or will ever be, except for brief periods, possible among human creatures. Poor souls, and when they have discovered it, what a puddling and weltering, and scolding and jargoning there will be, before the first and real step toward remedy is taken!

Servantship, like all solid contracts between men (like wedlock itself, which was once nomadic enough, temporary enough!) must become a contract of permanency, not easy to dissolve, but difficult extremely—a 'contract for life,' if you can manage it (which you cannot, without many wise laws and regulations, and a great deal of earnest thought and anxious experience,) will evidently be the best of all. And this was already the nigger's essential position. Mischief, irregularities, injustices did probably abound between nigger and Buckra; but the poisonous taproot of all mischief, and impossibility of fairness, humanity, or well doing in the contract, never had been there! Of all else the remedy was easy in comparison; vitally important to every just man concerned in it; and, under all obstructions, (which in the American case, begirt with frantic 'abolitionists,' fire-breathing like the old Chimæra, were immense,) was gradually getting itself done. To me individually the nigger's case was not the most pressing to the world, but among the least so! America, however, had got into Swarmery upon it, (not America's blame either, but in great part ours, and that of the nonsense we sent over to them,) and felt that in the heavens or the earth there was nothing so godlike, or incomparably pressing to be done. Their energy, their valor, etc., etc., were worthy of the stock they sprang from; and now, poor fellows, done it they have, with a witness. A continent of the earth has been submerged, for certain years, by deluges as from the pit of hell; half a million (some say a whole million, but surely they exaggerate) of excellent white men, full of gifts and faculty, have torn and slashed one another into horrid death, in a temporary humor, which will leave centuries of remembrance fierce enough; and three million absurd blacks, men and brothers (of a sort) are completely 'emancipated;' launched into the career of improvement—likely to be 'improved off the face of the earth' in a generation or two! That is the dismal prediction to me of the warmest enthusiast to their cause whom I have known of American men—who doesn't regret his great efforts either, in the great cause now won, cause incomparably the most important on earth or in heaven at this time. Papae, papae; wonderful indeed!"

STATISTICS.—The following figures indicate the numerical strength of the various Methodist bodies in the United States:

	Members.
Methodist Episcopal Church (exclusive of the India, German and Liberia Mission Conferences)	1,130,096
Methodist Episcopal Church South, (1860)	757,235
American Wesleyan Methodists	20,000
The "Methodist" Church	50,098
Protestant Methodists (in the Southern States)	70,000
African Methodist Episcopal Church	200,000
African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church	60,000
Free Methodists	4,800
Primitive Methodists
Evangelical Association (exclusive of the German Conference)	57,226
Total	2,348,425

OLD Thomas Fuller quaintly says: Lord, my voice by nature is harsh and untunable, and it is vain to lavish any art to better it. Can my singing of Psalms be pleasing to Thy ears, which is unpleasant to my own? Yet, though I cannot chant with the nightingale, or chirp with the blackbird, I had rather chatter with the swallow, yea, rather croak with the raven, than be altogether silent. Hadst Thou given me a better voice I would have praised thee with a better voice; now, what my music wants in sweetness let it have in sense—singing praises with my understanding. Yea, Lord, create in me a new heart, therein to make melody; and I will be contented with my old voice, until in Thy due time, being admitted into the choir of heaven, I have another, more harmonious, bestowed on me.

MERIT has its season, as well as fruit.

AGAINST the fear of man there is no adequate argument but the fear of God.

From the Southern Christian Advocate.

DEATH OF A PATRIARCH.

Our venerable friend, John W. Glenn, of the North Georgia Conference, has been called home in the 73d year of his age. A great, good man has fallen; a man eminent for ability, zeal and wisdom; such a man as comes to the people of one State not more than one or two in a generation. We revered him living; we respect his memory; we rejoice in his rich reward.

All the information we have is found in the following paper, sent us from the Rome district meeting—a well-deserved eulogy:

With mingled feelings of sadness and joy the members of this district meeting receive intelligence of the death of our venerable brother in Christ, John W. Glenn—sadness for our loss, joy at his gain. So long and well known among us, so endeared by intercourse and friendship with nearly every single individual member of this body, it is difficult to repress our grief at the thought that we shall be permitted to greet him no more in our midst, but must lose forever his counsel and his presence.

Familiar in his intercourse, pleasant and instructive in his conversation; warmly and sincerely attached to the church of his choice; with native faculties of mind rarely possessed, and a force and power of expression which swayed the hearer at his will; with an integrity which marked his whole life as one of the crowning points of his character; with a zeal in the cause of the great Master which always made him an unwearied soldier of the cross; deeply imbued with the spirit of all truth, unpretending in his life, yet commanding the respect and admiration of all; with a logic so true and convincing that the judgment found no escape from its commanding grasp; with a power of ridicule and caustic wit which mercilessly excoriated and withered his adversary, yet with a pathos so soft and winning that the heart melted under its wondrous appeals; all combined with a wisdom and legal acumen which made him the counselor of the church, and, as he was not inappropriately called, the Blackstone of our denomination, he moved among us a father and a friend—one of the chosen men of Israel. An humble mechanic in the beginning of his career, making his bread by the sweat of his brow, with no advantages of education, and cut off, by the poverty of his condition and the necessity for personal manual labor, from the refinements of cultivated minds, yet baptized of the Spirit for the great work of the Gospel, he became a polished shaft in the hands of the Master, and ranked easily among the ablest and purest of our denominational leaders.

Abundant in labors, his capacity for labor was the only measure for the extent and amount of his labor. In our Annual and General Conferences, both before and since the separation of the Northern and Southern churches, as a representative of our people, our interests we felt always to be safe in his hands, and well guarded by his vigilant and active intellect and zeal. In outward life grave in his manner, and rather ascetic in his appearance, in the social circle he was the very spirit of gentleness and kindness, while around his own fireside, in the bosom of his home, he was indeed and of a truth the indulgent master, the affectionate husband, the tender father and companion of his children.

For some years he was a local preacher, but joining the Conference, the second year thereafter he was appointed presiding elder of the Cherokee district, embracing the counties of Habersham, Hall, Gwinnett, Dekalb, Fayette, Coweta and Henry, to the Alabama line and the Coosa river, thence between the Etowah and Oostanaula to the top of the Blue Ridge to the starting point; embracing a territory 1,000 miles each round, with the privilege of being at home but twice on each riding. For four years he discharged the duties of this work, and from that time to the day of his death the care of churches and the glory of his Master expended the energies of his Herculean frame and powerful intellect. At first disease invaded his body and confined him to his house and bed, until on Thursday, the 30th of April, A. D. 1868, in the 73d year of his age, he surrendered his charge with his life, and left his wife and children and friends and us his brethren to mourn our loss. But we mourn not as those who have no hope, for while we drop warm tears over his grave and most deeply feel our bereavement, yet we rejoice in the full assurance that from the harvest field below—he has gone to that rest which remaineth for the people of God. To us hath he left an example of faith and patience, of labor and love; let us emulate him in all his heroic Christian life, and so shall we meet him in the church triumphant above.

Resolved, That this district meeting, now in session, learn with feelings of deep sorrow that our venerable brother in Christ, John W. Glenn, is no more.

Resolved, That while we mourn his departure, we give thanks to God for the assurance that our loss is his gain; that he rests from his labor and that his works do follow him.

Resolved, That we affectionately sympathize with the family of our deceased brother, and commend them to God and the word of his grace.

Resolved, That this report and resolutions be published in the Southern Christian Advocate.

THE GREENE COUNTY AFFAIR.

Greene county, one of the wealthiest in the State before the war, has an unusually large negro population. The registered vote of Greene and Hale counties, which constituted one registration district, was, before the revision of registration in January, white 624, 6,225 blacks. With such a voting population it is not surprising that an undue proportion of carpet-baggers — adventurers without character, capacity or reputation—were drawn thither, and that a number of the most disreputable and vicious of the native whites joined in the "wild hunt" after official position through negro votes. These adventurers at once proceeded to the organization of secret societies, through which their control over their colored dupes was established and secured. In this way the negroes of the country were virtually made the slaves of a score or two of bad men, who used them solely with a view to their own advancement, and who hesitated at nothing calculated to promote their own ends. By some of these men the negroes were incited to insolence, violence and crime, and by others holding official positions, in the "bureau" generally, they were protected in their evil-doing. One Captain Claus, a bureau agent, in broad day light, in the name and by the authority of the federal government, on two several occasions compelled the civil authorities to release from jail negroes confined for crimes against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth, as in the statutes made and provided. Encouraged, stimulated and protected by these men, the negroes defied the laws and threatened the safety of the community. Arson became a common offence. For weeks scarcely a mail from Greene county but brought us an account of the burning of a residence, stable, crib, store-house or something of the sort. The court house and the papers and the records of the county were destroyed by fire. In almost every case of burning the circumstances were such as to leave no doubt that it was the work of an incendiary. Under these influences the negroes were daily becoming more violent and threatening. Every white family in the county lived in apprehension.

This was the condition of affairs. The whites were not disposed to blame too harshly negroes who, left to themselves, would have been orderly and well-disposed. The blame was properly laid upon those who instigated and prompted the lawlessness that threatened to involve a whole people in ruin and bloodshed. Such men as Claus, Hill, and their confederates, had made property and life insecure, and filled the country with uneasiness and fear.

Hill had been very active in this business. His character was infamous. A minister of the Gospel once, he had been expelled from the church for the grossest crimes. He had robbed the family of a minister of his own church of money contributed for their relief. He had been guilty of other acts not less criminal. He was shunned by all. Socially outlawed, the brand of infamy was upon his brow. The passage of the Reconstruction Bill was a God-send to him. It opened up to him a new field of action. Through negro votes he could get office and power, and wreak a long-treasured vengeance upon the people of the county. He promptly acted upon the thought. He had no descent to make to put himself on a level with the negro. He got a negro school, and became a high priest in the Radical party. He put on the cloak of "loyalty," and confidently assumed that it would cover and protect his iniquitous practices.

Under these circumstances it is not to be supposed that the people of Greene county looked upon him with much favor. It is certain that his presence was regarded as a menace to the whole community. And yet there was no law to reach him—his "loyalty" made his blackest deeds white as snow—his "loyalty" protected him.

But in an evil moment, for him and the community, he resorted to his old practices; and, caught in the very act of stealing, he was required to pay for the stolen property. He did not deny taking the property, so far as we know he did not pretend that the amount charged for it was exorbitant; but he refused to pay the bill. Dunned for this bill, and refusing to pay it, a difficulty ensued between him and Pettigrew; others standing near joined in, and a proposition, not carried out, was made to ride him on a rail. He was badly frightened and not much hurt. This is all.

A charge of "rioting" and "assault and battery" was made under oath by Hill against some twelve or fifteen young men of Eutaw, and they were all arrested and carried to Montgomery, and thence brought back to this city and held here in arrest for trial. Half of these gentlemen were proved innocent of any participation in the affair, and acquitted by the Court Martial. As to them, Hill had plainly sworn falsely. The others were convicted, mainly upon the testimony of Hill, and are expiating their offence beneath the burning sun of the Dry Tortugas.—Selma Times and Messenger.

Mr. Evarts on the Proprieties of Discussion.

The happiest portion of Mr. Evarts' speech, before the Court of Impeachment, was embraced in the discussion of that branch of the case in which the President is accused of using discourteous language in addressing the people when on his tour West, two years ago. As a specimen of the use which may be made of sarcasm by a scholar and a gentleman, it will not be easy to better what follows:

I find that the matter charged against the President is, that he has been unmindful of the harmony and courtesies which should prevail between the legislative and the executive. If it should prevail from the executive toward the legislative, it should also prevail from the legislative to the executive, except I am to be met with what I must regard as a most novel view presented by Mr. Manager Williams in his argument the other day, that "as the Constitution of the United States prevents your being drawn in question anywhere for what you say," it is therefore a rule which does not work both ways. Well, that is an agreeable view of personal duty, that if I wear an impenetrable shirt of mail, it is just the thing for me to be drawing daggers against every one else; noblesse oblige seems to be a law which the honorable manager does not think applicable to the Houses of Congress. If there were anything in that suggestion, how should you guard and regulate your use of freedom of speech? Now I have not gone outside of the debates which are connected with the civil tenure act. My time is sufficiently occupied with reading all that has been said in the behalf of the House on that subject; but I find a well-recorded precedent, not merely in the observance of a single Senator, but in the direct determination of the Senate itself, in passing on the question which certainly points at least to freedom of speech, as between two departments of the government.—The honorable Senator from Massachusetts, in the course of the debate, says on the subject of this very law in reference to the President:

"You may ask for protection—against whom? I answer plainly, against the President of the United States. There, sir, is the duty of the hour. Ponder it well, and do not forget it. There was no such duty on our fathers—there was no such duty on our recent predecessors in this chamber—because there was no President of the United States who had become the enemy of the country."

Well, now, the President had said that "Congress was hanging on the verge of the government." But here is a direct charge that the President of the United States is the enemy of the country. Mr. Sumner being called to order for that expression, the honorable Senator from Rhode Island, Mr. Anthony, who not unfrequently presides, with much urbanity, and so much control over your deliberations, gave this view as to what the common law of the tribunal is on the subject of the harmonies and courtesies which should prevail between the legislative and executive departments. He says: "It is the impression of the chair that these words do not exceed the usual (laughter) latitude of debate."—(Laughter.) Now that is the custom of the tribunal established by the presiding officer. Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, said: "I think the words objected to are clearly in order." (Loud laughter.) "I have heard similar remarks fifty times"—(continued laughter)—"without any point of order being raised." And the Senate came to a vote, the opposing members of which remind me of some votes on evidence which we have had on this trial. The appeal was laid on the table, 20 yeas and 10 nays. But that is not all. Proceeding in the same debate, after being allowed to be in order, Mr. Sumner goes on with his speech, the eloquence of which I cannot sufficiently compliment, as it would be out of place to do so, but it certainly is of the highest. Of course I make no criticism. He begins with the announcement of a very good principle. He says: "I shall insist always on complete freedom of debate, and I shall exercise it." John Milton, in his glorious aspirations, said, "Give me the liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely above all liberties." Thank God now that slave masters have been driven from this court. Such is the liberty of American Senators. Of course there can be no citizens of a republic too high for exposure; there can be no one too low for protection. The exposure of the powerful and the protection of the weak; these are not only valuable liberties, but command duties. Now is there anything in the President's answer that is nobler or more thoroughgoing than that? And if the President is not too high but that it should be not only an invaluable liberty but a command and duty to call him an enemy of the country, is not the House of Representatives to be expected to the imputation of a most intelliblo aspersion upon them, that they are hanging upon the verge of the government?—(Laughter.) Then the honorable Senator proceeds in a style of observations on which I shall make no criticism whatever, except that Cicero against Catiline and against Verres does not contain more eloquence against the objects of his invective than that speech of the honorable Senator. And then it all ends in a wonderfully sensible and pithy observation on the part of the honorable Senator from Michigan, (Mr. Howard,) who says:

"The Senator from Massachusetts had advanced the idea that the President has become an enemy to his country, but I suppose that not only to be the condition of the sentiment in this Senate touching the President of the United States, but I suppose we never had a President in regard to whom the opinion of the Senate was not divided, some thinking he was an enemy of the country, and others thinking he was not; and I respectfully submit, therefore, that the Senator from Massachusetts will be competent to try an impeachment, if sent here, against the President, as I concede the Senator from Maryland (Mr. Johnson) will be competent to try it."

Now that is good sense; Senatorial sense may be made so wide as that. We have also a report, in the House of Representatives, of a very brief debate between two of the most distinguished members of that body, who can, as well as any others for the purpose of this trial, furnish a standard of what is called by the honorable manager "propriety of speech." Mr. Bingham says:

"I desire to say, Mr. Chairman, that it does not become a gentleman who recorded his vote fifty times for Jefferson D. v's, the arch traitor in this rebellion, [roars of laughter,] as his candidate for the Presidency of the United States, to undertake to manage his cause by attempting to fasten the imputation either on my integrity or my honor. I repel with scorn and contempt any utterances of that sort from any man, whether he be the hero of Fort Fisher, not taken, or of Fort Fisher taken. [Continued laughter.]

Mr. Butler, after some remarks, said:

"But if during the war the gentleman from Ohio did as much as he did in that direction, I shall be glad to recognize that much; but the only victim of the gentleman's prowess that I know of was an innocent woman hung upon the scaffold, one Mrs. Surratt, and I can sustain the memory of Fort Fisher, if he and his present associates can sustain him in shedding the blood of a woman, who was tried by a military commission and convicted without sufficient evidence in my judgment."

Mr. Bingham with spite replied:

"I challenge the gentleman, I dare him here or anywhere, in this tribunal or in any tribunal, to assert that I spoliated or mutilated any book; but such a charge, without one tittle of evidence, is only fit to come from a man who lives in a bottle, and is fed with a spoon."

What that refers to I do not know.

Mr. Evarts, continuing, said—This all comes within the common law of courtesy, in the judgment of the House of Representatives. We have attempted to show that in the President's addresses to the people there was something of irritation, something in the subject, something in the manner of the crowd, which excused and explained, if it did not justify, the style of his speeches, and you might suppose that this interchange of debate which I just read grew out of the same subject, which was in itself savage and ferocious. But what do you think was the subject that these honorable gentlemen were debating upon? Why, it was charity.

A Senator—What?

Mr. Evarts—Charity; a question of charity to the South. That was the whole staple of the debate. Charity; which suffereth all things and is kind. [Laughter.] Charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself; is not puffed up; doth not behave itself unseemly: seeketh not her own; is not easily provoked; thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in equality, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things; believeth all things; hopeth all things; endureth all things; charity never fails. But the apostle adds, what may be exactly true in regard to the managers, "tongues may fail." [Laughter.] But now, to be serious. In a free republic who will tolerate the fanfaronade about speech-making? Quis tulerit gracchos de seditione querentes. Who will tolerate public orator's prate about propriety of speech? Why can we not learn that our estimate of others must proceed on general views, and not vary according to any particular passions and prejudices? When Cromwell, in his career through Ireland, in the name of Parliament, had set himself down before the town of Ross, and summoned it to surrender, this papist community, exhausted in its resistance, asked to surrender only on condition of freedom of conscience. Cromwell replied: "As to freedom of conscience, I meddle with no man's conscience; but if you mean by that liberty to celebrate the Mass, I would have you understand that in no place where the power of the Parliament of England prevails shall that be permitted." So the honorable managers do not complain of freedom of speech, but if any man says that the House of Representatives is "hanging on the verge of government," we are to understand that in no place where the power of the two Houses of Congress prevails shall that be permitted, although they meddle with no man's property or freedom of speech. [Laughter.]

Dr. Livingstone's Report of His Explorations.

The following communication from Dr. Livingstone, the great African traveler, was laid before the Royal Geographical Society of England, at its last meeting:

DISPATCH TO THE EARL OF CLARENDON, K G.
BEMBA, lat. 10 deg. 10 min. S.,
Lon. 31 deg. 50 min. E., Feb. 1, 1867.

MY LORD: On our arrival yesterday at this town we found that a party of black Arab slave traders was ready to start for Bugamoyo, near Zanzibar, and could remain only half a day to allow of our writing. The geographical matter must therefore be short. We could not go round the northern end of Lake Nyassa, as we intended, partly because the country had been swept of provisions by Zulu marauders, and partly because I felt sure that the Johanna men would flee at sight of danger, as they afterward actually did, on mere report, at its southern end. By striking southward we passed through a depopulated tract of about one hundred miles, but became acquainted with Mataka, the most influential chief on the water-shed between the coast and the lake. His town consists of at least 1,000 houses, and, the altitude above the sea being over 3,000 feet, the climate is cold in July. Some of his people had gone to Lake Nyassa to plunder without his knowledge, and he had ordered the captives and cattle to be sent back. It was gratifying to find that this was his spontaneous act; and I accidentally got a sight of the party, and found it to consist of fifty-four women and children, a dozen boys, and about thirty head of cattle. We remained a considerable time in his town, and longer in his district, which extends down to Lake Nyassa, fifty miles distant. He was very anxious that some of the freed boys from Nassick school should remain with him to show the use that could be made of his cattle in agriculture, but I could not prevail on any one to remain. One had discovered two uncles in the town, but refuse to live with them. "How can I remain where I have no mother and no sister?" was his invariable answer to the request for him to stop. I promised to endeavor to get some lads from the same school, who had acquired a knowledge of Indian agriculture, to show him how to make and use plows.

Mataka provided amply for our wants and safety while in his district; but he could not control the Arabs, who have placed two dhows on the lake, and kept them out of our reach lest we should burn them as slavers. I was therefore forced to go round the southern extremity of the lake, instead of across the middle. There we visited the three most important Waijan chiefs, and those who are still the greatest slave traders in the country. I do not know what effect, if any, our protest and explanations will have, but it seemed to be the first time they had heard their conduct condemned.

The Waiao people are very hospitable; and then an Arab, belonging to a slaving party which had been plundered of his slaves, came to us, and so wrought on the fears of the Johanna men by tales of the terrible Mazitu, or Zulus, that their eyes actually stood out with terror. They ran away under the solo influence of fear, and left me with only nine Nassick boys. The Johanna men had proved themselves such inveterate thieves in their way that it was a relief to get rid of them. We had been in Mataka's district from the middle of July to the end of September, and in the beginning of October tried to go westward, so as to avoid the Mazitu altogether; but the people of Kutosa, or Kichasura, were afraid to take us up Kirk's range, because some Arab slave traders had been driven thence by the exasperated inhabitants.—Katosa tried to get carriers for us, but in vain, and being an old friend, he at last turned out with his wives to do the work himself. Six stout ladies took up our loads, and soon shamed the young men with their sharp tongues. The range is only the edge of a high plateau, where the people, all Manganja, have not yet been led into buying and selling each other. We found them to be equally afraid of our people below, and, like all the interior people who have not been in contact with slavery, very kind. I gave a present of cloth and got ample provisions cooked for supper to the whole party and breakfast the next morning. The people were supposed to be Maravi, but are in fact Manganja, under different names, as Kaathuada, Chipeta, Echowa, etc. Their land is high and cold; their huts are plastered all over, even on the roofs, for the sake of heat by night. They are great agriculturists, and so many in number that one village is scarcely a mile from the other. We made short marches and had a great deal of intercourse with these mountaineers, and possibly our account of the evils of the slave trade may keep them from engaging in it headlong, as most Africans of this race are but too ready to do. The chief who had driven off the Arabs was delighted when I said I wished he would treat in the same manner all slaving parties of whatever color, but complained that his countrymen would not join with him in expelling an invasion. This is true, for each village being independent of every other, they have no more cohesion than a rope of sand.

As we went westward to avoid the Mazita, we turned northward as soon as we were past the longitude of their country, and nearly walked into the hands of a party out plundering. We met two villagers fleeing from them to some mountains, and went in the same direction in order to defend ourselves and them, but the Mazitu, after plundering the villages to which we were proceeding, turned off to the southeast. As we went northward we saw more and more of their devastations, and suffered considerably from want of provisions. Crossing the Loangwa and the great valley in which it flows—the bed of an ancient lake—we entered the Lobisa, a country of the Babisa, and for the first time got information as to the route the Portuguese followed in going to Cazembe. It is placed by the map makers very much too far east. We never came upon it, so trod on new ground. It will enable one to form an idea of the way we went if he conceives us going westward from Kalosa's, and then northward till we take up the point at which we left off in 1863. The watershed between the Loangwa and Chambeze rises up to 6,600 feet. The Chambezo was crossed in latitude 10 degrees 34 minutes south. It had flooded all its banks with clear water, but the lines of trees showing its actual size were not more than forty yards apart. I think that we are now on the watershed, though not the highest part of it, between Chambezo and Loapula. We suffered a great deal from gnawing hunger. The Babisa, who were among the first natives to engage in slavery, have suffered its usual effects. Their country is depopulated, and the few inhabitants, now living at wide intervals from each other, had no provisions to sell. In the Loangwa valley and also in that of the Chambezo I had no difficulty in securing supplies of meat with the rifle; but Lobisa had no animals, and we had hard times in marching through its dripping forests. We had no difficulties with the natives, other than those petty annoyances which are not wanting in even the smoothest life, and certainly not such as an explorer should mourn over. This town has a treble line of stockades and a deep ditch around the inner one. The chief seems a frank, jolly person, and, having cattle, we mean to rest a little with him. We are very much emaciated, but, like certain races of pigs, take on fat kindly. Our sorest loss has been all our medicines. We are 4,500 feet above the level of the sea, but, having rains every day, feel that we need, like the cattle of the people, the protection of huts. I regret that my geographical notes must be so scanty, but hope to send fuller information from Tanganyika. Our progress hitherto has been very slow. The boys cannot go more than seven or eight miles a day with their loads, and that is enough for me, too, with only a heavy rifle.

I am, etc.,

DAVID LIVINGSTONE.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order. If this cannot be had, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

CITY MONEY.

Five dollars of city money are now required to pay for the ADVOCATE for one year.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

DE KALB CIRCUIT—MOBILE CONFERENCE.

The Rev. Jas. M. Gann writes: "I have adopted the plan of inviting seekers to the altar at the regular appointments, and have conversions and accessions every round. What do you think about it?" Think! why, my dear brother, it is the true way, the old style, the way that Asbury and McKendry used to do, and we ought never to have quit doing. Many a good sermon is lost because, after cutting down the grain, the husbandman failed to shock up, but left it on the ground, went away, and when he came back found it either spoilt by the weather, scattered by the wind or eaten by the birds of the air.

LETTERS OF COMMENDATION.

Last week we copied from one of the city papers a police report in regard to Dr. Nicholson. Since then we have good reason for believing that the Dr. was innocent of the charge, but fell into the hands of a low set, (mulattoes,) who, after attempting in vain to levy black mail upon him, went forward and withdrew the charge, and a nolle prosequi was entered.

SPECIAL ORDERS NO. 116.

We call attention to Special Orders No. 116, of Major General R. C. Buchanan, appointing various Justices of the Peace and Police Jurors in the State of Louisiana.

"FROM SHORE TO SHORE."—A steel engraving (20x26) by F. T. Stuart, from a painting by Clarence M. Dobell. B. B. Russell, publisher, 55 Cornhill—$2 per copy—a boat freighted with childhood, youth, manhood and old age, crossing the river of life—a pleasing and suggestive conception, well executed.

SPASMODIC PIETY.—A quaint writer of another church compares a certain class of professors of religion to "sheet-iron stoves heated by shavings." When there is a little reviving in the church they all at once flame up and become exceedingly warm and zealous. They are ready to chide the pastor and elders for their coldness and want of activity. But, alas! the shavings are soon burned out, and then the heat goes down as it went up. They are never seen in the prayer room, or more spiritual meetings of the church again, until there is another excitement. If such people had not souls of their own to be saved, they would not be worth taking into the church. They encumber it, though they may themselves receive benefit from a connection with it.

THE CHINA MISSION.

Bishop Early is in especial charge of this great and increasing interest of our church. It is in fit hands. His large experience and unwasting zeal for the cause of the Saviour, centred upon this noble enterprise, will secure to it a place in the hearts of our people which it is entitled to, but hitherto has not had. If we add to this the youth and energy of the secretary pro tem., Brother Cunningham, his actual knowledge of the prospects and wants of that immense harvest field, we think that the future is decidedly more hopeful for the China mission of our church than it ever has been.

The bishop makes a call for one or two young men for this field—men of "gifts and grace"—not merely men who have the spirit to volunteer to go, but those who with this spirit are heartily indorsed and recommended for this work by competent judges. A missionary should be a reading man, a man of good common sense, a man of an inventive, enterprising mind, possessing tact enough to interest anybody, of great courage and steadiness, of a cheerful, hopeful temperament; a man of all-work—not merely a baptized student, but a man equally capable of study and work—"a workman who needeth not to be ashamed," when among scholars or saints, magistrates or people, artists or artizans; who has a fair knowledge of the sciences of the day; who can write as well as talk. He should have youth on his side, and though it is not easy to find a young man with all these points in a high degree, yet we may find them in a considerable degree. And withal he should have a sound body. Laying, as we are, the foundation of a great, may be the greatest, enterprise upon which the church of God ever entered, no less than opening the gospel to a race embracing one-third of the human family, a race docile and accessible, we cannot be too painstaking in securing right men for this mission. We hope that our able ministers, experienced elders, will aid the bishop in obtaining one or two such men, and communicate with him freely.

Our people are awakening to the immense interests we have in that distant field, and to the noble men who already represent us there. The value of this foreign missionary work to the home church is admirably put by the Rev. Mr. Punshon, in his address before the General Conference at Chicago, and we cannot do better than quote that part of it:

"During the progress of the last General Conference we had begun to celebrate the jubilee of our missionary society. We had a limited area to work upon—limited, I mean, in comparison with the vastness which bewilders one's senses here—and with schemes of chapel building and of extension pressing upon our people which might well be called gigantic. There was a noble response, upward of a million of dollars being laid cheerfully upon the missionary altar.

"We have reason to be very thankful for the progress of our efforts in this cause. The reflex influence of our missionary enterprise is a mighty one. In times of unhallowed speculation, when the foundations were put in peril, we have gone to our missions to attest our theology; in times of rebuke and blasphemy, when our honored religion was treated as a dream, we have gone to our missions to attest our experience. The zeal and faith of the home churches has been quickened by the tidings which have reached from afar. On that field where the subtlest attack of the century has been made upon our historic Christianity, even in the diocese of the Bishop of Natal, God has blessed us with one of the most wonderful and refreshing of revivals of modern times. (Applause.)

"Here also we are continually reminded of the lapse of time and the work of the great Destroyer. Two of the earliest missionaries, to whose labors in the island of Ceylon Bishop Thomson made such eloquent reference to-day, have, since I left England, been called to their reward: the venerable Father Swance, the last survivor of the band who went with Dr. Coke for the establishment of a mission in India, and another of our brothers, perhaps the ripest of Oriental scholars, the gentle, unassuming Robert Sykes Harding, both names fragrant as ointment poured forth, in that fragrant land to which Bishop Thomson referred. But though the workmen die the work lives.

"Never was the Missionary Society stronger—stronger in material strength, stronger in rich opportunities, in the best affections of our people, and in its hold upon their mighty prayers—than it is at this hour. How it must rejoice the founders of this enterprise, if they are permitted to look down from their haven of rest and peace. Beginning, as in an upper room, and with strange trembling at heart, the cause has gone on and prospered until from broad Australia to furthest India it has belted the world with a zone of liberality, and blessed it with an atmosphere of prayer. (Applause.) Your successes, mighty and marvelous as they are, are all our successes too, for you have all sprung out of the loins of the missionary enterprise. (Applause.)

"I regard it with no inconsiderable satisfaction to be able to remind you to-day that when Richard Boardman and Joseph Pilmoor, in 1769, were sent out to America, the first missionary collection was made in the British Wesleyan Conference. The ministers there assembled were the only persons who contributed, and the sum of upward of $200 was put into their hands. And just to show you how in those times the ministry were ahead of the laity, let me tell you of another thing, that on their way to bid farewell to their friends, Boardman and Pilmoor called at the city of York, now one of the most laborious and earnest of our missionary auxiliaries. They made their valedictory address to the people, and a contribution was taken up which amounted to $2 50. (Laughter.) And it was said, but I cannot vouch for the correctness of the tradition, but I believe it, that a special meeting for prayer was called for at five o'clock on the following morning, to return God thanks for such unexampled liberality. (Great laughter.)

"Hither, though with scanty means, but with firm trust in God, these messengers of the churches came, and looking at the majestic proportions of American Methodism now, albeit I say it unto you, how ye owe us your own selves besides."

NEW BOOKS.

From George Ellis, No. 7 Old Levee street, we have received

THE OLD WORLD IN ITS NEW FACE, by Henry W. Bellows. New York: Harper & Brothers, 1868. 12mo., pages 454. A book of travels in this day must present qualities of the highest order in the writer to receive serious attention. So many have traveled and written, and so much has been well said and poorly by these travelers, that a man now-a-days likes to turn a book of travels over, as a countryman does a letter, very often, and wonder a good deal before he ventures fairly into it. We can assure the general reader that he risks nothing in breaking the seal of these "Impressions of Europe in 1867-1868." The author writes from what he knows as well as what he sees. His mind is well furnished, his taste cultivated, and his eye accurate. He succeeds in telling a great deal that one wishes to know of the picture that is passing within his view, but which is hidden from the reader, and it is easy to accompany him and to realize what he is observing. He has been unusually fortunate in having access to the most considerable persons in the European world of church or state; kings, ministers, professors and divines move in the panorama of the author, and speak intelligibly as they pass. This is volume I. The second volume has not yet appeared.

POOR HUMANITY, by F. W. Robinson—No. 313 of the Library of Select Novels. Harper & Brothers, New York, 1868. Pamphlet form, 50 cents.

BRAKESPEARE, or the Fortunes of a Free Lance, by the author of Guy Livingston, etc. No. 314 of the Library of Select Novels. Harper & Brothers, New York, 1868. The author has laid the scene of this work in the times and in those parts of England and France which were made famous by the exploits and life of the Black Prince. The reader is repaid by a well-sustained reproduction of the Norman-English of that day. The hero is an honest Scotchman who, after the style of those times, adapts the profession of arms as the legitimate end of human life; and at the end illustrates the Scripture that they who use the sword shall perish by the sword.

From Messrs. Stevens & Seymour, 96 and 98 Common street, we have received

THE READABLE DICTIONARY, or Topical Lexicon, by John Williams, A. M. New York: A. S. Barnes & Co., 1868. 12mo., pp. 360. A great deal of information, arranged in a form of easy reference; for instance, the first division is "Of Light," and contains all words from "Lux" to "Jack with a Lantern," connected with the idea of light. The definitions are from the best sources, and are enlivened with short paragraphs and quotations highly instructive and entertaining. It embraces all departments of knowledge, whether of physics or metaphysics. We shall keep this book on a desk, within easy reach.

THE INDEPENDENT FIFTH READER, by J. Madison Watson. New York: A. S. Barnes & Co., 1868. 12mo., pp. 336. The selections are prefaced with a treatise on elocution, which is illustrated with diagrams in aid of orthoepy. Much attention is given to tone, modulations, quality, force and speed of speech. These are arranged specially for the use of public schools and blackboard exercises.

The April number of the Edinburg Review, the valuable reprint of the Leonard Scott Publishing Company, is at hand. As usual, full of sound matter from the best pens of Great Britain. We have been reading these English Reviews for a long time, and the interest with which we open one and look at its contents is as fresh and intense as it was twenty years ago. Contents of this number: The Positive Philosophy of M. Compte, Western China, The Monks of the West, Technical and Scientific Education, Bunsen's Memoirs, The Irish Abroad, Mallison's French in India, The Disraeli Ministry.

THE HISTORY OF METHODISM IN KENTUCKY, by the Rev. A. H. Redford. Nashville, Tenn.: Southern Methodist Publishing House, 1868. 12mo., pp. 479. This embraces a period from 1754 to 1808. In this admirable volume the author has indeed "rescued from oblivion the names and memories of the pioneer preachers of Kentucky." He has produced a contribution to the history of Methodism equal in value to any which has appeared in England or in this country, in romantic interest, stirring incident, and important record. It was in Kentucky and Tennessee mainly that the early Methodism took upon it the strength of a giant refreshed with wine. From these haunts of pioneer life it afterward went forth in marked singleness of purpose and power, and whole counties and States were directly impressed by its ministry and doctrine. Men who grew up with the rifle over the door, and within easy reach of the wolf and the Indian, became, when baptized into the spirit of life, Christian heroes. They attempted more and expected more than any who preceded them in the western continent, and succeeded. The preacher felt the spirit at his back, and stood up in the stand at a camp meeting and in his Master's name summoned every sinner to surrender; nor felt his work done unless the whole surface of the earth was covered with "the slain of the Lord." The writer makes the progress of one who has something to say worth saying. His style is happy in its ease and transparency, and in the fact that you don't think of it at all. We never heard him talk, but doubt not he has the true Kentucky gift of recital. Wherever we open the book he fixes the attention, and holds it, so that the reader is borne on a current of fascinating and exciting reality which increases to the very close of the volume. For sale by Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, N. O.

A GOOD MAXIM.—Here is a good maxim for the opening of the year: "When we are ready to do a thing, let us do it. Never wait for time or tide: they never wait for you." We remember that Mr. Thomas, one of the first English Baptist missionaries to India, was once asked by what system it was that he was enabled to accomplish the immense amount of labor which he was accustomed to perform. "System," said he; "when I have anything to do, I go and do it; that is all."

THE ACQUITTAL.

The President has the proud satisfaction of seeing the Constitution maintained in his own person. He has become historical in the best sense. Standing solitary in the composure of conscious rectitude, as a man and as a magistrate, he opposes the surges of enraged Radical power, and sees them break at his feet. He marked out a policy for himself, which few either of the North or the South advocated or approved, but which in the end has secured for him greater sympathy and brought to his aid more moral strength than he has ever had as President.

One cannot but admire the calm, unrelenting force of his position during the terrible struggle of the past two years, and of his unimpeachable integrity, preserved amid corruption unprecedented. His refusal to accept the unlimited patronage which the Civil Rights Bill offered, and which would have constituted him a Cromwell or a Bonaparte, is in marked contrast with those men and others who have made themselves illustrious by the sacrifice of their country. At a period when it was easy to revive the rage of war, and when a spark might have set every field on fire, he has by example quieted the blood of the violent, and has secured for the whole land the composing influence of time. He has demonstrated the value of strong and steady nerve in the pilot.

The import of this issue, made and won, is becoming more apparent every hour. The impeachment a failure—where is Mr. Stanton? Is he still sitting in the War Department, eating his meals with his watch-dogs around him? When he seized and held the War Department, and wrested from the Executive the army, he thus far constituted himself second head of the government. Now he is left in the vocative, and, unsustained by the official decision of the Senate, he stands forth convicted of the most daring act that a private citizen could be guilty of. He hurries to come down—it is well that he does—in the following manner:

At about 3.30 this afternoon (May 26) the President received the following communication from Mr. Stanton:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington City, May 26, 1868.

SIR: The resolution of the Senate of the United States, of the 21st of February last, declaring that the President has no power to remove the Secretary of War, and designate any other officer to perform the duty of that office ad interim, having this day failed to be supported by two thirds of the Senators present and voting on the article of impeachment preferred against you by the House of Representatives, I have relinquished charge of the War Department, and have left the same and the books, archives, papers and property in my custody, as Secretary of War, in care of Brevet Major General Townsend, the Senior Assistant Adjutant General, subject to your direction.

EDWIN M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

TO THE PRESIDENT.

And what of General Grant, who sustained Mr. Stanton in transforming the War Office into a blockhouse—what has this quiet citizen to say now in self vindication? What of his guards and armed servitors who refused the private secretary of the President admittance to the War Department?

What of the Congressional cuneus—the real head and front of all the mischief—now that the charm is broken and it cannot control the Senate by the crack of a whip? It looks to us much as if the intense Radicals had ventured all upon a single throw and lost. The decision in the McCardle case, it is well known, declares the Reconstruction Acts of Congress to be unconstitutional; and though unpublished, this gives much additional weight to the side of the President—so that, putting all things together, we think that those States which are held, under the Military Bill, by major generals and court martials have good reason to expect a speedy reassertion of their constitutional status and rights.

IF religion be the star you sail by, doubt not of a good voyage; at least you are sure of a good harbor.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The progress of the Pacific Railroad is so steady that no one wonders at its rapidity. Few consider, fewer still estimate the grandeur of the fact that both ranges have been surmounted. The Sierra Nevada mountains were regarded as the great obstacles to its construction. These have now been overcome by the Central Pacific Railroad Company, and the locomotive is now advancing across the Salt Lake basin to meet the Union Pacific Railroad, which is successfully crossing the Rocky mountain-ridges. The interval remaining to be constructed presents no engineering difficulties equal to those already overcome. It is confidently predicted that the whole line will be open for business in about two years from this time.

Accustomed as we are getting to the story, the Pacific Railroad is the marvel of our day. Nor can we easily exaggerate its effect on the development of the interior of the continent, and on the course of the commerce of the world, and the boldest can hardly overestimate the financial success of the companies which control it.

It will be seen by the advertisement in another column that the completed portion of the Central Pacific Railroad is already earning vastly more than its expenses and the interest on its bonded debt. The first mortgage six per cent. gold bonds on that end of the line are offered at par and accrued interest, in currency.

Letter from British Honduras.

BELIZE, May 6, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: Having been requested by many friends in Mississippi to write them and give my opinion of this country, I propose to comply with that request by asking you to permit me to address them through the medium of your valuable paper. I arrived in this place on the 4th of January last, after a voyage of seven days, that was any thing but pleasant. After we got ashore and got food, of which we stood in great need, we found ourselves in the midst of a polite and friendly people, surrounded by the beauties of a tropical clime.

As soon as my freight could be landed and my family located in a hired house I put out to look for a home.

After great exposure and labor in examining the country I decided to settle between the Moho and Rio Grande rivers, about one hundred miles south of this place.

The house of Young, Toledo & Co. sent down vessels, carrying plank and tools, to erect houses, where emigrant families can be accommodated till they can select their lands on which to settle.

Through the untiring energy of Mr. J. M. Putnam, the agent of Young, Toledo & Co., a town has been located on the bay shore, named Toledo, seven houses erected and four miles of road opened, connecting with a mahogany road three miles long, which gives the neighborhood seven miles good road. Sixteen families have already been settled, and land taken to settle ten or twelve more.

We have plank to floor a church, donated by Young, Toledo & Co., which will be erected as soon as we get our crops planted, when we will organize a church and open a school—the first with twelve or fifteen communicants, and the last with from fifteen to sixteen scholars, and should Providence favor us we will have a school for boys and girls in less than two years, where children can be educated in all the branches usually taught in the schools.

I propose to give my notion of the country, as follows:

THE CLIMATE

is the most delightful I have ever seen. Though we are now almost directly under the sun, and in the warmest month in the year, yet with the delightful sea breeze we are comfortable and sleep very pleasantly almost every night; and although this is the sickly season, there is very little sickness in the country, and labor can be performed by white men with less discomfort than in summer in the Southern States. And, so far as I have seen the country, is as rich as any man could desire. In the neighborhood where I live the soil is inclined to red or mulatto, deep and rich, in beautiful ridges, a few small mountains, and drained by creeks and branches with rock bottoms, without swamp or wet ground; can be tilled to the water's edge, the banks so high that they are free from overflow; abounding with springs of clear, pure water. Having been only four months in the colony, I can say but little from observation about which, so far as I have seen and learned, are abundant—sugar, coffee, cora, rice, plantains, sweet potatoes, yams, yampas, ginger, tobacco, peas, beans and fruits. All these are produced with as much certainty and as little labor as in any country.

THE SOIL

THE PRODUCTIONS,

LAND

can be obtained at from 40 cts. to $1 50 per acre, with a small sum paid in advance and time on the balance.

SOCIAL ADVANTAGES.

This country affords to Southern people but little in the way of social advantages. Our people having been insulted, as they have, by the attempt of Radicals to force upon them social equality with a race always held inferior by all cultivated and civilized people, are not prepared to accept and reciprocate as they should, perhaps, the politeness and friendship of these people. There are a number of ladies and gentlemen in this city highly cultivated and accomplished, who are of pure white blood, and there are a number of mixed-blooded persons who are well educated and intelligent, while the black population are honest and remarkably polite to all, both strangers and friends. I can say, from my own knowledge, that there is less theft in this colony than any place I ever saw.

DISADVANTAGES.

Under this head I will mention, first, the labor. This must be done by emigrants themselves, or Creoles, Spaniards or Caribs.

The first, Creoles, are altogether insufficient in numbers. The second mostly speak the Spanish language. The last are not, as a class, willing to be hired, and live in idleness, or dig boats and eat casava bread, which grows without cultivation. Those who work must have from $7 to $10 per month, and four pounds of pork and seven quarts of flour per week, and can scarcely be worked by tasks. The emigrants themselves do much more work than any of them. Land may be cut down, ready to burn, at a net cost of about $5 per acre.

Next I will notice the insects, reptiles, etc. The greatest annoyance, I think, is the sand-fly, because, I think, they will abate less by opening and improving the lands, and yet I think they will be confined mostly to the coast. Next, the bottle flies, which are abundant in some localities, are quite annoying, but I think will very much abate when the country is settled. There are some musquitoes in the forest, which I think will disappear on opening the land. Then there is an insect called beef worm, that exists during the dry season, more offensive to some of our people than all. It burrows in the skin, but when discovered may be easily removed by the application of a little tobacco. There is also another annoyance, the vampire bat, that in some localities is troublesome to man and beast. Red bugs are bad in the dry season, when settling a new place in the forest.

REMARKS.

I would not advise any person to emigrate here who is not willing to work and endure the hardship of a new country, or has money to hire labor.

I am convinced that one of the greatest difficulties with which we have to contend is found in the indolent habits of our Southern people. Many of them come here who are unwilling to work, and finding no way to live without it, leave the country, unwilling to acknowledge the real cause of their dissatisfaction. They get up objections to the country, many of them falsehoods or misrepresentations.

Persons write to me for my opinion about their coming to this country. I say, once for all, that I will not advise any person to come to this country or any other.

If my judgment, expressed in action, is not sufficient, I shall not make myself individually responsible for any man's removal.

As to the best time to come here I am not decided, but think November or December would be the most desirable.

As to the way to come, I advise emphatically that unless the present vessel, the "Trade Wind," or her present captain is substituted by another, that it is better to come by schooner, if the master is well vouched for.

Permit me to say to my friends that, after four months experience in this country, I have no disposition to return to the so-called United States.

Your's truly, L. PEARCE.

OBITUARIES.

DEATH OF JASON L. JORDAN.

The following resolutions were passed at the second Quarterly Conference of Black-Hawk circuit, Mississippi Conference, April 25, 1868:

WHEREAS, It has pleased almighty God to remove from among us our beloved brother, Jason L. Jordan:

Resolved, That in the death of Brother Jordan we deplore our loss of his honest and faithful counsels in our Quarterly Conference deliberations.

Resolved, That we lament in his death the loss to the church of a laborious minister of the gospel, a faithful supporter of the doctriaes of the church, and the example of his pious walk.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved and afflicted family.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family of the deceased, and that a copy be forwarded to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.
J. W. BALEY, Sec.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

MOBILE DISTRICT.

A District Meeting and a Sunday School Convention for this district will be held in the St. Francis street Methodist church, Mobile, commencing on Wednesday, the 17th day of June, at which the preachers and official members are requested to be present. Superintendents of Sunday schools are especially urged to be in attendance, with full statistics of their respective schools, and such other information on the subject as they may have at hand. Bishop Andrew, and perhaps Bishop Wightman, may be present.

Members, on their arrival, will call at Dr. Neely's office, in the St. Francis street church, and learn their homes.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Camden District, Montgomery Conference, will meet at Pineville, July 10th.

The official members will please be in attendance, prepared to make their reports at the first meeting.

ANSON WEST, P. E.

N. Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

German churches, Saraparue st.	April 19
Germaa Quarterly Conference, at Dryades street	17
N. Orleaas circuit, at Gretaa	26
Quarterly Conference for do	—
Baton Rouge	May 2, 3
Morean street	10
Thibodeanx, at Napoleonville	17
Felicity street	24
Carondelot street	31
Jefferson City	June 7
Plaquemine	14

Lay delegates will be aominated at these Conferences.

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

Natchez Dist. — Mississippi Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Cliaton circuit, at Chapman's S. H.	Mar. 21, 22
Jackson circuit, at Salem	28, 29
Woodville	Apr. 4, 5
Percy's Creek circuit, at Laurel Hill	11, 12
Amite circuit, at Ebenezer	18, 19
Liberty circuit, at Salem	25, 26
St. Helena circuit, at Day's	May 2, 3
East Baton Rouge circuit, at Black Water	9, 10
Wilkinson circuit	16, 17
Kingston circuit	23, 24
Natchez	30, 31

J. G. A. GODFREY, P. E.

Mobile District — Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul's	Apr. 11, 12
Whistler	18, 19
Cottage Hill Ct., at Hayneville	25, 26
Mobile, Franklin street	May 3
Mobile, St. Francis street	10
Eastern Shore, at Donnelly's	16, 17
Citronelle, at Mauvilla	23, 24
Pascagoula, at Antioch	30, 31
Bay Shore, at Village	June 6, 7
Ocean Springs Ct., at Ocean Springs	13, 14

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

Lafayette Dist.—Montgomery Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Marble Valley Ct., at Unity	Mar. 28, 29
Chandler Springs circuit, at Chandler's Spring	Apr. 11, 12
Arbacoochee circuit, at Chulafinnee	18, 19
Dadeville Ct., at Camp Hill	25, 26
Lineville circuit, at Copper Mines	May 2, 3
Montevallo circuit, at Camp Branch	9, 10
Montevallo and Isabella mission	16, 17
Lafayette circuit, at Sandy Ridge	23, 24
Fredonia circuit and Wedowee mission, at Fredonia	30, 31
Pinkneyville circuit, at Fliat Hill	June 6, 7

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Sammerfield	Mar. 21, 22
Perryville	28, 29
Randolph and Briarfield	Apr. 4, 5
Tascaloosa	11, 12
Havaana	18, 19
Greea	25, 26
Eataw	May 2, 3
Forkland	9, 10
Greensboro and Newberne	16, 17
Brush Creek	23, 24
Marion	30, 31

The meeting of District Stewards will be held at Greensboro, May 16th.

JAS. L. COTTEN, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi and Floyd circuit	May 2, 3
Wiasborough circuit	9, 10
Ion circuit, at New Salem	23, 24
Jefferson circuit	30, 31
Bastrop circuit	June 6, 7
Bastrop station	13, 14
Waterproof and St. Joseph, at Waterproof	20, 21

W. G. MCGAUGHEY, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Lonisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Manay Mission, at Ft. Jessap	Mar. 21, 22
Keachie, at Belle Bower	28, 29
Maasfield, at Friendship	April 4, 5
Greenwood, at Greenwood	18, 19
Shreveport	25, 26
Anacoco, at Elizabeth Chap'l	May 16, 17
Pleasant Hill, at Beulah	23, 24
Springville, at Springville	30, 31

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT,
NEW ORLEANS, La., May 27, 1868.

Special Orders No. 116.

1. Upon the recommendation of his excellency, Governor Baker, the following appointments are hereby made to fill existing vacancies in the Parish of Livingston, La.:

John B. Easterly, to be Police Juror, First Ward.

Adam Lobell, to be Police Juror, Third Ward.

Orao Kinchen, to ha Police Juror, Eleventh Ward.

Appointees will transmit to these Headquarters a copy of the required oath, upon acceptance of their appointments.

2. Upon the recommendation of his excellency, Governor Baker, the following appointments are hereby made to till existing vacancies in the State of Louisiana:

J. P. Wilkinson, to be Justice of the Peace, Eighth Ward, Parish of Ascension.

Nelson Taylor, to be Justice of the Peace, Fourth Ward, Parish of West Feliciana.

Appointees will transmit to these Headquarters a copy of the required oath, upon acceptance of their appointments.

By command of Brevet Major General R. C. BUCHANAN.

THOS. H. NEILL,
Major, 20th Inf., Br. Brig. Gen., U. S. A.,
Acting Assistant Adj. General.

Official:
NATHANIEL BURBANK,
Sec. Lt., 37th Inf., Bvt. First Lt., U. S. A., Acting Assistant Adj. General.

msy30 4t

A SUBSTITUTE FOR SARATOGA WATERS.

COOLING, REFRESHING AND PLEASANT

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.

In 6 oz. bottles, in powder. This Magnasia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick headache, sour or sick stomach, and all febrile cases. For sale by BARNES, WARD & CO., New Orleans, and by most druggists. Prepared by

ARTHUR ROGERS,
may16 3m 193 Spring street, New York.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's Domestic Family Physician describes all diseases and their remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR. S. S. FITCH,
may2 7mp 714 Broadway, New York.

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by

ROBT. FISHER, Agent,
may2 1y No. 203 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CLEAR, SMOOTH SKIN AND beautiful complexion follow the use of HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA.

It removes black spots, pimples, moth-patches and all eruptions of the skin.

IN THE SPRING AND SUMMER months the system naturally undergoes a change, and Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla is an assistant of the greatest value.

YOUNG LADIES, BEWARE OF the injurious effects of Face Powders and Washes. All such remedies close up the pores of the skin, and in a short time destroy the complexion. If you would have a fresh, healthy and youthful appearance, use Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla.

NOT A FEW OF THE WORST disorders that afflict mankind arise from corruption of the blood. Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla is a remedy of the utmost value.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT SARSAparilla cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors that make disease.

QUANTITY VERSUS QUALITY.—Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla. The dose is small. Those who desire a large quantity and large doses of medicine err.

THOSE WHO DESIRE BRILLIancy of complexion must purify and enrich the blood, which Helmbold's Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla invariably does. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENtrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla eradicates eruptive and ulcerative diseases of the throat, nose, eyelids, scalp and skin, which so disfigure the appearance, purging this evil effects of mercury, and removing all taints, the remnant of disease, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by adults and children with perfect safety.

Two tablespoonfuls of Helmbold's Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

An interesting letter is published in the Medico-Chirurgical Review on the subject of the Extract of Sarsaparilla in certain affections, by Benjamin Travers, F. R. S., etc. Speaking of those diseases, and diseases arising from excess of mercury, he states that no remedy is equal to the Extract of Sarsaparilla; its power is extraordinary—more so than any other drug I am acquainted with. It is, in the strictest sense, a tonic, with this invaluable attribute, that it is applicable to a state of the system so sunken and yet so irritable as renders other substances of the tonic class unavailable or injurious.

HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED Extract Buchu is the great diuretic—Helmbold's Concentrated Extract Sarsaparilla is the great Blood Purifier. Both are prepared according to rules of pharmacy and chemistry, and are the most active that can be made.

The best test of their purity and superiority will be a comparison with the properties as set forth in the United States Dispensatory.

My laboratory for the manufacture of Fluid Extracts has been visited by thousands of physicians and druggists from all parts of the United States, and the mode of preparation received their unanimous commendation.

Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Fluid Extracts are pleasant in taste and odor, and immediate in their action.

None are genuine unless done up in the steel-engraved wrapper, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

The proprietor was compelled to adopt such a wrapper because of the growing popularity of his articles, and to prevent spurious and dangerous counterfeiting.

H. T. HELMBOLD, druggist, of eighteen years' experience, and manufacturer of Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Principal Depots—Helmbold's Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New York, next Metropolitan Hotel; and Helmbold's Medical Depot, No. 104 South Tenth street, Philadelphia, where all desiring information should address communications, which will be promptly replied to, and the necessary instructions imparted.

Sold by druggists everywhere.

Price $1 25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6 50. may30 3mp

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT,
NEW ORLEANS, La., May 12, 1868.

Special Orders No. 103.

1. Upon the recommendation of his excellency, Governor Pease, approved by Brevet Major General J. J. Reynolds, commanding District of Texas, the following appointments are hereby made to fill existing vacancies in the State of Texas:

Wharton County—J. A. Hamilton, to be Assessor and Collector of Taxes; J. P. Morton, to be County Commissioner.

San Saba County—Wiley J. House, to be Assessor and Collector of Taxes.

Walker County—John A. Gulnn, to be Clerk of the District Court; J. Courisde, to be Clerk of the County Court.

Jack County—Jas. W. Robbins, to be County Judge, vice John W. Sellers, resigned.

Collin County—J. W. Thomas, to be Justice of the Peace for Precinct No. 1; J. R. Parker, to be Constable for Precinct No. 1.

Brown County—James M. Johnson, to be Sheriff, vice G. Lea, resigned; Thomas H. Keese, to be Clerk of the District Court, vice Daniel Clark, resigned; David McCallister, to be Clerk of the County Court; James Hudson, to be County Commissioner, vice David Baugh, deceased; Washington Chandler, to be Constable for Precinct No. 1; R. M. Vaughn, to be Constable for Precinct No. 2; David H. Mosley, to be Coroner.

Robertson County—D. P. Wheelock, to be Justice of the Peace for Precinct No. 2.

Brazos County—W. S. South, to be Justice of the Peace for Precinct No. 1.

Uvalde County—George W. Brown, to be Sheriff.

Appointees will transmit to these Headquarters a copy of the required oath, upon acceptance of their appointments.

2. First Lieutenant John N. Coe, Regimental Quartermaster, Twentieth Infantry, in addition to his other duties, will relieve Captain William Fletcher, Twentieth Infantry, from duty in the Quartermaster's Department, in connection with cameterial operations, at Baton Rouge and Port Hudson, La. Captain Fletcher will assume command of his company.

By command of Brevet Major General R. C. BUCHANAN.

THOS. H. NEILL,
Major, 20th Inf., Br. Brig. Gen., U. S. A.,
Acting Assistant Adj. General.

Official:
NATHANIEL BURBANK,
Sec. Lieut., 37th Inf., Br. F. Lt., U. S. A.,
may23 1m Acting Assistant Adj. General.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

POPULAR INVESTMENT.

Central Pacific Railroad Comp.'s

FIRST MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY are authorized by acts of Congress to construct, with the aid and supervision of the United States Government, the western and principal portion of the National Trunk Line between the Pacific coast and the Mississippi valley. They have built by far the most difficult and expensive portion of their road, and have an unprecedented working force extending the track across the Salt Lake basin. By the close of 1868 it is expected they will have 500 miles in full operation, and that

THE ENTIRE LINE WILL BE COMPLETED IN 1870.

More than Twenty Millions of Dollars have been expended in the work, and the available construction resources are ample for the remainder, as follows:

1. United States Bonds to the extent of $35,000 per mile, average.

2. First Mortgage Bonds to the same amount.

3. Grant of Public Lands along the route, 12,800 acres per mile.

4. Capital stock of $20,000,000, of which $5,000,000 is subscribed and paid on the work done.

5. Cash resources, comprising donations from California sources amounting to $1,250,000, net earnings, etc., 1865 to 1870, $6,500,000, making a total of more than Seventy Millions Upon the First 736 Miles.

One hundred and fifty miles are now built and in operation on both slopes of the Sierra Nevada range. The net earnings for the past year were over a million in gold, or more than four times the annual interest liabilities, and the net surplus for the present year, after payment of expenses and interest, is estimated at

$1,500,000 IN GOLD!

We have now on hand a supply, and are prepared to fill all orders at their

Par Value and Accrued Interest,

in currency, a limited amount of the

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS,

bearing six per cent. per annum—both interest and principal being explicitly made "PAYABLE IN GOLD COIN," conformably with the special laws of the Pacific States.

The Bonds are $1,000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in July and January, the back interest from January 1st being charged to the purchasers, in currency.

The Company reserve the right to advance the price at any time; but all orders actually in transitu at the time of any such advance will be filled at the present price. They are believed to be the most perfect and assured corporate security now offered, and are recommended to persons seeking desirable steady investments.

We receive all classes of Government Bonds, at their full market rates, in exchange for the Central Pacific Railroad Bonds, thus enabling the holders to realize from five to ten per cent. profit and keep the principal of their investments equally secure.

Orders and inquiries will receive prompt attention. Information, descriptive pamphlets, etc., giving a full account of the organization, progress, business and prospects of the enterprise, furnished on application. Bonds sent by return Express at our cost.

FISK & HATCH,
Financial Agents of the C. P. R. R. Co.,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

Offices of the Central Pacific Railroad Co.:
No. 54 William street, New York, and
Nos. 56 and 58 K street, Sacramento, Cal.

Subscriptions Received Through National Banks and Bankers Generally.

All descriptions of GOVERNMENT SECURITIES bought, sold or exchanged, at our office and by mail and telegraph, at market rates.

Seven-Thirty Notes converted into the new Five-Twenties, or any other class of Government Bonds.

Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, and favorable arrangements made for desirable accounts.

Gold, Coupons and Compound Interest Notes bought and sold.

Miscellaneous Stocks and Bonds bought and sold at the Stock Exchange, on commission, for cash.

Dealers and Investors out of the city desiring to make negotiations in any of the above may do so through us, by mail or telegraph, as advantageously as though personally present in New York.

Fisk & Hatch,

BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOV'T SECURITIES,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.
may30 4tp

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world; the only true and perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st., New York. mar7 1yr

AGENTS WANTED.—MALE OR female, to sell my new and splendid engraving, From Shore to Shore, suggestive of life's journey from childhood to old age. A perfect gem. Address

B. B. RUSSELL,
may30 4tr Boston, Mass.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOYED.—Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents; twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANG, may30 4tr 04 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.

STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address

A. J. FULLAM,
may30 1tr Springfield, Vermont.

THE STIMPSON SCIENTIFIC PEN.

ONE FORWARD AND TWO BACKward arches, insuring great strength, well-balanced elasticity, evenness of point, and smoothness of execution. Sold by all stationers. One gross in twelve contains a Scientific Gold Pen. One dozen Steel Pens (assorted points) and Patent Ink-retaining Penholder, mailed on receipt of 50 cents.

A. S. BARNES & CO.,
may30 4tr 111 and 113 William st., N. Y.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & Co.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely.—The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Your's, very truly,
SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO', MASS., June 9, '64.

MESSRS. BURNETT & Co.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than formerly. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair. With respect,

WM. S. EDDY.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.
For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may2 3mp

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips, will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being extensively used on children's first-class shoes. Sold everywhere.
may2 8tp

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT for Families.—Every family should have a case of Homœopathic medicine. Its simple directions and inviting sugar Pills are so indispensable for children, and so frequently meet the wants of those of larger growth, as to be a necessity. Sickness prevented is health and money saved, and that these simple remedies do arrest disease and restore health is incontestable. No family having once enjoyed their benefits would be without them. Humphrey's Homœopathic Specifics are prepared expressly to meet the wants of families. They are simple, convenient, safe and reliable, and their value has been confirmed by an experience of many years. A full case of thirty-five large vials and Book of Directions, with Specifics for every disease occurring in domestic practice, is sent to any address, by express, free of charge, on receipt of Ten Dollars. Address Humphrey's Specific Homœopathic Medicine Co., 502 Broadway, New York. Send for our Almanac. apr4 3mp

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge.

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs, of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash, or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly installments. Second-hand Instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.
apr4 1yr. HORACE WATERS & CO.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile,	$1 50	$1 60
Work of Christ, Marvin,	65	75
Ecce Ecclesia,	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson,	1 25	1 50
Lee and his Generals, half calf,	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles,	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals,	2 60	2 40

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.

ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

SICKNESS.

Paul's going to college was delayed for six months in consequence of his having intermittent fever. He was now thirteen and a half, and his father was seriously anxious for him to begin his career in life. While boys remain at home, if they have no great passion for study, they work just because they are obliged, or to please their parents; or else they do not work at all. But at college they must work; they become responsible creatures, which is the first step toward their becoming men.

Paul waited impatiently for the day of his departure. Charles and Edouard, home for the holidays, talked to him incessantly, the one of Saint Cyr, the other of Sainte Barbe. Paul had not his brothers' craving for a military life; he did not much care to see the world; La Vacherie was enough for him. He loved few people, but these few most devotedly; and was delighted at the prospect of helping his father and mother in their old age. His eagerness to start for college was because he might then the sooner leave it and come home.

His walks and talks with Edouard were interminable. 'Paul,' said Edouard one day, 'it is a great pity you are not entering at once into the upper school. I shall not see you half so often as I should like.'

'Papa says it is best to be high in whatever class one enters. I shall be among the first ten in the fourth class, he hopes; and I should be down at the tail-end of the third.'

'Yes, papa is right. Nobody cares for the exercises of the boys low down in the class; the professors hardly ever correct them at all.'

'Then how do they find out their faults?'

'They don't find them out; but it's all the same to the boys, who are bad scholars to the last. So papa is quite right; it is best to be high in a lower class. Look at Charles; he was never below the five first, and the day he was fifth he put on such a tragic air! But that only happened once.'

'And you, Edouard?'

'Me! oh I was once seventh, and once actually ninth. But it was because I was thinking of something which I couldn't make out in my mathematics. How furious Charles was! Take care, Paul. Don't disgrace the name of Bessard, or Charles will never look at you again!'

Meantime, Charles used continually to sit talking with his mother, for whom his affection seemed to increase daily. As he grew older he found out more and more that all mothers were not so good as his own. However busy he might be, every Friday a letter left Saint Cyr to comfort Madame Bessard's heart before she started for church on Sunday morning. She felt that her prayers had been granted—her eldest son, before becoming a soldier in earthly armies, was already a good soldier in the great army of Jesus Christ. She was content.

But Charles, returning home, was not content about his mother. He often found her with hot hands and a troubled face; she was easily fatigued, and the least agitation prevented her from sleeping. Tender as her husband was, with living constantly beside her, he did not perceive the great change in her so quickly as did her son.

One morning Charles and Lucie were walking in the shrubbery together. The child, who was just growing up into a young girl, dearly loved her eldest brother; but long absences had lessened their intimacy, and besides, Charles was nine years the senior. Lucie had an anxious look in her little face; from time to time she opened her mouth to speak and could not find courage. At last she said in a disturbed voice:

'Charles, what do you think of mamma?'

'Mamma? oh, she is pretty well—not quite well, perhaps.'

'Don't you notice that she is very feverish of evenings?'

Charles stopped and looked his sister full in the face. 'So you have noticed that too? I did, but thought I was mistaken. Papa does not seem anxious.'

'Papa is out of doors all day, and does not see her half so much as I do. Besides, you know, mamma loves him so dearly that when he comes in she always bestirs herself, sits up on her sofa, arranges her hair, and begins chatting with him as if there was nothing the matter, even though the moment before she was quite ill. Ah! women know how to hide their sufferings.'

'And you are a woman, of course,' said Charles, half smiling. 'But who has been giving you and Pauline your lessons lately?'

'We begged mamma to let us work by ourselves, but she never would; however, we do all we can at our lessons without troubling her.'

'I must speak to my father,' said Charles, thoughtfully. 'I am so sorry to disquiet him; he has cares enough; but it cannot be helped.'

Charles and Lucie were mistaken: M. Bessard was more uneasy about his wife than they supposed. As they returned to the house they perceived a carriage at the door.

'That is M. Bertin's carriage,' said Charles.

'I wonder if papa has fetched him, or if he has come to call accidentally. In either case, papa is sure to speak to him about mamma, and he will see her, which is much better. Why have they not called us, Charles?' And entering, Lucie found the drawing-room empty. 'Perhaps M. Bertin has gone up to mamma's room to speak to her more freely. What a comfort! He will oblige her to take care of herself.'

M. Bertin was an old physician, an intimate friend of M. Bessard's father, and acquainted with himself from his childhood. He was also much attached to Madame Bessard, and saw with alarm how ill she now was. After having talked with her, however, he felt a little reassured; advised rest and careful treatment. Then turning to M. Bessard, he changed the conversation by inquiring after the children.

'They are all here—the half-dozen complete. But three weeks will lessen the number. Charles will go back to St. Cyr, and Paul return with Edouard to Sainte Barbe.'

Mr. Bertin had not taken his eyes off Madame Bessard, and he noticed that at these last words her color rose. 'Poor woman!' thought he, 'what will she do when they are all divided from her—one in Algeria, one in China, and the third wandering about the world. She is already quite ill with the notion of Paul's going to Sainte Barbe. Luckily, he will soon come back again to her.'

The good doctor remounted his carriage, however, saying only that he hoped madame would take care of herself, and observe his directions, and that he would shortly return to see her again.

His prescription did so much good that Charles departed with an easy mind, making Lucie promise to write full accounts of his mother's health. Since he had discovered how wise his little sister was in this matter, he had quite made a friend of Lucie.

Paul left also, keeping up his spirits to the last moment. It was not until he embraced his mother and sisters, and gave his hand to Gustave, who did not approve of kissing now, that he broke down and was nearly crying. His father put his hand on his shoulder.

'Courage, my boy!' whispered he. 'Courage, for your mother's sake!'

So Paul jumped into the carriage without another look at those he was leaving.

This time the father did not accompany his sons to Paris. Edouard was quite capable of establishing Paul at Sainte Barbe, and M. Bessard declared he was too busy to leave the farm; but the real truth was, he did not like to leave his wife.

Madame Bessard guessed it all. For some days she contrived to keep her grief in the depth of her heart, and deceive both her husband and Lucie with the belief that she was much better; Pauline alone was more quick-sighted. Brought up with a sick father and a delicate mother, the child had learned when quite young to notice their least changes, and now all these old memories came back to her. Her aunt never sat down with a weary, worn-out look, but Pauline was sure to see it; and when Madame Bessard took a slight cold, and coughed all night, she said to Lucie, 'aunt is ill, I am sure.'

'Oh, no; it is only a cold, I trust.'

'Touch her hands to-morrow morning when we go into her room, and you will see how feverish she is. I wish M. Bertin would come here again.'

'Let us speak to papa—here he is. Papa, mamma is coughing very much. Could not M. Bertin come and see her without her knowing he was sent for?'

'I have written, and he will be here to-morrow.'

Pauline only hoped he might find her aunt still about the house, but she doubted it. Nor was she wrong. Madame Bessard had kept up until the last; her strength was quite gone; and during the night a slight attack of delirium warned her family how serious her illness had become. M. Bertin, uneasy at M. Bessard's letter, arrived early in the day, and declared her to be suffering from inflammation of the lungs.

'How is she to be nursed?' asked he. 'These girls are so young—mere children.'

'Oh, but we are old enough to nurse mamma, with papa's help and Annette's,' they cried.

'Good! you have Annette with you still; she has seen much sickness, and is a careful nurse. That will do; so, children, try your best. Where you fail, Annette will help you. There is not very much to be done.'

M. Bessard agreed to this plan and to his daughters' entreaties; besides, it was not easy to find a nurse who wholly satisfied M. Bertin. So Pauline and Lucie took turns in the sick-room all day.

The fever was strong upon Madame Bessard; she slept much, and scarcely spoke; from time to time she seemed to pray softly; then came moments when she evidently did not know what she was saying; she would call her sister, Madame Leonsac.

'Marie, Marie, why don't you come and see me? You stay so long away. Perhaps you are tired? Well, lie down on that sofa. Where is my husband? I fear he has been wounded! Those wicked Arabs!'

Then her voice would sink into silence, while the poor little nurse could hardly keep from tears.

It was sowing-time at the farm, and M. Bessard was occupied with indispensable affairs which he dared not neglect; still he came to and fro incessantly into his wife's room. But she did not always know him, and often it happened that at the very moment he was bending over her, she would cry out, 'Henri! Henri! where are you gone? Will you never come and see me?'

The day seemed very long. Pauline kept watch in her aunt's room until Annette came to send her down to dinner. There sad faces gathered round the table: M. Bessard, pale, and with his lips tightly pressed together, seemed scarcely to see anybody; Gustave, utterly bewildered without his mother, kept looking continually toward the door, as if he expected to see her enter.

Lucie and Pauline were very sad; but during their long day of watching by the sick-bed they had had time to look the danger in the face, to pray God to avert it from them, and meantime to give them courage to nurse her whom they loved so well.

Pauline could not eat.

'But you must eat, dear,' said Lucie, in a low voice. 'How can we have strength to nurse mamma if we eat nothing?'

So Pauline, imitating her cousin, swallowed a few mouthfuls.

M. Bessard was to sit up all night; Lucie begged him to go to bed at eight o'clock, and she would wake him at midnight. Worn out by his anxiety, and his hard work in the fields besides, the father consented. But first he called all his children round him, read them the ninety-first psalm with a firm voice, and then they all knelt down and he prayed God to have pity upon both parents and children.

No one counts time in a sick-chamber. Pauline and Lucie could hardly have told how many days they spent beside their mother's bed, listening to the tender words she used to say to them in her delirium; praying to God for her, and waiting for His hand to deliver them from their misery.

At length, one day, Madame Bessard woke after an hour's sleep and opened her eyes with a calmer expression. Lucie, approaching her bed, found her hands less hot than they were. The mother looked up fondly, and said in a low voice:

'My poor girl, how tired you must be!'

'Not at all, mamma,' said Lucie, repressing all her joy, for fear of agitating her mother. But she and Pauline fell on their knees behind the curtains, at the foot of the bed, in thankfulness for even this glimmer of hope.

M. Bertin confirmed the good news; and during the rest of the day Madame Bessard's progress was so rapid that she was soon pronounced convalescent. Very feeble still; but if there were no relapse she might be considered saved.

It was time. Pauline, who had never given way for an instant until now, showed signs of extreme fatigue. M. Bessard, who had sat up every night, while going about his farm-work all day, seemed to have grown ten years older in as many days. Lucie alone did not appear worn out, though she had scarcely quitted her mamma all day long, and had risen several times in the night to come for tidings of her. But the child's strength of mind and body had developed according to her need. M. Bessard was very proud of his daughter, and M. Bertin declared he would give to Mademoiselle Lucie any day a certificate as sick nurse.

'Poor children!' said Madame Bessard, sadly, one morning when she lay looking at her two busy little daughters, 'how I have made them lose their time!'

'Don't regret it, Helene,' said her husband, 'During your illness they have learnt a more useful lesson than any which books could teach them.'

One month after the day when she first took to her bed Madame Bessard came down into the drawing-room for the first time. Her daughters had found in the garden a few branches, with which they had filled the vases. On the table, near the sofa, was a bunch of roses.

'Whence came these?' asked she, as soon as she was settled in her pillow. 'Roses in the month of November?'

'Charles sent them, mamma.—They arrived this morning from Paris. It was his answer to my letter, in which I told him, for the first time, how very ill you had been. For if he had known all the truth, nothing would have kept him at Saint Cyr.'

'It was best so. Oh, my dear, dear children!' said Madame Bessard; and, joining her hands together, she thanked God from the bottom of her heart for her recovery.—A French Country Family, translated by Miss Mulock from the French of Madame Guizot.

FARM AND GARDEN.

IS OUR CLIMATE CHANGING?

The year 1867 was a remarkable one in respect to its atmospherical character. The spring opened with heavy rains, and those rains continued almost without intermission in the Atlantic States quite into the month of September. While, however, an unusual quantity of rain fell in the East, the West was remarkable for the dryness of its atmosphere; so much so that the corn crops in many localities were very light. On the Atlantic coast an extraordinary amount of water fell; and the consequence was that the fruit crops of a certain character, the strawberry, raspberry, etc., were remarkably heavy, the former berry rarely having been known to sell so cheap in the markets here. The rains last year destroyed the cherry crop almost entirely; not set in, and the decay was so rapid that many an orchard in twenty-four hours lost all its fruit. We discover the same signs of a steady rainy season on the Atlantic coast this year; and speculation is attempting to account for so peculiar an atmospherical condition. Some as yet unexplained cause is operating upon the elements which make up our sea-coast climate. There appears to be a new set of laws at work, and this 'reconstruction' is not so favorable to the general development of the crops of this country in the range of 42 degrees as the old atmospherical condition of five years ago and back. What is to pay? Who can tell? Agassiz says he will not attempt to prognosticate twenty-four hours ahead what is to take place within sixty miles of the earth's surface. He declares that the laws which govern storms and calms, sunshine and rains, high and low degrees of temperature in each season, are not sufficiently well understood to enable any one to venture an opinion. We are told that the Gulf Stream has changed its position, and is now nearer the coast line by twenty to fifty miles than ever before. This change is hinted at as the supposed cause of the singular condition of our atmosphere, and the remarkable amount of moisture, constantly gathered up, condensed and showered back again upon our coast. The air circulates in curves. All storms are circular movements of the atmosphere made with great rapidity. The vast bodies of moisture gathered up and held in what we call clouds comes down in winter in the shape of snow, and in summer in the condition of rain. We know that evaporation from the great ocean is constantly active, but from the higher temperature of the Gulf Stream it must part with a thousand fold more moisture in a given amount of time than the ocean which surrounds it. Inasmuch as this stream is nearer our coast than ever before, may it not be giving out its moisture into a current of air, the course of which lies over the Atlantic States, and meeting the strata of atmosphere resting upon the earth and warmed by the latent heat given out, condensation at once disposes of it, and a constant showering is kept up on the Atlantic border.

Big clouds draw the lesser. While this peculiar state of atmosphere exists on the Atlantic coast, while we get, in this region, all the evaporation of the Gulf Stream concentrated over our heads, the result of this constant huge deposit of moisture must tend to attract the rain clouds from the interior, unless the currents of air move in a circuit too narrow to bring them within the influence alluded to here. There are, it is quite possible, laws, operating five to fifty miles above the earth's surface, the results of which are like those producing the trade winds of the eastern seas. In that case the influence is observable on the earth's surface. Here it is too far from the surface to be noticed; but we get the deposits of moisture these clouds bring, quite steadily, month after month. Were the Gulf Stream to move back to its old position the circular air current would perhaps not reach it, and we should not get the amount of rain now, and for the past year so copiously poured down. What has caused the change of the locality of the Gulf Stream is an interesting speculation; and, in consequence of the apparent results of that change, the subject is most interesting to the agricultural world, both here and in the West. —New York Day Book.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A J Wright, A M, President
Mrs A A Wright, Principal,
Mr R Scott Ricketts
Miss Anna M Ross
☞ Miss C A Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.
Other Instructors will be announced.

☞ This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars Apply to A J WRIGHT,
D G Hamphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. aag 24

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October, 2d, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session. $360.

PAYMENTS.—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability,
W. H. N. MAGRUDER.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3 6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL.

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES!

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets,

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

On the corner of Camp and Common sts,

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building).

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals or Book-keepers in a large portion of the old houses of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR,
nov 17 1y President.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN, & TIFT,
Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.,
102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.
Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Improved Rotary Yoke.
All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.
Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. je6 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturer's prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the Implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
n17 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,

oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev J E C Doremus, D D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testimontary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans: then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $30 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not; to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S.; by founding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades, and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church, the Board of Directors, representing in its body all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God; for except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the heart-cry of the Great Reformation. No forbidding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment: God's Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. a25 1y

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
a 1120 1y New Orleans

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by J. E. BAILEY,
feb 9, 1y Formerly of Chartres Street.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and, the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent	$67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency	27 00
French	15 00
Music, with use of instrument	37 50

Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of travelling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10-3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McCOMBER, A M, Pres't, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Gen. J C MOORE, A M, Prof. of Mathematics,
Rev. B F KAVANAUGH, M D, Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science,
I H KAVANAUGH, M D, Prof. of Natural Science
B F BROWN, A B, Principal Preparatory Department.
D V LUSK, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868, closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

Collegiate	$24 00	Preparatory	$20 00
Elementary	16 00	Primary	13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate	$36 00	Elementary	$24 00
Preparatory	30 00	Primary	20 40

Modern Languages. (extra) $2 00 per month.

No Incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie — a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O. H. McOmber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas.
july 13-tf

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The institution is under control of the M. E. Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address

REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
jy 13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent, as Compared with any other Stove.

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to THE GOOD SAMARITAN, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this apparatus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, THE GOOD SAMARITAN to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of COOKING STOVES, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn.)
62 Camp street,
july 6 1y Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1.

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1860

OLIVER W. RACE. WM. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, La's Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—THOSE DESIRING THE NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. ROBT. J. HARP, Agt., Lock Box 814. New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR

For Single Copies	each 50c
For any number less than 5	" 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address	" 40c
For any number over 25	" 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

☞ Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays,—Biographical and Descriptive,—Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Ones a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenæum, The Examiner; The London, Saturday, and Fortnitly Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwood's, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Damas, Mrs. Oliphant, J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swineburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR AND FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews	$4 per Annum
For any two of the Reviews	7 "
For any three of the Reviews	10 "
For all four of the Reviews	12 "
For Blackwood's Magazine	4 "
For Blackwood and one Review	7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews	10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews	13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews	15 "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48,00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the POSTAGE to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORTON, of Yale College. 2 vols. Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, postpaid, $8. feb 2

JOHN O. PARHAM, of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug24 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS,

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

92 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $1 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen.

Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mar14 3m Lock Box 847, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.

Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.

Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.

Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.

Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $45 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, JR.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Hortense Fodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Guild, School of Design.

Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar14 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home-literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people. ☞

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. ED.
sept 28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Full Term in College	$30 00
Contingent Fee	3 00
Tuition—Full Term in Preparatory School	$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee	2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C RAIFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 50 Camp street, New Orleans.

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N.O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HOSSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.

sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
n1y Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,

Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot-Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans' Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are or sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-67-6m

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements,—of many years standing,—affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package,	$1 00	Postage	6 cts.
Six packages,	5 00	"	27
Twelve packages,	9 00	"	43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.
c 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages taught by experienced professors. Instruction is given to each student, who can select his own studies.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Enston, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

apr4 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
n25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

WALLACE & CO.,

Importers and Jobbers of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, and

PLANTATION CLOTHING,

CORNER MAGAZINE AND COMMON STREETS, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

☞ Sales guaranteed at New York prices. a18 1y

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano; and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

114 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH-WEST;" by J. G. Jones	$1 25
AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones	50c
THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINISCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder.	$1 50
PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler	$2 00
SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with Instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail	1 25
NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin	$1 00
"ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile. Baksr	$5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt	6 50
ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evens	2 00
BILL ARP	1 50
PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS	10 00
KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully Illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth	25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent, feb 2 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months	$150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos.,	60
" " Preparatory " " "	40
Fuel, for Boarders, " "	10
" " Day scholars, " "	5
Music on Piano, " "	50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each,	5

No extra charge for Greek or Latin.

Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of pianos.

Oil Painting	$30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each,	20

No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi annually, in advance:

For further information, apply to jnly 6 3m B. ARNOGAST, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable one, healthy one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months	$15 00
Primary Department	20 00
Collegiate	25 00
Music and Piano	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Vocal Music	2 50
Incidental fee	2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month	18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks	$30 00
Music	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Languages, each	10 00
Incidental Fee	2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month	20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing	16 00

aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,

Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct6 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course,	$30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee,	10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information.

Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80,00
Incidental Fee	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75,00
Incidental Fee	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board of Trustees
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
FEB.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
MAR	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
APR				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
MAY						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
JNE		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JLY					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
SEP.	30	31
			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
OCT					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
NOV	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
DEC			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31

To AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The general market has exhibited increased dullness since our last issue. We hear reiterated complaints in every department of trade that the summer stagnation has commenced this year at a much earlier period than usual, and there appears to be little or no hope of any revival before the incoming of the next crop and the opening of the fall business. Tobacco presents the only exception to the general apathy, but the movement in it is checked by the limited stock on hand. The receipts of our leading staple have fallen off more rapidly than has been expected, and with a considerable portion of the stock held by speculators, who are unwilling to sell at present rates, the amount offering is less than might be supposed from the aggregate supply. Operations in the staple have been moreover checked by the unfavorable tenor of the Liverpool telegrams and the discouraging tone of the foreign letters, the effect of which is seen in a further decline of one cent per pound. The business in Louisiana sugar is confined to retail transactions, and operations in Cuba are restricted by light supplies. Western produce has shown unusual dullness, the movement in nearly every branch being confined to a limited jobbing business.

Cotton.—We left the market, at the time of our last report, ruling at 27 to 27½c. for Good Ordinary, 28 to 28½ for Low Middling, and 29 to 29½ for Middling, but with few sellers willing to accept the outside figures. On Saturday the favorable accounts from New York, and less discouraging telegrams from Liverpool, induced holders to be still more stringent in their pretensions, but as buyers were unwilling to go on at any advance on previous rates, the movement came nearly to a stand-still, and the day's business was confined to 150 bales, at prices showing no improvement. On Monday the discouraging tenor of the news, noticed in the resume in our preliminary remarks, prevented anything being done in the early part of the day, but on some holders evincing a willingness to meet the demand at concessions from previous rates, a few buyers came forward and took 1,000 bales, at figures showing a decline of fully one-half a cent, the bulk of the business being on the basis of 27½ to 27¾ for Low Middling, and 28½ to 28¾ for Middling, although most authorities still retained 28 and 29c. as their outside quotations for these grades respectively. On Tuesday the market opened under the depressing influence of a further decline reported at Liverpool, but as buyers were enabled to operate at prices showing a corresponding reduction, the movement was resumed, and 1,200 bales changed hands at figures one fourth to one-half cent less than Monday's rates.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 2,350 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 714 bales, against 470 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 244 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 577,903 bales, against 678,601 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 335,257 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 118,703 bales to Great Britain, of 27,779 to France, and of 113,396 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	—	to —
Ordinary	—	to —
Good Ordinary	26	to 26½
Low Middling	27	to 27½
Middling	28	to 28½
Strict Middling	—	to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales		15250
Arrived past three days. 888		—
Arrived previously	651096-651984
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc	3239—655223
		670479
Exported past three days	3681
Exported previously	638946—	642327
Stock on hand and on ship-board, bales		28152

Sugar.—The market for Cuba sugar continues dull, but the stock on hand being light, prices are firmer and fuller. There have not been any important sales since our last review, excepting 100 hogsheads good grocery grades at 13½c. per lb. Choice grocery grades are retailing at 14 to 14½c. per lb. in hogsheads, and 13 to 14½c. in boxes. There is but little Louisiana sugar in market.

Cattle Market.

Jefferson City, Tuesday Evening, May 26, 1868.

Western Beef, choice, per lb net	12c	to 15
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net	—	to —
Texas Cattle, choice, per head	$45	to 55
Texas Cattle, 2d qual, per head	30	to 40
Texas Cattle, 3d qual, per head	18	to 25
Hogs, per lb gross	10c	to 11
Sheep, 1st quality, per head	$ —	to 6 00
Sheep, 2d " "		to 3 00
Sheep, 3d " "		to 1 25
Milch Cows, choice, per head	80	to 125
Milch Cows, per head	50	to 87
Texas Cows, with Calves	—	to 20
Yearlings, per head	6	to 12
Calves, per head	6	to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 50	10 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	18 00
Spades	11 00	19 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₱ yard:
Kentucky	18½	20
East India	22½	24½
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₱ lb	8½	9
Bran, ₱ 100 lbs		1 50
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs.: Pilot		7 50
Crackers	7 00	8 50
Bricks, Lake, ₱ M	15 00	16 00
English, Fire	45 00	50 00
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow		21
Adamantine	17	21
Star	18	25
Chocolate, No 1, ₱ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₱ bbl
Northern	13 00
Coal, Cannel ₱ ton		15 00
Anthracite ₱ ton		10 00
Western, ₱ barrel		55
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₱ lb	14½	18
Havana	45	55
Java	30	35
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	15 00
Hulled, ₱ bushel
Copper, Braziers' ₱ lb	35	36
Sheathing
Copper Bolts	35	36
Yellow Metal	28	29
Cordage, Manilla, ₱ lb	23	24
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₱ bbl	4 75
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y		3½
——St. Domingo	4
Fustic, Tampico	5
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 25	1 75
Madder	15	17
Eggs, ₱ doz. Western	19	20
Feathers, ₱ lb	60	70
Fish, Cod, ₱ box		1 50
Herrings		60
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl		20 00
——— No. 2	16 00	16 50
——— No. 3		13 00
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	4	6
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Superfine	8 75
Extra	9 00	14 50
Fine	7 25
Fruit, Prunes, ₱ lb		16
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	7½	8
Currants, Zante		14
Almonds, soft shell	30	32
Raisins, M R, ₱ box	none	here
——Layer	4 40	4 50
Lem's Sicily ₱ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₱ box	5 00	5 25
Oranges, La. ₱ 1000
Sicily ₱ box
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 80
10 x 12	3 90	4 00
12 x 18	4 40	4 90
Grain, ₱ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 80	3 00
Canada	2 90	3 10
Oats	80
Corn, shelled ₱ bushel	1 05	1 12
Beans, ₱ bbl	19 00	23 00
Hops, ₱ lb	40	50
Gunpowder, ₱ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₱ bag	20
Hay, Western, ₱ ton	10 00	20 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₱ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	16	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	9½	0¾
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₱ piece
Iron, Pig ₱ ton	45 00
Country Bar ₱ lb	5	6
English, ₱ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₱ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Boiler	8	9
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	7	7½
Castings, American	6½	8
Lime, Western ₱ bbl
Shell Lime	1 75
Rockland, &c	2 25
Cement	3 00
Molasses, ₱ gallon:
Louisiana
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	75	85
Moss, ₱ lb:
Gray, Country	3
Blank do	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	6½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₱ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
English	10	18
Naval Stores, ₱ bbl:
Tar	3 00	6 00
Pitch	4 50
Rosin A No. 1	3 75	3 80
No. 2	3 25	3 50
No. 3	3 00
Spirits Turp ₱ gallon	60	65
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₱ gallon	1 60
Coal Oil	39	42
In casks	50	55
Cotton Seed, Crude		85
Refined	1 05	1 10
Tanners' ₱ gallon	90	1 15
Oil Cake, Linseed ₱ ton
Cotton Seed		35 00
Meal
Provisions, ₱ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	20 00	21 00
" North half bbl	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₱ lb	15	16
Tongues ₱ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess		29 50
Prime Mess
Hog, round, ₱ lb	14
Bacon, Hams, ₱ lb	15
Do., canvassed	18½	20
Sides	17	18
Shoulders	13½
Green Shoulders		14½
Lard, Prime, in tierces	19½	20
In kegs	20½	21
Fair, in tierces
Butter, Northern	60	65
Western	48	55
Cheese, American	7	18
Potatoes, ₱ bbl	3 00	4 25
Onions
Green Apples	3 50	4 50
Rice, ₱ lb, Louisiana	6	11
India	10½	10½
Carolina	11½	12
Saltpetre, refined, ₱ lb	14	25
Crude	13	15
Salt ₱ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 50	2 55
from store	2 60	2 65
coarse, cargo
from warehouse	2 00	2 65
from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₱ bushel	1 90	2 00
Soap, ₱ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	18	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₱ lb:
In the city	14½	17
Havana, White	15	15½
Yallow	12½	14
Brown	11½	12½
Tobacco, in hhds, ₱ lb:
Balers & Cutters
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9½	12½
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	8	11
Good Refused	7	8
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₱ lb	60	80
Balling	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₱ lb	32	34
Burry	10	12
Louisiana, Native	20	23
Texas, (@) Merino	27	28

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as references for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 83 Carondelet street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

Atlanta, February 13, 1868.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Coller's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D,
Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D,
Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wynn parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Coller, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible cure for Cancer

Rev J F BELLAMY,
Rev J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years. I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Coller's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar. I believe Dr Coller can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y Moore

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the cure

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Coller

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES,

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $30.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's unabridged, Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sunday School Union's Biblical, and Anthon's Classical.

Books for

PRIZES, HOLIDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS,

beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care.

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound:

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell, $4 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, propaid, for 50 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

fe29

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,

GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman, D D., LL D.
Rev. E Wadsworth, A M, D D,
O as , A M.
Rev. J C Wills, A M.
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this Institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term, ... $40 00
Incidental fee, ... 5 00
Tuition in Preparat'y school per term $30 to $35
Contingent fee $2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

July 27-tf O F CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has a good school, which is designed to be permanent, in successful operation, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He would board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elementary Branches $20 00
Higher Branches 25 00
Latin, Greek, etc 30 00

French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B. CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja 18-1 m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

On the 9th of January next we begin our Spring session. We invite those seeking Collegiate advantages to consider ours. To our Southern friends, desiring repose and exemption from many of their peculiar annoyances, our location and surroundings are especially attractive. One hundred and fifteen dollars will cover the expenses of a session of five months, including tuition, board, fuel, room rent, washing, and contingent fee. A catalogue or other information can be obtained by addressing,

E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
Emory P. O., Va.

[dec 7]

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin	60c.
Sent by mail at	70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan	$1 50
" Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep	$1 25
Roan	1 50
Roan Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00
S. S. Bells (single)	$4 25 per doz.
" " (Double)	6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

july 27 tf

H. F. GIVEN, W. G. BROWN.
D. A. GIVEN, R. K. DUNKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186.....COMMON STREET.....180

fah3-67 1y

$100 A MONTH

SALARY WILL BE PAID FOR Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample, retailing at $1 50, for 50 cents. A. D. BOWMAN & CO., 48 Broad street, New York.

[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 3m

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY,

308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(John Gennes—Jos. A. Shakspeare—S. Swoop.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 18 '67, 0m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondelet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

jan 20 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 83 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.,

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.,

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBURG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Foundries and Steamboats. nov9 6m

T H HOGINNOTHAM, O. W. HODGE W. R. MAYO, New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants,

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.,

ul y6 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS,

Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

J. L. DUNNICA. G. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 99 Poydras street, New Orleans, La.

Agents for the following brands of flour, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

McCutcheon, Gordon & Co. choice XXX. W Rosborough & Co, choice XXX. Sucker State choice X. Sparta Mills choice superfine.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J. L. DUNNICA & CO.

sep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A fresh supply of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE.

S. B. ALBERS, Agent, 251 St Charles st. Opposite Tivoli Circle, New Orleans.

[dec 14-1y]

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION

AND

FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No. 64 North Commercial street.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Ragging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled: aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR,

AND

COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART, Late Stuart & James. } NEW ORLEANS

Represented by Capt. J. A. Binford, Duck Hill, Miss. oc20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS,

General Commission Merchants,

And Commercial Agents. aug25 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchoupitoulas Street,

And 8 and 10 New Levee,

aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F G BARRIERE G W BABCOCK

F. G. BARIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

No. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.

n10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Wm. Edwards. } Edwd. J. Gay. } sep15 1y

J. C. ELLIS. W. C. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. tan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co. SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 Union Street,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. C. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

ap7 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS,

New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Edward Harrison, J. P. Harrison, jun., Sidney Harrison, John N. Harrison. Payne & Harrison) july7 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar7 6m

A. D. GRIEFF,

Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st.,

aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS.

aug 8'67 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 110, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

COLGATE & CO.'S

FRAGRANT TOILET SOAPS are prepared by skilled workmen from the best materials, and are known as the Standard by dealers and consumers.

Sold everywhere. mar28 3m

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom House Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

J. B. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS. M. J. WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

aly 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

57 Poydras street.

Cotton Office—192 Common street—In charge of Richard J. Nugent. aug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. R. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., corner Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. feb18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 32 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. Payne, W. H. Dameron, G. W. Huntington, H. M. Payne. je23-1y

O. M. STEIRER. THOS. C. SALTER.

G. M. STEIRER & CO.,

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market.)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves;

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER.

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar9-6m-67

D. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

General Commission Merchants,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb2 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. M. SWENSON, N.Y., late of Austin, Tex. W. M. PERKINS, D. L. KENNON, Of Perkins & Co., N.O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

s29 1y

E. S. KEEP. I. CAULFIELD.

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oc13 1y

R. ATKINSON & CO: New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO, Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants,

188 Common Street, New Orleans:

Cash advances made on consignments to us by Hewitt, Swisher & Co., Galveston, Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA

References: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Sandidge, Coreu & Mayo, Mr. R. L Walker, New Orleans, La. july 20

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 155 Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS.

W. A. VIOLETT. R. Y. BLACK. S. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants

15 6m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans,

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D F. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

july-5-6m

F. L. RICHARDSON J. D. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

.....No. 5 Commercial Place.....

feb1y New Orleans.

WANTED—AGENTS.—$200 PER month the year round, or a certainty of $500 to $1,000 per month to those having a little capital. We guaranty the above monthly salary to good active agents at their own homes. Every agent, farmer, gardener, planter and fruit grower, North and South, should send at once for particulars. Please call on or address

J. ALLEARN & CO.,

may16 4t 63 Second St., Baltimore, Md.

CANCERS CURED without pain, use of the knife or caustic burning. Circulars sent free of charge. Address

DRS. BABCOCK & SON,

apr4 3mp 700 Broadway, New York.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 20.
WHOLE NUMBER.....682.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1868.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

UNION OF THE OLD AND NEW SCHOOL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES.

ALBANY, May 30.—In the Presbyterian (Old School) Assembly the vote was taken on the adoption of the first or doctrinal article of the basis of union with the New School Church, and it was adopted by the following vote—ayes 185, noes 77; excused from voting, 2. Various amendments to the articles were voted down.

HARRISBURG, PA, May 30.—In the Presbyterian (New School) Assembly the basis of reunion was adopted unanimously, the members rising and singing the Doxology.

COLUMBUS, O., May 30.—The Supreme Court has decided the visible admixture bill, passed by the last Legislature, unconstitutional.

DISRAELI ABANDONS OPPOSITION TO THE IRISH CHURCH BILL.

LONDON, May 30.—Disraeli, writing to Gladstone, admits the hopelessness of end abandons further opposition to the Irish Church bill.

Weather favorable for crops.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Senate.—After unimportant business and executive session, the admission of Arkansas was resumed. Wilson would never consent to adjournment until the Southern States were admitted. Frelinghuysen maintained that Congress could not impose constitutions, nor could a State withdraw its assent to the amendment; contended that the 14th article was adopted. Williams took the same view. Doolittle characterized the Arkansas constitution as anti-Christian and anti-Republican. Trumbull did not believe in the fundamental conditions, but would vote for them to save the bill. Ferris' emendment, striking out, was lost—20 to 20. Several motions to adjourn failed, until Drake commenced a written speech. Edmunds' amendment, reported yesterday, wes defeated without division.

House.—Butler offered a resolution forbidding written communications reaching Wooley until the Speaker opened and read them. The Speaker declined opening sealed letters or telegrams, even if ordered to do so by the House. Finally, Blaine maintaining that it would be subversive of the honor of the Speakership to make a jailer of the Speaker, it was ordered that Wooley's communications should reach him through the Sergeant-at-Arms, but finally counsel and physicians were allowed free access and private interviews.

The following is the telegram which led to restrictions on Wooley's correspondence:

METROPOLITAN HOTEL, N. Y.

To C. W. Wooley, Washington:

Citizen and sovereign, imprisoned by the order of tyrants and cowards, in the capital of America, stand firm. Every true men in the land with blood in his veins will stand by you. It is the last feather that breaks the camel's back.

(Signed) GEORGE O. JONES.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Dispatches show that there was a general decoration of the graves of Union soldiers to day throughout the North.

Blain and Pollard used strong terms to day in denouncing the machinery proposed for Wooley's punishment.

The expulsion of Vinnie Ream from her studio in the capitol excites commiseration. Several partially finished models, on which she has labored two years, will be ruined by removal. Replying to an appeal on this account in her behalf, Butler said if the statue of Lincoln was broken he would be very glad of it, for he thought it was a thing which would do honor neither to Mr. Lincoln nor to the country.

Gen. Morgan, of Ohio, said that the desire of punishing Mr. Wooley was not the only object that the managers had in view in reporting these resolutions. Another reason was that they might thus eject Miss Vinnie Ream, who was said to be a friend of Senator Ross. A member of this House, he continued, went to the studio of Miss Ream and told her that she was charged with having used her influence in favor of the acquittel of the President. She replied that she had not. The member again said: "You ought to use your influence in favor of his conviction." Miss Ream replied that she could not take any part one way or the other. The member then told her that if she did not it would be worse for her. And now comes the magnanimous, manly act of vengeance. [Cries of name him.] Morgan would if the gentleman desired it. Name the State. Morgan said Indiana. After several Indiana members had asked and received negative replies to "does the member allude to me," Julian arose, when Morgan said: "I have alluded to the honorable gentleman, Mr. Julian. I make the statement on the authority of Miss Ream, a lady than whom there is no purer in this land, nor one more entitled to respect, and I hurl defiance at him who dares say a word against her." [Laughter.]

WASHINGTON, June 1.—President Johnson received this evening, from a member of the family of the deceased, a telegram announcing the death of ex-President Buchanan, at Wheatland, at 8.30 this morning.

The President will to-morrow advise with his Cabinet as to the proper mode of taking official notice of the death of Mr. Buchanan.

It is probable an order will be issued directing that as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased ex-President, the Government Departments be closed upon a day to be named.

As indicated in these dispatches last night, the President has assigned Gen. Stoneman to the command of the First Military District, in place of Gen. Schofield.

PASSAGE OF THE BILL TO ADMIT ARKANSAS.—INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Senate.—A joint resolution of the Ohio Legislature, protesting against tampering with impeachment judges, was referred to the Corruption Committee.

The resolution thanking Stanton passed, Anderson, Ross and Fowler, of the Republicans, voting nay.

The Arkansas admission bill was resumed, and after a very long debate the bill passed, 34 to 8, as it came from the House. The bill goes to the President. Adjourned.

House.—A joint resolution by Eggleston, of Ohio, authorizing the Secretary of War to employ Bingham and Butler to prosecute Mr. Davis.

A bill removing certain Mississippians' political disabilities.

A resolution calling for information of arrest of citizens of Columbus, Ga., lies over.

A bill wes introduced forbidding prosecutions of Treasury and Freedmen's Bureau Agents for official acts.

A resolution declaring national bonds taxable for national purposes.

The House refused to entertain a resolution declaring it violative of the Constitution to seize private telegrams and papers.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—At 10 o'clock this A. M. the President conducted Schofield to the War Department.

After the President left, General Grant visited Secretary Schofield.

The Senate is discussing a resolution thanking Stanton.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Schenck, in his financial expose, to-day, estimated the total expenditures for the next fiscal year at $352,000,000, and the receipts from all sources at $460,000,000.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Senate Judiciary Committee report against Stanbery's confirmation.

No present change in the subordinate personal of the War Department is contemplated.

Reverdy Johnson is mentioned in connection with the British mission.

The following is Grant's letter of acceptance:

WASHINGTON, May 29, 1868.

Gen. Jos. R Hawly, President of the National Union Republican Convention:

In formally accepting the nomination of the National Union Republican Convention of the 21st of May inst., it seems proper that some statement of views beyond the mere acceptance of the nomination should be expressed. The proceedings of the Convention were marked with wisdom, moderation and patriotism, and, I believe, express the feelings of the great mass of those who sustained the country through its recent trials. I indorse their resolutions. If elected to the office of President of the United States, it will be my endeavor to administer all the laws in good faith, with economy and with a view of giving peace, quiet and protection everywhere. At times like the present it is impossible, or at least eminently improper, to lay down a policy to be adhered to, right or wrong, through an administration of four years. New political issues, not foreseen, are constantly arising—the views of the public on old ones are constantly changing; a purely administrative officer should always be left free to execute the will of the people. I have always respected that will and always shall; peace, and universal prosperity, its sequence, with economy of administration, will lighten the burden of taxation, while it constantly reduces the national debt. Let us have peace.

With great respect, your obedient servant, U. S. GRANT.

The President has assigned Gen. Stoneman—under brevet rank—to command in Virginia.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Radical canvassers are doubtful about the city elections. Democrats more confident of results—vote close. Betting odds favor the Democrats by three to five hundred.

MEETING IN ST. LOUIS IN REFERENCE TO MANCHAC.

ST. LOUIS, June 1.—A large meeting was held here to-day in favor of opening Bayou Manchac. A committee was appointed to accompany the Mobile delegation to Louisville and Cincinnati.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1:—Two heavy earthquakes occurred in San Francisco on Saturday night, which extended throughout Nevada.

At Virginia City buildings rocked and the people fled. The pumps at the Savage mines stopped. The miners thought there was a cave. No damage reported.

PARIS, June 1.—Napoleon and Eugenie are visiting Rouen. After a grand and joyous reception, they publicly thanked the mayor and municipality for relieving the poor during the winter.

Replying to the Cardinal of Rouen, Napoleon said: We will not sever our love of God from our love of country.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The latest figures elect Bowen, Radical, mayor by eighty-three votes.

The following is Edmunds' resolution:

Resolved, That the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas respectively shall not be entitled to representetion in the Electoral College for the choice of President or Vice Preident, and no electoral votee shall be received or counted from any of such respective States, unless at the time prescribed by law for the choice of electors the people of such States shall, pursuant to the acts of Congress in that behalf, have, since the 4th day of March, 1867, adopted a constitution of State government, and shall be in peaceful operation, and such State shall have also become entitled to representation in Congress pursuant to the acts of Congress in that behalf.

Schofield has ordered the guards away from the War Department. He participated in full Cabinet today.

THERE are truths so immenee and glorious that when we reelly credit them, though the heart should be opposed to them, they will still take hold of us in so many waye that we cannot escape from their impression; end the very attempt to do so will make us the more sensible of our trouble, as he would be who shut his eyes to rid himself of pain, or run to get out of the light of day. What then must be the impression of the power of faith, when the heart accords with its object?

PEACE.—If joy be love exulting, peace is love reposing. It is love on the green pastures; it is love beside the still waters. It is that great calm which comes over the conscience when it sees the atonement sufficient and the Saviour willing. It is unclouded azure in a lake of glass; it is the soul, which Christ has pacified, spread out in serenity and simple faith, and the Lord God, merciful and gracious, smiling over it.

RELIGIOUS STATISTICS OF ILLINOIS.—The church membership of the different denominations in this State is given as follows: Methodists, 80,000; Baptists, 55,000; Presbyterians, (of every name,) 30,000; Congregationalists, 5,000; Episcopalians, 5,000; Universalists, 5,000; Unitarians, 3,000; Campbellites, 10,000; Lutherans, 6,000. There are various other lesser sects, in all probability numbering 25,000.

IF we work upon marble it will perish; if we work upon brass time will efface it; if we rear temples they will crumble into dust; but if we work upon immortal minds—if we imbue them with principles, with the just fear of God and our fellow-men—we engrave on those tables something which will brighten to all eternity.

DID Christ die, and shall sin live? Was He crucified to the world, and shall our affections to the world be quick and lively? O, where is the spirit of Him who by the cross of Christ was crucified to the world, and the world to Him?—Owen.

For the Advocate.

PULPIT MANNERS.

I have had an article on this subject on hand for some time, which is still unfinished. In the meantime I find the following in the Presbyterian Index, which contains some timely hints, which I hope you will give your clerical readers. There is more in this subject than many ministers think. Improvement is called for. H.

An unseemly or disagreeable habit may pertain to the apparel, to the person, the carriage or bearing, the use of the voice, and affected expression of countenance, etc.

It has been exemplified during the recent embargo and the consequent scarcity, that the black suit and white cravat are not essential to the neat and agreeable appearance of a clergyman either in or out of the pulpit; on the contrary, the plain homespun substitutes have often elicited favorable remark. It is safe, then, to affirm that a well-made and well-brushed suit of any color or cut may be approvingly worn, even though from long service it has become threadbare, faded and patched. But an uncared for, dust and dandruff-covered coat, with rent or rips; a grease-spotted or tobacco-soiled vest, buttoned awry or not buttoned at all; a begrimed and reeking shirt collar and bosom partially obscured by a soiled neck-tie, and such like exhibitions, betoken a reprehensible disregard for the sensibilities of an audience, and proclaims unmistakably a defective early training or want of good breeding, to say nothing of the negligence of the wife, or of that next friend who expects to become such.

On the other hend, over-perticularity, evincing foppishness, is not commendable. As an instence of the readiness with which this objectioneble peculiarity is seized upon, I give the following anecdote. A lady of my acqueintance, during a time of revival, deemed it her special duty to make a personel appeal to an old friend, who never went to church, a scoffer at religion and all eerious subjects, yet a geniel and pleasent man, that he would hear a certain Doctor of Divinity preach upon a particular subject. After much importuning, and to be rid of her perhaps, the promise was given. Now the preacher in question was the pink of clerical perfection in the matter of dress. Especially did he excel in those points which charecterize the profession; the gentleman redeemed his promise. The sermon was all that could be desired, so perfect and pungent wes the argument, so overpowering the peroration, that the lady felt that her prayere would be answered in the conversion of her friend. She songht an early interview with him, end as they shook hands he, with a radiant countenance, overwhelmed her with thanks for her persistency in securing his attendance, for, said he, 'That dear man wears the cleanest shirt collar and the whitest choke rag that I ever saw.'

The minister who is slovenly in his dress is, by fair inference, offensive in his person. 'Clean hands,' absolutely, as well as spiritually, should characterize him who stands in the 'holy place.' I can truthfully testify that but few of our clergymen are open to criticism in this respect, yet I have seen hands raised in the invocation that would have been the better for a good washing.

In nine cases out of ten a slovenly preacher is a slave of tobacco in some of its forms—perhaps in many of them. And how any one who has been set apart to a pure and holy purpose can make his way into the pulpit with the stem of an old pipe sticking out of his clothes, like the tail of an unclean beast, passes my comprehension; or how he can persuade himself that the odor that pervades his presence is that of sweet incense, is wonderful to consider!

I know, and know still, a ruminating specimen whose movements, preparatory to the opening service, were remerkable. His mouth had to be first cleared of a fearful mass of half ground '4 Ace,' resembling the lost and last cud of an ox. Then followed the elaborate and effectuel eleeusing of that orifice; as through the considerate care of a deecon he had been supplied with a water pitcher and goblet, and—by the precaution of the sexton—a semi-globular utensil, with funnel-shaped top, in which to empty himself, and perfect the work of purification. The voiding of the quid into the hole of the epittoon audibly announced a centre shot, though this dexterous act threatened to dam the current of subsequent operations; which operations consisted in repeated washings and rinsings, spirtings and squirtings, distinctly to be heard by all, and plainly to be seen by many, the various noises being suggestive of a disordered washing machine; and the view—marvelous!

The unkempt locks of those who poll their heads but once a year should keep the wearer out of the pulpit, or bring him to grief, as they did the king's son in David's day.

The wearing of an untrimmed beard, disproportioned through its excess, is not good taste; indeed, it betokens something worse than bad taste—for how can a head be credited with brains if it resembles a small gourd, attached to some pounds of oakum?

THE GREAT INQUISITION.

WASHINGTON, May 21.

Butler's inquisition, which is generally conceded to be an outrage, is in no sense the success that the managers expected it would be. The telegraph offices have been pretty well ransacked, and the managere have plenty of dispatches sent by various persons from this city, at their disposal. It is said that one telegraph company gave up all its dispatches yesterday, while another gave up only a portion of its dispatches; that the manager of a third line positively refused to surrender any dispatches until he communicated with the president and superintendent of his company; that a number of telegraph men from offices in Baltimore have been summoned, and that dispatches sent from Baltimore have been or will be demanded. The inquisitors, Messrs. Butler, Boutwell, Wilson and Williams, met again this forenoon, and were engeged in the examination of telegrams and other papers until after 1 o'clock, when they continued the examination of witnesses. Mr. Wooley was not recalled to-day. Mr. Ralph Newton, a broker from New York, was before the Council of Three nearly four hours. The examination of this gentleman, as I am given to understand, was predicated upon the discovery of a half-written letter in his room at Willard's Hotel. That edifice, like every other public haunt and suspected private dwelling in Washington, has been full of spies for several weeks. No men's trunk or writing desk, or tobacco pouch, or boot legs have been safe from the prying scrutiny of sub investigetors and detectives, and Mr. Newton was doubtless uncommonly edified to learn, as he gradually did, how familiar his business and personal affairs were become to the Council of Three, in whose presence he found himself. Some thirty-six telegrams which he had sent from this city over different lines were in the possession of Butler, who coolly proceeded to question him as to their import. The telegraphic dispatches of a broker from Washington to Wall street, in a period of such excitement as that which reigned here last week, were likely to be rather mysterious and suggestive. Butler's brains were quite puzzled by them, and many were the wily questions he asked, and many were the exasperating answers he received. Mr. Newton, who was, of course, examined with a view to prove that he had been influencing the votes of Senators for acquittal, testified that he knew no Senatore except those who were very Radical, including Chandler, and that he knew nothing about money being paid to any Senator. In response to the question whether he was aware that money had been raised for the President, he responded in the affirmative. There had been subscribed in New York, he said, $100,000 for the President in case of conviction, and $50,000 to defray the expenses of his trial in case of acquittal. This money was in the hands of a highly respectable citizen of New York, Mr. William G. Appleton. Being interrogated with offensive pertinacity in regard to his private matters, his business cypher, and the pseudonym or private signature among the rest, Mr. Newton showed such an indisposition to answer that he was ordered out into the hall three times while the committee consulted together. He finally got through with his evidence, which amounted to nothing that Butler seemed to expect it would amount to. Mr. Samuel Ward wes the next witness. This gentleman, who is a thorough man of the world, something of a poet and good deal of a wit, was a very unpromising person for Butler to begin upon. Before Mr. Ward, Butler unfolded a nice package of copies of private telegrams, signed by the witness in various ways. Butler was exceedingly exercised by one of these telegrams to New York, which read something as follows: 'The last man on the list is all right. He has the cash.' The horrible idea was presented by Butler that Senator Yates, the last Senator on the Senatorial list, had been bribed. Mr. Ward requested that the telegram should be turned over to Mr. Boutwell for a more rigid examination. Mr. Boutwell discovered that the last word in the telegram was 'cast' instead of 'cash.' The witness then explained that the Senator referred to was Mr. Willey, and that by the word 'cast' was meant that Mr. Willey had the casting vote. This is one incident of an examination which lasted about two hours, and in which was revealed no fact to any Senator's discredit who voted for acquittel. It appeared that Mr. Ward and Chandler were somewhat intimate, and that Chandler, before the vote was taken, was quite as certain that the President would be convicted as Mr. Ward was that he would be acquitted. When asked why he wes so sanguine of acquittal, in Chendler's presence, he replied that he did not believe, like Chandler, in the doctrine of total depravity. He thought there would be one virtuous Senator too many for the managers and the impeachment. It appeared the witness was right.

The next witness examined was Col. Edmond Cooper, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. He was asked whether he had been approached on the subject of using money for the acquittal of the President, and made in reply the following astounding and disgraceful revelation. Colonel Cooper said that a person professing to act on the authority of Hon. J. C. Pomeroy, Senator from Kansas, called on him, Cooper, and proposed that for $40,000, cash in hand, Senator Pomeroy would control four Radical votes in the Senate, and put in his own, so as to insure the President's acquittal. When, as Col. Cooper testified, he professed to doubt this person's authority, the person produced a letter from Senator Pomeroy, dated ——day——, substantially as follows:

'SIR—I will, in good faith, carry out any arrangement made with my brother-in-law, Willis Gaylord, to which I am a party.'

At this juncture in the examination Butler objected to witness testifying to the substance of the letter, saying that he (Butler) would produce it. Then as Colonel Cooper went on to testify, Willis Geylord was introduced by the person who produced this letter, who read it to the witness and Gaylord; the person who first called then retired, leaving Colonel Cooper and Gaylord together; thereupon Gaylord renewed the proposition, namely, to secure five votes for the President for $40,000, the patronage of the administration to be thrown in for Pomeroy in the State of Kansas. Colonel Cooper, having testified so far, said that he had believed that this proposition from Senator Pomeroy was intended to entrap him, and, acting under that belief, he had determined to load the parties on to an exposure. He assigned a reason for that belief. First, that Senator Pomeroy was a strong partisen, that he felt bitterly toward the President, and that if money was his object, the party to which he belonged was much better able to pay than the administration was. Second, the person who approached him, Colonel Cooper, with the proposition, enumerated, among the names of Senators whom Pomeroy proposed to control, those of Morton, of Indiana, and Nye, of Nevada. Colonel Cooper did not believe it possible that Senator Morton could be bought. Colonel Cooper resumed by stating that the interviewe were sought by the persons professing to act for Senator Pomeroy; that letters were brought showing their authority, that the terms were not accepted, and that he, the witness, had never intended to accept them. The additional testimony of Colonel Cooper was to the effect that he was not advised of any money having been used to influence Senators' votes.—Correspondence of New York World.

A SEVERE WINTER.—The past winter has been one of the severest ever known both in this and other countries. In Algiers the suffering has been very great. In Russia, as we learn from a letter in a Paris paper, the cold has been intense. Coachmen were frozen upon their seats, the gas refused to burn, and the dogs howled most piteously. Men on horseback went through the streets of St. Petersburg and Moscow, carrying aid to the unfortunate, and the nobility distributed hot tea in front of their palaces.

COMING HOME.

O brothers and sisters, growing old,
Do you all remember yet
That home in the shade of the rustling trees,
Where once our household met?

Do you know how we used to come from school,
Through the summer's pleasant heat,
With the yellow fennel's golden dust
On our tired little feet?

And how sometimes in an idle mood
We loitered by the way;
And stopped in the woods to gather flowers,
And in the fields to play;

Till warned by the deep'ning shadow's fall,
That told of the coming night,
We climbed to the top of the last long hill
And saw our homes in sight!

And, brothers and sisters, older now
Than she whose life is o'er,
Do you think of the mother's loving face
That looked from the open door?

Alas! for the changing things of time,
That home in the dust is low;
And that loving smile was hid from us
In the darkness long ago!

And we come to life's long hill,
From which our weary eyes
Can almost look on that home that shines
Eternal in the skies.

So, brothers and sisters, as we go,
Still let us move as one.
Always together keeping step,
Till the march of life is done.

For that mother who waited for us here,
Wearing a smile so sweet,
Now waits on the hills of Paradise
For her children's coming feet!

LETTER FROM WEST FLORIDA.

GREENWOOD, Fla., May 11, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: Having some leisnre, I have concluded to say a few words about the Marianna district in general, and a certain renegade preacher in particular. This district occupies the most southeastern portion of the Montgomery Conference, and embraces all that part of the State of Florida west of the Apalachicola river, reaching to Pensacola and the navy yard, and including a portion of southeastern Alabama. Within it lies some beautiful and fertile country, and if we had political rest many portions of this region would smile again with plenty and prosperity. Marianna, the county seat of Jackson county, has been a thriving and beautiful town, but at present is in rather a dilapidated state. It has been afflicted with one of those public nuisances—a "bureau"—and prosperity, and the spirit of enterprise and improvement, wither under its shadow. The prospects of the church in this district are not very flattering, though in some places there are signs of life. We had a number of accessions to the church and some conversions the last quarter.

At Gordon, the place of holding the last quarterly meeting, our house of worship has been thoroughly and neatly repaired—finished inside and out. The pulpit is adorned with two elegant lamps, while a beautiful chandelier is suspended in the middle of the building. We received into the church five and baptized ten, and the brethren of Gordon are in confident hopes of better times.

As a general thing, I suppose, the church in this section is about on a par with a great many other regions. There are some members of the church you can always depend on; touch them where and when you may, they have the ring of the clear metal. They love the church, and serve God from principle. Many come in and go out, but they "remain steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord." There are others who are "neither cold nor hot," disposed to complain and look upon the dark side of everything. When the church is in prosperity they cannot rejoice with her, and when she is in adversity they do not "weep while they remember Zion." These, like Ephraim, unstable as water, cannot be relied on. And then there are those who are captious, walk disorderly, and will not be reproved, and make church action necessary. We don't count these in, therefore—we don't count them out. The "baptism of fire" is the great need of the church.

Quite a refreshing document has recently fallen into my hands. It bears the following title: "Address of Rev. W. P. Miller to the Gulf State Guards, delivered at the Methodist church in this place (Marianna) on Sunday, June 30, 1861." It was published in the Marianna Patriot of August 1st and 8th, of the same year. Miller was then presiding elder on this district, and was one of the most ultra secessionists and strongest war men you ever saw. Now he is a Radical, has joined the Methodist Church North, and has been appointed presiding elder of a district embracing south Alabama and west Florida. While his "address" lacks everything as a literary production, it wants nothing in vim for the war, and bitter virulence against "Yankees" and "Lincolnites."

By looking at Joel iii, 9, 10, you have the text he used for the occasion. As a specimen of his "loyalty" to the rebellion, I give a few extracts from the address alluded to. He commences by calling upon everybody to prepare for war, and adds: "Let the necessary preparations be made by changing implements of agriculture and horticulture into implements of war: i. e., let every interest and pleasure be sacrificed that can be, that comes in conflict with a vigorous prosecution of the war in which we are engaged, and let all contribute as much as possible in every way, that there be no lack, but an abundance of food, money and sympathy for our dear soldiers."

The Yankees were a dreadful people to him in those days. "They are destroying the farms, burning the houses and desolating the country as they go. Have you not read of the brutal conduct of those Yankees toward the wives and daughters of our friends in Virginia, and don't you know if they are not repulsed and whipped back they will soon be among us like greedy wolves, to treat us and ours in the same way?" Again he says: "It is clear that God is with us in truth—think of the omens and evidences of this glorious fact. Fort Sumpter was taken without the loss of a man on our side; and when, by a great stretch of courtesy, the enemy's officer was allowed to salute his dishonored and perverted flag, his self-destroyed men were left dead, and seemed to teach the lesson that in the net laid for others their own feet would be taken. Again, at Alexandria, the brave Jackson lowered Ellsworth, as he lowered our flag, teaching them that that flag was to be their destruction. And again, when they would raise their invading flag on Virginia's soil, the man fell and broke his neck, showing again that the effort to subjugate the South will be vain, and prove their own downfall."

He goes on to give the military company eight suggestions, closing with the following charge: "And be sure you drive back the Yankees from Virginia, for they carry destruction with them; before them is a Paradise, behind them is desolation; be sure they don't get you, for if they do you will never see Florida again, for you cannot take the oath of allegiance to the United States; therefore it will be poison or death."

He came near going to the war himself. "Why it has been all that I could do to stay on my district, since I learned the Northern army was on our soil." But he preferred to fight them at a long range. Hear him again: "But let those people that pretend to love Florida or Alabama so well that they cannot go to Virginia to fight, but say if their own State is invaded they will go, (they might go into the swamp for what I know,) remember that sad, sad will be the day when we are invaded, and the deceitful Yankees get among our negroes and take them and sell them to pay the expenses of the war, and our more hated tory neighbors give aid and comfort to our enemies." William P., "thou art the man." How will his Northern brethren relish his eulogy of Jeff. Davis? "We are strong in our leader, even the enemies themselves being judges. Jeff. Davis is a second Washington, and perhaps as David was to Saul; Washington slew his thousands, but Davis his tens of thousands." He says: "Our soldiers are not gathered from State prisons and county jails. They go not to shoot at random or up in the trees, but, like the brave North Carolinians, to take good aim, and the Lincolnites will fall every pop."

"Surely the angels of the Lord encamp around about them and knock up the Yankees' guns when they shoot, or make the balls to miss their way. See how hot they fell around at Bethel church, but could not kill our men. Men who have no object in view, like the Northern soldiers, cannot stand fire; and why should they? Those of them working for the pay don't think of anything but the wages, and those that do think are doubtful of their cause. It is a cause that won't bear an honest and fair investigation, so the fanatic must still continue deceiving the poor dupes until Southern bullets wake them, and death and hell swallow them up quickly. Not so with our cause; we go to the Bible, the fountain of divine revelation, and read, and become strong; we go to the sanctuary and hear the word of God preached, and are made strong; we go on our knees before God in prayer, we rise strong in the Lord and his mighty power; we sit down calmly at our firesides and talk the matter over, and when we are done the whole family are strong in the good cause." Once more: "These men who are opposed to the Southern cause, and accuse the South of being to blame, and withhold their sons, husbands, brothers or their own services from their country, and say they cannot trust the Southern Confederacy, when you brave boys come back, covered with glory, these shall sink in shame and everlasting disgrace; while your faces will be honored as the saviors and favorites of your country; they will be hooted and hissed at as they pass the streets, (and they ought to be now.")

Well, how do his new-made friends—his brethren in the North—like that?

Now he is going about sowing the seeds of discord in neighborhoods, proselyting little Pineywoods churches, calling on them to join the "mother church," etc. He stands "cheek by jole" with negroes at the polls, and becomes a willing agent of the Northern Methodist church in its dishonest and nefarious schemes to wrest our church property from us. He obtained $250 from the "Church Extension" Society, to buy up some of our houses of worship in south Alabama, over which little debts were hanging.

The New York Christian Advocate, of March 12, contains the following from him: "I have invested the means you sent me, and have secured the two churches of which I wrote—title all right—worth here about one thousand dollars." Now, that's very honest, getting for $250 property worth $1,000. In the same letter he stigmatizes Confederate soldiers as "returned rebel soldiers." In 1861 they were "dear soldiers defending their country's rights." In the same paper he says: "Those who are our enemies are organizing into clubs with the design to defeat, if possible, reconstruction, and if that fails, to bring on a war of races, and if possible make the government at Washington believe it to be the fault of the colored people, and by some means bring about their destruction." Now W. P. Miller knew that was false when he wrote it.

Again he says: "The colored people are as humble and industrious as any laboring class on earth."

Strange that no one else thinks so!

Speaking of his "brethren in the North," he says: "If they could know how their sympathies and efforts, and our self-denial and work, are turning the hearts of the people back to the old government and the old church, they would bestir themselves for our help." Most of the "hearts he is turning to the old church" are bush-whackers, and such as laid in the woods and made raids on helpless women and children, to rob and plunder. We bid him adieu for the present, to repose in the bosom of the "mother church."

Speaking of the Northern Methodist "Church Extension Society," and after a careful survey of the field, and especially of the South, Bishop Clarke says: "I do not know where else money can be used with such certainty of sure and large returns." Fraudulently buying up churches in the South, in this bishop's estimation, gives "larger returns" than sending money to convert the heathen.

Surely there was prophecy in what the venerable Bishop Early told us at the Conference in Greensboro, Alabama, in 1861: "Your altars are in danger."

—WESLEY B. DENNIS.

LETTER FROM ALABAMA.

A TORNADO.—THE CROPS.—THE CHURCH.

PICKENS COUNTY, Ala., May 22, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: On the 6th instant a most frightful tornado swept over the northern portion of Pickens county, Alabama, traveling from west to east, doing immense damage in its furious march. It commenced in Lowndes county, Mississippi—so far as I can learn—eight or nine miles east of Columbus, and, crossing over into Pickens, the first place it struck to do much mischief was Mr. Alexander Henry's, twelve miles east of Columbus, on the Tuscaloosa road. It lifted his dwelling, a large two-story frame building, from its very foundation and shivered it to pieces, carrying the torn and shattered wreck of timber, furniture, bedding, trunks, clothing, books, papers, in fact everything, for miles in its track. Large sills, twelve by sixteen inches thick, and forty feet long, were carried off, one of them having blown nearly three hundred yards. A bar of iron, five feet long, and one and a half inches thick, was blown some distance and stuck in the ground. I saw a steelyard pea, weighing four lbs., that was blown some one hundred yards. Trees were torn up by the roots and carried some distance. Every house on the place was torn to pieces. Alexander Henry, a respectable citizen of this county, a good neighbor and kind father, the head of the family, was killed. He was born in North Carolina, and was aged sixty years. Mrs. Elizabeth Henry, his stepmother, and wife of the late Robert Henry, deceased, and aged about seventy years, was also killed. Her maiden name was Sykes. She first married a Mr. Turend, and then Robert Henry, Sr., and was a widow again at the time of her death, and living with her stepson. She was an excellent, kind-hearted woman, and a member of the M. E. Church South, in Columbus, Mississippi. We have hope in her death. Fannie Henry, the only daughter of Alexander Henry, a young lady about nineteen years of age, was also killed. She professed religion last summer at Beersheba, and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian church, and remained a consistent member of the same till her death, as far as I know. Robert Henry, the only son of Alexander Henry, a young man about seventeen years of age, was also killed. He was blown several hundred yards from the dwelling, and was found among a pile of timber, within a few feet of one of the sills of the house, terribly mangled, nearly all his bones being broken. He professed religion at the same time and place with his sister, and joined the same church, and, I trust, with her and the rest of the family—for these are all—went to that peaceful shore where no terrible storms will ever disturb the blessed inhabitants.

Thus quickly a whole family was swept from earth into the eternal world. A little negro girl living on the place was also killed. We attended the burial on the 8th instant, and performed the burial service at the family burial ground of Robert Henry, Jr. It was a most solemn scene. All were put in one grave. The whole community seemed alarmed. It ought to make sinners tremble and saints keep near the throne. Such a frightful tempest has never been witnessed by the oldest citizens of this section. The next place it struck was Mr. Robert Henry's, blowing down his kitchen and several negro cabins, and other houses. His wife and several negro children were in the kitchen, but, wonderful to tell, escaped amidst the falling timbers unhurt.

The next place it struck was at Mr. Seban Hull's, blowing down every house he had, and badly bruising Mr. Hull and his little daughter Sallie. His wife and two children were in the kitchen, and his wife's sister was in the dwelling when these houses fell, but strangely escaped unhurt.

Then it struck Dr. Alexander Agnew's place, tearing up the beautiful oak grove in front of his house, and blowing down all his buildings except the dwelling, office, and gin house and screw. No one was hurt. It missed our dwelling, about one-quarter of a mile north, passing through the upper part of father's plantation. It passed by Palmetto, twelve miles east of this, doing much damage. How far it went before it was exhausted, and what other damage it did, I have not learned. The main current was not more than seventy-five or one hundred yards wide, and its greatest force at any one place did not last more than half a minute. In the current it was as dark as midnight, though the sun was not quite down. Several persons who saw it pass from a distance describe its appearance as a dark cloud of black smoke ascending from a tar-kiln. It traveled with fearful velocity. It must have been powerfully charged with electricity, especially when it struck Mr. Henry's place, as is manifest from the way many of the trees, and timbers belonging to his dwelling, are torn and split to pieces. The leaves on the trees and bushes look as if they had been scorched with fire. Its course was a little north of east. But I will say no more of this frightful tornado.

The crops in this section, and indeed all over Pickens county, for this season of the year and for the chance they have had, never looked more promising. The freedmen are doing tolerably well, and would do much better, I have no doubt, were it not for the unfortunate legislation we have had for the benefit of this class of our population. Most of them who used to be with us on this circuit still remain with us as a church. Dr. Murrah has been appointed superintendent for them on this (Columbus) district. The whites in this portion of the country who are tilling the soil are working with an earnestness that will certainly bring its reward.

The church in this region, especially on this circuit, is not as prosperous as I would like to see it. Indeed I fear we are rather in the background in religion.—The questions, "What we shall eat, and what we shall drink, and wherewithal we shall be clothed," are all-absorbing, and some, too, are making haste to be rich again; so but little attention is paid to the interests of the soul and the prosperity of the church. I have appointed church meeting after church meeting, and generally so few have attended that it has been put off till the next time, and but few have been held. In finances we are below par. About fifty cents on the dollar last year, and up to this writing—last of May—twenty-five dollars will cover all that we have received. Some years ago this was a fine circuit—once the banner circuit in missionary money—but now not able to sustain their pastors. Many external circumstances may tend to bring about this result; but, after all, I fear the main cause lies in a different direction—a want of interest in the prosperity of the church, a want of spiritual, deep-toned piety, a want of religion among the membership. But for a small band of faithful ones, who pray and work and do for the church here, the old ship would, I fear, go by the board. But I hope for better times and things. The Lord hasten the day when Zion shall once more look forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and be terrible as an army with banners. This lack of service on the part of the church drives the preacher to tent-making—in other words, to some secular pursuit—to keep soul and body together; and if he be diligent in business, and make a little bread to eat and raiment to put on, and eat his own hard-earned bread and wear his own paid-for clothes, some backslidden church member will accuse him of getting worldly-minded, and of tilling the farm when he ought to be visiting the flock. O, people of the living God, sustain your ministers and give them no excuse to resort to teaching or farming or merchandise to help make a living. But turn them loose with no worldly entanglements, that they may go forth conquering and to conquer, till a world of sinners lost is rescued from the grasp of satan.

G. HAWKINS.

SCIENTIFIC.

FIRE DEFIED.

At different periods within the last few months a series of experiments have been instituted by Mr. Richard M. Hoe, for the purpose of finding a cheap substitute for the iron beams and brick now commonly used in fire-proof buildings. The last experiment was made on Friday, May 15, at which many persons were present, including members of numerous insurance companies and officers of the Fire Department.—The trial was made in a vacant lot on Sheriff street, New York, adjoining the works of Messrs. R. Hoe & Co., where a specimen floor had been erected. This floor was ten feet by ten, and was placed upon upright posts, of about four feet in height, beneath which, precisely at 9 o'clock, a large fire was kindled. Several men were kept constantly engaged in feeding the flames, and a degree of heat was attained which, in the language of Mr. Hoe, was "hot enough to burn up the whole of New York." This was kept up to 12 o'clock—three hours—when, there being no indications that the floor would be destroyed, the fire was allowed to die out, and the men were permitted to build one on the top. This being done, the flame was rekindled below. These two fires were now constantly supplied, and the burning was continued until 4 o'clock, when all present were satisfied of the successful issue of the experiment. The floor was then taken to pieces and its construction explained. It is about the usual thickness of floors separating different stories, the lower surface being made of thin plain sheets of iron, No. 21 wire-gauge, which are nailed to the beams. Spread out upon this sheet-iron ceiling was poured a layer of plaster of Paris to the depth of 1¼ inches, on the top of the cross beams were nailed more sheets of iron, and upon these a layer of plaster of Paris one quarter of an inch in thickness. Above the whole were fastened the planks, forming the upper surface of the floor. On examination it was shown that the beams were not at all injured, and this too after an intense flame had been burning steadily above and below for more than four hours. The planks on the upper part had, of course, been burnt, but that detracts but little from the worth of the invention. The cost of the floor of the size described above is $30 10; the cost of a building made in this way will be about one-half as much as the brick and iron-beam buildings. Fire-proof paints protect only the exterior of a house, or the part least likely to catch fire; while, on the other hand, a building constructed after the Hoe plan will be thoroughly free from danger.—American Artisan.

A PROCESS FOR OBTAINING PURE IRON.—Troost gives a method of obtaining very pure soft iron. He melts cast iron in a lime crucible by means of the oxy-hydrogen flame, directed downward, we presume. When the metal is fused he increases the proportion of oxygen, and thus burns away the silicon, carbon and sulphur. The slag formed is absorbed by the crucible. When the operation is finished, a button of very pure metal remains at the bottom of the crucible. This process would be extremely useful on the large scale if oxygen could be procured at a cheap rate, but pending the discovery of means whereby oxygen can be prepared for industrial purposes, pure iron obtained in this way must remain a metallurgical curiosity.—American Artisan.

From the Southern Christian Advocate.

SPURGEON.

A SABBATH IN LONDON.

LONDON, (Eng.,) March 23, 1868.

GENTLEMEN: Yestorday was the Sabbath; and to me, the Sabbath in London.

I have rarely felt in so great a degree the beauty and silent gladness of the day. It came to me in a double contrast. The suspended noise of this wonderful city, its striking hush, the distinct tones of the church clocks, which are but faintly heard during the week, this made one contrast; and then the greater observance of the day, the evident interest of the people in worship, and the air of seriousness pervading everything, in comparison with Sunday on the coutinent, presented another contrast.

I rose in good time, breakfasted, and walked about two miles, which was somewhat of an achievement for me, though not much for London, a city eight miles one way and six another. Of course there was no sunshine; a thin, dull, motionless fog hung over everything; the Thames had a heavy slumbering look; and the massive old houses, half hidden in the gloom, did not seem to know that it was nine o'clock. But it was all pleasant; the partial solitude was akin to the stranger's heart; and the river sleeping under its forest of masts, even the river reminded me of a stream in the western woods, dark with many shadows.

A walk of two miles brought me to the Tabernacle, where I was to hear the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon. Here I had to wait for about an hour for the opening of the gallery doors. This arrangement is doubtless sensible, but it was not very agreeable. But as the crowd gathered in the portico and yard, (the seat holders all passing into the house,) I had an opportunity of observing their appearance and manner. They were singularly quiet and orderly; no elbowing, no pushing, no loud talking; all which I admired.—When the doors were opened there was some haste, but as I participated in it, I shall certainly not find fault with it.

The preaching hall is an immense room with a most capacious floor, and two galleries extending round the entire circuit in the form of an ellipse. The entire space and the aisles were full of persons. So large an audience, so comfortably seated, and so thoroughly an unit as to the spirit pervading the place, I have seldom seen. Some thousands were present; yet while I had the feeling of being with a multitude, it was a multitude in a church.

I watched for Mr. Spurgeon's entrance. When he walked down the gallery to his seat on a small sofa, it was with dignified composure. In this and in other things his manner was free from those defects which I have seen attributed to him. So far from any carelessness or irreverence, it was entirely thoughtful and serious, with an aspect of repose which was in perfect keeping with his position. There being no pulpit, but simply an outward curve in the lower gallery, on which is a side table for Bible, I had a full view of his person. Below the medium height, compact and well built, face somewhat broad under the eye, forehead not striking except in its marked frontal line, hair black, countenance fair, expression genial and kind, the general look indicating the first transition from youthful freshness to the gravity of dull manhood, and yet unmarked by care or sorrow, his appearance, without any hint of a man of genius or of profound passions, is interesting if not striking. But this is Mr. Spurgeon, not the preacher.

I was not kept long in suspense. The services opened with prayer. And genuine prayer it was, if you will accept the instinctive judgments of those emotions which it awakened. A deep soul-breathing was in it, the tones rich and swelling, a pleading heart, and all else that inspires. I noticed rather an excess of figurating language, but then it was of that kind which is distinct from poetic conceptions and appropriate to supplication when not carried too far. After this touching prayer he read the beautiful hymn by Charles Wesley: "O Love Divine, how sweet thou art." The reading brought out the sense, though not the complete expressional excellence. The singing was general and it was delightful. Then the 116th Psalm was read and comments given. I have never heard anything better done. Easy, conversational, fluent—a pungent touch here and there—all elastic and buoyant, it was an exercise that I heartily commended, and the more so as few succeed in it. His next prayer was rather long—not too long for me; it was exceedingly natural, with much scriptural thought fused into common, every-day feeling, and totally free from stiffness and cumbrous form. Nothing in the sermon affected me so much as that. Indeed, to my surprise, I found the key to his whole manner in the gentle and subduing pathos of his prayers. Never before have I noticed this in any preacher.

The text was Luke vii, 36-39—which paragraph he had read as one of the lessons. His discourse was on Christ's grace to the woman "who was a sinner," and her love in return. In order and arrangement it was the simplest possible—none of the divisions for an instant breaking the even, musical flow. I use the word "flow" because no other term conveys the idea. Without the least sign of effort, mind and muscle working together in perfect harmony, speech that seemed nothing more than articulate breathing, paragraph followed paragraph with an easy grace and serene strength that were inexpressibly charming. Vitality, constant and almost exuberant vitality, the blended vitality of the imaging intellect and the emotional heart and the sustaining blood, is his main characteristic as an orator. No peculiar tension is shown at any time—no transports—no depths of abyssmal passions—no tremendous strokes of mental power—nor does he throw any sudden energy into particular passages and so make them memorable in your after thoughts. Not once was I startled. Not once did he arouse me as with a shock and hurry me out of myself into wonder and awe. If this was a fair type of himself, he is not by any means in the highest class of orators. His is not a bold, imperious, overwhelming intellect, nor his the passion which over-rushes all bounds and forgets all in total self-abandonment. But he is great, truly and indisputably great, in that perfection of common-sense mind, in that clear and thoroughly illumined view of everything which keen instincts secure, in that mysterious union of the functions of thought and sensibility and expression and manner which is so rare, and which, where it exists, suggests the idea of some closer relation between spirit and soul and body than is ordinarily seen; in these he is great, and greatest among the great.

As to the indicating power of gesture and the attractions of manner, I have often seen his superiors. His voice is exquisitely fine. It has a full, strong and rather high pitch; never sharp; never very deep and rotund; but, for a voice of its kind, extremely rich and mellow. It is all heart. Two or three times it was somewhat over-strained; but usually it did its work without the slightest exertion.

I think him an extraordinary preacher, in his precise conception of the gospel—in his assimilation of its doctrines and realities with his own heart—and in his wondrous understanding of the art of using the gospel for action on others. A master of his own capacity, he is equally a master of that adaptive facility which so few gifted men possess. Over that vast audience he seemed to be everywhere present, talking directly to each while talking to all, and bringing each heart closely to the loving tenderness of his own bosom. At no moment had he to win his way to my confidence and admiration. From his first word to his last my whole soul was with him, and that freely; and the sympathy which unconsciously and spontaneously I gave him, he amply repaid in measures large and blessed.

So passed my first Sunday morning in London. And all the afternoon of that day I was happy for what I had heard and seen and felt; and in the evening, when the great bells of the church spires rang out their silvery chimes, rising up over the city and blending in a stream of swelling music, how they echoed that sermon and what it will be in the coming years of memory!

Your's truly,

ANDREW A. LIPSCOMB.

THERE ARE NO TRIFLES.—"A few drops of water, more or less," says Victor Hugo, "prostrated Napoleon." He meant that the battle of Waterloo was begun at eleven o'clock in the morning because there was rain on the previous night, and Napoleon could not move his artillery over the heavy mud plain until near noon, and that five hours' delay turned the fate of Europe; for Blucher did not arrive with his allies till the forces of the Iron Duke were all but defeated.

A MAN in a blouse once said, "I have no more influence than a farthing rushlight." "Well," was the reply, "a farthing rushlight can do a good deal; it can set a haystack on fire; it can burn down a house—yea, more, it will enable a poor creature to read a chapter in God's book." Go your way, friend, let your farthing rushlight so shine before men that others, seeing your good works, may glorify your Father which is in heaven.

"THE Old Testament is one of the two olive trees planted in the house of God, and which is never to be removed; one of the two golden candlesticks lighted up for the church of Christ upon earth, and which, while that church has being, will never be taken away."—Chalmer's Intro. Lec. to Romans.

JAPAN.

MEDICINE AND RELIGION.

There are but two professions—doctor and priest. The doctor ranks as one of the privileged class, is the most consequential man in the village, and in town holds a most respectable position. The theory of practice is, in general, Chinese, which is a system of the merest empiricism. There is a modern school which follows the teachings of the Dutch. These practice substantially the same as ourselves, and use most of our staple medicines. In bleeding, blistering, and the use of mercurials, they outdo our most ancient Esculapians, and, for the present generation, inflict infinitely more harm than good.

A doctor never sends a bill. That would make him a trader, which his caste scorns. He leaves his remuneration to his patient's generosity, which latter all the doctors acknowledge to be exceedingly unsatisfactory. I was not long, from experience, in coming to the same conclusion. Soon after my arrival in the country I was called upon by the governor for medical aid and advice. After nearly two weeks' faithful attendance he declared he was quite well, and, professing himself under many obligations, assured me he would take an early opportunity to remunerate me for my services. In a few days, accordingly, he called, accompanied by a large retinue, and, with considerable ceremony, presented me, through the hands of his secretary, a small box, on the top of which was very carefully folded a piece of paper. Its weight, at least, was encouraging, I thought, on accepting it with my best bow—for want of any other polite expressions of thanks, as the interview was conducted in the native tongue. After his departure I sat down to examine my fee. The nicely-folded paper on top contained a silver coin of the value of forty-two cents, and the box—half a pound of isinglass jelly, sweetened with molasses.

The religion of the Japanese is essentially Buddhist, and was introduced from China, A. D. 532. There are several sects, but all claim a common origin. As a people, they do not appear to have any deep religious sentiments, beyond those founded on ignorance and superstition. All observe days of feasting, and celebrate the birth of their patron-gods. The priesthood is numerous and powerful. The heads of the various orders are almost like princes—the temples and monasteries over which they preside having been endowed with both money and land by the founder of the dynasty. In order to more effectually eradicate all traces of Christianity, which had been introduced by the Jesuits, the Emperor, in addition to the fearful persecution which followed his decree of expulsion, instituted the most stringent laws against the profession of the Catholic faith, and made it obligatory on everybody to subscribe himself at some temple as a Buddhist, at the risk of being thought a Christian, which is worse than death, as it would include the sacrifice of his family and nearest kinsmen as well as himself. So rigid is this system of requirements, and so dangerous is it even to talk of Christianity, that the most abject and painful fear is exhibited by all Japanese at its very mention. I have seen an intelligent and more than usually liberal native drop a book in which was pictured the emblem of the crucifixion, as if it had been a coal of fire, and by no amount of persuasion could I induce him to touch it again.

Two hundred and fifty years have elapsed since the Jesuits were expelled, and yet to day, at the entrance of every village, and at every cross-road, stands as a prominent object the tablet on which is kept ever bright the inscription, naming the fearful and certain punishments provided for any one who may profess Christianity.

Until the government repeals this law our missionaries will not be able to make many converts; and, in proof of this, we have their almost fruitless labor for seven years. Take off the restriction, however, and no more encouraging field is to be found in the whole East. The Buddhist priests have taught the people that Christianity is a system of witchcraft, and that its teachers deal in charms and incantations, which, at the same time, are the symbols of their profession. Profound ignorance exists even among the officers of government as to what Christianity really is.

A foreign mountebank once came to the settlement for the purpose of giving an entertainment to the Europeans. He announced the day on which it would take place by a handbill, illustrated by a man holding his own head under his arm. The English printer, who struck off the bills, gave them to his Japanese servants to post about town. They had but half completed the work, however, before the card was observed by the ever-vigilant police, and the alarm given. The Christians had again appeared! They had seen, with their own eyes, the emblem of their order. The unfortunate servants were immediately seized by a strong police force, and thrown into prison, and an investigation was instituted. The principal in the affair, however, being beyond their reach, as the subject of a foreign power, they were brought to an embarrassing stand. Something must be done, or they would be thought by their superiors delinquent in duty; and, as they had no one else to punish, they fell on the two unfortunate servants. They were, accordingly, beaten and tortured to the verge of destruction, and thus the matter ended.

A few years more of foreign intercourse will make the Japanese exceedingly ashamed of their ignorance. Even now they look upon the great mass of the priests as useless and a nuisance; and, in fact, a more ignorant, bigoted, lazy, dirty class of human beings is nowhere to be found. The majority live by begging, the sale of charms and indulgences, and the fees connected with burials. A man who cannot pay the priest of a temple a certain yearly tax cannot secure to himself a decent interment, as no burial is permitted except under priestly supervision.

From the encouragement given by the government to the support of Buddhism as the national religion, temples are the most expensive and stately structures in the country, and the perfection of Japanese architectural skill. In numbers they put to shame the most Catholic country. Yedo, the capital, has hundreds, every town dozens, and Miaco is half made up of them. They always occupy the most elevated grounds, commanding the finest and most extensive views of the surrounding country, are shaded by the loftiest and noblest trees of the forest, and, in brief, in every way take the preference of location.—The Galaxy.

DAVID.

BY DR. GUTHRIE.—NO. 1.

It is not uncommon to read in the preface to works which good men have left as legacies to the church, that their lives, passed amidst quiet scenes and in the routine of useful but common duties, furnished few materials for biography. Their course in life less resembles a river that often swells into floods—here leaps the foaming cataract, there thunders among the rocks through which it has cut itself a path, and only rests in great deep pools, to gather strength, as it were, for another rush—than one which, while adorning the landscape and imparting verdure to the fields it flows through, steals along in silence to the sea. Such tranquility and monotony were not features of David's life. It fills a much larger space in the Bible than any other—occupying as many as sixty-one chapters, though the history of Jacob is completed in eleven, and that of Abraham, the friend of God and father of the chosen race, in fourteen; and as one might safely infer from that circumstance, it is full of interesting and important incidents. Indeed his history is one we should now-a-days call sensational; being crowded with events almost more strange and stirring than are usually represented on the stage, or woven into the pages of a romance.

The curtain at its rising shows us a valley among the quiet hills of Bethlehem, where a beautiful lad leads his snowy flock to the banks of a silent stream; and sitting down on the sward beneath the shadow of a great rock, passes the time in meditation—now casting his thoughts into the form of poetry, and now pouring them forth in song to the music of his harp. A peaceful scene! but how suddenly it changes? A terrific roar, the flying sheep, and a cry of pain startle the shepherd. Bounding from the thicket, a lion has seized the lamb, and is bearing it off in its bloody jaws. The stripling leaps to his feet; and dropping the harp for his staff, throws himself in the path of the spoiler. They close in deadly combat—a lad against a lion. Stunned by a shower of blows, the savage beast drops its prey to throw himself with a roar on his brave antagonist. With a brief prayer to God he seizes the lion by the beard, and striking at the shaggy breast he offers, buries a knife in his heart; lays him dead at his feet.

The next scene presents a change breaking, like the rosy dawn, on David's fortunes. Summoned from the flock, he returns to Bethlehem to find the whole town in a state of unusual excitement. Samuel, long the judge, and still the venerable prophet of Israel, has arrived there; and its rulers, who furnish an illustration of the saying, "The wicked fleeth when no man pursueth," conscious of guilt, dread that he has come to call them to account. His business is not with them; but with this youth, Jesse's youngest son. Hitherto known only by the maidens of an obscure hill town for the beauty of his person, and among its shepherd lads for his manly bravery, David is to be called to fill the throne. Saul was the choice of the people, but he is the choice of God. Modestly he enters the great man's presence—wondering what he can have to do with him—and has no sooner appeared than the Lord says to Samuel, "This is he; arise, anoint him!"—and there, beside a smoking altar, agitated by the new and strange emotions the vision of a sceptre raises, David is kneeling at the prophet's feet, and in the oil poured on his golden locks receiving the investiture of a king.

The next view shows us the path to his brilliant fortunes beginning to open. A messenger appears in Bethlehem, summoning him from the sheepfolds to the palace. Since the day the Spirit of the Lord left the king to abide on David, a darkness, like what falls on the earth when the sun deserts the sky, had fallen on the mind of Saul; and now, harp in hand, the stripling stands before the throne and its moody, gloomy occupant, to charm his ear with music, and with its soft and gentle magic to conjure the fiend away. But as a boat, though now raised high on their foaming crest, is soon lost to view in the trough of the waves, David, apparently the sport of fickle fortune, disappears once more into the obscurity of country life. He leaves the royal presence—happy, probably, to exchange a courtier's for a shepherd's attire, and escape from the jealousies and contentions of a palace to his pipe and harp and simple home, to the little flock and quiet hills of Bethlehem.

Again the scene shifts. Now he stands on the pinnacle of his fame; the cynosure of all eyes; his name familiar as a household word; his story told by every hearth; the acknowledged saviour of his country, and the burden of its songs; the envy of her youths, and the admiration of her high-born and fairest maidens. Goliath has fallen to his sling; the people go to gaze on the grim head that stands bleaching in the sun; and the giant's sword is hung in the house of God—a trophy, not so much of David's prowess, as that He who delivered him from the paw of the lion, and the paw of the bear, also delivered him from the hands of the Philistine.

But as the waves of a flowing tide, though it advances steadily on the naked sands as each curls and breaks, retreat back into the bosom of the sea, so David's fortunes seemed to flow to an ebb. The son-in-law of Saul, the beloved friend of Jonathan, the first man at court, the leader of the host, the idol of the people, he appears in the next scene flung as by a sudden change of fortune into the very dust. A price lies on his head; an outlaw no man dares to shelter, and whose fallen fortunes none follow but a few retainers in circumstances almost as desperate as his own, he is hunted, like a wild beast, from cave to cave, and hill to hill.

Yet as when a storm with flashing lightnings, and peals that shake the heavens, and rains that swell the streams, disperses the loaded clouds and restores sunshine to the earth, events occur to produce a favorable change in David's circumstances. Fortune, as the world would say, smiles on him again. The fugitive of Engedi's caves, the exile his country had cast out to seek protection from its hereditary enemies, is called to the throne of Judah. A few years more, and every rival dead and gone, the sceptre of Israel falls into his hand; and retaining it till his grasp relaxes in death, he reigns sole monarch of a country among whose hills he had passed his youth as a shepherd, and in whose caves as a fugitive he had been often hiding for his life.

A strange, what a happy fortune! I am not sure of that—a doubt that recalls a story illustrative of the happiness which may be enjoyed in humble life, and also of the manner in which God sometimes, even in this world, crowns deeds of virtue, and makes the bread return which men in faith and kindness had cast on the waters. A century and more ago, a youth, impatient of control, left his native village and a widowed mother—who fell into sore poverty in the evening of her days. A humble neighbor, touched with pity, received her into his house; shared with her the earnings of long hours and his busy shuttle; assigned her the warmest corner at his fireside; honored her as a mother; nor ceased his kindness till he had laid her grey head in the grave. Long afterward a stranger, with furrowed brow and sunbrowned face, appeared in the village. Having learned, in answer to his inquiries, the story of the widow and her benefactor, he repairs to the churchyard, and returns from her grave to seek the humble house in whose tenant she had found a son. The bread the cottager had cast on the waters returns in this stranger. He is the son who, long years ago, had left his mother to the care of others. Her benefactor had two children—just then blooming into womanhood. He adopts them; and educating, endows them with the splendid fortune he had amassed in a distant land. One rose to be a countess, and the object of a higher adoption, rose to the rank of an heir of grace; becoming as eminent for her piety in the church as for her position in the world. Yet, when raised to wealth and rank, she often said that these had never yielded such happiness as she enjoyed when, a sunbrowned child, she herded her cattle on the lea, with larks singing above her head, and daisies springing at her naked feet. Similar, probably, was the experience of David.

"Covet the best gifts," says the apostle; but let us not covet great earthly things, or turn an envious eye on their possessors, or forget in whatsoever state we are therewith to be content. The tops of the mountains are naked, and cold, and bare; the heights which ambition eyes and braces its limbs to climb are often wrapped in clouds, chill with mists, white with snows, swept by storms and shattered by lightnings, from which the valleys lying at their feet are happily exempt. So David found to his painful experience. He reaches the throne; but it is to recall with a melancholy pleasure the happy youth he spent under his father's roof, and among the hills where, free from cares, he passed the live-long day with his harp and easy charge.

> "At ease reclined beneath the verdant shade,
> No more shall I behold my happy flock
> Aloft hang browsing on the tufted rock."

Taken from the sheepfolds to be a king, he bids farewell to ease, if not to peace, of mind. His life gets crowded with events that tax his energies to the utmost—many, the result of his position, embittering with anxiety his days and nights; and some that sprang from the temptations to which he was peculiarly exposed, striking his soul with horror, covering his head with the deepest shame. In defending or enlarging the borders of his kingdom, the sword is almost never out of his hand. He finds peace neither abroad nor at home. Domestic quarrels wreck his happiness; treachery lurks within the walls of the palace; crimes are committed in the very bosom of his family that shock the land; acts where rebellion, rape, incest, adultery and murder play their part, succeed each other on the stage—making his life, if one of the most interesting, the saddest recorded in the word of God. We have but to glance at the trials through which he passed to approve the title of this article, and understand the plaintive and dirge-like tones of many a psalm. Very different from that glorious scene where, under the eyes of the shouting host, he stands before Saul flushed with the excitement, and bearing in his hand the spoils of battle, one in reading these seems to see him in the solitude which sorrow courts; alone, an old and bowed-down man; crushed beneath a load of grief; the tears dropping from his cheeks as he bends over his harp with faltering voice, and hands that tremble as they touch the strings. No man, not Job himself, had more reason to cry, "O my God, my soul is cast down within me; deep calleth unto deep at the voice of thy water-spouts; all thy billows and thy waves are gone over me." In some aspects explicable, in others inscrutably mysterious, there are scenes in this good man's life which make one feel that he might have challenged the whole world, saying, "Behold and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow!"—Sunday Magazine.

THE BEST OF ALL SCHOOLS.—The fireside is a seminary of infinite importance, because it is universal and because the education it bestows, being woven in with the woof of childhood, gives form and color to the whole texture of life. There are few who can receive the honors of a college, but all are graduates of the hearth. The learning of the university may fade from the recollections, its classic lore may moulder in the halls of memory, but the simple lessons of home, enamelled upon the heart of childhood, defy the rust of years, and outlive the more mature but less vivid picture of after years. So deep, so lasting, indeed, are the impressions of early life, that you often see a man in the imbecility of age holding fresh in his recollection the events of childhood, while all the wide space between that and the present hour is a blasted and forgotten waste. You have, perchance, seen an old and obliterated portrait, and in the attempt to have it cleaned and restored, you may have seen it fade away, while a brighter and more perfect picture, painted beneath, is revealed to view. This portrait, first drawn upon the canvass, is no faint illustration of youth; and though it may be concealed by some after design, still the original traits will shine through the outward picture, giving it its tone while fresh, and surviving it in decay. Such is the fireside—the great institution of Providence for the education of man.—Goodrich.

ENGLISH paupers increase in number at the rate of 44,000 a year.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey.
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order. If this cannot be had, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

CITY MONEY.

Five dollars of city money are now required to pay for the ADVOCATE for one year.

CHRIST OUR LIFE.

The life of the Son was the cause of life to us; unless he had been, man would not have been. The promise of Christ antedated the natural life of the sons of Adam. The Son was the cause which moved God to continue the race—a cause which has force every moment upon every human being.

The strange force of life is seen in the seed of a plant, as the impulse which enables it to take to itself air, earth and water, and from a feeble spire to become "the greatest of herbs." A similar force of development is lodged in the child; its body, mind and spirit assimilate the elements of growth in this world, and, eventually passing into other regions, assumes higher capacities, a more beautiful form, until it equals the angels. Who can say what is the limit of this power? Is not its exact measure to be found in the Son?—his life?

His life operated for us when it rescued us from death. In every created being of great power an element of disobedience must be an element of death. Such was the condition of man when the life of the obedient Son was yielded to rescue him from the "curse of the law." This substitute of death for death is the basis of man's life; so that his existence now springs from the great fact of redemption, as much as it ever did from creation.

Because the Son of Man ascended, we live a spiritual life—humanity breathes heaven. He liveth in that sense for us. His glorified state is as significant of what our life is, and reveals as much as did any part of his earthly career. We look upon him steadily as the type proper of humanity, and see him ascend in a clear sky as he raises, by every degree of the sublime gravitation, the fortunes and the form, the life and the inheritance of man, to the highest place in the universe.

Possessing this immense power of life, the Son of Man, seated at the right hand of God, dispenses its spirit to the sons of men. The Saviour desired that he might be raised to that height that he might the better dispense the precious gift of life: "Glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee; as thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him."

CUBA will have only half its usual tobacco crop this season.

THE PROSPECT.

Mr. Stanton having concluded to change his boarding house, the President having been acquitted, there is altogether a new face upon the political sky. To be sure there is an effort of Radicalism to die decently; General Butler is industriously ferreting out what corruption may have infested the High Court of Impeachment, and we know of no one more experienced in such matters; and a good deal of threatening is heard that the whole will be gone over again, and Mr. Johnson will yet be convicted; but on the whole, the belief of thinking men is, that Conservatism has signally triumphed over the Radical enemy. There appears to be among prominent Conservative politicians, of all shades of opinion, a disposition to yield, for once, all personal considerations to the general good—to put forward the most available man, whether from among civilians or soldiers, as the nominee of the Democratic party. General Grant's nomination was attended with very considerable enthusiasm in the hall where it occurred. At the precise moment when he was announced as the choice of the convention for the Presidency, a dove, colored red, white and blue, was sent out, and flitted from platform to balconies, and then circled round and round, adding not a little to the enthusiasm. A large screen at the rear of the stage was unrolled, with a painting of the Presidential mansion, a portrait of Grant pointed out by Liberty as the Republican nominee, and the words "match him!"

Stage scenery and a painted dove are new elements in a campaign, and will doubtless add much to the enthusiasm felt for the General. This flattering emblem of peace had a highly fictitious appearance, and expresses well the union there is between the idea of peace and military ensigns. As yet we do not see anything outside of the house at all comparable to the unrolling screen and the circling dove. The General himself is quite incapable of speech; his is the golden silence which philosophers know how to commend, but which never has passed for much with the people.

The General Conference was well represented in the audience, and contributed much to the boundless ardor of the assembly. The Rev. Dr. Curry, of the Christian Advocate, was greatly impressed: "No words," he writes, "can describe the brilliancy of the scene." He mentions an additional item which put a finish upon the whole, as unique as it was unlooked for:

"The convention arose, the delegates swinging their arms and shouting, and the spectators, including many ladies, vieing with them in their expressions of approval. Doves, colored red, white and blue, were launched from the upper galleries, and, flying about the immense amphitheater, added a pleasing feature to the exciting scene. A glee club, composed of Chaplain M'Cabe and Rev. M. Lucier, (both ministers of our church,) and another, came forward and sung, in fine style, a patriotic song composed for the occasion."

Those glee singers were not the least significant feature of the occasion. It gave a moral, in fact an ecclesiastical, not to say a religious, force to the nomination. We don't think it particularly increased the religious element in the brethren themselves, or added anything to the dignity of the body which they represented, though it mingled Methodism with Radicalism at their highest sources, and indicates that each is the hearty indorser of the other. The prospect is that the whole banded concern, the Convention, the Conference and the candidate, will be defeated in the coming conflict, by a struggle as great as that of the impeachment trial, and by an overthrow as complete.

CHINA MISSION.

In addition to the amounts before published we add the following acknowledgments:

J. E.	$1 00	J. W. F.	$1 00
J. M.	1 50	C. T. F.	1 00
Greenville, collected by Mrs. E. C.		A. McL.	50
Miss A. N. and Mrs. M. A.	10 00	E. J.	50
H. T.	1 00	Issaquanna church, for Bro. Lambuth, by W. L. S.	10 00

NEVER consider a person unfeeling or hard hearted because he refuses what he cannot grant.

The General Conference of the M. E. Church North.

We put together the items of interest in the action of this body:

The Committee on Lay Representation presented two reports. One, a majority, recommends that each annual conference may, if it please, elect one layman to the General Conference, without, however, affecting the ratio of representation. Some conferences may elect only ministers as delegates, other conferences, if they judge proper, may elect one of their delegates out of the laity. The annual conferences are to determine, at a preceding session, how many laymen are to be sent up from the several circuits as representatives, provided the number shall not exceed thirty. These lay representatives are to be elected by the district stewards at their last regular annual meeting.

This plan is very much the same with one of the substitutes which was rejected by the General Conference of the Southern Methodist church at New Orleans. The minority report that lay delegation, in either the annual or general conferences, will involve a change in the organic structure of the church, and should not be attempted "until the people ask for it."

These reports come in on the EIGHTEENTH DAY, which is but one day sooner in its session than the report on lay representation was reached in our General Conference. There is evidently a great struggle in waiting before it will be able to determine the policy of the church upon this vital question.

On the same day came up another great question—"the inevitable negro." The great dream of "the universal brotherhood of man" seemed about to be realized by the most ardent friends of the black man of Africa. The theory of emancipation had given place to the momentous fact of liberation. So now the abstract notion of the equality of all men presented itself in a concrete form: a messenger, a bishop, a colored man in high position, had arrived, the representative of the African M. E. Zion Church to the M. E. Church. Coming directly from the General Conference of that church, which still continued in session at Washington awaiting an answer to its proposal to unite its fortunes, its 164,000 members, 694 ministers, 16 annual conferences and 6 bishops, all black, with those of the M. E. Church, "for better for worse."

"We are ready," says the address of the African M. E. Zion Church, "therefore, to enter into arrangements by which to affiliate on the basis of equality, and to become one and inseparable, now and forever.

"Aside from the condition of full equality with the most favored of the church, we desire the further stipulation that a sufficient number of those whom we may select to exercise the episcopal oversight of the colored element of the body may be set apart to that office, on the basis of perfect equality with all other bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church."

Surely now a nation could be born in a day, and the prayers of fifty years be answered in an hour. This vast number of Ethiopians stretches out its hands toward their white brethren; all that is asked is to be permitted to "affiliate on the basis of equality." The reader may be sure that the plenipotentiary, Bishop Singleton T. Jones, received a most cordial welcome. The Rev. A. M. Osborn, chairman of the Committee of Reception, came upon the platform, in company with the bishop, "amid the cheers of the conference and the congregation." He was introduced to the conference by the presiding officer, the conference rising; whereupon the bishop made a stunning speech, which we venture to give in extenso, as it shows how rapidly they have educated the black man up to the point of demanding all that you are disposed to give, and may be a little more. The heartiness with which the white brethren received this speech must have quite assured the bishop that his mission had been entirely successful.

BISHOP JONES' ADDRESS.

Venerable Bishops and Brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Church: I greet you. I come from a body which represents 164,000 members of the family of Methodism, 694 ministers and sixteen annual conferences, marshalled under six executive officers. A century has passed since the immortal Wesleys and their illustrious compeers laid the foundations of Methodism upon the indestructible basis of Bible purity and Bible equality. (Applause.) The church in America has degenerated from those principles, as the sad history of that church will tell. But in the providence of God events have rolled on, and now the State, taking the lead of the church, has settled herself down upon the broad principles of the Declaration of Independence, that a man is a man. (Applause.) And I am happy to say that it is the understanding of the body from which I come that your church, in its reconstruction, has re-echoed the same sentiment, and are ready to announce everywhere that man is a man, and that a Christian is a Christian, whether he be a colored man or a white man.

I am here therefore to ascertain whether we can live together again. We have found no difficulty in living together as master and slave; let us hope, in God's name, we shall find no difficulty in living together as freemen and Christians. (Applause.) We ask for equality because, as members of the Christian church, and as 'partakers of the divine nature,' we dare not, for the dignity of our Christian principles, we dare not ask for anything less than equality. (Applause.) By that equality, however, we mean not, Mr. Chairman, to thrust ourselves upon you, sir, nor yet to permit you to thrust yourselves upon us. (Long continued and vociferous applause.) We propose, sir, to walk into your parlors and sit down there as men, but not till you invite us to do so, and we do not propose that you shall walk into our parlors and sit down there till we invite you. (Applause.) I think that the conference will understand that we are sensible upon this subject. (Renewed applause.)

We have asked that certain brethren whom we know, but whom you cannot know, might be designated by us to exercise episcopal authority over us, not because we have any objection to these bishops who sit around me now, but because, sir, we suppose that the church is not ready to allow me as a bishop to sit in authority over you; so we claim that black men shall be authorized to preside over us, and that the episcopal honors shall be shared in common by black and white—and just so far as there can be an interchange let us have it. (Great applause.)

We do not propose to force this matter, but to let time work it out, and we think that time—and more than all, sir, that Christianity—will eventually work out this problem satisfactorily to all.

Having said thus much, I need add no more. I will only say, however, that if it can be laid down in this conference that this white organization and this colored organization can become one and inseparable, now and forever, on broad principles of equality, we shall heartily rejoice in it, and the second century of Methodism will commence on a grand basis, that will make her, not only in this land but in all lands, the great and formidable engine in the hands of God to evangelize and Christianize the world. (Applause.)

On motion of J. M. Reid, it was resolved that we have heard, with the greatest pleasure, the communication and address of our reverend brother who has just taken his seat, and that the papers which he has presented to this body, he and they hereby are referred to the committee already appointed upon that subject.

A member said he had understood that the brother who has just spoken is a bishop of the African M. E. Zion Church, and asked if this were so.

Yes—it was even so. When we consider the Republican Convention outside the conference, the intense Black Republicans inside, the fact that quite a number of reverends were members of both conference and convention, and that the greatest minds of the conference were there as the foremost men in the cause of the black man, and had declared him to be the "coming man" by emphasis, it appeared that there could be but one answer to the proposition. The labor of a lifetime, and the point of a thousand sermons, had been, with these intense, earnest men, to bring about just such a conflux of these two great streams of divided humanity into one happy communion of perfect unity. The commingling of these two churches, "upon the basis of equality," would demonstrate to the world the "color blindness" of love.

Alas! alas, for poor humanity, the result demonstrated that there was no reality, no actual truth in the professions of these men, nor had been for fifty years; that they still have as much of the "demon of caste" in them as white men in the South or elsewhere:

It was announced that Bishop Jones, of the A. M. E. Zion Church, desired to return to his conference, and that the committee raised for consultation was ready to report. It was as follows:

The committee appointed to receive and confer with the delegate of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, report that they had a free conference with the Rev. Singleton T. Jones, who is duly accredited to this body, and beg to present the following resolutions for your adoption, viz:

Resolved, That we, having received the official communication of the African M. E. Zion Church, proposing union with the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, and also the representations of the Rev. S. T. Jones on the same subject, with great satisfaction, hereby express to them our Christian regards and deep interest in their progress and prosperity as a church of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Resolved, That this conference entertain favorably the proposal of union between the two bodies aforesaid.

Resolved, That whereas the time of the session of these two conference is so far spent that it will be impracticable to have the necessary negotiations and determine the details of the terms of union before their adjournment, that a commission of fifteen be appointed by the board of bishops, to confer with a commission of the A. M. E. Zion Church, and report to the next General Conference.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing action of this body be given to the delegate, and by him be forwarded to the General Conference of the A. M. E. Zion Church.

On the adoption of this report another debate occurred, but it was conducted in a most fraternal manner.

Finally Bishop S. T. Jones, of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, came forward, amid cheers, and said:

BRETHREN: I am thankful to you, sirs, and to the conference, for the cordial, I may say enthusiastic, manner in which you have received me, not so much as a compliment to myself as a recognition of the fact that those whom I represent are a part of the great Methodist family, and I know for myself and my connection that that kindness will always be reciprocated.

I don't know, sir, that I rightly apprehended the action of your conference just passed. If I am to regard it as an indication that the grand old car of Methodism is so obstructed by past alliances that it cannot proceed properly with a black man in it, I heartily regret it, not so much for myself or the people I represent, as for the light in which it will be regarded by the civilized world. I hope, however, I may regard it as the necessary arrangement for the purpose of adjusting the details of this proposed union, so that it shall be all the stronger and more reliable when it shall be made, and this is the light in which I am disposed to regard it. (Cheers.) Then, sir, I can go back to my conference and people, telling them that the Methodist Episcopal Church is moving on. I need not add any more, sir, for the commission on your part has been ordered, and to that commission, when both parts of it shall meet, all these questions may be safely intrusted. We have borne the Methodist banner for more than a century untarnished; we have, through that period, sustained the dignity of Methodism, and God helping us, whether with the old church or alone, we will continue to sustain it.

Hoping that wisdom and grace may be with you and guide you in your counsels, and that nothing may be done to obstruct the onward and glorious car of Methodism, and that each of you may receive a personal blessing from the hand of our God, I leave you.

Bishop Ames said to Brother Jones, we have a hundred thousand or so of colored brethren on board of the old car, and we do not find that it obstructs its running at all. (Cheers.)

So ended this ecclesiastical farce. The colored bishop goes back, we judge, somewhat wiser than when he came. "Four years" hence is a very satisfactory answer to a conference that, like a Cincinnati steamboat, is keeping up steam in the hope of getting passengers. If the African M. E. Zion Church wishes to be swallowed—in a brotherly way—Bishop Ames will find a place for them, but not exactly on the "basis of perfect equality."

IMPORTANT ORDER.

LEGISLATIVE AND EXECUTIVE OFFICERS OF LOUISIANA.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DIST., New Orleans, La., June 2, 1868.
Special Orders No. 121.

1. The returns of the election for members of the General Assembly, and for State, parish and judicial officers, held in the State of Louisiana, on the 17th and 18th days of April, 1868, in compliance with Special Orders Nos. 55 and 63, current series, from these headquarters, having been made to the commanding general, in accordance with law, it is hereby declared that the following named persons are duly elected to the offices herein specified in connection with their respective names:

Members of the General Assembly.

SENATE.

First Senatorial District: M. A. Fonte, G. H. Braughn, R. N. Ogden.

Second Senatorial District: E. L. Jewell, A. Sambola.

Third Senatorial District: T. V. Coupland, J. J. Monette.

Fourth Senatorial District: A. B. Bacon.

Fifth Senatorial District: C. C. Packard.

Sixth Senatorial District: S. M. Todd, M. F. Smith.

Seventh Senatorial District: Jos. Wittgenstein.

Eight Senatorial District: Robert Poindexter, Patrick O'Hara.

Ninth Senatorial District: C. B. Darrell.

Tenth Senatorial District: T. C. Anderson, William Offutt.

Eleventh Senatorial District: W. L. Thompson.

Twelfth Senatorial District: Carlos Wilcox, F. L. Jewell.

Thirteenth Senatorial District: R. H. Day.

Fourteenth Senatorial District: Lorenzo B. Jenks, Alexander R. Francis.

Fifteenth Senatorial District: John S. Harris.

Sixteenth Senatorial District: A. R. Whitney.

Seventeenth Senatorial District: John Lynch, Curtis Pollard.

Eighteenth Senatorial District: John Ray.

Nineteenth Senatorial District: R. W. Futch.

Twentieth Senatorial District: W. F. Blackman, J. C. Egan.

Twenty-first Senatorial District: Reuben White.

Twenty-second Senatorial District: J. B. Lewis, J. R. Williams.

Twenty-third Senatorial District: George Y. Kelso.

Twenty-fourth Senatorial District: J. D. Beares.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Parish of Ascension: Milton Morris, G. H. Hill.

Parish of Assumption: S. C. Mollin, Geo. Washington.

Parish of Avoyelles: P. Guigonet, E. LeBlanc.

Parish of Baton Rouge, East: Jas. McCullen, B. E. Chaney, J. S. Huguet.

Parish of Baton Rouge, West: Theophilo Mahier.

Parish of Bienville: C. Q. Butler.

Parish of Bossier: B. C. Wren, John Pearce.

Parish of Caddo: John N. Howell, James Christian, Zac. Howell.

Parish of Calcasieu: Wm. Haskell.

Parish of Caldwell: A. W. Faulkner.

Parish of Carroll: W. L. McMillen, P. Jones Yorke.

Parish of Catahoula: E. S. Wilson.

Parish of Claiborne: W. W. Bennett, C. B. Pratt.

Parish of Concordia: David Young, Isaac A. Abbott.

Parish of DeSoto: T. M. Gatlin, J. D. Wemple.

Parish of Feliciana, East: Wm. C. Williams, John Gair.

Parish of Feliciana, West: Robt. J. Taylor.

Parish of Franklin: J. C. Humble.

Parish of Iberville: P. G. Desloude, P. L. Dufresne.

Parish of Jackson: H. C. Sisson.

Parish of Jefferson: M. Raymond, T. B. W. Evans, J. Gartscamp, John Page.

Parish of Lafayette: J. M. Judice.

Parish of Lafourche: D. H. Reese, Wm. Murrell.

Parish of Livingston: Wm. H. Pierce.

Parish of Madison: Henderson Williams.

Parish of Morehouse: E. F. Buckingham.

Parish of Natchitoches: W. C. Melvin, Charles Leroy.

Parish of Orleans:

First Representative District: P. H. Waters, J. T. Hanlon.

Second Representative District: E. F. L'Hosto, Jacob Zoelly, Joseph H. De Grange.

Third Representative District: B. Collins, M. Carr, R. H. Isabelle, F. C. Antoine.

Fourth Representative District: Charles Stringer, F. C. Zacharie.

Fifth Representative District: Octave Belot, Joseph Mausion.

Sixth Representative District: J. R. Curell.

Seventh Representative District: Henry L. Rey, Currou J. Adolphe.

Eight Representative District: F. Borge.

Ninth Representative District: L. A. Wiltz, J. E. Rengstorff.

Tenth Representative District: W. Pope Noble, C. R. May, Charles A. Esger.

Right Bank: Alexander Frank.

Parish of Ouachita: F. Morey, O. H. Brewster.

Parish of Plaquemine; R. J. Moran.

Parish of Pointe Coupee: William Smith, E. Honore.

Parish of Rapides: W. S. Calhoun, Samuel E Cuney, Harry Lott.

Parish of Sabine: Leslie Barbee.

Parish of St. Bernard: F. H. Knapp.

Parish of St. Charles: Peter Harper.

Parish of St. Helena: Amos Kent.

Parish of St. James: Charles Gray, A. Tureaud.

Parish of St. John Baptist: Dennis Burrell.

Parish of St. Landry: Willis Prescott, Onezime Tate, M. D. Kavanaugh, Alcie Dupre.

Parish of St. Martin: J. B. Bergeron, L. P. Briont.

Parish of St. Mary: A. J. Demorest, J. B. Esnard.

Parish of St. Tammany: J. W. Hutchinson.

Parish of Tensas: James S. Mathews, W. M. Holland.

Parish of Terrebonne: Ulger Dupart, Paul Gaidry.

Parish of Union: J. B. Landers.

Parish of Vermillion: Nicolas Young.

Parish of Washington: Jacob Magee.

Parish of Winn.: David C. Fouts.

The General Assembly will not convene until the commanding general shall have been officially notified of the acceptance by Congress of the new State Constitution. Immediately after receipt of this information a day will be appointed for the meeting of the General Assembly, to take action upon the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, known as Article XIV, and to define by law the powers and duties pertaining to the offices newly created by this Constitution.

STATE OFFICERS.

Governor, Henry C. Warmoth.

Lieutenant Governor, Oscar J. Dunn.

Secretary of State, George E. Bovee.

Attorney General, Simeon Belden.

Auditor, George M. Wickliffe.

State Treasurer, Antoine Dubuclet.

Superintendent of Education, Thomas W. Conway.

The civil government hereby provided for is provisional in its character until after the amendment to the Constitution of the United States, known as Article XIV, shall have become part of that Constitution.

Article 158, of the new Constitution of the State, provides that the term of office of all civil officers elected under it, shall date from the first Monday in November following the election. Therefore, the officers whose election is herein announced will only enter upon and hold their offices from that date. A vacancy occurring in any office, in the meantime, will be filled preferably by the person who has been elected to it.

If any of the officers whose election is herein announced shall be disqualified on the first Monday in November, 1868, to hold office, the incumbent at that date will hold over until the disability shall have been removed, or a new election held.

Cases of contested election will be determined by the proper civil tribunal in accordance with the provisions of the State Constitution and existing laws.

An official copy of this order will be regarded as a certificate of election.

By command of Brevet Major Gen. R. C. Buchanan,

THOS. H. NEILL,
Maj. 20th Inf., Bv. Brig. Gen., U. S. A.,
Acting Assistant Adjutant General.

Official:

NATHANIEL BURBANK,
2d Lt., 37th Inf., Bvt. 1st Lt., U. S. A.,
Acting Assistant Adjutant General.

For the Advocate.

Letter from St. Landry Parish.

OPELOUSAS, May 18, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: Has the storm passed or is it only just coming? What means the lull, the calm, the listlessness that seems to have taken the place of anxiety for the country? A report of the fearful K. K.'s only caused men, hereabouts, to say—"Ah!". A very wise remark, doubtless.

But we have some talk about other things. It is said that the New Orleans and Texas Railroad is bound to go through in one year; that a new route has been selected through a richer and more populous section than the first. Of course we are highly delighted, for we only need a railroad to tack us on to the city to become a city ourselves—a city with large building lots.

An immigration society has been organized, in the lead of which are many of our best citizens. There has long been a general desire to see immigrants coming in, and now a hearty effort is to be made to induce them to come. Diligent inquiries are being made concerning the character of the lands, etc., etc., from which careful reports will be made for the inspection of the outside world. It is believed that southwestern Louisiana has many natural advantages of which few other countries can boast. And though we have some disadvantages, they are all surmountable.

The material (cypress picux) with which to fence an hundred acre field can be bought for about $250, and the fence, once made, will be good for twenty-five years, and even much longer. But then there is also a great deal of rail timber.

When I think of the fine opportunity offered by nature in this parish, to the industrious, for the securement of good homes, that need never be left on account of the soil wearing out, I am tempted to advise all to come; but viewing the uncertainties that surround us (in the South) I am disposed to say: if you can live—can get plenty of bread, meat, etc.—where you are, stay there for the present.

The corn crop in the parish promises a large yield. The general impression is that corn will be cheap in autumn.

A good deal of cotton has been planted in the aggregate, but not very largely, I think, in any one field. It is not doing as well as corn.

The health of the country is said to be good. I hear of colds, an occasional fever, etc., but there is very little sickness.

Our churches are doing well. The clergy, local and itinerant, are laboring steadily. It is not uncommon to hear of accessions to the church at ordinary Sabbath services. The work is extending—spreading out.

Doubtless you have, by this time, received from an abler pen an account of the first district conference ever held in the Opelousas district. An interesting feature of this assembly was the presence of a number of intelligent laymen.

In this particular section we have had but little trouble from Northern missionaries. They did get a man who had been tolerated in our church, for a long time, as a licensed preacher, but had been expelled just before they bought him. I think they got him cheap, and I have since been told that the negroes desire to return him as damaged goods.

Some Northern and English money was put in a thing denominated a church, in Opelousas. It has no roof, has stood uncared for some time, and is doubtless waiting for more money from the dear zealots in New and Old England.

The wind is blowing, the rain is falling, and—the world is moving on. F. T. R

CHINA MISSION.

We acknowledge the receipt of $10 from P. W. A., Mississippi, "a part of the tithe of some money received not long since" for the China Mission.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

OBITUARIES.

IN MEMORIAM.

EDWARD POWELL, of Hinds county, Mississippi, died at his home near Raymond, on the 1st day of May, 1868, of congestion of the brain.

He married Miss Kate Haynie, daughter of Mrs. Julia M. Haynie, formerly of Holly Springs, Mississippi, in 1855.

He was beloved by all who knew him. He has not left an enemy among a large acquaintance, who have known him from his boyhood. In all the relations of life he was freer from blame than any one I ever knew—kind, patient, tender, forgiving and truthful. He never joined the church, but his walk was that of a Christian, and in his dying hours he expressed his confidence in his Redeemer, and his willingness to die if it was the will of God. My daughter has lost one of the best of husbands, her children a good father, and I one of the best sons-in-law any woman ever had: He was friend, companion and child to me. But it is not to eulogize my lost friend, but to let my relations in Texas and elsewhere know of our great loss, that I write. My family are leaving this world very fast, and I shall not be long behind. But I can say, with all my heart: "Thy will be done."

JULIA M. HAYNIE.

Memphis and Texas Advocates please copy.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Butler District, Mobile Conference, will be held in Shuhuta, on the 18th day of June, 1868.

All the official members are urged to attend. Brother T. S. Abernethy, Jr., will preach the opening sermon. Bishop Andrew will preside.

JOSHUA T. HEARD, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

JOS. T. CUNNY, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

MOBILE DISTRICT.

A District Meeting and a Sunday School Convention for this district will be held in the St. Francis street Methodist church, Mobile, commencing on Wednesday, the 17th day of June, at which the preachers and official members are requested to be present. Superintendents of Sunday-schools are especially urged to be in attendance, with full statistics of their respective schools, and such other information on the subject as they may have at hand. Bishop Andrew, and perhaps Bishop Wightman, may be present.

Members, on their arrival, will call at Dr. Neely's office, in the St. Francis street church, and learn their homes.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Camden District, Montgomery Conference, will meet at Pineville, July 10th.

The official members will please be in attendance, prepared to make their reports at the first meeting.

ANSON WEST, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Providence	June 13, 14
North Carroll, at Pine Ridge	20, 21
Carrollton, at Mount Zion	July 4, 5
Sunflower, at Bear Creek	11, 12
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	18, 19
Durant, at Shady Grove	25, 26
Richland, at Goodman	Aug. 1, 2
Yazoo Ct., at New Hope	15, 16
Yazoo City station	22, 23
Mt. Olivet, at Short Creek	29, 30
Bee Lake, at Lodi	Sept. 5, 6

The District Meeting will be held at Durant, commencing on the 6th day of August.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Natchez Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Clinton circuit, at Olive Br'h	June 6, 7
Jackson circuit, at Pipkin's Chapel	13, 14
St. Helena circuit, at Centre	20, 21
East Baton Rouge circuit, at Jones' Creek (Zion)	27, 28
Percy's Creek circuit, at Percy's Creek	July 4, 5
Woodville station	18, 19
Wilkinson circuit	25, 26
Amite circuit, at Adams'	Aug. 8, 9
Liberty circuit, at Liberty	15, 16
Kingston circuit	29, 30
Natchez station	Sept. 5, 6

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

N. Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

German churches, Sarnparue st.	April. 19
German Quarterly Conference, at Dryades street	17
N. Orleans circuit, at Gretna	26
Quarterly Conference for do	—
Baton Rouge	May 2, 3
Moreau street	10
Thibodeaux, at Napoleonville	17
Felicity street	24
Carondelet street	31
Jefferson City	June 7
Plaquemine	14

Lay delegates will be nominated at these Conferences.

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul's	Apr. 11, 12
Whistler	18, 19
Cottage Hill Ct., at Haynieville	25, 26
Mobile, Franklin street	May 3
Mobile, St. Francis street	10
Eastern Shore, at Donnolly's	16, 17
Citronelle, at Mauvilla	23, 24
Pascagoula, at Antioch	30, 31
Bay Shore, at Village	June 6, 7
Ocean Springs Ct., at Ocean Springs	13, 14

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi and Floyd circuit	May 2, 3
Winsborough circuit	9, 10
Ion circuit, at New Salem	23, 24
Jefferson circuit	30, 31
Bastrop circuit	June 6, 7
Bastrop station	13, 14
Waterproof and St. Joseph, at Waterproof	20, 21

W. G. McGAUGHEY, P. E.

Lafayette Dist.—Montgomery Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Marble Valley Ct., at Unity	Mar. 28, 29
Chandler Spring circuit, at Chandler's Spring	Apr. 11, 12
Arbacoochee circuit, at Chulafinnee	18, 19
Dadeville Ct., at Camp Hill	25, 26
Lineville circuit, at Copper Mines	May 2, 3
Montevallo circuit, at Camp Branch	9, 10
Montevallo and Isabella mission	16, 17
Lafayette circuit, at Sandy Ridge	23, 24
Fredonia circuit and Wedowee mission, at Fredonia	30, 31
Pickneyville circuit, at Flint Hill	June 6, 7

JOS. T. CUNNY, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,
NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,
Between Customhouse and Canal streets,
jn6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A CLEAR, SMOOTH SKIN AND beautiful complexion follow the use of HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA.

It removes black spots, pimples, moth-patches and all eruptions of the skin.

IN THE SPRING AND SUMMER months the system naturally undergoes a change, and Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla is an assistant of the greatest value.

YOUNG LADIES, BEWARE OF the injurious effects of Face Powders and Washes. All such remedies close up the pores of the skin, and in a short time destroy the complexion. If you would have a fresh, healthy and youthful appearance, use Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla.

NOT A FEW OF THE WORST disorders that afflict mankind arise from corruption of the blood. Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla is a remedy of the utmost value.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT SARSAparilla cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors that make disease.

THOSE WHO DESIRE BRILLIancy of complexion must purify and enrich the blood, which Helmbold's Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla invariably does. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENtrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla eradicates eruptive and ulcerative diseases of the throat, nose, eyelids, scalp and skin, which so disfigure the appearance, purging the evil effects of mercury, and removing all taints, the remnants of disease, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by adults and children with perfect safety.

Two tablespoonfuls of Helmbold's Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED Extract Buchu is the great diuretic—Helmbold's Concentrated Extract Sarsaparilla is the great Blood Purifier. Both are prepared according to rules of pharmacy and chemistry, and are the most active that can be made.

The best test of their purity and superiority will be a comparison with the properties as set forth in the United States Dispensatory.

My laboratory for the manufacture of Fluid Extracts has been visited by thousands of physicians and druggists from all parts of the United States, and the modo of preparation received their unanimous commendation.

Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Fluid Extracts are pleasant in taste and odor, and immediate in their action.

None are genuine unless done up in the steel-engraved wrapper, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

The proprietor was compelled to adopt such a wrapper because of the growing popularity of his articles, and to prevent spurious and dangerous counterfeiting.

H. T. HELMBOLD, druggist, of eighteen years' experience, and manufacturer of Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Principal Depots—Helmbold's Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New York, next Metropolitan Hotel; and Helmbold's Medical Depot, No. 104 South Tenth street, Philadelphia.

Sold by druggists everywhere.

Price $1 25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6 50. may30 3mp

A SUBSTITUTE FOR SARATOGA WATERS.

COOLING, REFRESHING AND PLEASANT!
CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.

In 6 oz. bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick headache, sour or sick stomach, and all febrile cases. For sale by BARNES, WARD & CO., New Orleans, and by most druggists. Prepared by

ARTHUR ROGERS,
may16 3m 193 Spring street, New York.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's Domestic Family Physician describes all diseases and their remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR. S. S. FITCH,
may2 7mp 714 Broadway, New York.

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by

ROBT. FISHER, Agent,
may2 1y No. 203 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

POPULAR INVESTMENT.

Central Pacific Railroad Comp.'s

FIRST MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY are authorized by acts of Congress to construct, with the aid and supervision of the United States Government, the western and principal portion of the National Trunk Line between the Pacific coast and the Mississippi valley. They have built by far the most difficult and expensive portion of their road, and have an unprecedented working force extending the track across the Salt Lake basin. By the close of 1868 it is expected they will have 500 miles in full operation, and that

THE ENTIRE LINE WILL BE COMPLETED IN 1870.

More than Twenty Millions of Dollars have been expended in the work, and the available construction resources are ample for the remainder, as follows:

1. United States Bonds to the extent of $35,000 per mile, average.

2. First Mortgage Bonds to the same amount.

3. Grant of Public Lands along the route, 12,800 acres per mile.

4. Capital stock of $20,000,000, of which $5,000,000 is subscribed and paid on the work done.

5. Cash resources, comprising donations from California sources amounting to $1,250,000, net earnings, etc., 1865 to 1870, $6,500,000, making a total of more than Seventy Millions Upon the First 736 Miles.

One hundred and fifty miles are now built and in operation on both slopes of the Sierra Nevada range. The net earnings for the past year were over a million in gold, or more than four times the annual interest liabilities, and the net surplus for the present year, after payment of expenses and interest, is estimated at

$1,500,000 IN GOLD!

We have now on hand a supply, and are prepared to fill all orders at their

Par Value and Accrued Interest,

in currency, a limited amount of the

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS,

bearing six per cent. per annum—both interest and principal being explicitly made "PAYABLE IN GOLD COIN," conformably with the specie laws of the Pacific States.

The Bonds are $1,000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in July and January, the back interest from January 1st being charged to the purchasers, in currency.

☞ The Company reserve the right to advance the price at any time; but all orders actually in transitu at the time of any such advance will be filled at the present price. They are believed to be the most perfect and assured corporate security now offered, and are recommended to persons seeking desirable steady investments.

We receive all classes of Government Bonds, at their full market rates, in exchange for the Central Pacific Railroad Bonds, thus enabling the holders to realize from five to ten per cent. profit and keep the principal of their investments equally secure.

Orders and inquiries will receive prompt attention. Information, descriptive pamphlets, etc., giving a full account of the organization, progress, business and prospects of the enterprise, furnished on application. Bonds sent by return Express at our cost.

FISK & HATCH,
Financial Agents of the C. P. R. R. Co.,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

Offices of the Central Pacific Railroad Co.:
No. 54 William street, New York, and
Nos. 56 and 58 K street, Sacramento, Cal.

Subscriptions Received Through National Banks and Bankers Generally.

☞ All descriptions of GOVERNMENT SECURITIES bought, sold or exchanged, at our office and by mail and telegraph, at market rates.

Seven-Thirty Notes converted into the new Five-Twenties, or any other class of Government Bonds.

Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, and favorable arrangements made for desirable accounts.

Gold, Coupons and Compound Interest Notes bought and sold.

Miscellaneous Stocks and Bonds bought and sold at the Stock Exchange, on commission, for cash.

☞ Dealers and investors out of the city desiring to make negotiations in any of the above may do so through us, by mail or telegraph, as advantageously as though personally present in New York.

Fisk & Hatch,

BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOVT SECURITIES,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.
may30 1tp

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St., Boston,
Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world, the only true and perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st, New York mar7 1yr

AGENTS WANTED.—MALE OR female, to sell my new and splendid engraving, From Shore to Shore, suggestive of life's journey from childhood to old age. A perfect gem. Address

B. B. RUSSELL,
may30 4tr Boston, Mass.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOYED.—Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents; twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANG, may30 1tp 94 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.

STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address

A. J. FULLAM,
may30 1tr Springfield, Vermont.

THE STIMPSON SCIENTIFIC PEN.

ONE FORWARD AND TWO BACKward arches; insuring great strength, well-balanced elasticity, evenness of point, and smoothness of execution. Sold by all stationers. One gross in twelve contains a Scientific Gold Pen. One dozen Steel Pens (assorted points) and Patent Ink-retaining Penholder mailed on receipt of 50 cents.

A. S. BARNES & CO.,
may30 4tp 111 and 113 William st, N. Y.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely.—The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Your's, very truly,
SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO', Mass., June 9, '64.

MESSRS. BURNETT & CO.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than formerly. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair. With respect,

WM. S. EDDY.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.
For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may2 3mr

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips, will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being extensively used on children's first-class shoes. Sold everywhere.
may2 8tr

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT for Families.—Every family should have a case of Homœopathic medicine. Its simple directions and inviting sugar Pills are so indispensable for children, and so frequently meet the wants of those of larger growth, as to be a necessity. Sickness prevented is health and money saved, and that these simple remedies do arrest disease and restore health is incontestable. No family having once enjoyed their benefits would be without them. Humphrey's Homœopathic Specifics are prepared expressly to meet the wants of families. They are simple, convenient, safe and reliable, and their value has been confirmed by an experience of many years. A full case of thirty-five large vials and Book of Directions, with Specifics for every disease occurring in domestic practice, is sent to any address, by express, free of charge, on receipt of Ten Dollars. Address Humphrey's Specific Homœopathic Medicine Co., 502 Broadway, New York. Send for our Almanac. apr4 3mr

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge.

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs.

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs, of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash, or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly installments. Second-hand Instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.
apr4 1yr HORACE WATERS & CO.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile,	$1 50	$1 65
Work of Christ, Marvin,	65	75
Ecce Ecclesia,	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson,	1 25	1 40
Lee and his Generals, half calf,	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles,	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals,	2 60	2 40

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.

ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

NELLIE'S BIRTHDAY.

BY E. L.

One sweet morn in lady June,
When the birds were all in tune
And the roses everywhere
Breathed their fragrance through the air
Came a stranger to our door
We had never seen before.

Very small, but very sweet,
With such tiny hands and feet,
And such winsome violet eyes,
Looking round in grave surprise
Was the stranger when it came:
Can you Nellie guess its name?

Twelve swift years have flown away
Since we welcomed her that day:
Now a little maiden fair
We behold her standing there:
For as buds to roses blow,
Little babes to maidens grow.

Many a gift the years have shed,
As they passed, upon her head;
May all future birthdays bring
Buds of hope to blossoming.
And each germ with goodness rife
Wake to sweet and pleasant life.

For the simple secret this
Is of every earthly bliss:
Riches often prove a snare;
Rich estate has many a care;
Worldly pleasure ends in pain;
Goodness is the only gain.

So, my darling, while we make Loving wishes for your sake,
And to crown the happy day
Bring you gifts and blossoms gay;
Try this lesson well to learn—
It will be a gift in turn.

Sabbath at Home.

THE LITTLE SISTER.

Letters usually arrived at La Vacherie about eleven in the forenoon, and Lucie had a habit of stationing herself, after morning lessons were done, at a window whence she could see the postman coming. At her first glimpse she ran at full speed to meet him. It was such a pleasure to be the first to bring mamma a letter from Charles or Edouard!

It being now February, the days were lengthening, and Lucie thought incessantly of her birthday, the first of March. Then she would be seven years old, and quite a grown-up person. While waiting for the postman she came back often to chatter to her mother, who was writing a letter. Usually people object to conversation while writing, but mothers are forced to put up with these inconveniences.

'Mamma,' said Lucie, 'when I am seven years old may I have a knife at dinner?'

'What do you want to do with it?'

'To cut my meat—like other people.'

'And your fingers also?'

'Oh, no, mamma; you shall see how cleverly I will manage. I have often used Gustave's knife, and never done myself any harm with it.'

'Well; we shall see presently.'

After a short silence Lucie began again:

'The postman is very late to-day. I hope there will be a letter from Charles.'

'And I hope there will be news of your Aunt Marie.'

'Mamma, how old is Cousin Pauline?'

'Six months younger than you.'

'Then she will be nearly six years and a half old. I should so much like to see her. It is very provoking not to have a little sister. I wonder, mamma, why God sent you so many little boys?'

'Which of your brothers would you like to exchange for a sister?'

Lucie reflected a little. 'Well, mamma, I don't know. Not Charles; he is too good for me; and then he is the eldest, and you love him so much. Nor Edouard; for during the holidays he mends all my broken playthings. Certainly not my Paul, who is to help papa in his old age. Perhaps, if Gustave had been a little girl—but then my doll would have had no papa. Ah! mamma, the chance is for you to have a little girl in addition to me.'

'Thank you, my dear; but you alone are quite sufficient. Look! the postman is crossing the meadow.'

'How stupid of me not to see him sooner,' cried Lucie, springing down the staircase in three-bounds, without stopping to put on her cloak. All smiling, the postman gave her a heap of letters, with which she ran back in haste.

'Mamma, here is a letter from Charles and another from Cousin Leon, and—and—'

Madame Bessard did not speak. She had left her hands drop on her knees, and looked straight before her without seeing anything.

'Go and fetch your father,' she murmured, at last.

Lucie, terribly frightened, ran off, quick as an arrow, to the farm. Half way there, she met her father, walking rapidly, with a troubled air, and an open letter in his hand. Lucie ran to him.

'Papa, come quick; mamma sent me to fetch you. I don't know what is the matter with her. She does not cry; but she looks so miserable.'

'Go in, my child, and leave your mother alone with me. Your Aunt Marie is dead,' said M. Bessard, in a broken voice.

'Aunt Marie dead! Oh, poor mamma!'

Lucie, holding her father's hand followed him to the door of her mother's room, then, when he had gone in and shut the door, she seated herself on the staircase outside and hiding her face in her hands, tried to imagine that Aunt Marie was one she had never seen, and who was now an angel in heaven.

Madame de Bessard was the young est sister of Madame Bessard. Married, later in life, and also to a soldier, she had accompanied him to Algeria just when her sister quitted that country. There a little daughter had been born to her: she had lost her husband and had come back to France to die. In landing at Marseilles, she had written to her sister that she hoped to come by some months to La Vacherie with her little Pauline—just for a short breathing time, before she decided on her future plan of life. But a long standing heart-disease developed by her late grief, had carried her off at the age of thirty-five. One evening she was almost well—the next morning she was dead.

In about an hour M. Bessard opened the door of his wife's room, and called softly, 'Lucie.'

The little girl ran quickly up stairs, and timidly raising her eyes to her father, asked, 'May I go and kiss poor mamma?'

'Yes, my child, only just run and tell Annette to pack up my travelling-bag; I don't want to trouble mamma with it.'

'Are you actually going away, papa?' cried Lucie, for the moment astonished, and a little indignant at this.

'Yes: I am going to fetch Pauline. Your Aunt Marie has left her to your mother's care.'

'Papa, I am so—' glad, she was going to say; but stopped and added, 'I will try to love her very much.'

M. Bessard comprehended the double feeling which agitated his little daughter. He put his hand gently to her shoulder, and stooped to kiss her. She hung on his neck, and so he carried her into the room, where, seeing her mother very pale and with swollen eyes, Lucie unwound her arms from her father, and came and knelt by her side. Madame Bessard embraced her daughter in silence.—Lucie kissed her mother's hands.

'You will love Pauline, my child, won't you?'

'Just as you loved Aunt Marie, mamma.'

'May God not take her away from you, then!'

And Madame Bessard, hiding her face, began to weep as her little daughter had never yet seen her. Lucie could only kiss her without uttering a word. At length, making a violent effort, Madame Bessard raised herself, and, entering her husband's dressing-room, desired Lucie to go in search of her brothers, and tell them papa was leaving home.

'Tell them also the reason,' added she, in a low voice.

Lucie easily found Gustave, who was occupied in hunting rats in the granary; but Paul had departed on a grand expedition. He had announced in the morning that he had seen some willows in bud near the stream, about a quarter of a league from the house, and that he meant to go during play-time to fetch some to ornament mamma's flower-stand. Lucie dared not go after him, it was so far; so she wandered about miserably, up and down the walk which led to the stream, until Paul reappeared. Then she ran to him and told him the sad news.

'Papa is starting off at once to bring back Pauline,' she added, 'mamma says Pauline must be our little sister.'

'Yours, if you like,' said Paul; 'but for me one sister is quite enough. Besides, I can't love people that I don't know.'

'But, Paul, you soon will know her. And only think, she is all alone, without either father or mother.'

'Oh, I understand well enough that papa ought to bring her here; and I will love her as a cousin, but as my sister—that is quite another thing.'

Lucie, half indignant at Paul's hard-heartedness in the matter of Pauline, and half grateful for his tenacity of affection toward herself, knew not what to reply, and the two children reached home in silence. The carriage was already at the door; M. Bessard had to meet at Vire the diligence which would take him to St. Lo, the nearest railway station—but far enough; so that he could not possibly reach Paris until next day. Madame Bessard silently insisted on packing his things herself, to the great discontent of the affectionate servants.

'I shall be back in three or four days, I suppose,' said M. Bessard to his wife. 'I wish you could have gone with me; but it would never do to leave the children.'

'Oh, no, impossible. Return as soon as possible. Take care that our daughter does not catch cold on the journey.'

'Yes—be content.' And stooping over his wife, M. Bessard whispered a few words in her ear.

Madame Bessard raised her head with a grateful look. Then she remembered the weary days that must pass before her husband could return to comfort her for the sister she had lost; and pressing his hand once more in a silent good-bye, she hurried back to her room.

There, after a brief time of quiet prayer, she rose stronger and calmer. Hearing some one stirring in Lucie's room. Entering, she found the little girl busy arranging her drawers—or rather, rearranging her clothes, so that several drawers were vacant. She asked what she was doing.

'Mamma, I am making room for Pauline. I have already arranged the doll's cupboard beautifully.'

'But I do not yet know if Pauline can sleep here—this room is so small.'

'Oh, mamma, Gustave slept here when he was little, you know. You have but to get his bed out of the bay loft: and his curtains are in the linen-press still, I know. You told me Pauline was to be my little sister, so she ought to sleep beside me.'

'I never said she was to be your sister, my child.'

'But papa did: and you wish it, do you not, mamma?'

'Yes, yes, my darling,' said Madame Bessard, with a fond embrace.

Next day, while her mother was away at the farm, Lucie persuaded Denis, to get out the little iron bedstead: and when Madame Bessard returned, the room was all ready for her orphan niece. Lucie dared not speak much of Pauline to her mother: but she made up for it by talking incessantly to the boys. Paul maintained strongly his resolution to have only one sister. Gustave, on the contrary, was quite ready to treat Pauline exactly like Lucie, alleging only that she could not be considered an orphan, as she had their papa and mamma for her own.

'Tell her so: and I'll bet anything she'll begin to cry,' said Paul. 'That is why I say she shall never be my sister.'

'But Paul,' argued Lucie, 'since uncle and aunt are in heaven, they cannot take care of their little daughter, of course, so they have given her to mamma to take care of for them. And if we go to heaven before mamma, I dare say they will take care of us for her.'

'I don't want to go to heaven without papa and mamma,' replied Paul, which put an end to the discussion.

Two days after, at eight o'clock in the evening, when the children were all playing together in the hall, Madame Bessard, seated in the drawing-room, heard wheels in the distance. Then lanterns were seen, and lastly, a carriage drove up.

'Papa, papa!' cried the children.

M. Bessard did not reply. Paul ran and opened the carriage door, and his father slowly stepped out, holding in his arms a bundle of shawls, in the midst of which was visible a little pale face, with shut eyes and a quantity of fair hair.

'Here is your second daughter, my wife,' said he, and placed Pauline, still fast asleep, in her aunt's arms.—A French Country Family translated by Miss Malock from the French of Madame Guizot.

FARM AND GARDEN.

GARDEN WORK FOR JUNE.

In this month we have little to do. All the early crops are gone, and we have but to keep cultivating until the time for the late ones to arrive.

Salsify.—A friend from Arkansas informs us that he has but poor success with this excellent vegetable, which should be in every garden—it dies out under the influence of our hot summer suns. He plants too late, and his ground is probably not plowed or spaded deep enough. Salsify, parsnips, beets and carrots should all be planted in this latitude before the 20th of February. The ground should be well and thoroughly pulverized to a depth of not less than fifteen inches. In rich land, under this treatment, we warrant a crop of either.

Strawberries are now making great quantities of runners, which should be kept constantly clipped off and the ground clean. If it is desirable to save the runners to form new beds or plantations, prepare a bed four feet wide; have it deep and rich. Here transplant the small plants, three or four inches apart, watering and shading for a few days. As soon as the plants show signs of new life remove the shade—a bush arbor three feet above the bed, resting on poles and forks, is an excellent contrivance for the purpose. If you would have fine plants and an abundance of large berries observe this precaution of removing runners. Where parties are cultivating only a few plants, and desire to increase the number, we would advise that the young plants be set at once in the positions they are to grow finally, giving shade and water, if the weather be dry. Plants set out from now until August will yield a very fair crop of fruit next spring.

Raspberries need attention. Remove all the canes which have borne fruit this season, by cutting them off close to the ground.

Cabbages.—It is now time to think about our winter cabbages. From the 20th of June to the 1st of July prepare a bed to bring forward the young plants. It should be in a position partially shaded by trees. Make it quite rich by incorporating a bountiful supply of well-rotted stable manure, and have no clods larger than a pea. Pulverize with rake and hands until the soil feels soft as velvet to the touch. If the weather be dry saturate the bed with water before sowing, and as soon as it will work well thereafter stir on the surface and draw drills one foot apart and half an inch deep: sow and cover the seed, patting the surface smooth with the back of the spade or a broad shovel. If the weather is quite dry and hot make the surface quite firm, otherwise let the blows be lighter. In forty-eight hours or less, if the seeds are fresh, the young plants will begin to appear: watch for them very closely, and as soon as they crack the ground sprinkle them with soot or slaked lime, which continue to do every morning before sunrise until they begin to make rough leaves. When all danger of the fly is past you may remit this attention, and thin the plants to an inch apart in the drill. Another precaution against the fly may as well be mentioned. Let a lot of urine accumulate until it is four or five days old. It will then begin to be offensive to the smell; dilute with five parts of water to one of urine, and water the plants at sunset. The odor will drive the insect and push the plants rapidly forward.

Transplanting should be delayed until about the 10th of August, for this latitude. Five days later for each degree south, and five earlier for each degree north. It is best to delay for a few days for a "season." But if none occurs go ahead without fear, following the directions now to be given: Draw the plants late in the afternoon and keep them saturated with water 'wetting the bed thoroughly before beginning to draw:' at the intersections of the checks (made with line and marker) stick a hole with the dibbler, and into it pour a pint of water; whilst some of the water still remains insert the plant and put the dirt firmly about the roots, leaving dry dirt on the surface. It will hardly be necessary to have recourse to further watering, but if the plants wilt very much, which it is not likely they will, one more watering, late in the afternoon, will insure their safety.

The after cultivation is very simple—stir the ground frequently between the rows, by running the spike tooth cultivator both ways, and hoe lightly about the plants until they begin to expand.

To Preserve the Crop is easily done. On the approach of hard freezing weather, in December, prepare a trench four feet wide and eighteen inches deep, which should be drained by a covered drain leading to a ditch giving thorough outlet for the water. Pull up the cabbages and stow them in this trench, roots down and heads up, as they grow. Sift a little dirt over the roots as you put them in. Or they may be set up on the surface and an embankment made around to protect from freezing. Cover over, in either case, with grass and corn stalks to keep out frost.—George H. Gift, in the Southern Farmer.

Recent Scientific Discoveries.

A Mode of Stopping Porous Cylinders for Hydraulic Presses.—Kohn, an engineer in Berlin, gives the following as a method of effectually stopping up a porous cylinder cast for a hydraulic press. The cylinder is to be heated over a charcoal fire to about 170 degs. Fahr. It is then to be filled up with resin and suspended by a crane over the fire until the liquefied resin is seen sweating through on the outside. The excess of resin is then poured out and the cylinder allowed to cool, when the pores will be found completely stopped, and no water can possibly pass.

A Simple Way of Breaking Iron.—The same engineer gives a simple way of breaking a mass of iron, which we hardly think is novel. In a mass 2 feet square and 4 feet long, he bored a perpendicular hole 1 inch in diameter and between 3 inches and 4 inches deep. This he filled with water and closed with an accurately fitting iron bolt. One heavy blow on this bolt broke the mass into two pieces.—American Artisan.

In England and Wales there are now 513,000 more women than men, and 1,533,000 women in these two countries are unmarried. Forty-one per cent. of the adult women of London are unmarried, and in several of the counties the per centage is greater.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A J Wright, A M President
Mrs A A Wright, Principal,
Mr R Scott Lorrain
Miss Anna M Dow
Mme C A Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.
Other Instructors will be announced.

The Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1854, and has a unique record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded and well-designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $170 per quarter. For Circulars and particulars apply to A J WRIGHT.

Hon. Montgomery, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. aug 14

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October 23, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education.

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito-bar and to be marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for his clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Terms: Board and Tuition per session, $300. Payments.—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00, payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

W. H. N. MAGRUDER.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3-6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL.

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES!

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE,

Sumpter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov 9 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

On the corner of Camp and Common sts.

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building,)

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1852, and is chartered by the state. Its former students may be found as Principals or Book-keepers in a large portion of the old houses of the city and over the Southern states. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE: or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR,
nov 17 1y President.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,

Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.,
104 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. je16 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturer's prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market.

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the Implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEHIGH & COAL Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c. and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS,
n17 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds: sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,
Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev J E C Doremus, D D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testamentary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans: then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $50 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not: to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S: by founding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them: according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church, the Board of Directors, representing in its body all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God, for except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the heart-cry of the Great Reformation. "No forbidding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment: God's Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. a25 1y.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds;
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
a 11 20 1y New Orleans

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by J. E. BAILEY,
feb 9, 1y Formerly of Chartres Street.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The Institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at the entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent	$67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency	27 00
French	15 00
Music, with use of instrument,	37 50

Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The deaghters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10-3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soulo University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McOMBER, A M. Pres't. and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
GEN. J O MOORE, A M. Prof. of Mathematics,
Rev B F KAVANAUGH, M D. Prof. of Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
T H KAVANAUGH, M D. Prof. of Natural Science.
B F BROWN, A B. Principal Preparatory Department.
B V LUNN, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868 closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

Collegiate	$24 00	Preparatory	$20 00
Elementary	16 00	Primary	13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate	$36 00	Elementary	$24 00
Preparatory	30 00	Primary	20 40

Modern Languages. (extra) $2 00 per month.

No incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie — a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O. H. McOmber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas
july-13-tf

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The Institution is under control of the M. E Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address
REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
jy-13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent. as Compared with any other Stove.

And at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to THE GOOD SAMARITAN, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this apparatus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, THE GOOD SAMARITAN to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the nadersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of COOKING STOVES, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn,)
my 1 ly 62 Camp street,
Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1.

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1866

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—THOSE DESIRING THE NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. ROBT. J. HARP, Agt., Lock Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.

For Single Copies	each 50c
For any number less than 5	" 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address	" 40c
For any number over 25	" 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays,— Biographical and Descriptive,— Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science, Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenæum, The Examiner; The London, Saturday, and Fortnightly Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwood's, Macmillan's, the Victorin, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs. Oliphant; J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swinebarne, Robert Buchanan, Joan Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR AND FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews	$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews	7 "
For any three of the Reviews	10 "
For all four of the Reviews	12 "
For Blackwood's Magazine	4 "
For Blackwood and one Review	7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews	10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews	13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews	15 "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48,00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the POSTAGE to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood;" and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1800, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1860, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1860, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1860, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh; and the late J. P. NORTON, of Yale College. 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings,

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8. feb 2

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS;
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug21 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

93 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $4 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen. Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mnr1 1 3m Lock Box 817, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.
Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.
Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.
Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.
Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $15 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, JR.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.
Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.
Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.
Mrs Hortense Rodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.
Miss Ellen Guild, School of Design.
Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. In this Institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar11 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents,

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subsciptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will not as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. ED.
sept28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College	$30 00
Contingent Fee	3 00
Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School	$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee	2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C RAIFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,
Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vender of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefited.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church,
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.

sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
nly Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,

Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.

—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

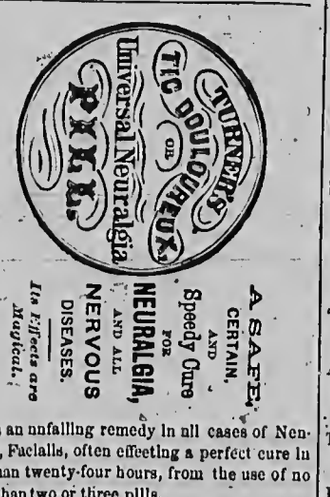
For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. ja 22-67-6m



It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, — of many years standing, —affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package,	$1 00	Postage	6 cts.
Six packages,	5 00	"	27
Twelve packages,	9 00	"	43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.
c 22 129 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.,

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Easton, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

apr4 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
a25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

WALLACE & CO.,

Importers and Jobbers of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, and

PLANTATION CLOTHING,

CORNER MAGAZINE AND COMMON STREETS, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

☞ Sales guaranteed at New York prices.
a18 1y

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1820.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mnr28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

124 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTHWEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25

AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c

THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50

PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00

SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with Instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25

NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

"ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile. Baker $5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt 6 50

ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans 2 00

BILL ARP 1 50

PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS 10 00

KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully Illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the First Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months	$150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos.,	60
" " Preparatory " " "	40
Fuel, for Boarders, " "	10
" " Day scholars, " "	8
Music on Piano, " "	50
French, German, Spanish or Italian each,	6

No extra charge for Greek or Latin.

Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of pianos.

Oil Painting	$36
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each,	20

No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi-annually, in advance:

For further information, apply to
July-6-3m B. ARNOGAST, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healthy one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months	$15 00
Primary Department	20 00
Collegiate	25 00
Music and Piano	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Vocal Music	2 50
Incidental fee	2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month	18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks	$30 00
Music	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Languages, each	10 00
Incidental Fee	2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month	20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing	16 00

aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,

Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct0 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course,	$30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee,	10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less:

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information.

Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80,00
Incidental Fee	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75,00
Incidental Fee	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing.	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board of Trustees
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

MONTHS.								MONTHS.
	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.		Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.				1	2	3	4	JULY				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11		5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18		12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25		19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31			26	27	28	29	30	31
FEB.							1	AUG							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8		2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15		9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22		16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29		23	24	25	26	27	28	29
MAR	1	2	3	4	5	6	7		30	31
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	SEP.				1	2	3	4
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21		6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28		13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	29	30	31						20	21	22	23	24	25	26
APR				1	2	3	4		27	28	29	30
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	OCT					1	2	3
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18		4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25		11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	26	27	28	29	30				18	19	20	21	22	23	24
MAY						1	2		25	26	27	28	29	30	31
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	NOV	1	2	3	4	5	6
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16		8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23		15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30		22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	31								29	30
JUNE		1	2	3	4	5	6	DEC			1	2	3	4	5
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13		6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20		13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27		20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	28	29	30						27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The movement in the general market has continued on a limited scale since the date of our previous review. Operations in cotton have been restricted by the small supply offering, as well as the advanced views of holders. Only a light retail business has been transacted in sugar and molasses, while in Western produce there has been no change worthy of special note. The market for flour is dull, the demand being only in a jobbing way and confined to the local trade. There have been some purchases for shipment, but at very low prices. In pork and bacon the movement is merely in a retail way. Grain is in fair supply, with a limited demand, and prices are rather easier.

Cotton.—On Saturday the Liverpool telegrams, noticing an improvement of ⅛d. in the closing price for Orleans, caused a much firmer feeling here, and factors enhanced their figures ⅛c. per lb. Buyers, however, at first refused to operate at this advance, but subsequently came forward and purchased about 1,000 bales, Low Middling closing at 27½ to 28c., and Middling at 28½ to 29c. On Monday there were no telegraphic advices from Liverpool, that day and the day following having been observed as holidays; but in view of the improvement reported on Saturday's advices, together with the light supply in first hands, factors advanced their pretensions still further. On Monday there was a pretty fair inquiry. Quite a number of buyers were in the market looking around, but as the offerings were held at figures mostly above their limits, the sales were restricted to 500 bales, at prices showing an additional improvement of ½c. per lb. On Tuesday the demand continued good, but factors refused to make any concessions, and the sales in consequence were confined to about 1,000 bales, fully 800 of which were purchased by one party, principally on the basis of 28½c. for Low Middling, and 29c. for Middling.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 2,500 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 748 bales, against 714 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 34 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 579,689 bales, against 695,075 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 318,305 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 128,605 bales to Great Britain, of 15,131 to France, and of 112,628 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	—	to —
Ordinary	—	to —
Good Ordinary	27	to 27½
Low Middling	28	to 28½
Middling	29	to 29½
Strict Middling	—	to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales	15256
Arrived past three days, 748
Arrived previously 652308-653056
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc 3239—656295
	671551
Exported past three days 474
Exported previously 649708— 650182
Stock on hand and on ship board, bales	21369

Sugar.—The market continues dull, but the stock on hand is light and prices are unchanged. The last sales were of Nos. 12 and 13 Cuba, at 12¾ to 13 cents, and Nos. 18 and 20 at 15 to 15¼ cents per pound. Grocery grades are retailing at 12½ to 13¼ cents per pound. What little Louisiana sugar there is remaining in market is retailing at 14½ cents per lb. for fair, 15¼ to 15½ cents for prime, 16 to 16¼ cents for yellow clarified, and 16½ to 17 cents for white.

Molasses.—There is little or no Louisiana and not much Cuba in market. We have not any important sales of Cuba to note. It is quoted at 48 to 52½ cents per gallon, as in quality. There were sales of 150 hogsheads Cuba, in two lots, at 48 to 52½ cents per gallon.

Flour.—Extreme dullness has again prevailed since our last report. The dealers are mostly supplied. There are but few buyers for shipment, and prices, which were previously very low, have been barely sustained. The sales on Saturday and Monday were confined to 4,000 barrels, at $7 per barrel for fine, $8 25 to $8 50 for superfine, $8 75 to $9 for single extra, $9 12½ to $9 25 for double extra, and $12 25 to $14 50 for choice extra.

Cattle Market.

Jefferson City, Tuesday Evening, June 2, 1868.

Western Beef, choice, per lb net	12c to 15
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net	— to —
Texas Cattle, choice, per head	$45 to 55
Texas Cattle, 2d qual, per head	30 to 40
Texas Cattle, 3d qual, per head	18 to 25
Hogs, per lb gross	10c to 12
Sheep, 1st quality, per head	$ to 6 00
Sheep, 2d " "	to 3 00
Sheep, 3d " "	to 1.25
Milch Cows, choice, per head	80 to 125
Milch Cows, per head	50 to 87
Texas Cows, with Calves	— to 20
Yearlings, per head	6 to 12
Calves, per head	6 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Foot's Plows and Scrapers	9 50	10 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	18 00
Spades	11 00	19 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	19	22
East India	22	24
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₩ lb	8½	9
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs		1 50
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot		7 50
Crackers	7 00	8 50
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	15 00	16 00
English, Fire	45 00	50 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow		21
Adamantine	17	21
Star	18	25
Chocolate, No 1 ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	07
Cider, Western ₩ hhl
Northern	13 00
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton		15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton		10 00
Western, ₩ barrel		55
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14½	18
Havana	45	55
Java	30	38
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ ton	15 00
Hulled, ₩ hundred
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb	35	36
Sheathing		36
Copper Bolts	35	36
Yellow Metal	28	29
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	23	24
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl	4 75
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y		3½
—St. Domingo	4
Fustic, Tampico	5
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 25	1 75
Madder	15	17
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western	15
Feathers, ₩ lb	60	70
Fish, Cod, ₩ box		1 50
Herrings		60
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl		20 00
——— No. 2	16 00	16 50
——— No. 3		13 00
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	4	6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine	8 25	8 75
Extra	8 75	14 50
Fine	7 00	7 25
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb		16
Figs, Drom	20	21
Dried Apples	7½	8
Currants, Zante		14
Almonds, soft shell	30	32
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	here
——Layer	4 40	4 50
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₩ box	5 00	5 25
Oranges, La. ₩ 1000
Sicily ₩ box
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 80
10 x 12	3 90	4 00
12 x 18	4 40	4 90
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 80	2 90
Canada	2 90	3 10
Oats	80
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	1 05	1 10
Beans, ₩ bbl	19 00	23 00
Hops, ₩ lb	40
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	20
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	19 00	21 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	10	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	9½	9½
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₩ piece
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	6
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Bolior	8	0
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	7	7½
Castings, American	6½	8
Lime, Western ₩ bbl
Shell Lime	1 75
Rockland, &c	2 25
Cement	3 00
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	75	85
Moss, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	3
Black dn	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	6½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	3 00	6 00
Pitch	4 50
Rosin A No. 1	3 75	4 00
No. 2	3 25	3 50
No. 3	3 00
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	60	65
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 60
Coal Oil	39	42
in cases	50	55
Cotton Seed, Crude		85
Refined	1 05	1 10
Tanners' ₩ gallon	90	1 15
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton
Cotton Seed		35 00
Meal
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	20 00	21 00
" North half bbl	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₩ lb	15	16
Tongues ₩ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess		29 25
Prime Mess
Hog, round, ₩ lb	14½
Bacon, Hams ₩ lb	15
Do., canvassed	19	21
Sides	16½	17½
Shoulders	13½
Green Shoulders		14½
Lard, Prime, in tierces	19½	19½
in kegs	20
Fair, in tierces
Butter, Northern	40
Western	30
Cheese, American	10	18
Potatoes, ₩ bbl	4 00	4 25
Onions	5 25	5 50
Green Apples	3 50	4 50
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	6	11
India	10½	10½
Carolina	12	12½
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb	14	25
Crude	13	15
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 50	2 55
from store	2 60	2 65
coarse, cargo
from warehouse	2 60	2 65
from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₩ bushel	1 90	2 00
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	18	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	14½	17
Havana, White	15	15½
Yellow	13½	14
Brown	11½	12½
Tobacco, in hhds, ₩ lb:
Baiers & Cutters
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9½	12½
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	8	11
Good Refused	7	8
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	60	80
Bailing	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	32	34
Burry	10	12
Louisiana, Native	20	23
Texas, [illegible] Merino	27	28

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as references for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received, from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 83 Carondelet street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

Atlanta, February 13, 1868.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Colier's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D,
Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D,
Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wynn parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Colier, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible cure for Cancer

Rev J F BELLAMY,
Rev J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years. I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Colier's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar. I believe Dr Colier can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y Moore

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the care

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Colier

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

113 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES,

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $30.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's unabridged, Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sunday School Union's Biblical, and Authou's Classical.

Books for

PRIZES, HOLIDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS, beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care.

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound:

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell, $4 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, prepaid, for 50 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

fe29 RQBT. J. HARP, Agent.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman, D D., LL D.
Rev. E Wadsworth, A M, D D,
O as A M,
Rev. J C Wills, A M.
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term $40 00
Incidental fee 5 00
Tuition in Preparat'y school per term $30 to $35
Contingent fee $2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

July 27 tf O F CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has a good school, which is designed to be permanent, in successful operation, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He would board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elementary Branches $20 00
Higher Branches 25 00
Latin, Greek, etc 30 00

French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B. CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja 18 1 m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

On the 9th of January next we begin our Spring session. We invite those seeking Collegiate advantages to consider ours. To our Southern friends, desiring repose and exemption from many of their peculiar annoyances, our location and surroundings are especially attractive. One hundred and fifteen dollars will cover the expenses of a session of five months, including tuition, board, fuel, room rent, washing and contingent fee. A catalogue or other information can be obtained by addressing,

E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
[dec 7] Emory P. O., Va.

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin 60c.
Sent by mail at 70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan $1 50
" Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep $1 25
Roan 1 50
Roan Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
S. S. Bells (single) $4 25 per doz.
" " (Donhio) 6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

july 27 tf

H. F. GIVEN, H. A. GIVEN, W. D. BROWN. R. K. DUNKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186 COMMON STREET 186

feb3—67 1y

$100 A MONTH

SALARY WILL BE PAID FOR Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample, retailing at $1 50, for 50 cents. A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,
48 Broad street, New York.
[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 3m

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY, 308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(John Geddes—Jns. A. Shakspeare—S. Swhor.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 18 '67, 6m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondelet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

ja 26 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.,

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.,

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBURG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses Foundries and Steamboats. nov9 6m

T H HINDMAN, O. W. HODGE W. R. MAYO, New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants.

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, nly6 1y LA.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette. mar14 1y

J. L. DUNNICA. G. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 99 Poydras street, New Orleans, La.

Agents for the following brands of floor, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

McCutcheon, Gordon & Co, choice XXX. W Roshorough & Co, choice XXX. Sucker State choice X. Sparta Mills choice superfine.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J. L. DUNNICA & CO. aep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A fresh supply of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations; also Dr. Jones' Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE.

F. B. ALBERS, Agent,
No. 12 Baronne st., near Canal,
dec14 1y New Orleans.

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No: 64 North Commercial street.
SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled: aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR, AND

COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART, Late Stuart & James. NEW ORLEANS

☞ Represented by Capt. J. A. Binford, Duck Hill, Miss. oc20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS,

General Commission Merchants,

And Commercial Agents. aug25 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchoupitoulas Street,
And 8 and 10 New Levee,
aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F G BARRIERE G W BABCOCK

F. G. BARIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

Nn. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.
n10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Wm. Edwards. Enwn. J. Gay. sep15 1y

J. O. ELLIS. W. C. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. jan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co. SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 Union Street,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. C. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

ap7 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS,
New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Payne & Harrison)
Edward Harrison,
J. P. Harrison, jun.,
Sidney Harrison,
John N. Harrison. july7 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar 6m

A. D. GRIEFF, Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st.,
aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS.
aug 8'67 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

COLGATE & CO.'S

FRAGRANT TOILET SOAPS are prepared by skilled workmen from the best materials, and are known as the Standard by dealers and consumers.

☞ Sold everywhere. mar28 3m

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom House Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

J. B. JANNINOS. J. W. WICKS. M. J WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

aly 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

57 Poydras street.

Cotton Office—192 Common street, in charge of Richard J. Nugent. aug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. A. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., cor. the Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. feb18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 34 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. Payne, G. W. Huntington, W. H. Dameron, H. M. Payne. je23-1y

O. M. STEIRER. THOS. C. SALTER

G. M. STEIRER & CO.

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market.)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves;

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER.

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar9-6m-67

O. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS AND

General Commission Merchants,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb2 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. M. SWENSON, N. Y., late of Austin, Tex. W. M. PERKINS, H. L. KERNION, Of Perkins & Co., N. O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

s29 1y

KEEP. I. CAULFIELD.

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oc13 1y

R. ATKINSON & CO., New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO., Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants,

188 Common Street, New Orleans;

☞ Cash advances made on consignments to us by Hewitt, Swisher & Co., Galveston, Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding

MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA

References: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Sandidge, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. L Walker, New Orleans, La. july 20

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 155 Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS.

W. A. VIOLETT. R. Y. BLACK. S. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants

15 6m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans.

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D G. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

july 5-6m

F. L. RICHARDSON J. D. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

No. 5 Commercial Place,

fely New Orleans.

WANTED—AGENTS.—$200 PER month the year round, or a certainty of $500 to $1,000 per month to those having a little capital. We guaranty the above monthly salary to good active agents at their own homes. Every agent, farmer, gardener, planter and fruit grower, North and South, should send at once for particulars. Please call on or address J. AHEARN & CO.,

may16 4t 63 Second St., Baltimore, Md.

CANCERS CURED without pain, use of the knife or caustic burning. Circulars sent free of charge. Address DRS. BABCOCK & SON,

apr4 3mp 700 Broadway, New York

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 21.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 683.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1868.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

MARIANNA DISTRICT, ALABAMA.

SUPPORT OF THE MINISTRY. — CHURCH PAPERS.—DISTRICT MEETING.

Mr. Editor: Though some regard the Marianna district the last, it is not the least of the nine districts composing the Montgomery Conference. It includes all of west Florida, and Henry and Dale counties, and a part of Coffee, in Alabama. This constitutes an immense territory to be occupied by one presiding elder and eleven preachers; and as one might suppose, a great deal of it is neglected. While it is true many places within its bounds are not desirable, yet there are some good places, and others would be so if they were properly cultivated. How long before this will be done no one can tell, but under the present arrangement of things it is destined to be some time ahead. Nearly all the preachers have a dislike to this country—but few are willing to receive appointments here, and when they are sent they make their arrangements for a speedy removal, and consequently do not take that interest in building up and developing that they would if they thought of making it their home for several years.

The disadvantages of the country is one of the leading causes why preachers have an aversion to making permanent homes in this district. Here we have no railroads, no navigable rivers, nor any other public mode of traveling. In many parts of the district the mails reach us once a week, bringing news from one to three weeks old.

Another thing which operates upon the preachers is that, after doing hard work, they receive so little compensation. Hard work and little pay, fine salaries and light tasks, come nearer going hand in hand than, at first sight, one might imagine. While preachers in some places are receiving from one to three thousand dollars a year for their services, at what might be called light work, here, after traveling much and preaching more, being from home most of the year, they get from two to four hundred dollars, all told. I think the highest figures reached at any of the appointments, last year, was about four hundred dollars. One need not suppose from these figures that all the preachers on the district are single men, for, on the contrary, most of them are men of families. How some of them subsist on what they get I am not able to divine.

I do not know what would be the best plan to educate the people to pay. If some plan could be devised by which they could be elevated, in this regard, it would be to this country an unspeakable advantage. I have been accustomed to see the presiding elder bring this subject up and insist upon it at the quarterly meetings, and thus bestir the stewards to do their duty. This possibly is the best plan after all.

If we could get some one or several of the Advocates circulated through this country it would no doubt have a great tendency to stir up the people to support the ministry. There is no agency more powerful, that can be brought to bear, to cultivate a disposition to give to the church than for the people to have access to the religious newspapers. Many a lesson would, in this private way, be imparted and kindly received which would have given offence had it been publicly promulgated by a minister. So far as I know, none of the Advocates have much circulation in the bounds of the district. This is one grand cause of the backwardness of the people in supporting the ministry. The New Orleans Christian Advocate has but a limited circulation, something less than the Southern. The Nashville paper has a few subscribers within my knowledge. There are a great many Georgians and South Carolinians in this country. All of these have a preference for the Southern Advocate, because it is published in Georgia. I am satisfied the New Orleans Christian Advocate would gain ground if it was properly introduced as the organ of our conference. It has not a fair chance with other papers, and the preachers, I fear, do not take much pains to set it right.—Permit me to remark that the sending of the New Orleans paper to the preachers of the patronizing conferences free of cost, and that, too, whether they act as agents or not, may in some instances be detrimental to its circulation. The other Advocates charge the preachers some two dollars, unless they get so many subscribers. The preacher wishes to take some other paper in connection with the organ of his conference. He does so, and then labors to get the required number of subscribers to pay for it. My experience is, that the most of those who consent to take a paper ask the preacher his opinion of the different papers, and sometimes leave it entirely with him which one he will write for. Now think of the preacher's situation. For the time he forgets that he is pledged by the action of his conference to support the paper adopted as an organ, and thinking how he shall pay his subscription to some other paper, it would not take a man of much astuteness to perceive which paper he will recommend.

When I came to Haw Ridge circuit, last winter, I found one subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate. I have exerted myself somewhat, and now I can report eight. This is small, but the probability is that they have cost more effort than fifty would have cost in some other places. I make it a point to recommend the New Orleans Christian Advocate in preference to any other: First, because it is the organ of our conference; second, because, whatever others may say to the contrary, it is second to none printed in the South. I hope to get a few more subscribers after awhile.

We would like to have one of our bishops pass through the district during the year. Brother Dennis has been making some efforts to get one to attend the district meeting. I hope he will prove successful. The presence of a bishop would be quite encouraging in this neglected country; besides, it would no doubt have a good effect upon the church. I do not know that a Methodist Episcopas has ever trod the soil of the Marianna district. It would put one to some trouble and inconvenience, it is true, but much of this would be removed, as there are persons here who would furnish conveyance from any convenient point on the railroad or river, just for the sake of having a bishop visit the country. "This is a true saying: if a man desire the office of a bishop, he desireth a good work." There is good to be derived from the visitations of a bishop. I might give many reasons why a bishop should come. We have many local preachers, deacons and elders elect, who have not been ordained. The most or all of these would meet a bishop at the district meeting for the purpose of being ordained. Again, I think it would help out the bishops' fund. Though it may be necessary for the good of the church generally for the people to support an order of the ministry which they never see, and whose influence they never feel, yet it is very difficult to make them think so.

The bishops' collection has ever been small from this district, and will continue so under existing circumstances. The sentiment seems, for the most part, to prevail that those places which receive the immediate labors of the bishops should be required to support them. However unjust and destructive this sentiment is, I see no way to eradicate it from the minds of the people. Newton, where the district meeting is to be held, is a little town in Dale county, on the east side of Choctawhatchie river, containing some two hundred and fifty or three hundred inhabitants, and will compare favorably with any little town of its size, considering it is so far in the interior. The accommodations will be ample for the members of the meeting, and I give them all a pressing invitation to attend. And if any one of the bishops, we care not which one, can find time to wend his way down through this inland country, we will give him a hearty welcome, take care of him as best we can, let it cost him as little as possible, give him plenty to do, and finally send him away with the blessings of a grateful people upon him, hoping he will leave the savor of the gospel resting upon us.

Wm. A. Sampey.

Haw Ridge, Alabama.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

The National Republican party of the United States, assembled in National Convention in the city of Chicago, on the 21st day of May, 1868, make the following declaration of principles:

1. We congratulate the country on the assured success of the Reconstruction policy of Congress, as evinced by the adoption, in the majority of the States lately in rebellion, of constitutions securing equal civil and political rights to all; and it is the duty of the government to sustain those institutions, and to prevent the people of such States from being remitted to a state of anarchy.

2. The guaranty by Congress of equal suffrage to all loyal men at the South was demanded by every consideration of public safety, of gratitude, and of justice, and must be maintained; while the question of suffrage in all the loyal States properly belongs to the people of those States.

3. We denounce all forms of repudiation as a national crime; and the national honor requires the payment of the public indebtedness in the uttermost good faith to all creditors, at home and abroad, not only according to the letter but the spirit of the laws under which it was contracted.

4. It is due to the labor of the nation that taxation should be equalized, and reduced as rapidly as the national faith will permit.

5. The national debt, contracted, as it has been, for the preservation of the Union for all time to come, should be extended over a fair period for redemption; and it is the duty of Congress to reduce the rate of interest thereon whenever it can be honestly done.

6. That the best policy to diminish our burden of debt is to so improve our credit that capitalists will seek to loan us money at lower rates of interest than we now pay, and must continue to pay so long as repudiation, partial or total, open or covert, is threatened or suspected.

7. The government of the United States should be administered with the strictest economy; and the corruptions which have been so shamefully nursed and fostered by Andrew Johnson call loudly for radical reform.

8. We profoundly deplore the untimely and tragic death of Abraham Lincoln, and regret the accession to the Presidency of Andrew Johnson, who has acted treacherously to the people who elected him and the cause he was pledged to support; who has usurped high legislative and judicial functions; who has refused to execute the laws; who has used his high office to induce other officers to ignore and violate the laws; who has employed his executive powers to render insecure the property, the peace, liberty and life of the citizen; who has abused the pardoning power; who has denounced the National Legislature as unconstitutional; who has persistently and corruptly resisted, by every means in his power, every proper attempt at the reconstruction of the States lately in rebellion; who has perverted the public patronage into an engine of wholesale corruption; and who has been justly impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors, and properly pronounced guilty thereof by the vote of thirty five Senators.

9. The doctrine of Great Britain and other European powers, that because a man is once a subject he is always so, must be resisted at every hazard by the United States, as a relic of feudal times, not authorized by the laws of nations, and at war with our national honor and independence. Naturalized citizens are entitled to protection in all their rights of citizenship, as though they were native born. And no citizen of the United States, native or naturalized, must be liable to arrest and imprisonment by any foreign power for acts done or words spoken in this country; and, if so arrested and imprisoned, it is the duty of the government to interfere in his behalf.

10. Of all who were faithful in the trials of the late war, there were none entitled to more especial honor than the brave soldiers and seamen who endured the hardships of campaign and cruise, and imperiled their lives in the service of the country. The bounties and pensions provided by the laws for these brave defenders of the nation are obligations never to be forgotten; the widows and orphans of the gallant dead are the wards of the people—a sacred legacy bequeathed to the nation's protecting care.

11. Foreign immigration, which in the past has added so much to the wealth, development, and resources and increase of power to this republic, the asylum of the oppressed of all nations, should be fostered and encouraged by a liberal and just policy.

12. This convention declares itself in sympathy with all oppressed peoples struggling for their rights.

13. Resolved, That we highly commend the spirit of magnanimity and forbearance with which men who have served in the rebellion, but who now frankly and honestly cooperate with us in restoring the peace of the country and reconstructing the Southern State governments upon the basis of impartial justice and equal rights, are received back into the communion of the loyal people; and we favor the removal of the disqualifications and restrictions imposed upon the late rebels in the same measure as their spirit of loyalty will direct, and as may be consistent with the safety of the loyal people.

14. Resolved, That we recognize the great principles laid down in the immortal Declaration of Independence as the true foundation of democratic government; and we hail with gladness every effort toward making these principles a living reality on every inch of American soil.

Mr. Spurgeon on Mr. Gladstone — Lord Palmerston, whose long career set such a bad example of affected nonchalance and apparent dilletanteism to English statesmen, has his aptest scholar in the person of Disraeli. The comparative nobility of an earnest, passionate support of principle is well expressed in Mr. Spurgeon's late panegyric on Mr. Gladstone:

"The point upon which Mr. Gladstone is so constantly attacked really provokes our laughter. It is said, 'O, yes! but Mr. Gladstone has such an irritable temper.' That Mr. Gladstone has a temper is a mercy for us all. Men who have no principles, but can veer round with every wind, may well put on the placid smile and never have a temper; but the man of principle must be angry against everything that looks shifty and tricky. I have heard of persons who where said to be as 'easy as an old shoe;' and as a rule such people are generally of about as much value. We have had enough of the coming into the House of Commons with a sprig in one's mouth. We have had enough of the assertion that one does not feel the weight of responsibility, when men should feel their responsibility, when they have the cares of a nation upon them; and men so feel them as sometimes to grow warm and be carried away by them. I conceive that Mr. Gladstone does regulate his temper exceedingly well, considering the wonderful irritation he constantly has to endure, and that the possession of such a temper, so far from being a sin or an evil, is, perhaps, one of the qualifications for the position which he now occupies. I take him, for all in all, just as he is, as being one of the noblest Englishmen alive; and may God long support him!"

In heaven there are no prayers, but all praises. I am apt to think that there cannot be a clearer nor a greater argument of man's right to heaven and ripeness for heaven than this—being much in the work of heaven here on earth. There is no grace but love, and no duty but thankfulness, that goes with us to heaven.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Washington, June 8.—The public debt statement is published to-day.

It appears that the gold-bearing debt in May has been increased $57,449,550. The 7 3 10 treasury notes have been reduced $58,008,950. The three per cent. certificates have been increased $2t,670,000. The compound interest notes, the principal and interest of which were receivable for three per cent. certificates, were reduced $79,70t,710. The debt in gold and currency-bearing and matured debt not presented was increased $3,120,079, $1,920,000 of which increase consists of bonds to the Pacific Railroad. Coin in the treasury has decreased $16,681,098 69; currency in the treasury has increased $11,104,983 57. The entire debt, deducting therefrom the cash in the treasury, was increased $9,7t7,059 18, owing chiefly to the heavy payments of interest during the month. The increase of currency is attributable to the receipts of taxes upon incomes and to the fact that some large requisitions for the War Department, which it was anticipated would be made in May, were deferred until June.

Washington, June 8.—Chief Justice Chase is expected to return to this city from Richmond on Saturday next.

It is probable that the President will, during this week, send to the Senate the nomination of a successor to Mr. Stanbery, late Attorney General, but the name of the nominee has not been intimated by the Executive.

Two other nominations for positions in the cabinet are anticipated, but it is not believed that the President has positively determined upon the persons whom he will nominate. A few days will decide the matter.

Hon. Reverdy Johnson is thus far the only prominent person suggested for the English mission.

Reports say Mr. Rollins, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, has prepared a letter to the President tendering his resignation of that office above named. Up to a late hour the President had not received such notification. — New Orleans Times.

Washington, June 8.—Senate.—The Pension Committee reported adversely on a bill providing that marriage shall not forfeit the widow's pension.

The omnibus admission bill was resumed, and the amendment restoring Alabama to the list was discussed all day without a vote.

Adjourned.

House.—The Judiciary Committee were directed to inquire why the Davis trial was delayed.

The bill appropriating money for the capture of Mr. Davis was referred to the Appropriation Committee.

A bill for inaugurating State officers and convening legislatures was referred to the Reconstruction Committee.

A bill taxing United States bonds for national purposes was considered, and the motion to table was lost—15 to 100. Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means—83 to 3.

The Speaker announced a petition from Wooley. Butler moved its reference to the Corruption Committee. The Democrats objected, because only two of the committee were in the city. After discussion the petition was referred without being read—64 to 31.

Eldridge moved to suspend the rules to receive the purgation of Wooley, which was negatived.

A resolution bringing Wooley before the bar of the House was adopted; when, after hearing questions somewhat indefinitely stated, and with the understanding that they were by order of the House, Wooley declared his willingness to answer.

The conference report on the admission of Arkansas was adopted; and now the report having been adopted by both Houses, goes to the President.

The House here took a recess, Wooley remaining in custody awaiting the committee's convenience.

Washington, June 8.—The municipal election at Galena, Illinois, Grant's home, went Democratic by 250 majority. The Democrats also carried Racine, Wisconsin.

The Corruption Committee's investigations under Butler and Logan, who alone of the seven are present, are taking an alarmingly wide range.

Nothing authentic is known beyond the gossip of witnesses, but enough has transpired to create a general scare among politicians. Distrust of Butler is growing.

The early discharge of the committee from further investigations is probable.

Washington, June 9.—Wooley's statement, given on the ground that Shook's evidence relieved Wooley from the confidence involved by professional relations, shows that Wooley was here to influence the Ways and Means Committee regarding the whisky tax, in Shook's interest. Wooley's proceedings in this respect are not fully stated, but no corrupt operations are evident. Seventeen thousand one hundred dollars of the questioned money are and have been in the safe of the Metropolitan Hotel. It appears from the affidavits that Wooley, Shook and others were at the Metropolitan Hotel, talking politics and proposing bets. Wooley threw the money on the table, requesting Shook to hold it, and Wooley left the room. Shook took no notice of Wooley's remark or the money, and Van Valkenberg, regarding neither Wooley nor Shook in a proper condition to have charge of so large a sum, took the money and deposited it with his own valuables in the safe of the Metropolitan Hotel. The parties separated and had no communication during several days, during which time the discordant evidence of Wooley and Shook was taken. The whole affair amounted to nothing.

House.—Bonman reported a bill from the Reconstruction Committee dividing Texas into three States. Ordered printed.

A bill inaugurating Southern State officers was read three times and passed—115 to 13.

Indian war rumors are on the increase. Sheridan has sent arms to the frontier to arm the settlers. Col. Leavenworth, who has heretofore defended the Indians, now favors withholding the annuities and the prosecution of severe measures.

The following is the bill passed in the House to-day:

"Sec. 1. Be it enacted, etc., That the legislature of each of the States of Arkansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama and Florida, elected under the Constitutions thereof, framed and adopted in pursuance of the provisions of an act for the more efficient government of the rebel States, passed March 2d, 1867, and the acts supplementary thereto, be and is hereby authorized to meet on such days as may have been fixed, either in such Constitution, or by proclamation of any officer authorized to convene said legislature by the convention which framed such Constitution, and if no day shall have been fixed as aforesaid, or if the day so fixed for the meeting of the legislature of either of the said States shall have passed or shall have so nearly arrived before the passage of this act, that in the opinion of the governor elect there might not be time for the legislature to assemble on the day so fixed, such legislature may be convened within thirty days after the passage of this act, by the governor of said State.

"Sec. 2. That whenever either of said States shall be admitted to representation in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of such State, duly elected and qualified under the Constitution thereof, may be inaugurated without delay, and the governour of such States shall thereupon be transferred to the civil authorities thereof.

"Sec. 3. That it shall be the duty of all civil and military officers exercising authority in either of said States to afford all practical aid and protection to the officers of such State in carrying out the provisions of this act, and any such officer who shall wilfully withhold such aid and protection, or shall wilfully prevent, hinder or delay the meeting of either of said legislatures, or the inauguration of any of said State officers, or of any other civil or military officer under either of said State authorities, shall be guilty of felony, and upon conviction thereof before any federal or State court of criminal jurisdiction, shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding ten years, or by a fine not exceeding ten thousand dollars, at the discretion of the court."

It is a very indiscreet and troublesome ambition which cares so much about fame; about what the world says of us; to be always looking in the faces of others for approval; to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say; to be always shouting, to hear the echo of our own voices.

Christians may well be content with a lean dinner and spare diet in this life, seeing the large supper of the Lamb's preparing will recompense them all

THANKSGIVING.

BY MARY CLEMMER AMES.

Falling from yonder heaven of blue,
God's blessing, healing as the dew,
Makes all my being blossom new.

I cannot see the world is fair,
Nor feel the sunshine, breathe the air,
Nor live, and not make life a prayer;

A prayer of praise, a glad "All Hail,"
That drowneth every human wail,
In soaring up through Mercy's pale.

No phantasy of dazzling deed,
No cramping cloctnre of a creed,
Can fill with calm our deeper need.

This evening, through their ether bars,
Far, far above earth's dreary jars,
Will gaze the royal God poised stars.

I gaze beyond each sphered star,
I rise through yonder calm afar,
To where my Father's maosions are.

I have no tear, no note forlorn,
For you, sweet breezes of the morn;
I'm glad to-day that I was born.

I have a lover's kiss for you,
Rath violets rimmed with balmy dew,
From moss-weft covert peering through.

I bare my forehead to the sky,
And life's full fountain fills so high,
To breathe, to live, in ecstacy.

The nectar of all vanished springs
This spring from her new censer flings
Thrills with new life all living things.

Come in, soft sunshine of the day—
Serene, soft sunshine, God's own ray—
To brighten all our upward way!

For the Advocate.

What is a Call to Preach the Gospel?

MR. EDITOR: The first day of the past month was generally observed in the Mississippi Conference as a day of fasting and prayer that "the Lord of the harvest would send forth more laborers into his harvest." In most places we have a fair supply of preachers, both local and traveling, so far as numbers are concerned, but from a variety of causes we are manifestly deficient in active, zealous and effective laborers.—Impressed with a sense of our wants, we have unitedly invoked the Supreme Head of the church to exercise his exclusive prerogative in sending forth more laborers; and, as we believe our prayers will be answered, it is the duty of both the ministers and members of the church to look around among our converted young men to find God's chosen embassadors, and to give them such counsel and aid as they may need in getting into the ministry. The Lord's chosen messengers of grace are generally modest, reserved and self-distrusting, and more inclined to resist a call to preach than to yield a ready and active obedience to it. Hence the importance of the experienced members and ministers of the church taking them by the hand and giving them suitable words of counsel and encouragement, and helping them forward in their holy and responsible calling.

Before answering the question at the head of this article directly I will premise a few things, which, among well-informed Methodists, need no further argument now to sustain them.

1. The Supreme Head and ruler of the church has reserved to himself the inalienable and indivisible prerogative of calling whom he will to preach the gospel.

2. The Lord of the church makes no mistakes in selecting men to preach the gospel. Whatever may be the opinion of themselves or others as to their want of suitable talents for the ministry, the omniscient eye sees that, if they are obedient and faithful, they will have all the physical, moral and intellectual ability requisite for success in the work assigned them; and their deficiencies at first, in both natural and acquired talents, will often be so fully supplied in after-life as to make it the more evident that they are God's chosen heralds of salvation.

3. In this matter "the gifts and calling of God are without repentance." When he calls a man to preach he expects him to do it, and knows he will succeed if he will do his whole duty; and the man who is truly called of God to preach the gospel, and on any account refuses to do it, assumes a fearful and often fatal responsibility. Such delinquents are never ultimately happy or successful in attempting to do anything else.

4. The first great question then to be settled, by all who are mentally exercised on the subject of preaching, is: "Am I truly called of God to the office and work of the holy Christian ministry?" Settle this question affirmatively, and then you may go forward in the work as your way is providentially opened, feeling safe and happy, and with an assurance of ultimate success.

5. The life of a divinely-called minister is one of much self-denial, weighty care, and incessant bodily and mental toil; but it is the only safe, happy and useful life such a man can live on earth. Let him then, at all hazards, remain where God has placed him, and do what God has bid him do, and all will be well with him.

6. "But what is a call to preach the gospel?" It is something additional, though analogous, to the spiritual exercises of all who have been justified by faith, regenerated by the Holy Ghost, and have the witness of the Spirit that they are the children of God. We are not authorized to expect, as a necessary concomitant to a call to preach, any extraordinary vision, superhuman voice or miraculous interposition. In the expressive language of our Ritual, it is simply to be "inwardly moved by the Holy Ghost" to preach the gospel. This divine call usually comes about in the following manner: A man obtains the sensible forgiveness of all his past sins, and feels an assurance that he is now an adopted child of God. One of the first impulses of his new-born nature, next to the love of God, is to love his fellow-men, and to feel an ardent desire to say to all around, "O taste and see that the Lord is good." This desire for the salvation of others increases daily as he becomes more settled and fixed in his religious attainments and spiritual enjoyments, until, almost imperceptibly, it grows into a conviction that perhaps this is to him the "inward moving of the Holy Ghost" to preach the gospel.—This brings him at once to reflect solemnly and definitely on the point of its being his duty to enter the ministry. In the meantime all he reads in the Bible about the divine call of the prophets and apostles to minister in holy things—all he reads in ministerial biography, or hears appropriately said on the subject of a call to preach—falls with great weight on his heart. If at any time he strives to put away these holy thoughts, and to resist these divine impressions, he immediately suffers spiritual loss; but when he indulges them, and gives himself up submissively to do the will of God, he is happy and spiritually prosperous. The chosen of God are apt to see many apparently insurmountable difficulties in the way of their entering the ministry, but still the solemn thought, "woe is unto me if I preach not the gospel," is predominant in their minds, and connects itself with all their reflections from early dawn to silent eve, until they feel that it would be perilous to debate the subject any longer, and the work is begun.

Their first efforts at public exhortation may be, and often are, very imperfect, but the tranquility of soul which follows, and the sweet peace which arises from a consciousness of having performed their duty, adds so much to their spiritual happiness that they are encouraged to make a lifetime business of preaching the glorious gospel of the Son of God.

Now let the young men of the church, in view of all the momentous interests, both for time and eternity, connected with this subject, solemnly and submissively inquire: "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

J. G. JONES.

For the Advocate.

Methodism as it Was Thirty Years Ago and as it is Now.

MR EDITOR: Without being thought censorious, we propose to say a few things about Methodism as it was thirty years ago and Methodism as it is now. Then the church used all her talents, piety, education and taste for the accomplishment of the one great idea of the gospel—the salvation of men. No minister or layman called in question the doctrines or usages of the church without being held responsible for such opinions. The discipline, as a general thing, was administered both as to the ministry and laity. Members of the church were required to pay their just debts if they had the means. Persons given to habitual intemperance were at least brought to trial. No one ever thought of dancing and still remaining in the church; and we will here say, from experience, that no one who has even religious conviction will dance or favor dancing. The church had zeal and piety to attend church on week days, and self-sacrifice enough to support camp-meetings, and those efforts were owned of God with power. Those meetings controlled and gave religious direction to the public mind: They aroused the masses, and caused all classes to reflect on the subject of salvation. The people saw and felt that the church was in earnest for their souls, and this caused them to think and make an effort to save themselves. The preachers preached as if in sight of the judgment. The whole church sung, and often as if the choirs of heaven had thrown off all formality and were praising God in earnest. The evening song of a thousand voices, all toned by the Spirit, swept out in waves of life, and softened and mellowed the whole atmosphere for miles around. The people were not afraid to praise their Redeemer. Christ was all, and in all. In these days of so-called religious progress we hear men of little minds and less piety talk of adapting the church to the culture and taste of the age, that we may save to the church her better educated children. But are we saving them? My observation says we are not. We are only paving the way for them to leave the church of their fathers without remorse. We have reason to believe that nearly half the membership of the church now, of from fifteen to thirty years standing, were converted at camp or protracted meetings. In fact nearly all were converted at such meetings; but half were converts from the world and children raised by parents of other churches. Any how they were won to the communion of the Methodist church simply by a genuine conversion to God.

The ministry and the church had always been adapted to the religious wants of all classes. The rich and more highly cultivated found an open door to use their means and gifts, and thousands of them entered the Methodist church in preference to the churches in which they were raised, solely on the ground that it afforded peculiar advantages for usefulness among all classes. The ministry studied and prayed with a view to understand the doctrines of the Bible, and to preach the truth, and the whole truth, if the heavens fell.

The Methodist church has always been liberal to other communions, and I hope always will be, but in those days her ministers and members did not hide away her altars, with its weeping penitents, for fear of the frowns of the Pharisee or the disapprobation of the more fastidious. Had the church maintained her piety then she would have retained her aggressive spirit. The primitive church went from the cross, and by the cross to the palaces of the Agars, and had she maintained her apostolic purity the sun would not set this evening on half the world in heathenish darkness. The Methodist church was not a reformation by which, like the English church, she brought a nation to her communion at once. She had no children educated to her creed and usages; and yet with the pure gospel and her simple mode of worship, adapted to the taste of all Christians, she permeated the whole Protestant world in less than one century, and to-day commands the respect of all Christians.

But what is the Methodist church now—not in her numerical strength, not in her educated and cultivated ministry, not in her thousands of Sabbath schools spread over all the land, nor in her political influence, North or South, but in her efficiency and actual success in saving souls—compared with her means and agencies and success thirty years ago?

Perhaps few have a better opportunity for seeing the church as it is than we have. The bishops may travel round a wider circle and see the church more in her Sunday dress. The bishops preach, but we hear others preach and talk, and we are satisfied that the ministry, as a whole, do not lay that stress on the immediate power and presence of the Holy Spirit that our fathers did. Many of our more fashionable ministers of this day walk their rooms or retire to the grove, with manuscript in hand, to get their lessons before repeating. Our fathers immersed their sermons in the Spirit and baptized them with their tears, and then preached them in power and demonstration. The Methodists in many places have compromised the privilege to preach their peculiar doctrines and usages in contradistinction to the doctrines and usages of other churches. It is not uncommon, in these days of progress and refinement, to hear Methodist preachers and people magnify the abuses of the altar and revivals. So roundly are revivals condemned in certain quarters that any effort in that direction at once meets decided rebuke. This is accounted for on the ground of non-committal. The doctor is not a Methodist doctor, neither is the merchant, etc. If the preacher wishes a certain style of popularity he cannot be a Methodist, but simply a gospel minister—a religious cosmopolite.

The music in many churches is now limited to the best vocalists in the congregations, whether Jews, pagans or Christians. Therefore the music is not altogether religious and spiritual. We have no objection to instrumental music in the church. We believe it to be both scriptural and useful; but why sing in Italian, French or German? Why not pray and preach in Greek and Latin? The one is as apostolic as the other. The apostle forbids prayer in the congregation in an unknown tongue; also preaching without an interpreter. We cannot say how it would do for the benefit of the fogy part of the church to have an interpreter of song, etc. I am not so pious as to desire that musical instruments used in religious worship should be baptized, but I do think that those who use them should have a decent respect for religion. We are in favor of new tunes, if they are in some sort religious. What a solemn mockery for the unregenerate to make music for the saints.

It is a sad fact that the church in many places is losing its hold on the masses, from the plain fact that the ministry and membership choose to labor to attract the few instead of the many, and too often it is the case that they save neither few nor many. The Church North, in many respects, has become a mere political machine, and in many places in the South pastors and churches are gradually drifting into an unmeaning formality. To be formal without reason or ritual is the dryest of all form. The Methodist church, without Christ and the Holy Spirit, is a very uninteresting organization. But it may be asked, and often is: Are we not doing as well, these hard times, as other churches? I am not comparing the Methodist church with others.—Many of them are so far behind that they do not expect anything more than a bare support, never thinking of converting the world through the machinery of the gospel.

A word on the administration of discipline. For what crime would a man be expelled from the church in this age of religious enlightenment and progress? I see men in the church who dress fine and their families live in style, drive fine horses, ride in fine carriages, and yet their creditors cannot get one dollar out of them. I see men stagger in the street, sell wine and strong drink, deal out destruction and ruin to their fellow-men, and I see them also at the communion.

I know that religion entitles a man to many blessings of a certain kind and in a certain way. How can the church prosper? God forbid that it should prosper until it is cleansed. As to dress and extravagance, how does the church compare with thirty years ago? Are not many churches, in the front rank, not a whit behind the gayest of the gay? And yet there is a universal complaint of hard times. Are not all our church institutions suffering for want of means? Is not our domestic missionary report a sad document for a richly-dressed Methodist congregation to read? Shall we come to numbers and facts? What are we really doing for the salvation of the world? We may begin at home. What is the church in Alabama doing? The Methodists in this State are not a whit behind the chiefest conferences in all respects. There are in this State two conferences, containing about two hundred traveling preachers, and double that number of local. What did we do last year in the way of conversions? About two thousand souls were added to the church. And the two conferences embrace a population of about eight hundred thousand souls. About one in ten are in the church—I mean some church. If the Methodist church in Alabama was fully alive to all the claims of the gospel, ten thousand souls might be added to her communion this year. When will we learn to be Methodists, and quit trying to ape others specially in things which they are trying to get rid of? Why not use the tried and approved armor?—approved both by heaven and earth. May the Lord help us to pray in the Spirit, preach in the Spirit and sing with the Spirit, cease to complain and make a scapegoat of the war. May God help the church to labor and suffer in the Spirit. If the church is not sanctified in these days of affliction and sorrow, when will she be humbled and repent?

S. P. RICHARDSON.

SUMMERFIELD, Ala.

MR. PUNSHON.—Since my last letter was written Mr. Punshon has delivered three public discourses, with an ever-increasing general popularity; and, paradoxical as it may seem, with an ever-increasing tendency on the part of his hearers to criticise him. On Friday the church was packed beyond all precedent, not less than two thousand people having jammed themselves into a building calculated to seat twelve hundred. Mr. Punshon was to preach at half-past ten; but long before that hour the conference found it impossible to proceed on account of the overwhelming crowd. Business was suspended that the audience might listen for the hundredth time in their lives to Philip Phillips' marvelous singing of 'Your Mission.' At last Mr. Punshon arrived and preached. The sermon was hardly equal to the address of the day before, but was more emotional, more methodistic, and probably pleased the mass of his audience better. On Sunday afternoon the Opera House would not hold a tenth of those who wanted to hear him; nor would it, on Tuesday evening, contain those who desired to hear him on 'Daniel in Babylon,' at an admission fee of $1, for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. There are three grand characteristics of the perfect orator: intellectuality, imagination, passion. The ideal orator is at the same time a perfect thinker, seer, feeler. Mr. Punshon is the two last, not the first in any high degree. There is no new thought, but a wonderful dressing over again of familiar and even common-place truths, a perpetual scene-shifting, a succession of masterly strokes of word-painting, by which one is kept in a state of incessant and delighted surprise. His elocution is not at all good; but his vocabulary, the united product of a boyhood in Yorkshire and a constant familiarity with old English writers, is simply beyond all praise. His scholarship is most thorough. He speaks with impetuous rapidity. Bishop Janes said that 'his words were fitly spoken and industriously uttered.'—Correspondent of the New York Independent.

FAITH is exceedingly charitable, and believes no ill of God.

WANTED—A BOY WITH TEN POINTS—1. Honest. 2. Pure. 3. Intelligent. 4. Active. 5. Industrious. 6. Obedient. 7. Steady. 8. Obliging. 9. Polite. 10. Neat. One thousand first-rate places are open for one thousand boys who can come up to the standard. Each boy can suit his taste to the kind of business he would prefer. The places are ready in every kind of occupation. Many of them are already filled by boys who lack some of the most important points, but they will soon be vacant. One is in an office not far from where we write. The lad who has the situation is losing his first point. He likes to attend the circus and the theater. This costs more money than he can afford, but somehow he manages to be there frequently. His employers are quietly watching to learn how he gets so much extra spending money; they will soon discover a leak in the money drawer, detect the dishonest boy, and his place will be ready for some one who is now getting ready for it by observing point No. 1, and being truthful in all his ways. Some situations will soon be vacant, because the boys have been poisoned by reading bad books, such as they would not dare to show to their fathers, and would be ashamed to have their mothers see. The impure thoughts suggested by these books will lead to vicious acts; the boys will be ruined, and their places must be filled. Who will be ready for one of these vacancies? Distinguished lawyers, useful ministers, skillful physicians, successful merchants, must all soon leave their places for somebody else to fill. One by one they are removed by death. Mind your ten points, boys; they will prepare you to step into the vacancies in the front rank. Every man who is worthy to employ a boy is looking for you if you have the points. Do not fear that you will be overlooked. A young person having these qualities will shine as plainly as a star at night. We have named ten points that go toward making up the character of a successful boy, so that they can be easily remembered. You can imagine one on each finger, and so keep them in mind—they will be worth more than diamond rings, and you will then never be ashamed to 'show your hand.'—American Agriculturist.

AMERICAN MISSIONARIES IN GERMANY.—"Malakoff," of the Times, gives an interesting account of the successful labors of Rev. Wm. Schwartz, of the American Methodist Missionary Society. He says:

"He first cast his lot at Berlin, and, going among the street-sweepers, the rag-pickers, and the offals generally of humanity, of that great class which is abandoned by the rest of society, and for which churches are never built, he reclaimed in a short time from the filth of mind and body enough human beings to build up two churches, which continue to worship in the Methodist faith and to grow in numbers and prosperity. He next pitched his tent at Bale, in Switzerland, and there gathered around him in a short time enough of souls reclaimed from sin and filth to establish and build another church. He then came to Paris; and here we have seen him, in his quiet, modest and earnest way, rapidly gather up three congregations from materials so utterly beyond the reach of church influence as to be fit only to be ranked with the heathen of the remotest corners of the earth. He commenced in the quarter called the Ternes, among the German street-sweepers; and, in a miserable plain room, rented for a trifle, he soon got together a regular congregation which he organized into a church and started on a firm basis. He then obtained another room, not far from this, for an organization of domestics; and succeeded with the same rapidity as before. By this time the Catholic establishments in the neighborhood began to take alarm, and to use means to suppress him and his congregations. But he went to the magnificent governor of Paris, M. Haussmann, who is favorable to Protestantism; and he has to go but once. 'Go on with your good work, sir,' said Mr. Haussmann; 'and if any man dares to interfere with you, come to me!'

"So this quiet, good man went back, strengthened to his work again; and in a short time he has still another congregation organized, this time in the Rue Roquepine, in the heart of the fashionable quarter, but composed, like the last, of German domestics and the very poorest classes."

DURING the hearing of a recent case at the Staffordshire assizes, in England, two young girls of fourteen were examined who could neither read nor write, who had never been to school, church or chapel, and had never heard of the Bible. They were employed in the kitchens of canal boats.

LET the cry of your prayers outcry the cry of your sins.

DAVID.

BY DR. GUTHRIE.—NO. II.

Let us consider David's afflictions. In the ills of poverty, the loss of children, the death of old friends, the numerous infirmities of age, the numerous troubles often gather around the prosperous in the decline of life, like clouds about a setting sun. Happy for them if these are sanctified: blessed by the Spirit of God to wean their affections from scenes they soon must leave, and prepare them, as trees which have the roots that bind them to earth loosened, for being transplanted to heaven! But unlike those who are long exempt from troubles, David had they were early acquaintances. Wherever there is sunshine there are shadows; and these fell coldly and early on his path. In consequence, probably, of his brothers having learned somewhat of the purpose of Samuel's visit, he became the object of their bitter envy; of such jealousy as cost Joseph his liberty, and almost his life. Called from the flock to carry provision to his brethren, he goes down to the host, to find them, and all Israel, paniestricken. No man will face the giant. He will. Though a stripling, his faith and courage rise to the occasion. He turns to this soldier and to that, asking "What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, and taketh away the reproach from Israel?" and ever as the question is answered, his soul swells higher with a divine indignation, till, under a power that impels him to accept the challenge, he breaks out in this exclamation, "Who is this uncircumcised Philistine that he should defy the armies of the living God?" And what encouragement does he get from his brothers? No thanks to them for that day's work! They eye him with jealousy. Eliab, the eldest of them, wounds his feelings and loads him with unmerited reproach—"Why camest thou down hither?" he asks, "and with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride and the naughtiness of thine heart." Thus, like Joseph, and one greater still—like Jesus—he was wounded in the house of his friends.

This was the beginning of David's sorrows. As the sun, on breaking through the haze to warm the air and shine in cloudless splendor, calls from their shades a swarm of insects, which pursue the traveler and pierce him with their stings, his prosperity exposed David to a host of evils. It awoke feelings in Saul's breast, not of envy alone, but of the bitterest hatred. From the day that joyous mothers and maidens sang, "Saul hath slain his thousands, but David his tens of thousands," David was pursued with deadly animosity by him whose crown his valor had saved, and whose life he twice generously spared. The savior of his country, no worse fate could have befallen its greatest enemy. He has to flee from the bosom of his family; he is driven from house and hold; dishonored as well as disgraced, his wife, the princess whom his courage won, is torn from his arms, and given to another. Reduced to the most terrible straights, famine threatens him with death on this side, and the edge of the sword on that; than savage deserts and mountain caves, other home has he none, nor bed but the bare ground, nor associates but men in debt, discontented and in distress—a base and lawless crew, from whose society, in other and happier circumstances, he had recoiled with disgust and horror.

The heathen said that a good man suffering adversity well was a sight for the gods to look on. Such a sight is here. Some of his sweetest psalms, composed when he was hunted like a partridge on the mountains, remain to testify to the indomitable fortitude and heavenly composure which David maintained amid a sea of troubles. He suffered wrongs, nor sought to avenge them. He loved the country which had forsaken him; nor, unlike most other outlaws, did he ever draw his sword but against its enemies. So hemmed in on all sides that, escape seeming as impossible as Saul remained implacable, he once despaired, and cried, "I shall perish one day by the hand of Saul;" yet, when his enrage twice placed his enemy in his power, twice he spared him. He put aside the spear that gleamed in the moonlight above the sleeping king, and which Abishai had raised to bury in his heart; and when at length Saul left the gloomy hut of Endor, to meet his fate in battle, this generous man, burying his enemy's crimes and his own wrongs in one grave, lamented his fall, and avenged his death.

Yet those afflictions he suffered, and suffered for years, at the hand of Saul, and of others also, were but the big drops that precede the storm. When Saul slept in his bloody grave, and he himself had exchanged the caves of Engedi for a palace, and the hardships of an outlaw for the pomp and pleasure of a throne, it burst out on him in its wildest fury. To many a man his home offers a quiet retreat from the battles and struggles of life—he forgets them at evening in the bosom of his family. Alas for David! his home was the scene of his most painful trials. Many foul crimes have defiled fair palaces, and murder has stained their floors with blood; but neither in robbers' den nor in the lowest haunts of vice have worse deeds been done than wrecked the peace of David. Within walls sacred to the domestic virtues, to pure love, and the tenderest affections, his daughter stands before him, dishonored and deflowered—her brother the author of this shocking crime. Who can fancy David's feelings when he looked on Tamar's tears, and listened, with grief and consternation on his countenance, to a story that filled the whole land with horror? But hardly has that earthquake shock passed away when another follows. Tragedy on tragedy! The crime a father allowed to go unpunished her brother avenges. Biding his time, and, when suspicion is lulled, drawing Amnon, the perpetrator of that monstrous wickedness, into his toils, Absalom gives the signal, and, smitten by his servants, his brother dies. But ah! the sword that Absalom passed through Amnon's body pierced David's heart. Was ever father so afflicted? Alas the day! Wails fill the palace; and there—a sadder sight than Job sitting beggared and childless on the grave of all his children—he rends his garments; and, struck down by the blow, falls prostrate to the ground, his children standing around him dissolved in tears, and mingling their cries with his.

He has to drink still deeper "of the wine of astonishment." Hardly has time, the great healer, closed that wound, when Absalom, his favorite son, whom he had forgiven inflicts a deeper one; commits a crime of yet darker dye. In rending how the pope's soldiers, to obtain speedy possession of their jewels, were wont to sever the fingers of Huguenot ladies from their bleeding hands, I have wondered at the savage cruelty; but what cruelty, or crime, to be compared with his who, to possess himself the sooner of his father's crown, sought to sweep off his father's head? But for that bloody purpose Absalom, plying every traitorous art, poisoned the ears, and stole away the hearts of the people; seduced his father's soldiers and councillors from their allegiance, and sowed the seeds of discontent broadcast throughout the land. Now deeming things ripe for revolt, he drops the mask, and breaks out into open and monstrous rebellion.—What sins too great for the man to commit whom God abandons, and the devil drives? Lost to shame, he publicly dishonors his father's bed; and has rewards for the assassin who will bring his gory grey head and lay it at his feet. We have seen many a sad sight; but none to be compared to this aged monarch, full of honors and of years, worthy of all filial love and public veneration, who had no subject but should have fought, nor child but should have died for him, flying with a few followers, under the cloud of night, to escape the sword of his own son. And when tidings came of Absalom's death, how terrible his grief—he wrings his hands, and, as he goes up to his chamber, ever and anon stops to raise his swimming eyes in mute appeal to heaven for pity, or give vent to the love and unutterable anguish of his broken heart, crying, "O, my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom, would God I had died for thee! O Absalom, my son, my son!"

THE PARISIAN WORKMAN.

I want to set the French workman in his blouse beside the British workman in his corduroy. A few glances will show us that the difference between the two—albeit striking in the trifling matter of clothes—is deeply seated. They start from different cradles; breathe a different atmosphere; and get, in the earliest spring, different ideas of the admirable. And so, in the fullness of time, art is in the soul of the Frenchman, and is not even at the finger ends of the Englishman. I offer a note or two by way of explanation, being firmly possessed with the idea that something more than South Kensington is wanted to bring my working countrymen to the shoulder of the alert and graceful workman of the Quartier Saint Antoine.

Lately a friend of mine, staying in Paris, was writing in his room, when his concierge—also his servant—entered, and began to dust his books. The turn of Lamartine came in due time. "Ah!" exclaimed the concierge, dusting the volume with his feather-brush, "que c'est beau d'etre ecrivain!"* My friend surlily replied, as having worn the shoe, and earned no little acquaintance with its pinching, "Beau! c'est le dernier des metiers!"† The concierge, still busily dusting, "Mais c'est le premier des arts!"* Take another instance in support of that which I am preparing to advance. A gentleman (decorated) is standing upon a bookseller's doorstep on the Quai Voltaire; the bookseller is talking deferentially to him: I am at hand examining some books, and am struck with the appearance of the red-ribboned gentleman. A blouse at my elbow remarks my interest, touches me upon the sleeve politely, and reverentially gives me the stranger's name: "C'est Monsieur Cormenin." M. Cormenin's is not the best-known name in France.

To a race of workmen among whom this reverential feeling is common, the idea of the beautiful in the useful comes easily. The beautiful in the useful is the French workman's passion. Look into Potel and Chabot's windows, and observe the artful grace with which the larded viands, the daintily attired ortolans, the brilliant colored prawns, the terrines, and the truffles are disposed and contrasted amid greenery, and in the sweet neighborhood of fruits. Even in that section of the establishment which is the French version of our pork-butcher's window, the Parisian purveyor of comestibles snatches a grace which recommends his Bayonne hams, his galantines and sausages. A Paris wine-shop is decked in a manner that makes vice lose at least some of its evil by parting with some of its grossness. Compare a French laundry with an English one; a Parisian blanchisseuse with a British washerwoman!

British censors may take up French art angrily, and say their worst about it, calling it tawdry, glaring, violent, and at times indecent. But this should be marked, that art, or a sense of art, is everywhere—in the toy-shop of Giroux, as at Barbedienne's. I have spoken of the concierge who perceived that literature is the first of arts, and of the laborer in the street recognizing in Mr. Cormenin the brain-workman who is to be revereneed above the commoner intelligence. This laborer, who caps seriously to the writer, would not duck his pate to the Baron James de Rothschild.

A great art institution started among such a race, albeit less urgently needful than in a country like ours, where the proletarian mind is not warmed, or brightened, or refined with the art sense, was certain to get a rapid and wide circulation. Few who know the French public will be surprised to learn the rapid and brilliant progress which has been effected by the Union Centrale des Beaux Arts appliques a l'Industrie, since it was originated in humble quarters in the famous old Place Royale, early in the year 1864. The Union was the creation of a number of eminent art manufacturers, as M. Guichard, (the president,) Barye, Carrier Bellense, Theodore Deck, Gonelle Brothers, Klagmann, Piat, Sauvrezy, etc. It is an independent art institution that took its rise out of the famous Exhibition of Art Applied to Industry which was held in the Palais de l'Industrie in 1863. The president, closing the exhibition, said it should remind the exhibitors of those glorious tropical trees which glow at once with their weight of fruit and their wealth of flowers. Four years have not yet elapsed, and the Union is already a quiet institution, and is putting forth a most notable arteducational plan that promises to keep Paris against all comers the art mistress of the world.

A college for the cultivation of the beautiful in the useful is an idea that is actually in course of realization. The land is ready, well placed between the Marais and the Quartier Saint Antoine, and within stroll of the ruralities of Vincennes. A council of imposing authority is formed, and soon the builders will be at work. The very scaffolding will be a sight worth seeing. What would the Paris carpenter say if he were brought to contemplate the clumsy array of poles, and planks, and ropes which the English builder uses? I have under my eye a photograph of the scaffolding that was raised to complete the Louvre. It is as neat and light and regular as our Crystal Palace girders. He who would mark correctly how learned, light handed, and well trained the Paris carpenter is, must see the trophies of his trade which he is wont to parade through the streets on the saint-day of his corporation.

* * * Let the Emperor enter a carpenter's shop to-morrow, and the workmen will not lose their manliness. The sense of dignity is deep in the nature of every worker. This proceeds not so much, I apprehend, from the leveling effects of revolution, as from the innate refinement and spirit of the race. The French workman's proud independence is as apparent in his dress as in his speech and bearing. He is not arrayed in vulgar imitation of a gentleman. Now an English carpenter may be seen going to a job with his basket of tools swung over the shoulder of a rusty dress-coat, London cabmen wear silk hats, that have about as much form as a cinder. The cabs of London and Paris illustrate admirably the distance in art-sense there is between the two capitals. A London cab is an impossibility in Paris. Its hideous exterior and filthy interior; its driver in cobbled overcoat, and planted upon a deal box, with any ragged thick thing he can contrive to cover his legs; its deafening rattle and stifling odor completely shock the Parisian when he is first compelled to enter it. No Frenchman (unless he is an actor, and the French actor can imitate everything and every type) could possibly belong to a service that would reduce him to the outward degradation which is to be seen planted upon a London cab-box. The Paris cabman is well clothed, well brushed, and topped with a handsome plazed hat. He has not a sack to twist about his nether anatomy in bad or cold weather; and I should be glad to see the patron bold enough to suggest to him that a sprawling end of sack-cloth would do for his legs.

Agnia: see what a wretched object is a British nursemaid (she would rather say good-by to her fair name than give up her ridiculous bonnet) among the prettily equipped bonnes in the baby avenue of the Tuileries gardens. The bonne is dressed in good taste, and has not the smallest idea of being mistaken for a lady. A British mistress had a French cook and an English maid. On New Year's day she presented each with a handsome stuff dress. "Madame," Sophie protested, "I am afraid it is too fine for my station." It was not good enough for the maid's. She may possibly give it to her mother. A white linen apron is the pride of the Paris cook (a dozen when you engage her is her right)—the pride of the English servants is imitative finery. The bonne takes her holiday in her snowy cap, daintily ribboned; the English maid bears forth a chignon, knows the number of her gloves, and is in silk.

These broad differences indicate two races that are educated from different starting points. Money, and nought save money—wages—is in the mind of the English workman, as it is in that of his employers. You hear the peasant poet sing that the rank is but the guinea stamp. Rank to the English workman's mind is the possession of so much coin of the realm. He can understand gold and silver and copper, and bow down to them, and strive his mightiest to work up from copper to gold; but you cannot, at present, make him understand dignity with an empty pocket: something venerable that hath not an inch of ground in the market-place. Through every grade of our social life we see the feeling, which animates completely the workman, cropping up. The artist! M. de Lamartine! M. Cormenin! Who among the servants who have dusted "In Memoriam" or "Vanity Fair" have, with respectful dignity, turned to their master and said: "Que c'est beau d'etre ecrivain!"

I live in a literary neighborhood, or rather in a neighborhood where one or two shining lights in cotemporary French letters are fixed. Passing out of my house, my barber accosts me: "There they are, monsieur! What a charming group they make in the balcony!" A lady in a white robe reclining in a balcony, with a gentleman adjusting a shawl about her, fetching her stool, laughing and chatting with her, and sending forth little specks of blue smoke from his cigaretto. It is a picture of happy people, on a May morning. "They have just breakfasted," adds the barber—an artist also, let it be remembered, or he will not shave you. Sophie cries on the morrow: "Monsieur, they are going out. That charming young lady on his right is his step-daughter. You know that madame was married before." Our friends of the balcony scene are merely about to take the air, very much like ordinary mortals. "Papa! He has a lovely study, carved oak and green. The room with the blue curtains is the bed-room. He's up so early—writes his letters before breakfast, and, what do you think? Monsieur Bobo is in such a state of delight to-day! When he brought the rolls he told Sophie that when he went over there this morning he was intrusted with a pile of letters for the post. He's as proud as a peacock." This from a boy aged ten years. Monsieur Bobo was the baker, and the gentleman who asked him to post his letters, the gentleman of the balcony scene and the walk out, was Monsieur Alexandre Dumas, fils. The British Bobo would describe his literary customer as "a fellow who writes for his bread." In the useful—in the work-a-day world—there is very little of the beautiful on this side of the Channel as yet. —Once a Week.

To be always intending to live a new life, but never to find time to see about it, is as if a man should put off eating and drinking from one day to another, till he is starved or destroyed.

* "How fine it is to be a writer."

† "Fine! it is the last of all trades."

* "But it is the first of the arts."

FARM AND GARDEN.

Advantages of Agriculture as a Means of Obtaining Wealth.

Adequate to our wants, and to all the beneficial purposes of life, agriculture certainly holds a pre-eminent rank. With that industry and prudence which Providence seems to have made essential to human happiness, and that knowledge which we all have the means of acquiring, its gains are certain, substantial and sufficient—sufficient for ourselves, for the good of our children, and the healthful tone of society. It does not, we admit, afford that prospect of rapid gain which some other employment holds out to cupidity, and which too often distract and bewilder the mind and unsettle for life the steady business habits of early manhood; yet neither does it, on the other hand, involve the risks to fortune and to morals, to health and to happiness, with which the schemers and speculators of the day, who would live by the labors of others, seem ever to be environed. Great wealth begets great care and anxiety, and is too apt to engender habits unfriendly alike to the possessor and to society. Wealth that comes without labor is often wasted without thought, but that which is acquired by toil and industry is preserved with care and expended with judgment. The farmer, therefore, who secures an annual and increasing income by his industry, though it be small in the outset, is much more likely to become ultimately rich, not only in dollars and cents, but in all the substantial elements of happiness, than the man of almost any other profession in life.

The agriculturist may devote his evenings, or most of them, to study, to the improvement of his mind, to the acquisition of useful knowledge. He may devote three hours out of the twenty-four to study, without infringing upon his necessary business, or fatiguing his mind, or impairing his health. This is allowing eight hours for sleep, ten for labor, and three for contingencies. What profession is there which, if well conducted, gives a larger portion of time to the acquisition of general knowledge? And what a scope of usefulness may be embraced by these studies! The properties of the soils which give him bread and meat, their adaptation to particular crops, the cause of their deterioration, the mode of renovating or increasing their fertility—by farm manures, by lime, gypsum, marl and by admixture of earths, by draining, irrigation, and alternating crops; the animals which are consigned to his care—their form, internal structure, appropriate management; the nature, cause and cure of their diseases; the various foods most profitably raised for the nourishment of the different kinds, and the best mode of preparing and feeding it; the crops which he cultivates, their relative value, their habits, proper succession, exhausting influence upon the soil, and the best modes of their management, the agency of air, heat, light and moisture in preparing vegetable food, in the processes of vegetable nutrition and development, and the means of accelerating or retarding their agency; all these matters which come specially within the province of the agriculturist. The more knowledge he has in these matters, the more likely he is to succeed. His unaided observation and experience may do much; yet, if to this he can add the observations and experience of hundreds of others, in his own particular business, as observing and intelligent as himself, he must certainly be able to profit greatly by it, and to advance in improvement.—New York Day Book.

Home on the Farm.—The farm preserves the family in its integrity. The home has in that charming word, and that still more charming thing, the fireside—around which parents and children gather, and where the bright and cheerful blaze upon the hearth is but a true type of the flame of love that glows in every heart. The parents have been drawn together, not by the sordid motives of wealth, or by the ambitious desire of social display, but for the personal qualities seen in each other. The glory of that fireside to the husband is that the wife is there, and to the wife that he is there. Here they gather at morning, and at evening, and at noon. Their board is almost always surrounded with the same circle. Here they spend the long winter evenings together, enlivened with the school books of children, the newspapers and journals, and works of history and science. A constant homogeneous influence goes forth from this circle to the young hearts that are molding there. Paternal vigilance guards the young against wicked companions. If the religious influences are right in that home, they will all grow up to be the pillars of society, wherever their lot may be cast. The sons follow the business of their father as soon as their labors are available. They are with him in the field, and by the way, and at home. They form industrious habits, and are prepared for the responsibilities of life.

Correct Farming.—Farming without science is like quackery in the practice of medicine and surgery—a little experience goes a great ways, and quacks sometimes hit right, and so do uneducated farmers, and nature does the rest. A good constitution and a slight affection may do well in the hands of a medical quack, and a rich soil, until exhausted, yields fair crops to hereditary or traditional tillage. There may be some excuse for medical quackery, or good reasons why more than the ignorant tolerate it. The science of medicine, though one of the oldest, is not perfect, and its great truths have heretofore been locked up in the schools—a sealed book to the million—and those who have just dipped into the surface of a science have more faith therein than he who has searched to the bottom. Man loves mystery, and delights in the marvelous; and in sickness men have little reason and much credulity. But there is no excuse for quackery in the cultivation of the earth. The eternal truths of this science are as palpable as the rocks from which our soils are derived, or the nature of the plants which they sustain. We should not tolerate quackery, and yet nine-tenths of our practice is empirical. The body and the mind should both be educated, and both should labor. With more knowledge there should be less toil; with a better wrought frame there would be a less overwrought muscular system. "Head work" and "hard work" should go together.

Abdel Kader.—Two Quaker missionaries, traveling in Syria, have, during the past few weeks, had an interesting interview with the great Arab chieftain, Abdel Kader, once the leader of the Algerine tribes against the French armies. He now resides at Damascus, whither he has been followed by about seven hundred African Arabs. Here he enjoys a pension of £4,000 a year, granted him by his conqueror, the Emperor Napoleon the Third. In 1860 thousands of the Syrian (nominal) Christians were massacred in cold blood by the Mohammedans, especially in Damascus and the Lebanon. Hundreds of Christian men, women and children fled for refuge to the house and premises of the noble Abdel Kader, whose merciful and brave disposition was well known. On this occasion he promptly interposed his influence to shield the persecuted fugitives; and, when the fanatical mob of his coreligionists demanded, with frantic yells, that the Christians should be surrendered to their fury, Abdel Kader, accompanied by a strong body of his followers, confronted them, exclaiming, "Wretches! is this the way you honor the Prophet? May his curse be upon you! Not a Christian will I give up. They are my brothers!" Eventually, through the courageous and generous course of action taken by this illustrious chieftain, the lives of 15,000 Syrian Christians were rescued from savage destruction. The two Quaker missionaries visited Abdel Kader to express their gratitude for his protection of their fellow-Christians. He received them with much courtesy and kindness; listened with interest to the address of his visitors, which was translated by two interpreters—first into German, and then into Arabic. The Quakers conclude their account of the visit by saying, "Before leaving, coffee was brought"—the universal token in the East of hospitality and friendship.

The Guild of the Holy Cross.—A secret religious (?) society has been formed in the High Church wing of the Episcopalian body, devoted to the work of assimilating "the church" to that of Rome. Its aims are authoritatively stated to be, among other things, to teach "the people reverence for holy places and holy things, and especially for the body and blood of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, present in the sacrament of the altar;" to "revive brotherhoods and sisterhoods;" and to discourage the "solemn mockery" of having the services of infant baptism, holy matrimony, or the burial of the dead performed in private houses. The important point in their doctrinal statement is, that "as there is in the celebration of the Lord's Supper a real sacrifice, so does it require that there be a real priest to offer it; wherefore, it is necessary to hold the doctrine of the apostolic succession as of binding obligation, and as constituting the very essence of the Catholic Church." And this is in the Protestant Episcopal Church, whose greatest hero—Hugh Latimer—was burned by the Bloody Mary on the charges that he had "openly defended and maintained that the true and natural body of Christ, after the consecration of the priest, is not really present in the sacrament of the altar;" and that he had "openly affirmed, and obstinately maintained, that in the Mass is no propitiatory sacrifice for the quick and dead."

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order. If this cannot be had, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

THE GERMAN ADVOCATE.

This paper will make its appearance in the course of one or two weeks. The object is to supply our German Methodists with a religious paper in their own tongue. It will be edited and conducted by Rev. J. B. A. Ahrens, of this city. It is the purpose, for the present, to issue the paper semi-monthly, at the low price of one dollar a year. We congratulate our German brethren upon the prospect of having a paper in their own tongue. It will meet a long-felt want, and be instrumental of great good. Brother Ahrens is capable, and every way suited to the enterprise he has taken in hand.

Death of the Rev. W. P. Ratcliffe.

The news of the death of the Rev. W. P. Ratcliffe, of the Little Rock Conference, conveyed in the following note in the Memphis Advocate, from the Rev. W. H. Browning, Camden, Arkansas, May 14, will be read with sorrowful emotions by many brethren. A holy, useful and faithful minister of Christ, he has, we doubt not, received the promised plaudit: "Servant of God, well done!" We trust some one will furnish a memoir, as suggested by Brother Browning, who writes:

"I have learned within the last hour of the death of Rev. W. P. Ratcliffe. He died away from home. This sad event occurred at Mt. Ida, Arkansas, May 1. Owing to the unprecedented flood in the head-waters of the Ouachita, sweeping away bridges, ferryboats, etc., and wholly suspending the mails, the news did not reach his family until a few minutes ago.

"I assure you it has spread a gloom over our community, such as I have never seen before. Brother Ratcliffe was not only one of our oldest and most talented ministers, but was regarded by all as a model of piety, and a zealous advocate of Christian holiness."

We copy the above from the Southern Christian Advocate. We had heard of the sad event, but not in any authentic shape, and had hoped that there was some mistake about it. But there seems now to be no room for doubt. Brother Ratcliffe was one of the foremost men in our church, distinguished for deep piety and usefulness. He was a member of the Ouachita Conference, and engaged, we believe, as agent for the American Bible Society at the time of his death.

BY A NOTE from Rev. L. R. Redding we have received the painful announcement of the death of Mrs. Rachel A. W. Jones, wife of the Rev. B. Jones, of the Mississippi Conference. "She fell asleep in Jesus at her home in Wesson, Mississippi, at two o'clock P. M., June 3, 1868." We sincerely condole with the bereaved husband and family in this deepest of afflictions. A more extended notice of our deceased sister will be furnished hereafter

TEMPORAL PROMISES.

"The life that now is" derives importance from its relation to "that which is to come." But apart from the consideration of eternal things, our earthly welfare has a present value. The necessaries and comforts of the individual and the family—food, raiment, health and home—always have and always will occupy thought, and make the prominent object of enterprise and industry. The cares and anxieties of men grow out of these interests in a larger measure than out of any other thing. The world to come may assert pre-eminence, and rightfully hold the foremost place, but religion does not teach, nor does it affect contempt or indifference respecting temporal good. What the gospel has done is to place the kingdom first. The value of material things is admitted, only insisting that the spiritual are greater, and that where there is conflict, the eternal is rather to be chosen.

Promises of temporal benefits abound in the Old Testament, and were prominent under the theocracy, constituting a most essential feature of the divine economy in the time of the patriarch, and in the days of Moses, David and the prophets. These promises, and the principles of them, are not discarded in the teachings of Jesus and the apostles. Godliness is still "profitable for all things," and all things shall be added to those who seek first the kingdom of God. Are there such promises in the gospel, and if there, what do they signify? True, they in some degree work out their own fulfillment, as religion, apart from some exceptional causes, has in it the elements of worldly success and prosperity. But beyond this there is not only a particular, but a special providence over the righteous. The eyes of the Lord are over them, and his ears are open to their prayers. How can God be supposed to care for the brutes that perish, and at the same time be indifferent about our physical comfort, and the supply of our temporal wants? As if all his care and interest were antagonized by and exhausted upon the welfare of the soul.

And yet, for all practical purposes of comfort, the temporal promises are for the most part lost. The lilies and the sparrows illustrate a beautiful sentiment, and embellish a theory, but they do not inspire that assured faith which the Saviour sought to implant. Even when we take the spiritual promises in their literal fullness, without questioning that they are yea and amen in Christ Jesus, we cannot divest ourselves of the notion that the temporal have in them much of hyperbole and metaphor. In one class of promises we believe God; in another, not. We somehow come to the conclusion that the affairs of time are foreign to religion, and that God's dominion and mercies are shut out from the every-day concerns of life.

Are these promises respecting the present life opposed by the facts of experience and observation? Think of the conditions of them and to whom they apply. Godliness is profitable. It must mean true religion, deep experimental holiness. If our piety comes short of this, what business have we to sit in judgment upon the apostolic declaration? "All these things shall be added," but then the kingdom must be first. If in our seeking the order and degree have been reversed; if we have been living like heathen and Gentiles, neglecting God's righteous kingdom and grasping after earthly gain, at the expense of our souls, the promise has no application to us. How many bring themselves fully within the range of these promises, and stand fairly upon promised ground? What may sometimes appear to overthrow the promise respecting "the life that now is," is in reality a confirmation of it. The condition has been wanting, and the terms of the blessing have not been complied with.

The wicked often flourish nevertheless; they take deep root and their branches spread widely. But are you willing to accept of the prosperity of the ungodly, and to stand in their slippery places? Do you wish temporal blessings to come to you as a saint or as a sinner? This phenomenon, then, is eliminated, and we have to do only with promises addressed to us as Christians. If we come up to the measure of the condition, if we attain to the character to which they apply, then the question is one of veracity. Is God true? Can Christ be false? There may be causes of perturbation, as when there is an unseen star or an undiscovered planet somewhere in the solar system. Or the exceptional necessities of providential discipline may arise. We are, however, to be blessed temporally, as the children of God, and not as atheists and covetous persons. We may go beyond this, the moderate supplies of our necessities, and wonder that we are not rich with our religion. We have never dreamed of being contented, "having food and raiment." Before we question the promises, let us see that we have a right to them.

There are many troubled and anxious ones just now, casting about and saying, "what shall we eat and what shall we drink, and wherewithal shall we be clothed." Are these promises blotted out, and is there no truth in them? Our poverty and wants should lead us to self-examination, to search and try our ways. God's ways are equal. If we are faithful to him, he will be faithful to us. Our extremity is graciously permitted, that we may draw nearer to God, that we may rest upon his word, and verify the "exceeding great and precious promises." *

RELIGION OF THE SICK-BED.

Much of the attention given to the sick amounts to no more than empty form. It is what the custom of society has established as due to afflicted neighbors and acquaintances. Much more is the visiting of the sick limited to those who, by reason of friendship and family ties, have special claims upon us. Comparatively few visit the sick as a religious duty, and where there must be self-denial and sacrifice in order to perform it. The object of visiting the sick is with many entirely confined to the relief of their temporal wants, or to ameliorate the physical suffering. The higher and more difficult office of ministering to the soul rests upon the Christian's conscience. It is a gracious opportunity, to be wisely and promptly improved. Ministering to the wants of the body and relieving the destitute open the way to this great good. They are the convincing credentials of the benevolence which leads us to the bedside of the sufferer, and they open the heart to the message of salvation. The Christian, in these hours of physical pain and prostration, is refreshed and strengthened by words of comfort and sympathy. That the prayer of faith sometimes heals the sick, we cannot doubt, and we are sure that it always helps and cheers. The sick-bed of the believer is often a place of severe temptation. Besides the fortitude and patience, which are tested to the extremest degree, there are the fiery arrows of the tempter himself. Advantage is taken of the weakened and nervous condition, and the mental depression induced by disease. Dark suggestions of distrust and evil thoughts press up to the threshold of the soul; and strange whisperings of doubt and unbelief seem to flit unbidden through the chambers of the heart. It is not uncommon to find the afflicted child of God, in fierce combat with temptation, suffering from a temporary loss of peace and assurance, and needing the words and counsels of strength and hope.

Sickness is a severe and gracious discipline, but the sufferer is deprived of the usual means of grace. These can be supplied only by the visitations of devout and praying friends. Religious fellowship is never sweeter, never more helpful than when it comes to us in the languor and weakness of protracted illness. It is usual for us to think, perhaps, that Christians have in their religion all possible and needful comfort, and that these personal attentions are unnecessary. In some instances it may be so, but in most cases a friendly religious interview will "strengthen the weak hands and confirm the feeble knees." "I was sick and ye visited me."—This was done to a disciple, and it is mentioned as one of the eminent fruits and manifestations of faithfulness to Christ.

In reference to the unconverted, the demand is more urgent, and every opportunity of access to such should be improved as a special call of God. It may in such a case be the last offer of mercy. Death is about to end the probation of an immortal spirit. God's hand has brought the sinner where he is most disposed to think, and where but little persuasion is needed to lead him to prayer. There is no more fearful responsibility than this of dealing with the unconverted upon the sick and the dying bed. The danger of alarming, and thus perilling life, the sympathy excited by physical suffering, and the tenderness which the circumstances seem to demand, may check religious faithfulness. It is a time when we would deal in the softer, sweeter, benigner aspects of gospel truth, and hold back the denunciations of the law. But it is an occasion when the whole truth must be presented, and where we are concerned, that the awakening and repentance should be deep and thorough. We need in this duty, faith in the power of the gospel to save. Few, it may be, are converted in sickness, in comparison with the number who are not, but there are many altogether who date amended lives from these periods of trouble and conviction. Some are saved in their dying sickness, and we know the Saviour is able even to save to the uttermost. There is reason for hope and room for faith, and our responsibility as Christians must be met by a faithful discharge of duty.

Visiting the sick, whether they be converted or unconverted, will always prove a valuable means of spiritual good to ourselves. Here we shall learn the lesson of contentment, and be rebuked for our ingratitude. We shall see such displays of grace as we meet nowhere else; and such exhibitions of the power of religion to sustain and comfort as are afforded under no other conditions of human experience. The good we may do the sick is very great, but the good they do us is greater. Personal visitations to the bedside of the suffering should be ranked amongst the leading means of grace. It perhaps, more than any other, develops and cherishes all the graces. Religion is exhibited in its highest offices of consolation, and comes before us as a practical demonstration. Unselfishness, generosity, self-denial and the nobler principles of benevolence are called out. Our faith and spirituality are increased, and we are chastened, subdued and saddened into sober-minded and thoughtful devotion.

Personal contact with the suffering is a necessary experience. To hear of it, to know it by the description of others, or to relieve it through them, does not secure the benefit We must see the afflicted, commune with them, if we would secure a blessing which can reach us in no other way. No class, no brotherhood, no sisterhood, should be permitted to monopolize here. Every Christian requires this aid to piety and holy living, and must be accountable for its faithful discharge as a duty.

JAMES BUCHANAN, the fifteenth President of the United States, died at Wheatland, near Lancaster, Pennsylvania, June 1st, at the age of seventy-seven. He graduated at Dickinson College in 1809, and five years later entered political life as a State legislator. He served five terms in the lower House of Congress and one in the United States Senate, was minister to Russia under Jackson, Secretary of State under Polk, minister to England under Pierce, and President of the United States from 1857 to 1861, since which time he has lived in the retirement and tranquility befitting his advanced years.

WE can bear to hang by a thread, if it be only one of Christ's spinning.

The Omnibus Admission Bill

This bill has at length passed the Senate, and will doubtless become a law in a few days. All the Southern States are embraced in its provisions except Mississippi and Texas. In the Senate Florida was added. The chief point of discussion related to Alabama, but the vote was large for the bill, including this State. Texas and Mississippi are not yet ready, but they will be legislated in before the fall elections. The object is transparent enough. The Radicals will need the electoral votes of these States, and a few more Senators of their own sort may be a great convenience to them. There is a prospect of the new State governments going into operation in a few weeks. We then pass from the military to the negro dominion. This measure, passed by both houses, will of course be vetoed by the President, and then passed by a two-thirds vote. The text of the bill will be found in the news columns of the paper.

Northern General Conference.

LAY REPRESENTATION.

This body adjourned on the 2d instant. The following is the plan of lay representation as finally adopted. It is to be submitted to a vote of the membership, where a majority is required; then to the annual conferences, where three-fourths is necessary; and then it comes back to the next General Conference in 1872, where a two-thirds vote must be secured before it becomes a law. All the plan contemplates is the admission of two lay representatives into the General Conference from each of the annual conferences. There is no provision for laymen in the annual conferences.

'WHEREAS, The General Conference of 1860 expressed its willingness to admit lay delegates to the General Conference whenever the people should desire it; and whereas, the General Conference of 1864 concurred in that action; therefore,

'Resolved, That we also concur in the same, and recommend the following plan to the godly consideration of our ministers and people:

'Quest. Who shall compose the General Conference, and what are the regulations and powers belonging to it?

'Ans. 1. The General Conference shall be composed of ministerial and lay delegates. The ministerial delegates shall consist of one member for every thirty members of each annual conference, to be appointed either by seniority or choice, at the discretion of such annual conference, yet so that such representative shall have traveled at least four full calendar years from the time that they were received on trial by an annual conference, and are in full connection at the time of holding the conference.

'The lay delegates shall consist of two laymen for each annual conference, except such conferences as have but one ministerial delegate, which conferences shall be each entitled to one lay delegate.

'The lay delegates shall be chosen by an electoral conference of laymen, which shall assemble for the purpose on the third day of the session of the annual conference at the place of its meeting, at its session immediately preceding the General Conference. The electoral conference shall be composed of one layman from each circuit or station within the bounds of the annual conference, and on assembling the electoral conference shall organize by electing a chairman and secretary of their own number—such laymen to be chosen by the last quarterly conference preceding the time of its assembling; Provided, that no layman shall be chosen a delegate either to the electoral conference or to the General Conference who shall be under twenty-five years of age, or who shall not have been a member of the church in full connection for the five consecutive years preceding the election.'

Answer of 2 the chapter on the General Conference remains unchanged. It relates to the times of meeting. The new Answer 3 is as follows:

'Answer 3. At all times when the General Conference is met, it shall take two-thirds of the whole number of ministers and lay delegates to form a quorum for transacting business. The ministers and lay delegates shall sit and deliberate together as one body, but they shall vote separately, whenever such separate vote shall be demanded by one-third of either order, and in such cases the concurrent vote of both bodies shall be necessary to complete an action.'

A NEW MAYOR.

The newly elected city officials, by decision of General Buchanan, were to take their seats on Wednesday, the 10th instant. The Mayor elect, Mr. Conway, is Conservative or Democrat; hence the scene, which we extract from the Times:

At 12 o'clock Mr. Conway, accompanied by Mr. W. J. McCulloh, and Mr. John W. Overall, called on Mayor Heath, and presenting the order of General Buchanan naming the parties elected, stated that he had come to comply with its provisions.

Mayor Heath replied that he did not know of any law authorizing such election, and declined to relinquish his position. Mr. Conway and his friends then went off, and immediately repaired to headquarters. The crowd by this time thronged the City Hall, but the refusal created no excitement whatever, the majority of the by-standers playing the part of amused spectators.

At 1½ o'clock Mayor Heath received an order from headquarters directing him to report in person. He, however, declined to go.

When Mr. Conway reached headquarters he found that General Buchanan had not yet arrived, and remained there some half an hour before the military commander came in. He at once procured an interview, which resulted in Captain De Russey, the General's aid, being sent down to install him.

In due season Captain De Russey, accompanied by Mr. Conway, arrived. Bowing politely and handing Mr. Heath an order, he said, "Mr. Heath, I bring you an order from Major General Buchanan." Heath, who stood up as he came in, read the order through, and then said, "I have been appointed by the General Commanding, and confirmed by Congress." His voice at this moment fell to almost a whisper, and although we were standing quite near, we failed to catch the last portion of the sentence. The crowd in the meantime gathered quite close to the table, and Captain De Russey, making a sign of annoyance, Mr. Heath called for a policeman, and had the place cleared.

He then repeated his first remark, and Captain De Russey immediately left, Mr. Conway remaining.

Calling upon the Chief of Police, he presented him the following order, and requested a sufficient number of men to carry out his instructions:

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 10, 1868.

J. J. WILLIAMSON, Chief of Police:

Sir—I am directed by the Major General Commanding to place Mr. J. R. Conway, Mayor elect, in possession of the Mayoralty of New Orleans, and eject Heath, the present Mayor, by force, if necessary, and to call upon the Chief of Police for assistance.

J. H. DE RUSSEY,
Captain 1st Infantry, A. D. C.

A number of men, we think about ten, were at once placed at his disposal, and accompanied by the Chief and Aid Smith Izard, he returned to the Mayor's parlor. The following conversation then took place:

Captain De Russey—"I am commanded by Major General Buchanan to place you in arrest, and to direct you to give up the keys, books and records of the Mayor's office."

Mr. Heath—"Have you a written order?"

Capt. De Russey—"I will show you one. I proceed to take you into custody," (taking him by the arm.)

Aid Smith Izard then cleared the parlor, leaving Mr. Conway in possession. The following is the order:

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 10, 1868.

HON. ED. HEATH:

Sir—I am directed by the Major General Commanding to direct you to turn over to me all the keys, books and records pertaining to the office of Mayoralty of New Orleans.

J. H. DE RUSSEY,
Captain 1st Infantry, A. D. C.

Capt. De Russey then conducted his prisoner to the office of the Chief of Police.

On reaching the office of the Chief, Judge Whitaker notified Capt. De Russey that a quo warranto had been issued against Mr. Conway from the Sixth District Court, and requested him to inform the General of that fact. Capt. De Russey replied he was simply there to carry out certain specific instructions of his commanding officer, and that he had no discretion in the matter whatever. Mr. Whitaker still insisted on the General's knowing that the quo warranto had been issued. Capt. De Russey suggested his communicating the startling intelligence by a letter to headquarters. At length he consented to receive Mr. Whitaker's written communication on the subject. Upon his inquiring "What was to be done with him," the ex Mayor was informed that his arrest consisted simply in being forcibly ejected from a position he had refused to give up, and that he was at liberty to go where he pleased.

THERE are estimated to be 14,000 Quakers in Indiana.

THE NEGRO RIOTS IN WASHINGTON.—A Washington dispatch of the 4th says:

The city has been considerably excited, to day, over the bloodshed and riots of last night, mostly participated in, according to the evening papers of both parties, by the negroes rejoicing over the mayoralty election. Large crowds of colored men roamed indiscriminately, all night, over the city, raasacking restaurants, drug stores and shoe stores, assaulting, beating, and in one instance killing a white man on Pennsylvania avenue. It seems that the negroes were mostly armed, and went together in bands of two or three hundred, to such an extent that the military authorities are to prohibit, in the future, processions of armed men who are not soldiers.

The result of last night's rioting may be summed up as follows: One white man killed, seven severely wounded—one fatally; three drug stores assaulted and partially ransacked; two restaurants cleaned out, and four private residences stoned until their blinds and windows were broken. Many of the houses and restaurants were closed up for safety. None of the evening papers of either party show that in any circumstances were colored men injured, and it does not appear that white men were the aggressors in but one case. Some trace the source of the troubles to a very virulent speech made to the negroes last night by Forney.

BURNING CHURCHES.—It seems a pity that as soon as one of our church buildings is withheld from the use of preachers of other denominations who are seeking to disintegrate and absorb our communion, it should by some means be burned down. We give elsewhere a letter stating that a church, in Habersham co., Georgia, was burned the day after the trustees had locked it against an emissary of Radical Methodism. We hear of another case in Thomasville, Georgia. The colored people there have ever lived faithful to us; but the African M. E Church sent a missionary to the place. He was invited to preach in the colored Methodist Church. Finding his purpose to be to try to break up our colored church, the officers (colored) properly refused the use of the church, beyond the one time. This produced bad feeling on the part of three or four members, who united with the A. M. E. Church. The week after that church held a meeting in the Baptist colored church the building in which our members worshiped was fired by some unknown incendiary. It was entirely consumed. The citizens of Thomasville have subscribed near by $600 to build another house, which is already in process of construction. Augustus Goneke, a colored local preacher, is framing the building without charge, except his board and that of his hands while they are doing the work.—Southern Christian Advocate.

THE New York World, of the 4th, says:

The African "voters" in the South stand thus:

Alabama	104,518
Arkansas	25,566
Florida	16,089
Georgia	95,168
Louisiana	84,436
Mississippi	80,360
North Carolina	73,932
South Carolina	80,550
Texas	40,497
Virginia	105,838
Total	715,948

It is suggested, for the benefit of whom it may concern, that when the debt comes up these gentlemen will vote against paying it in any form. Better look, therefore, ere crystalizing this savage suffrage into organic law, lest it turn again and rend you.

THE English army costs $500 a year, in gold, for each of its soldiers; the French army $200, and the Prussian army only $150.

OBITUARIES.

MRS. MENOAH BUTLER, wife of George L. Butler, died at her home, near Fayette, Jefferson county, Mississippi, on the morning of the 27th of April, 1868. She was the daughter of Dr. Dubbs, formerly of Natchez, now of Philadelphia. She was a member of the Methodist church, and a pure woman.

"Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain; but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised." She hath the heart of her husband; he doth safely trust in her. 'Tis not the dead alone who are praised whose virtues shine; nor is it always the case that their virtues appear brightest when the sun of life has set.

Sister Butler was well and widely known to this part of the State. An old friend has said that even when a girl she was religious, and every one loved her. While her heart was young and joyous, and while she was yet treading the flowery portion of the journey of life, she was led to believe that there were greater joys and greater glories for her, and these were to be found in our Saviour's kingdom. There she sought and there she found them.

To those who knew her we can say nothing in her praise. Her life is more eloquent than all our words. As a mere meed to the memory of the dead, we would say nothing any way, for that is now crowned with glory, in the light of which all our best gifts would be without lustre. But for the benefit of the living we would hold up, as did the wise man, the light of a pure woman, and show to the world that "her price is far above rubies."

As a mother, training a young and tender son, Sister B. used those means that would soften and elevate the mind and heart of her dear boy. He, no doubt, "will rise up and call her blessed." She was in a measure the centre of a large circle of friends, yet God was the great centre of all her affections. She lived in the midst of prosperity, often enjoying the world's best gifts, yet she ever remembered the great Giver of all, and that he alone deserved the praise. The love of her heart, tender, yet rich and full, was given to an idolizing husband. His whole nature felt its softening, beneficial influence.

She would allow no brooding care or gloomy cloud to remain in his heart or over his house; but by her cheerful smiles and encouraging words would banish all, as a Christian woman alone can do.

She always had flowers to scatter over the rough places in life, to give their soothing odor to the troubled mind and bruised heart.

These things never caused her to forget her Saviour. With almost her last breath she asked for the holy sacrament. Having received it, "all is well." She resigns her spirit into the hands of God, who gave it, and is now with us no more.

"Thou art gone to the grave—we no longer behold thee,
Nor tread the rough paths of the world by thy side;
But the wide arms of mercy are spread to enfold thee,
And sinners may hope since the Sinless has died."

W. F. G.

FAYETTE, Miss., May 14, 1868.

JOSEPH H. LOCKEY was born in Washington county, Florida, on the 14th of October, 1843, and died in Nacogdoches co., Texas, on the 2d of April, 1868. He had been a subject of affliction for over six months, during which time he "searched the Scriptures daily," and earnestly supplicated a rich throne of grace that he might be prepared for the change, of the rapid approach of which he seemed conscious. He frequently engaged in conversation with me on the subject of his approaching dissolution, and spoke most cheeringly of his prospect for a glorious reward. During his last illness he manifested the utmost confidence in the Saviour, and his triumph in the cross. The night previous to his death he placed his hand on my head, while kneeling at his side, and said, smiling: "Brother, don't weep, but look up at me and laugh. I wish that I had strength to shout." On the night of his death, in his last expiring moments, he raised his hands feebly, and with his face all lighted and beaming with joy, clapped them, saying: "Bless God!" and joined in singing—

"Jesus can make a dying bed Feel soft as downy pillows are,"

with the chorus—

"I'm going home, to die no more."

We sung two verses of the hymn of which the above lines are a part. When we ceased he whispered: "Sing on." We sung three verses of—

"O sing to me of Heaven," after which he lived but a few minutes. He requested me to write to his brother and sister in Louisiana and Florida, and tell them how he died, requesting us all to meet him in heaven. He had many friends and relatives in Alabama and Florida. May the good Lord sanctify this sad bereavement to our spiritual benefit, and help us so to live that in the dying hour with him we can say: "I'm going home, to die no more."

L.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Gadsden District will be held at Centre, Cherokee co., Alabama, commencing on the 17th day of July next. Traveling and local preachers, and official members of the church in the district are expected to be present. Ministers from a distance are also expected.

T. Mooney, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Butler District, Mobile Conference, will be held in Shubuta, on the 18th day of June, 1868.

All the official members are urged to attend. Brother T. S. Abernethy, Jr., will preach the opening sermon. Bishop Andrew will preside.

JOSHUA T. HEANN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Camden District, Montgomery Conference, will meet at Pineville, July 10th.

The official members will please be in attendance, prepared to make their reports at the first meeting.

ANSON WEST, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

JOS. T. CUNAY, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

MOBILE DISTRICT.

A District Meeting and a Sunday School Convention for this district will be held in the St. Francis street Methodist church, Mobile, commencing on Wednesday, the 17th day of June, at which the preachers and official members are requested to be present. Superintendents of Sunday schools are especially urged to be in attendance, with full statistics of their respective schools, and such other information on the subject as they may have at hand. Bishop Andrew, and perhaps Bishop Wightman, may be present.

Members, on their arrival, will call at Dr. Neely's office, in the St. Francis street church, and learn their homes.

THOS. W. DOWMAN, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Livingston	June 27, 28
Meridian	July 4, 5
De Kalb, at Mount Hebron	11, 12
Summerville, at Spring Hill	18, 19
Macon	25, 26
Enterprise	Aug. 1, 2
Marion, at Pleasant Hill	8, 9
Gainesville and Scooba, at Sampterville	15, 16
Enterprise ct., at Sageville	22, 23

S. H. COX, P. E.

Shreveport Dist. Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many mission, at Many	June 13, 14
Mansfield ct., at Mansfield	20, 21
Keachie ct., at Keachie	27, 28
Natchitoches	July 4, 5
Anacoco ct., at Oak Grove	18, 19
Springville, at Holly Spring	25, 26
Greenwood, at Mt. Zion	Aug. 15, 16
Shreveport	29, 30
Pleasant Hill, at Pleasant Hill	Sept. 19, 20

The District Meeting will be held at Pleasant Hill, Sept. 18th, 19th and 20th.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Paulding Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mt. Carmel, at Mt. Moriah	June 27, 28
Columbia, at Byrd's Chapel	July 11, 12
Rankin, at Salem	18, 19
Ocoba, at Sharon	Aug. 1, 2
Handsboro' and Biloxi, at Handsboro'	8, 9
White Plains, at Coalville	15, 16
Sylvarena, at Mt. Olivet	22, 23
Paulding, at Holder's	29, 30

HENRY P. LEWIS, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Providence	June 13, 14
North Carroll, at Pine Ridge	20, 21
Carrollton, at Mount Zion	July 4, 5
Sunflower, at Bear Creek	11, 12
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	18, 19
Durant, at Shady Grove	25, 26
Richland, at Goodman	Aug. 1, 2
Yazoo Ct., at New Hope	15, 16
Yazoo City station	22, 23
Mt. Olivet, at Short Creek	29, 30
Bee Lake, at Lodi	Sept. 5, 6

The District Meeting will be held at Durant, commencing on the 6th day of August.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Natchez Dist.—Mississippi Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Clinton circuit, at Olive Br'n	June 6, 7
Jackson circuit, at Pipkin's Chapel	13, 14
St. Helena circuit, at Centre	20, 21
East Baton Rouge circuit, at Jones' Creek (Zion)	27, 28
Percy's Creek circuit, at Percy's Creek	July 4, 5
Woodville station	18, 19
Wilkinson circuit	25, 26
Amite circuit, at Adams'	Aug. 8, 9
Liberty circuit, at Liberty	15, 16
Kingston circuit	29, 30
Natchez station	Sept. 5, 6

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

N. Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

German churches, Sarpontue st.	April 19
German Quarterly Conference, at Dryades street	17
N. Orleans circuit, at Gretna	26
Quarterly Conference for do
Baton Rouge	May 2, 3
Morena street	10
Thibodeaux, at Napoleonville	17
Felicity street	24
Carondelet street	31
Jefferson City	June 7
Plaquemine	14

Lay delegates will be nominated at these Conferences.

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

Mobile District — Mobile Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul's	Apr. 11, 12
Whistler	18, 19
Cottage Hill Ct., at Hayneville	25, 26
Mobile, Franklin street	May 3
Mobile, St. Francis street	10
Eastern Shore, at Donnelly's	16, 17
Citronelle, at Mauvilla	23, 24
Pascagoula, at Antioch	30, 31
Bay Shore, at Village	June 6, 7
Ocean Springs Ct., at Ocean Springs	13, 14

THOS. W. DOWMAN, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi and Floyd circuit	May 2, 3
Winsborough circuit	9, 10
Ion circuit, at New Salem	23, 24
Jefferson circuit	30, 31
Bastrop circuit	June 6, 7
Bastrop station	13, 14
Waterproof and St. Joseph, at Waterproof	20, 21

W. G. MCGAUGHEY, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,
NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,
Between Customhouse and Canal streets,
jc6'1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A CLEAR, SMOOTH SKIN AND beautiful complexion follow the use of HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA.

It removes black spots, pimples, moth-patches and all eruptions of the skin.

IN THE SPRING AND SUMMER months the system naturally undergoes a change, and Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla is an assistant of the greatest value.

YOUNG LADIES, BEWARE OF the injurious effects of Face Powders and Washes. All such remedies close up the pores of the skin, and in a short time destroy the complexion. If you would have a fresh, healthy and youthful appearance, use Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla.

NOT A FEW OF THE WORST disorders that afflict mankind arise from corruption of the blood. Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla is a remedy of the utmost value.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT SARSAparilla cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors that make disease.

THOSE WHO DESIRE BRILLIancy of complexion must purify and enrich the blood, which Helmbold's Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla invariably does. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENtrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla eradicates eruptive and ulcerous diseases of the throat, nose, eyelids, scalp and skin, which so disfigure the appearance, purging the evil effects of mercury, and removing all taints, the remnant of disease, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by adults and children with perfect safety.

Two tablespoonfuls of Helmbold's Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED Extract Buchu is the great diuretic.—Helmbold's Concentrated Extract Sarsaparilla is the great Blood Purifier. Both are prepared according to rules of pharmacy and chemistry, and are the most active that can be made.

The best test of their purity and superiority will be a comparison with the properties as set forth in the United States Dispensatory.

My laboratory for the manufacture of Fluid Extracts has been visited by thousands of physicians and druggists from all parts of the United States, and the mode of preparation received their unanimous commendation.

Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Fluid Extracts are pleasant in taste and odor, and immediate in their action.

None are genuine unless done up in the steel-engraved wrapper, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

The proprietor was compelled to adopt such a wrapper because of the growing popularity of his articles, and to prevent spurious and dangerous counterfeiting.

H. T. HELMBOLD, druggist, of eighteen years' experience, and manufacturer of Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Principal Depots — Helmbold's Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New York, next Metropolitan Hotel; and Helmbold's Medical Depot, No. 104 South Tenth street, Philadelphia.

Sold by druggists everywhere.

Price $1 25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6 50. may30 3mr

A SUBSTITUTE FOR SARATOGA WATERS.

COOLING, REFRESHING AND PLEASANT
CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.

In 6 oz bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick headache, sour or sick stomach, and all febrile cases. For sale by BARNES, WARD & CO., New Orleans, and by most druggists. Prepared by
ARTHUR ROGERS,
may16 3m 193 Spring street, New York.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's Domestic Family Physician describes all diseases and their remedies. Sent by mail free. Address
DR. S. S. FITCH,
may2 7mr 714 Broadway, New York.

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the "Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by
ROBT. FISHER, Agent,
may2 1y No. 2 3 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

POPULAR INVESTMENT.

Central Pacific Railroad Comp.'s
FIRST MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY are authorized by acts of Congress to construct, with the aid and supervision of the United States Government, the western and principal portion of the National Trunk Line between the Pacific coast and the Mississippi valley. They have built by far the most difficult and expensive portion of their road, and have an unprecedented working force extending the track across the Salt Lake basin. By the close of 1868 it is expected they will have 500 miles in full operation, and that

THE ENTIRE LINE WILL BE COMPLETED IN 1870.

More than Twenty Millions of Dollars have been expended in the work, and the available construction resources are ample for the remainder, as follows:

1. United States Bonds to the extent of $35,000 per mile, average.
2. First Mortgage Bonds to the same amount.
3. Grant of Public Lands along the route, 12,800 acres per mile.
4. Capital stock of $20,000,000, of which $5,000,000 is subscribed and paid on the work done.
5. Cash resources, comprising donations from California sources amounting to $1,250,000, net earnings, etc., 1865 to 1870, $6,500,000, making a total of more than Seventy Millions Upon the First 726 Miles.

One hundred and fifty miles are now built and in operation on both slopes of the Sierra Nevada range. The net earnings for the past year were over a million in gold, or more than four times the annual interest liabilities, and the net surplus for the present year, after payment of expenses and interest, is estimated at

$1,500,000 IN GOLD!

We have now on hand a supply, and are prepared to fill all orders at their

Par Value and Accrued Interest,

in currency, a limited amount of the

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS,

bearing six per cent. per annum—both interest and principal being explicitly made "PAYABLE IN GOLD COIN," conformably with the special laws of the Pacific States.

The Bonds are $1,000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in July and January, the back interest from January 1st being charged to the purchasers, in currency.

☞ The Company reserve the right to advance the price at any time; but all orders actually in transitu at the time of any such advance will be filled at the present price. They are believed to be the most perfect and assured corporate security now offered, and are recommended to persons seeking desirable steady investments.

We receive all classes of Government Bonds, at their full market rates, in exchange for the Central Pacific Railroad Bonds, thus enabling the holders to realize from five to ten per cent. profit and keep the principal of their investments equally secure.

Orders and inquiries will receive prompt attention. Information, descriptive pamphlets, etc., giving a full account of the organization, progress, business and prospects of the enterprise, furnished on application. Bonds sent by return Express at our cost.

FISK & HATCH,
Financial Agents of the C. P. R. R. Co.,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

Offices of the Central Pacific Railroad Co.:
No. 54 William street, New York, and
Nos. 56 and 58 K street, Sacramento, Cal.

Subscriptions Received Through National Banks and Bankers Generally.

☞ All descriptions of GOVERNMENT SECURITIES bought, sold or exchanged, at our office and by mail and telegraph, at market rates.

Seven-Thirty Notes converted into the new Five-Twenties, or any other class of Government Bonds.

Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, and favorable arrangements made for desirable accounts.

Gold, Coupons and Compound Interest Notes bought and sold.

Miscellaneous Stocks and Bonds bought and sold at the Stock Exchange, on commission, for cash.

☞ Dealers and investors out of the city desiring to make negotiations in any of the above may do so through us, by mail or telegraph, as advantageously as though personally present in New York.

Fisk & Hatch,
BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOV'T SECURITIES,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.
may30 1tr

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St., Boston,
Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world, the only true and perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st., New York. mar7 1yr

AGENTS WANTED.—MALE OR female, to sell my new and splendid engraving, From Shore to Shore, suggestive of life's journey from childhood to old age. A perfect gem. Address
H. B. RUSSELL,
may30 4tr Boston, Mass.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOYED.—Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents; twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANG, may30 4tr 91 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.
STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address
A. J. FILLAM,
may30 4tr Springfield, Vermont.

THE STIMPSON SCIENTIFIC PEN.

ONE FORWARD AND TWO BACKward arches, insuring great strength, well-balanced elasticity, evenness of point, and smoothness of execution. Sold by all stationers. One gross in twelve contains a Scientific Gold Pen. One dozen Steel Pens (assorted points) and Patent Ink-retaining Penholder mailed on receipt of 50 cents.
A. S. BARNES & CO.,
may30 4tr 111 and 113 William st., N. Y.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely.—The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Yours, very truly,
SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO', Mass., June 9, '64.

MESSRS. BURNETT & CO.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than formerly. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair. With respect,
WM. S. EDDY.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.
For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may2 3mr

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips, will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being extensively used on children's first-class shoes. Sold everywhere.
may2 8tr

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT for Families.—Every family should have a case of Homœopathic medicine. Its simple directions and inviting sugar Pills are so indispensable for children, and so frequently meet the wants of those of larger growth, as to be a necessity. Sickness prevented is health and money saved, and that these simple remedies do arrest disease and restore health is incontestable. No family having once enjoyed their benefits would be without them. Humphrey's Homœopathic Specifics are prepared expressly to meet the wants of families. They are simple, convenient, safe and reliable, and their value has been confirmed by an experience of many years. A full case of thirty-five large vials and Book of Directions, with Specifics for every disease occurring in domestic practice, is sent to any address, by express, free of charge, on receipt of Ten Dollars. Address Humphrey's Specific Homœopathic Medicine Co., 562 Broadway, New York. Send for our Almanac. apr4 3mr

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge.

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs, of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash, or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly installments. Second-hand Instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.
apr4 1yr HORACE WATERS & CO.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile	$1 50	$1 65
Work of Christ, Marvin	63	75
Ecce Ecclesia	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson	1 25	1 50
Lee and his Generals, half calf	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals	2 60	2 90

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.

ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

TWO TOGETHER.

Pauline opened her eyes and felt herself in Madame Bessard's arms. If she understood anything at all, it was that she was no longer in the carriage, but on somebody's lap. Perhaps she thought that somebody was her mother. At any rate, she contented herself with uttering a sigh of satisfaction, and fell asleep again.

'I will put her to bed at once,' said Madame Bessard, lifting to her husband moistened eyes.

'Yes; she has great need of rest. Poor child, there was no one she cared for at Paris—they had only been there three weeks. Nevertheless, in quitting the room they had occupied, she cried as if she knew she never would come back again.'

Madame Bessard carried Pauline away, Lucie following. Gustave, half asleep, leaned his head against his father's knees. Paul, on the contrary, with eyes wide open, listened to all that was being said.

'Papa,' said he, at last, 'is Pauline very unhappy?'

'Very unhappy I hardly think she is, being, thank God, too young for that; but she has lost in three months both father and mother. Were it not for us she would be quite alone in the world. Do you not understand that she is deeply to be pitied?'

'Yes,' answered Paul, reflectively; 'she is very pretty, is she not, papa?'

M. Bessard smiled. 'So you have seen that already? Yes; she is pretty now, and will be still prettier. She is very like her mother, who was charming.'

'And good likewise, was she not, papa?'

'Yes. Your aunt was both lovely and lovable.'

Paul was silent a moment. 'Well, I did say I wouldn't love her or have her for my sister; but now I have seen her, I think I will.'

'What, Paul,' said his father, 'did you mean not to love your poor little cousin?'

'No, papa, not exactly that. I would have liked her well enough; but the others said she would be our sister, and I did not want that; I thought—I thought—I believe I thought you had quite children enough.'

'That is to say, my poor boy, you were jealous! Paul, Paul, pray that you be kept from that terrible fault, which will make you so wicked, and everybody about you so miserable. Be content; your mother and I have hearts quite large enough to love any child that He may send us, without lessening any one's share; and God himself has sent us poor little Pauline. How could I take her, delicate as she is, and after all her sorrows, straight off to a boarding-school—which was the only thing I could have done if I had not brought her here?'

Paul looked a good deal ashamed. 'Oh, no, papa, that would be cruel; she is far better with mamma. Only—only—you and mamma always belonged to us.'

'Don't vex yourself, my child; we shall not belong to you any the less. But even admitting that dear busy mamma had not so much time to give to you on account of Pauline, would you grudge it? Remember, it is more blessed to give than to receive,' and spare with a good grace to your cousin a portion of the love and care which she would have had all to herself if her own mother had lived.'

Paul answered softly, 'I will try,' and then Madame Bessard and Lucie entered the room.

The little girl sprang on her father's knee. 'Papa, if you had seen how pretty she looked in her bed beside mine. She did not wake up, not even when mamma laid her down on her pillow. I thought she was expecting me; but she does not know I am to sleep near her. To-morrow morning, when she opens her eyes, how she will laugh to see me in my little bed! And if she does not wake early, I shall not rise neither, mamma, I warn you; for I want to see how she will look when she first sees me. Was she very amusing on the journey, papa?'

'A little timid; and I fancy she was frightened at me. Besides, she was often looking out of the window; the road between Paris and Vire is so very different from Algeria.'

'That is true,' said Paul. 'What a deal of the world she has seen already! Gustave, you must get her to tell you all about the Arabs. Now, wake up, and papa will relate the travels of Cousin Pauline.'

'At present, children,' said their mother, 'you will be so kind as to travel off to your beds. Lucie, I will undress you in my room, so as not to wake Pauline.'

Lucie jumped with delight. 'Oh, yes; and to-morrow night there will be two to be undressed together! What fun that will be!'

The mother sighed. She remembered the time when there were two other children—herself and her sister—bound together during infancy and youth by an intimate affection, such as only can exist between sisters. It had been thus, to the fullest extent, before their marriage, and neither time nor distance had weakened the tie on either side. Madame Bessard felt that it would be long before she could recover from this heavy loss; but in the meantime her chief earthly consolation was the little girl that her sister had left her.

Pauline slept quietly. Lucie crept noiselessly to bed; and in spite of her desire to watch her cousin, scarcely had she said her prayers, and therein added to the names of her brothers her 'little new sister,' than she slept as soundly as Pauline. Madame Bessard leaned over to kiss the two children; Pauline stirred and muttered, 'is it you, mamma?' then fell fast asleep again.

Then Madame Bessard went down stairs to talk with her husband, and hear from him all particulars of the death of Madame de Leonsac, and what arrangements he had made concerning Pauline, whose guardian he was, her father having had no near relations.

'She is altogether ours,' said he to his wife. 'She will be no richer than our own children, though, like them, she will have a little, so as not to lessen their share of our property. By the bye, we must look after Paul a little; he is jealous lest his cousin should rob him of our love.'

'Oh, that is nothing new. When Gustave was born, though Paul was only three, if you remember, he could not bear to see me with baby on my lap. And when Lucie came, it was the same thing over again. But never mind, Paul is too good a boy for his jealousy to last long.'

'And Lucie—what of her?'

'Lucie never thinks of herself. She is quite engrossed in the idea of taking care of Pauline and making her happy. She may get cross, poor Lucie! give slaps or say sharp words; but the thought of jealousy never enters her mind. All she wants is to domineer a little.'

'Well, so far, so good, as it is with her that Pauline will be, principally. But how shall you manage about lessons?'

'I shall teach four children instead of three, that is all—easy enough, since Paul and Lucie are nearly the same age.'

'Nevertheless, they are very different in character. You will see, my wife, your niece will turn out infinitely more reserved and thoughtful than your daughter. But come, show me these two young ladies in their bed.'

The father and mother glanced at Pauline and Lucie, fast asleep; then passed on to the boys' room. Paul was deep in a tranquil slumber, having forgotten alike his jealousy and his good resolutions; Gustave had already thrown off his coverlet, buried his head under his bolster, and kicked his pillow on to the floor. His mother repaired the mischief and disorder, and then went back to her room to pray for all her children, absent as well as present.

Next morning, at seven o'clock, Lucie opened her eyes. Pauline, tired with traveling, slept still. Lucie rose softly, fetched her doll, and then went to bed again with it in her arms, watching her cousin from time to time. But the flaxen wig of Mademoiselle Laurette was much tangled, and it was necessary to put it in special order before introducing the doll to Cousin Pauline. So during one long minute Lucie never turned her head, and when she did, it was to meet two bright eyes, wide open, watching her. She colored; then, springing out of her bed, went to Pauline's.

'Good morning, little sister; how are you? Not very tired?'

Pauline answered softly, 'no; but you are Lucie, are you not?'

'To be sure I am. And now, shall we get up and say good morning to mamma?'

At the word 'mamma' Pauline, who had already begun to put on her stockings, turned her head away; and Lucie saw that her eyes were full of tears.

'Don't cry—please don't,' she whispered. 'My mamma shall be yours, too; aunt gave you to her. And, you know, your mamma is in heaven, and we shall go to her there, if we love our Lord Jesus Christ. She is so happy with Him.'

But still Pauline sobbed out, 'mamma, mamma.'

Lucie was in despair. She sat down beside Pauline on the bed, and began to cry also, which consoled the orphan better than any reasonings.

The two little girls, helping one another, managed to dress themselves. Lucie wore her hair short like a boy, so that in spite of the difficulty of the parting in front, she contrived to make it neat; but Pauline's thick natural curls, which nothing would straighten out, and which had to be combed with endless pains, defeated the efforts of both children.

'We must give it up, and ask mamma to do it,' said Lucie at last.

'But shall we not say our prayers first?'

'I always say mine with mamma, and then she reads me two verses out of the New Testament. Come now.'

Pauline let herself be dragged away; and they went to Madame Bessard's room, who had been very curious as to what they were doing, but had determined to leave them to themselves, thinking they would make acquaintance more easily.

They both ran and kissed her. Then Lucie said, 'Oh, mamma, please do comb Pauline's hair; we can't manage her curls—they are not half so easy as my wig'—and she laughed and shook her close-cropped little brown head.

'Nevertheless, you have made your parting look very much like a ladder.'

'Indeed, mamma, I thought it was beautiful. And how could I carry a ladder on my head? Would it not be very heavy, Pauline?'

Pauline did not reply. Gravely and sadly she allowed her aunt to arrange her hair, looking at her with eyes that seemed to say, 'I like the touch of your hands—they are very kind—but where, oh, where is mamma!' Chatter-box. Lucie caught one of these looks, which had the extraordinary effect of making her quite silent.

The two little girls said their prayers quite together, and then descended to the dining-room, to find Paul and Gustave, and eat their 'soupe.'*

Pauline was regarded with great curiosity by the boys, and their 'good morning,' though affectionate, was a little awkward and embarrassed. Their cousin was not a bit like their sister, being much smaller, much less robust, with tiny hands and feet, a delicate skin, and movements full of grace. Though she was exceedingly shy, Paul thought her prettier even than the night before.

Madame Bessard had given the children a half-holiday, that they might take Pauline into the garden. There were no flowers; the winter had been so severe that even the crocuses had scarcely begun to lift up their heads; but the willow-buds, and the first yellow catkins of the nut-trees were perfect novelties to Pauline. Lucie made a wreath of them for her, and took her to Madame Bessard to show how pretty she looked in it. Pauline, accustomed to be quite without playfellows, allowed herself to be led about in a sort of grateful silence; nevertheless, she seemed rather glad than not when her aunt told Lucie to go and play with the boys, and leave Cousin Pauline to rest.

It seemed as if already the poor orphan felt, without comprehending it clearly, that she had once more found that constant tenderness and care which mothers only can give. Seating herself on a cushion at Madame Bessard's feet, she leaned her head against her without speaking. Her aunt likewise said nothing. But both of them were quite content.

'Aunt,' asked Pauline, at last, 'do you think my mamma sees us?'

'I cannot tell, my child; but I am sure that she loves us up in heaven as she did here.'

And stooping over Pauline, she kissed her softly. The child hung about her neck, and understood vaguely that her aunt's grief was even heavier than her own.—A French Country Family, translated by Miss Mulock from the French of Madame Guizot.

* French children have their 'soupe'—which means bread and milk, gruel, milk and water—or any food of that sort, about 8 A. M. The French breakfast, or 'dejeuner,' is usually not until 11 A. M., and is equivalent to our English lunch.

THE JESUITS.—It is asserted that the real author of the sufferings of the English officials and missionaries in Abyssinia was not King Theodore, but M. Bardel, a Frenchman and an agent of the Jesuits, who was unfortunately employed by the consul, Mr. Cameron, as his secretary. On this point the testimony of Mr. Steiger, one of the missionaries who was confined at Debra Tabo, is conclusive. He says that M. Bardel brought from Paris "a private commission from the secretary of foreign affairs, M. Drouyn de L'huys, and his Jesuit friends, to endeavor by all means to destroy the Protestant missions in Abyssinia, and to plant Roman Catholic missionaries in their stead—the price of his endeavors being a vice consulship." By this man the mistakes into which the English government fell were misrepresented to Theodore as intentional insults; and the result has been to the man deceived the loss of his kingdom and life, to England the loss of a number of her soldiers and of twenty-five millions of dollars.

WHOEVER seek the world to be their bed will find it short and ill-made, with stones enough under them to keep them awake.

IT is better to weep with Jerusalem at noon than to mourn with Babylon at night.

LONGEVITY OF BRAIN-WORKERS.

But though it may be admitted that practical humanity and religious sensibility have been more active within the last fifty or sixty years than before, the superiority of the former generations in the particulars of health and longevity is still resolutely maintained: "Where do we see," people say, "such fine constitutions and splendid specimens of old age as we hear of and remember in our youth?" Do facts carry out this superstition? We were led to this consideration by the example of Lord Brougham, of which we treated lately. This celebrated man died the other day, within three or four months of ninety years complete. His great contemporary, Lord Lyndhurst, died a few years ago at ninety-two, in the fullest possession of his faculties, having made at eighty-eight one of the greatest of his speeches, and having carried through a reformation in the laws relating to the legal condition of women, when but a year or two younger, such as English civilization had not even approached since it dawned. Within a month or two one of his sisters died in England, at ninety-five; and the other, at the same age, in Boston, a little more than two years since. Lord Palmerston died at eighty-four, with the helm of England's state in his hand. Lord Chancellor Campbell died on the woolsack, in his eighty-first year. Lord Chancellor St. Leonards, longer known as Sir Edward Sugden, is still living at eighty-seven. Chancellors Cranworth and Chelmsford are respectively seventy-eight and seventy-four, with good expectations of life.—Many other examples could be taken from men of high station in the law and the state of England who have reached extreme old age, in excellent bodily and mental condition. And we are certainly not without witness in our own country. Josiah Quincy was in good mental repair at ninety-two; and his venerable contemporary, the Rev. Charles Cleveland, still ministers to the poor of Boston in his ninety-seventh year. The Hon. Horace Binney, of Philadelphia, now the patriarch of the bar of the United States, lives on the verge of ninety, in the fullest possession of all his bodily senses and mental faculties.

Of course these examples could be indefinitely multiplied. Every one of our readers can recall a greater or less number of very aged men and women within the range of his personal knowledge, whose examples make old age desirable. As far as we can recall the examples of men of the corresponding class in England, previous to this century, we think the proportion of great age is not so great there as within the last twenty years. Lord Mansfield was eighty-eight when he died; but he was quite exceptional among the great lawyers and statesmen of the last century in the particular of longevity. Lord Camden reached the age of eighty; but Lord Talbot was only about fifty and Lord Hardwicke about seventy at their deaths. Chatham was seventy; Burke rather less; Lord North sixty; the younger Pitt forty-seven; his great rival, Fox, ten years older. And so on. Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Jay all reached a great age; but we doubt whether the record of their contemporaries would generally compare with theirs in this respect. Now, this state of things is as it should be. As Lord Bacon says: "This is the old age of the world;" and the world ought to know how to live longer, by knowing how to live better, than it used to do. The expectation of life has more than doubled since Bacon died; and that it will increase rather than diminish, is no more than we have a right to expect. The science of life, as well as the science of medicine, and the art of surgery, is better and better understood than it was of old. The knowledge of the laws of health is more general. People are more temperate, more cleanly, more attentive to the ventilation and warming of houses, and other conditions of health, than they were formerly. It is true that we are far enough from the fullness of knowledge, or the fullness of obedience to the laws of life, which we might attain unto. But the faces of mankind are turned in the right direction, and their advances will be more and more rapid toward a higher average of health and longevity as intelligence and conscientiousness are more and more cultivated. A long, healthy and happy life on this earth is a fitting introduction to a happier life hereafter; and it should be made a part of every one's religion to endeavor after it.—Independent.

SOME are brought to Christ by fire, storms and tempests, others by the more easy and gentle gales of the Spirit. The Spirit is free in the work of conversion, and as the wind, it blows when, where and how it pleases. Thrice happy are those souls that are brought to Christ, whether it be in winter's night or on a summer's day.

WE should not measure men by Sundays, without looking to what they do all the week after.

PRIDE is a vice, which pride itself inclines every man to find in others and to overlook in himself.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A. J. Wright, A M, President
Mrs A A Wright, Principal,
Mr R Scott Ricketts
Miss Anna M Ross
☞ Miss C A Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.
Other Instructors will be announced.

☞ This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars Apply to A J WRIGHT,
D G Humphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. aug 24

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October, 2d, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session, $360.
PAYMENTS.—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability,
W. H. N. MAGRUDER.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3-6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL.

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE,

Sumpter Brogans and Russets.

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

On the corner of Camp and Common sts.

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building,)

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals or Book-keepers in a large portion of the old houses of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR,
nov 17 1y President.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.,
102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. je18 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturer's prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the Implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS,
n17 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,
Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev J E C Doremus, D D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members, Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testamentary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans: then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $50 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not: to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S: by founding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church, the Board of Directors, representing in its body all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God, for except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the heart-cry of the Great Reformation: No forbidding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment: God's Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. a25 1y.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
a 11 20 1y New Orleans

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by J. E. BAILEY,
feb 9, 1y Formerly of Chartres Street.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The Institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent	$67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency	27 00
French	15 00
Music, with use of Instrument	37 50

Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10 3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McOmber, A M. Pres't. and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Gen. J C Moore, A M., Prof. of Mathematics,
Rev. B F Kavanaugh, M. D. Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
T H Kavanaugh, M D. Prof. of Natural Science.
B F Brown, A B. Principal Preparatory Department.
B V Lunn, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868 closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

Collegiate	$24 00	Preparatory	$20 00
Elementary	16 00	Primary	13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate	$36 00	Elementary	$24 00
Preparatory	30 00	Primary	20 40

Modern Languages. (extra) $2 00 per month.

No Incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie — a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O. H. McOmber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas.
july 13-tf

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J. & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The institution is under control of the M. E. Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address
REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
jy 13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the fall reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent, as Compared with any other Stove.

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to The Good Samaritan, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this apparatus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, The Good Samaritan to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of Cooking Stoves, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in the city.

G. W. W. GOONWYN,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn,)
62 Camp street,
july 6 1y Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1.

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1866

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep 15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—Those desiring the New Orleans edition should forward immediately to Rev. Robt. J. Harp, Agt., Lock Box 814. New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.

For Single Copies	each 50c
For any number less than 5	" 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address	" 40c
For any number over 25	" 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays,— Biographical and Descriptive,— Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenæum, The Examiner; The London, Saturday, and Fortnightly Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in Every Saturday are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs Oliphant, J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swineburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

Every Saturday is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

Every Saturday contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by Ticknor and Fields. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews	$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews	7 "
For any three of the Reviews	10 "
For all four of the Reviews	12 "
For Blackwood's Magazine	4 "
For Blackwood and one Review	7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews	10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews	13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews	15 "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48,00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the Postage to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers as the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866; inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. Norton, of Yale College. 2 vols. Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8. feb 2

JOHN D. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug 24 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

92 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $1 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen.

Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mar 14 3m Lock Box 847, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College.)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc 27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.

Rev Geo W W Sione, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.

Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.

Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.

Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $45 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, Jr.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLlege, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Hortense Rodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes.) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Guild, School of Design.

Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

Rates.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this Institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

Beneficiaries.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar 14 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people. ☞

All communications on business should be addressed to

Robert J. Haap, Publisher, N. O. Eo.
sept 28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLlege

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College	$30 00
Contingent Fee	3 00
Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School	$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee	2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C HALFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion; Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. Price, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

Dear Sir—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N.O.
SAM'L SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENEFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HENSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.

sep 22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
nly Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,
Late of and successor to John Staoud

MARBLE WORK

168, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafeyette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan 12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar 28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-67 6m

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, — of many years standing, —affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package,	$1 00	Postage	6 cts.
Six packages,	5 00	"	27 "
Twelve packages,	9 00	"	43 "

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.
e 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Euston, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

apr 4 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, Camp Street, New Orleans.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
a25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

WALLACE & CO.,

Importers and Jobbers of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, and

PLANTATION CLOTHING,

Corner Magazine and Common Streets, New Orleans, Louisiana.

☞ Sales guaranteed at New York prices. a 18 1y

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This Invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano-case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar 28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

112 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTHWEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25

AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c

THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50

PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00

SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with Instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25

NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

"ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile. Bakar $5 00

Superior Muslin, Gilt 6 50

ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans 2 00

BILL ARP 1 50

PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS 10 00

KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated, 3 large Vols., Cloth 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 31st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months	$150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos.,	60
" " Preparatory " " "	40
Fuel, for Boarders, " "	10
" " Day scholars, " "	8
Music on Piano, " "	50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each,	6

No extra charge for Greek or Latin.

Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of pianos.

Oil Painting	$30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each,	20

No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi annually, in advance.

For further information, apply to july 6 3m B. Arrogast, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and beauty one. The place is free from many evils connected with the larger towns and cities and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months	$15 00
Primary Department	20 00
Collegiate	25 00
Music and Piano	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Vocal Music	2 50
Incidental fee	2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month	18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks	$30 00
Music	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Languages, each	10 00
Incidental Fee	2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month	20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing	16 00

aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct 6 1y NEW ORLEANS.

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course,	$70 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee,	10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to Investigate ours. For additional information.

Address, E. E. Wiley, Pres't.
je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the declins in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80,00
Incidental Fee	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75,00
Incidental Fee	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing.	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. Mitchell, Pres't, of Board of Trustees.
Oct. 10th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
Jan.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
Feb.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
Mar	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
Apr				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
May						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
June		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
July.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
Aug							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
Sep.	30	31
			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
Oct					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
Nov	1	2	3	4	5	6
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
Dec			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31

To Agents.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have no improvement to notice in the general market since our last review. In fact there is even less doing. Our leading staple has continued depressed by the discouraging tenor of the Liverpool and New York advices, and with scarcely any movement here rates have declined materially. Operations in sugar and molasses have been mainly of a light jobbing character, while dullness has prevailed throughout almost every branch of Western produce. There has been very little demand for flour, either for local consumption or for export; and with heavy receipts of corn, and a moderate inquiry, prices for the latter have declined, while the market for provisions has shown but little animation throughout.

Cotton.—In our last report we noticed that, owing to the unfavorable advices from Liverpool, the market closed too unsettled to admit of reliable quotations. On Saturday the continued downward tendency of the Liverpool and New York markets exercised a still more depressing influence, and the movement in consequence was brought to almost a complete standstill, the sales being confined to 600 bales, mainly of low grades cotton, affording no basis for quotations. On Monday the movement exhibited rather more animation, though the transactions were confined to 600 bales, (three-fourths of which were taken by one party,) on the basis of 26½ for Good Ordinary and 28½ for Low Middling, showing a decline of one cent compared with the rates current on Thursday. The offerings on Monday were not large, being confined to numerous small lots, but were amply sufficient for the demand, and factors evinced increased willingness to sell even at lower rates, but the impression that prices had not reached their lowest point caused buyers to stand aloof and await the result of further developments. On Tuesday the Liverpool and New York advices being of a still more unfavorable tenor, prices gave way fully one cent per pound, the sales including 500 bales, on the basis of 26½ to 27c. for Low Middling. The inquiry, in fact, was quite limited, and factors were forced to submit to the concession noted above in order to induce buyers to operate.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 1,175 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 452 bales, against 748 during the corresponding period last week, showing a decrease of 296 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 579,552 bales, against 697,371 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 300,775 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 111,957 bales to Great Britain, of 13,802 to France, and of 111,106 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	— to —
Ordinary	— to —
Good Ordinary	25½ to 26
Low Middling	26½ to 27
Middling	27½ to 28
Strict Middling	— to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales	15258
Arrived past three days. 452
Arrived previously.....053306-053818
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc..... 3239—057057
	072313
Exported past three days..... 504
Exported previously.....651770—656810
Stock on hand and on ship-board, bales	15494

Sugar.—The market continues dull, especially for the lower grades. The stock on hand is light, but there is a large amount on shipboard, and prices are firm. No transactions came under our notice during the past three days excepting 32 hogsheads Cuba, on private terms, on Monday. Grocery grades are quoted at 13¼ to 13¾c. per pound in hogsheads, and 12½ to 14¼c. in boxes. What little Louisiana sugar there is remaining in market is retailing slowly at 14½c. per pound for fair, 15¼ to 15½c. for prime, 16 to 16¼c. for yellow clarified, and 16½ to 17c. for white.

Molasses.—There is very little Louisiana and not much Cuba in market, but a considerable amount of the latter on shipboard. The demand is moderate, however. On Saturday 121 hogsheads, 14 tierces and 12 barrels Cuba sold on private terms. It is quoted at 46 to 52½c. per gallon in jobbing lots.

Cattle Market.

Jefferson City, Tuesday Evening, June 9, 1868.

Western Beef, choice, per lb net	12c to 15
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net	— to —
Texas Cattle, choice, per head	$35 to 40
Texas Cattle, 2d qual, per head	25 to 35
Texas Cattle, 3d qual, per head	12 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross	10c to 12
Sheep, 1st quality, per head	$. . to 6 00
Sheep, 2d " "	. . to 3 00
Sheep, 3d " "	. . to 1 25
Milch Cows, choice, per head	80 to 125
Milch Cows, per head	50 to 87
Texas Cows, with Calves	— to 60
Yearlings, per head	6 to 12
Calves, per head	5 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 50	10 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	18 00
Spades	11 00	19 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	19	22
East Indin	22	24
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₩ lb	8½	9
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs	. .	1 50
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot	. .	7 50
Crackers	7 00	8 50
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	13 00	14 00
English, Fire	45 00	50 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow	. .	21
Adamantine	17	21
Star	18	25
Chocolate, No. 1 ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ bbl	. .	. .
Northern	13 00	. .
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton	. .	15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton	. .	10 00
Western, ₩ barrel	. .	55
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14½	18
Havana	45	55
Java	30	38
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Bough, ₩ ton	15 00	. .
Hulled, ₩ bushel	. .	. .
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb	35	36
Sheathing	. .	. .
Copper Bolts	35	36
Yellow Metal	28	20
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	23	24
Tarred, American	. .	21
Russia	30	. .
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl	4 75	. .
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	. .	3¼
St. Domingo	4	. .
Fustic, Tampico	5	. .
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 25	1 75
Madder	15	17
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western	10	14
Feathers, ₩ lb	60	70
Fish, Cod, ₩ box	. .	. .
Herrings	60	70
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl	. .	22 00
——— No. 2	16 00	17 00
——— No. 3	. .	13 00
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	4	6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine	8 25	8 50
Extra	8 75	15 00
Fine	7 50	. .
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb	. .	16
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	7½	8
Currants, Zante	. .	14
Almonds; soft shell	30	32
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	here
——Layer	4 40	4 50
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₩ box	. .	. .
Orangea, La. ₩ 1000	. .	. .
Sicily ₩ box	. .	. .
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 80	. .
10 x 12	3 90	4 00
12 x 18	4 40	4 90
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 80	3 00
Canada	2 90	3 10
Oats	75	. .
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	07	1 05
Beans, ₩ bbl	10 00	23 00
Hops, ₩ lb	25	45
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	20	. .
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	10 00	21 00
Northern	. .	. .
Louisiana	. .	. .
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	10	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	0½	0¾
Kip Skins	. .	. .
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₩ piece	. .	. .
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00	. .
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	8
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Boiler	8	9
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	7	7½
Castings, American	8½	8
Lime, Western ₩ bbl	1 65	1 90
Shell Lime	1 75	. .
Rockland, &c	2 25	. .
Cement	3 00	. .
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana	. .	. .
Muscovado	. .	. .
Refinery, Reboiled	75	85
Moss, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	3	. .
Black do	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	8½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	3 00	. .
Pitch	4 50	5 00
Rosin A No. 1	3 50	. .
No. 2	3 00	. .
No. 3	3 00	. .
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	47½	. .
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 60	. .
Coal Oil	39	42
In cases	50	55
Cotton Seed, Crude	. .	85
Refined	1 05	1 10
Tanners' ₩ gallon	90	1 15
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton	. .	. .
Cotton Seed	. .	35 00
Meal	. .	. .
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	20 00	21 00
" North half bbl	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₩ lb	15	16
Tongues ₩ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess	. .	29 00
Primo Mess	. .	. .
Hog, round, ₩ lb	14	. .
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb	15	. .
Dn., canvassed	19	21
Sides	16¼	17½
Shoulders	13	13¾
Green Shoulders	. .	14
Lard, Prime, in tierces	18½	. .
In kegs	20	. .
Fair, in tierces	. .	. .
Butter, Northern	38	40
Western	25	30
Cheese, American	10	18
Potatoes, ₩ bbl	4 75	4 00
Onions	5 00	5 50
Green Apples	. .	. .
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	6	11
India	10½	10¾
Carolina	12	12½
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb	14	25
Crude	13	15
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 50	2 55
from store	2 60	2 65
coarse, cargo	. .	. .
from warehouse	2 60	2 65
from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₩ bushel	1 90	2 00
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	18	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	14½	17
Havana, White	15	15¾
Yellow	12½	14½
Brown	12	12½
Tobacco, in bhds, ₩ lb:
Bales & Cutters	. .	. .
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9½	12½
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	8	11
Good Refused	7	8
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	60	80
Bailing	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	32	34
Burry	10	15
Louisiana, Native	20	25
Texas, [illegible] Merino	26	28

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets.

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as references for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 83 Carondelet street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

Atlanta, February 13, 1868.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Colier's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana. THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D,
Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D,
Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wynn parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Colier, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible cure for Cancer

Ray J F BELLAMY,
Ray J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years. I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Colier's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar. I believe Dr Colier can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y Moore

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the cure

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Colier

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES,

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $30.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's unabridged, Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sunday School Union's Biblical, and Authon's Classical.

Books for

PRIZES, HOLIDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS,

beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care.

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound:

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell; $4 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, prepaid, for 50 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

fe29

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,
GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman, D D, LL D.
Rev. E Wadsworth, A M, D D,
O [illegible], A M.
Rev. J C Wills, A M.
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term, ... $40 00
Incidental fee, ... 5 00
Tuition in Preparat'y school per term $30 to $35
Contingent fee $2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

july 27-tf O F CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has a good school, which is designed to be permanent, in successful operation, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He would board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elementary Branches $20 00
Higher Branches 25 00
Latin, Greek, etc 30 00
French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B. CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja 18-1 m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.
WASHINGTON CO., VA.

On the 9th of January next we begin our Spring session. We invite those seeking Collegiate advantages to consider ours. To our Southern friends, desiring repose and exemption from many of their peculiar annoyances, our location and surroundings are especially attractive. One hundred and fifteen dollars will cover the expenses of a session of five months, including tuition, board, fuel, room rent, washing and contingent fee. A catalogue or other information can be obtained by addressing,

E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
Emory P. O., Va.

[dec 7]

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin	60c.
Sent by mail at	70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan	$1 50
" Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep	$1 25
Roan	1 50
Roan Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00
S. S. Bells (single)	$4 25 per doz.
" " (Double)	6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

July 27 tf

H. F. GIVEN, W. G. BROWN,
D. A. GIVEN, R. E. DUNNERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186.....COMMON STREET.....186

feb3-67 1y

$100 A MONTH

SALARY WILL BE PAID FOR Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample, retailing at $4 50, for 50 cents. A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,
48 Broad street, New York.

[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 3m.

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY,
308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(John Geddes—Jos. A. Shakspeare—S. Swoop.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 18 '67, 6m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondelet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

jan 20 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.,

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.,

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBURG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Foundries and Steamboats. nov9 6m

T H HIGGINBOTHAM, C. W. HODGE W. R. MAYO, New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants.

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

ul y6 1y

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS,

Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

J. L DUNNICA. G P HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 99 Poydras street, New Orleans, La.

Agents for the following brands of flour, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

McCutcheon, Gordon & Co, choice XXX. W Roshorough & Co, choice XXX. Sucker State choice X. Sparta Mills choice superline.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J. L DUNNICA & CO.

sep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A fresh supply of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations; also Dr. Jones' Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE.

F. B. ALBERS, Agent,
No. 12 Baronne st., near Canal,
New Orleans.

dec14 1y

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No. 64 North Commercial street.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled: aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR, AND

COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART, } NEW ORLEANS
Late Stuart & James. }

Represented by Capt. J. A. Binford, Duck Hill, Miss. oc20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS, & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS,

General Commission Merchants.

And Commercial Agents. aug25 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchoupitoulas Street,

And 8 and 10 New Levee,

aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F G BARRIERE G W BANCOCK

F. G. BARIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

No. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.

n10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Wm. Edwards. }
Edwd. J. Gay. } sep15 1y

J. G. ELLIS. W. C. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. jan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co. SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 Union Street,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. O. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

ap7 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS,

New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Puyno & Harrison)
Edward Harrison,
J. P. Harrison, jun.,
Sidney Harrison,
John N. Harrison. jnly7 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar7 6m

A. D. GRIEFF,

Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st.,

aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS.

aug 8'67 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

COLGATE & CO.'S

FRAGRANT TOILET SOAPS are prepared by skilled workmen from the best materials, and are known as the Standard by dealers and consumers.

Sold everywhere. mar28 3m

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom House Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

J. B. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS. M. J WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

aly 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

57 Poydras street.

Cotton Office—102 Common street—in charge of Richard J. Nugent. aug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. R. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., corner Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. jon18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 32 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. Payne, G. W. Huntington,
W. H. Dameron, H. M. Payne.

je23-1y

G. M. STEIRER. THOS. C. SALTER

G. M. STEIRER & CO.

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market.)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves;

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER.

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar9-6m-67

D. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

General Commission Merchants,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb2 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. M. SWANSON, N. Y., late of Austin, Tex. W. M. PERKINS, D. L. KENNON, Of Perkins & Co., N. O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

20 Exchange Place, New York.

s29 1y

E S KEEP. L. CAULFIELD

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oc13 1y

ATKINSON & CO. New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO. Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants,

188 Common Street, New Orleans.

Cash advances made on consignments to us by Hewitt, Swisher & Co., Galveston, Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding

MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA

References: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Snuddige, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. L. Walker, New Orleans, La. july 20

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 155 Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS.

W. A. VIOLETT. R. Y. BLACK. S. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants

15 6m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans.

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D F. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

July 5-0m

F. L. RICHARDSON J. O. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW,

.....No. 5 Commercial Place.....

fely New Orleans.

WANTED—AGENTS.—$200 PER month the year round, or a certainty of $500 to $1,000 per month to those having a Metallic capital. We guaranty the above monthly salary to good active agents at their own homes. Every agent, farmer, gardener, planter and fruit grower, North and South, should send at once for particulars. Please call on or address J. ALLEARN & CO.,
may10 4t 63 Second St., Baltimore, Md.

CANCERS CURED without pain, use of the knife or caustic burning. Circulars sent free of charge. Address DRS. BABCOCK & SON,
apr4 3mp 700 Broadway, New York

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 23.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 684.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 1868.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—113 CAMP STREET.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

A BOMBSHELL IN THE RADICAL CAMP.

We copy as follows from the special Washington correspondence of the Cincinnati Enquirer of the 11th:

The speech of Senator Yates, today, has given the party great uneasiness. An effort was made to keep him quiet. Mr. Sumner was the only Senator who knew exactly what was coming, and he urged Senator Yates to insist upon the right to be heard upon the bill in committee. After it had passed, Senator Yates announced a political proposition, and the Radicals, with the exception of Sumner, exhibited great alarm. A bomb was about to explode in their camp, at least so far as Illinois was concerned, which would blow the Grant ticket sky high.

The key-note of the speech was full of the recognition of negro equality. He declared it would be useless for parties to hide their heads in the pond, supposing it concealed itself; universal negro suffrage, North and South, was demanded of Congress, and Congress would have to grant it.

THE EFFECT.

This made Mr. Sumner's countenance brighten. Mr. Morton and Mr. Sherman looked quite fretted and alarmed; negro equality was not only presented as a plank of the Radical platform, but Mr. Yates claimed the power of Congress to decide.

THE RUGGED ISSUE.

The real issue for the people at the next election, as prescribed by Yates, cannot be misunderstood.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

Secretary McCulloch estimates the receipts from the Internal Revenue, for the present fiscal year, at $208,000,000. Commissioner Rollins estimated it at $225,000,000. The actual receipts reach only $190,000,000, $35,000,000 less than anticipated by the Revenue Department, a falling off equal to the annual expenses of the government during the administration of Van Buren. It is intimated that Commissioner Rollins is desirous of vacating the office before these facts become known. Hence his resignation a few days since.

RECIPROCITY BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADAS.

A dispatch dated Washington, June 8, says:

Mr. Beaman's bill, introduced in the House, allows the admission into the United States, at 5 per cent. ad valorem, of grain, flour and breadstuffs of all kinds, fish, smoked and salted, green and dried fruits, fish of all kinds, poultry, butter, cheese, maple sugar, lard, tallow, timber and lumber of all kinds, round, hewed or sawed, but not otherwise manufactured, fish oil, coal, fireworks, grindstones, rough and unfurnished, the growth and products of British North America; provided similar articles, the growth and produce of the United States, be admitted to the British Provinces at a similar rate, and that all export duties thereon shall be abolished.

The bill also provides for the free navigation of Lake Michigan by citizens of Canada, provided a similar privilege be given to citizens of the United States as to the St. Lawrence and its waters, and without distinction of tolls on lands; also for free transit of goods in bond from Portland to the Canada line if a similar privilege is extended to the United States from Windsor or the port of Sarnia, or other Western points, to Buffalo or other points eastward, and that free ports in Canada be abolished; also, that the right of fishing near shore, existing under the treaty of 1854, shall be granted by the United States to said Provinces on the extension of the same privileges to the United States on the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the great lakes. No part of the act to go into effect until the stipulations are mutually agreed to by the governments of the Provinces and the United States.

We copy as follows from the special Washington correspondence of the Louisville Journal, dated the 11th:

A LUCKY YANKEE.

The friends of the Hon. Anson Burlingame say he has made over half a million of dollars out of his Chinese sinecure. If he carries his present scheme to successful completion he is expected to be the richest man in the world.

THE CHASE MOVEMENT.

It is said that Chief Justice Chase is gaining ground in the South. His late visit to Richmond was not without effect, if rumor is to be believed. Those who represent his interests declare that he will make a very emphatic showing at New York on the 4th of July. It is still hinted that he meditates a trip to Europe. Gossip also has it that he has urged the President to pardon Jeff. Davis. If this be true it will certainly give him strength in the South.

THE OLD DOMINION.

The prospect in Virginia is very hopeful. With a fair election the Conservatives expect to defeat the constitution, and there is ground to hope for a fair election. The crops are said to be flourishing. Henry A. Wise is in delicate health.

PASSAGE OF FREEDMEN'S BUREAU BILL.

The House bill continuing the Freedmen's Bureau one year from July next to the date of its expiration by the last law, was introduced in the Senate by Mr. Wilson on the 11th, and passed without a division with a few unimportant amendments. The bill directs that the functions of the bureau shall be re-established where they have been discontinued if the Secretary of War shall deem proper, and the same officer shall have power, also, to discontinue the bureau in any State whenever the same shall be again admitted and represented in Congress; the educational division of the bureau is not to be interfered with until provision for the education of the blacks is made by the States above indicated.

LONDON, June 15.—The papers applaud Reverdy Johnson's appointment as minister. The Times says: "No envoy could be sent here who would be hailed with more confidence as to the honored spokesmanship of a great nation."

The Daily News says: "He will represent the United States as a whole—not sectionally."

The North German Parliament passed a law to increase the Federal navy.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Surratt's counsel announced themselves ready, but the prosecution asked postponement. The court fixed the trial for next Monday, when, if the prosecution are not ready, Surratt will be admitted to bail. His long imprisonment was a disgrace to a court of justice.

Mr. A. R. Lamar, of Columbus, Ga., is here in the interests of the young men now imprisoned by the military authorities for the alleged implication in the murder of Ashburn. Circumstances connected with their arrest have been published here, and excite astonishment and indignation. Mr. Lamar represents that these proceedings meet with disapproval here, with regard to party, and it is understood that motions will be made in Congress on the subject to-morrow by the Republicans.

Pomeroy will introduce a bill in the Senate forfeiting the Nashville and Decatur railroad land grants.

The Democrats of Oregon have 11 majority on joint ballot.

Heenan's brother (recently cut in Philadelphia) is dead.

Schenck is disgusted at the failure of his tax bill, and Logan is in a similar fix about moving the capital. His preamble claimed that the rebel element in Washington cramped legislation.

It is stated that the 20 per cent. additional to salaries will distribute $2,000,000 in this city if employees pay their debts.

No signs of a veto.

Adjournment early in July is expected.

House—Under the regular Monday call, among others, the following named bills were introduced:

To amend the homestead law.

Dividing Texas, and providing for the admission of fractions.

Authorizing and requiring the Secretary of War to deliver certain arms to the Southern State militia immediately upon the discontinuance of military governments therein. Passed—74 to 52.

The tax bill was recommitted, and the committee was ordered to report as early as possible a special bill revising the tax on whisky and tobacco.

The Senate bill amending the charter of Washington city, by which soldiers' votes are ignored, and the city government placed under Radical control, passed.

The House refused to entertain Logan's resolution looking to the removal of the capital.

An order passed giving the bill revising the whisky and tobacco tax, when reported, uninterrupted possession of the House—reports of Committee on Enrolled Bills excepted.

A motion to include mineral oils in the special bill was defeated. Adjourned.

FORTRESS MONROE, June 15.—The British bark Istria, from New Orleans for Liverpool, which got ashore off Cape Hattoras, went to pieces, and the crew, numbering twenty-six, all perished except three.

The steamer Nevada has also gone to pieces.

NEW YORK, June 15.—The steamer Montana brings $160,000 in Mexican coin from Mazatlan.

Reports prevailed of schemes for the secession of Northern Mexican States. Foreigners give a glowing account of the condition of that country.

The vote of Oregon was 22,000; Democratic majority, 1,300.

VICKSBURG, June 15.—General Orders No. 23, issued to-day by Gen. McDowell, removes Benj. G. Humphreys, Governor, and C. E. Hooker, Attorney General, and appoints Gen. Adelbert Ames, temporarily, Provisional Governor, and Capt. Jasper Myers, Attorney General.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Schenck stated yesterday in the House that he did not fully understand the instructions of the House regarding the revision of the whisky and tobacco tax.

If they simply meant reduction it would not take long, but if the machinery for collecting, etc., were intended to be revised, it would be a matter of time.

Senate.—A bill was introduced promoting commerce between the States, and dispensing with freights on mails and military and naval stores. It contemplates the construction of railroads centering in Washington.

A bill was introduced for the removal of the disabilities of certain citizens of North and South Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, and a few for other States. The list embraces about 1,200 names, including Governors Brown and Holden, Generals Longstreet and Geo. W. Jones, of Tennessee—the last the only known Democrat in the list.

The finance bill was resumed till adjournment.

House.—The Senate amendment relieving Roderick R. Butler, member elect from Tennessee, from disabilities, and seating him without the ironclad oath, passed, 99 to 27.

After local business the river and harbor bill was taken up. It appropriates about seven millions. The Southeast is only benefited by thirty thousand dollars for the examination and survey of the Atlantic coast. Tributaries of the Mississippi get one million three hundred thousand dollars, but only one hundred thousand for the mouth of the Mississippi, and part of some hundred and eighty-five thousand for the improvement of the Missouri, Mississippi and Arkansas rivers will be spent South. No action was taken.

The motion to reconsider the twenty per cent. additional to department employees, prevailed, and the bill was recalled from the Senate. Adjourned.

It is rumored that Gen. Martin McMahon, of New York, will be appointed Mexican minister.

United States Indian Agent Leavenworth, in his report, narrates numerous outrages on the part of the Comanches and Kiowas. They seem to have a special predilection for raids into Texas. Col. Leavenworth recommends that they be punished promptly and severely.

The recall of the twenty per cent. bill causes much disappointment, though the clerks still hope it will eventually pass.

The Committee of Ways and Means is yet undecided what course to pursue. It is probable that the new bill will cover over one hundred pages, changing the present system of collecting the revenue almost entirely.

If this is correct, the bill will not be ready for report until next week, and its passage will require two weeks. Considerable stubbornness and bad feeling exist.

Ninety-two witnesses have been summoned in Surratt's behalf.

The President withdrew the nomination of G. P. Mott as minister to Costa Rica.

General Meigs has resumed active duties as quartermaster general.

Internal revenue to-day, $553,000.

The Florida delegation here is very anxious about the Senatorial election which occurs to-day. They are apprehensive that a negro will be elected for the short term ending March next.

LONDON, June 16.—Lord Stanley says the pasha of Egypt proposes to establish law courts for the protection of the rights of foreign residents in Egypt.

Cambridge University to-day conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on Henry W. Longfellow, in the presence of a vast audience, which received the poet with loud and prolonged cheers.

A great meeting of Ritualists was held here to-day. Resolves by Dr. Pusey and others were adopted, sustaining the Irish church establishment and high church doctrines.

The British government threatens to prosecute Train for a speech made to the Irish in Manchester.

Bismarck has retired to Pomerania. Thile takes his place in the foreign office.

HAVANA, June 15.—News from Mexico to the 9th instant.

The people demanded the resignation of the ministry, except Vallarte, Judge of the Supreme Court, and compelled the resignation of the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The press, with few exceptions, clamor for a change of cabinet.

A revolution at the capital is expected unless the ministry resign.

Citizens of Tamaulipas are moving their valuables abroad on account of the political uncertainty.

GALVESTON, June 17.—The Brownsville Ranchero, of the 13th, contains the following from Mexico:

A document, dated Zizayuca, 24th ult., has been promulgated by General Betauzos and Leon Ugalde, and four hundred followers, by which they proclaim that the constitution of 1857 shall remain inviolate, and that General Porfirio Diaz shall be president of Mexico.

Yellow fever of a very dangerous type is epidemic at Vera Cruz.

Monterey dates of the 6th state that the Mexican Congress is still in session.

The Minister of War has ordered the authorities of Vera Cruz to dismantle the land fortifications, store the artillery, and to rent the houses now used by the government.

Aureliano Rivera made an attempt to take the town of Santiago Tianguistango, but was repulsed by the citizens. He has stationed armed bodies at various places on the road to Cuernavacs, collecting one dollar per load on provisions taken to the capital.

Tranquility now reigns in all the towns in the State of Nuevo Leon.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—At the meeting of the Reconstruction Committee this morning it was found that the members could not agree upon the report to be presented to the House on the division, etc., of Texas, and on further consideration the matter was thereupon postponed for two weeks.

The Virginia delegation mentioned in yesterday's dispatches was before the committee, and requested that Congress pass an act for an immediate election in Virginia, and the appropriation of funds to pay expenses thereof, and that this election be held upon the registration already made. The committee agreed to report a bill in accordance with these suggestions to-morrow.

The Arkansas bill was delivered to the President on Tuesday, the 9th inst.; consequently the constitutional ten days, excluding Sundays, expire on Saturday, the 20th inst. It is not believed that the President will veto the bill, but that he will allow it to become a law by the expiration of the ten days.

Such will probably be the result as to the "Omnibus" bill, though it is possible that the President may deem it proper to send a message to Congress on the subject.

There does not appear to be any doubt that the district bill to regulate the recent election will be vetoed.

There will be a review of the troops of this department to-morrow at 11 o'clock A. M., at which it is expected the President, the Chinese embassy, members of the cabinet and other officials will be present. The review is to take place upon the Lincoln Hospital grounds.

INJURIES FROM FRIENDS.—Those who have their joys have also their griefs in proportion; and none can extremely exalt or depress friends but friends. The harsh things which come from the rest of the world are received and repulsed with that spirit which every honest man bears about him, for his own vindication; but unkindness in words or actions among friends affects us in the first instant in the inmost recesses of our souls. Indifferent people, if I may so say, can wound us only in the heterogeneous parts, maim us in our legs or arms, but the friend can make no pass but at the heart itself. On the other side, the most impotent assistance, the mere well-wishes of a friend, give a man constancy and courage against the most prevailing force of all his enemies. It is here only he enjoys and suffers to the quick.

THE Washington monument has reached the height of 174 feet, at a cost of $250,000, and is to be further elevated 374 feet.

LOUISIANA ITEMS.

THE CROPS, WEATHER, ETC.—There was a little drizzling rain on Saturday last, but on Sunday it culminated in a regular down-pouring, attended in our immediate vicinity with hail, but not sufficiently large to do any damage. Corn, which was beginning to suffer, has been relieved, and another such visitation in proper season will insure the making of the crop.

Cotton, as far as we can learn, is doing well. But the hardness of the times is beyond precedent, and will be so until the growing crop is gathered, to which time all must bear with firmness and fortitude the want of many necessary articles of food and raiment.—Clinton (E. Feliciana) Dem., 13th.

On Sunday evening there was a heavy rain, which extended over a large area of country west and south of this place. Although crops were not suffering, yet the rain was very beneficial. The river is falling slowly. The weather is clear and hot.—Shreveport Gazette, 13th inst.

Although our town gardens are suffering for rain, it is refreshing to learn that the planters in different parts of the parish have received just enough to do their corn good, and not enough to hurt the cotton.

Dr. R. G. Sterling informs us that he has discovered the appearance of the simon pure army worm in his cotton, but he entertains the hope that they will not do much damage now, as the season has set in with a prospect of being dry long enough to kill off the growth of this crop of worms.—Bayou Sara Ledger, 13th inst.

The present dry spell of weather is beginning to assume something of the proportions of an outright drought, and is exciting serious apprehensions for the safety of the growing crop. Already the corn crop is considerably injured, and will fall short of an average yield. Fortunately, however, much care and attention has been bestowed on this particular production, and the yield may, under the most adverse circumstances, suffice to supply home consumption.—Point Coupe Echo, 13th.

The want of rain is felt everywhere throughout the county in gardens and fields. Corn particularly is burning and suffering greatly for want of rain.

Reports from Grosse Tete tend to confirm previous rumors that the protection levee has given away. It is stated that the break occurred in the Fordoche, above Livonia, and that the Maringonian plantations are already under water. This is a disastrous blow to the planters of the Grosse Tete country, who have contended manfully and unaided against the influx of this Mississippi water over their land.—Baton Rouge Advocate, 12th inst.

THE OLD HERMIT.—A young man who had great cause of complaint against another, told an old hermit that he was resolved to be avenged. The good old man did all that he could to dissuade him; but seeing that it was impossible, and the young man persisted in seeking vengeance, he said to him, 'At least, my young friend, let us pray together before you execute your design.' Then he began to pray in this way, 'It is no longer necessary, O God, that thou shouldst defend this young man, and declare thyself his protector, since he has taken upon himself the right to seek his own revenge.'

The young man fell on his knees before the old hermit, and prayed for pardon for his wicked thought, and declared that he would no longer seek revenge of those that had injured him.

ONE of the most wonderful cities in the world is Bankok, the capital of Siam. On either side of the wide, majestic stream, moored in regular streets and alleys, extending as far as the eye can reach, are upward of seventy thousand neat little houses floating on a compact raft of bamboos; and the whole intermediate space of the river is one dense mass of ships, junks and boats of every conceivable shape, color and size.

THERE is a living power in true sentiments. When we hear them spoken they take their places in our memories, and seem often to hide themselves away out of sight. But in times of trial, temptation or suffering, just when they are needed for strength or comfort, some spirit hand turns the leaf on which they were written, and lo! they are ours again.

PRESENTATION OF MEDALS.—The Varieties Theatre was filled last evening with ladies and gentlemen in obedience to an invitation to the public to attend the ceremonies of the distribution of medals and diplomas awarded to the Louisiana exhibitors at the Paris Exposition. We have never seen the Varieties, or any other theatre, more handsomely or more appropriately decorated than last night. The French and American colors and the coats of arms of most of the European nations were displayed over the seats in the dress circle and on the stage. A military band filled the house with martial and national music as the visitors were entering. The ceremonies opened with an eloquent address by Professor Alexander Dimitry, on the dignity of labor, which was listened to with marked attention, and often interrupted by bursts of applause.

The band then played selections from 'Norma,' and so well and artistically were they performed that at the conclusion the audience, though anxiously waiting for the report of Mr. Gothiel, stopped to pay the band a merited compliment by applauding. Mr. Gothiel was then introduced and read his report, embodying the history of the part taken by the United States, and Louisiana particularly, in the Paris Exposition.

His excellency Governor Baker then presented the prizes. An ode, written for the occasion, was recited by Dr. James Burns. The 'Life of Julius Cæsar,' a present from the Emperor of France, was next presented through Mr. Gothiel to the Mayor, with appropriate ceremonies, and the music struck up the 'Marseillaise.'

The ceremonies throughout, though simple, were of a most impressive character, and were calculated to make us proud of the part taken by Louisiana in the Universal Exposition.—Com. Bulletin, 16th.

THE SILK TRADE OF FRANCE.—The state of the silk market has undergone no great variation during the past week; the demand still runs on the best qualities, but a sensible diminution has occurred in the dealings in goods from the extreme east, particularly those of Japan. In presence of the approaching crop, which offers the most favorable prospects, the tendency ought to be toward a fall; but prices continue very firm—a circumstance attributable, first of all, to the interval which must elapse before the new produce can be made available; next, to the conviction that it will be very dear; and finally, to the disappointments which have been experienced for several years past at some of the later stages of the worms' progress. Manufacturers appear satisfied.—The continuance of the rise and the more and more complete want of stock have brought purchasers to pay sensibly higher rates. The demand for England at this moment regulates affairs. The spring season, almost finished at Paris, is not so at London, where it generally continues till the end of May. The exportation of plain silks for the first three months of the financial year show a certain diminution, being 72,000,000, against 77,000,000 last year, and 97,000,000 in 1866. This result is astonishing at first sight, for the actual situation is better than that of the two preceding years. But there is a fact to be remarked—that when tissues are sold at ordinary prices exportation little exceeds the normal level, but it augments in a large proportion as the period of activity approaches its term, when every one endeavors to avoid a plethora in his warehouses, and accordingly to sell freely.—Salut Public of Lyons, May 12.

THE London Mint does not do much business now. Not a single sovereign was coined there last year, nor has one been struck there during this. The country bears the whole expense of the coinage. The very last private application which was made to the mint came from Mr. Peabody, the American millionaire, who sent about £10,000 of old gold of all kinds to be made into sovereigns.

THE Underground Railway of London, during the five years of its existence, has carried eighty millions of passengers, at an average speed of sixteen miles per hour, and without the loss of a single life. Twenty-one millions of passengers were carried in 1866, and twenty-three millions in 1867. About three thousand trains run over it per week, running the greater part of the day every five minutes.

THOUSANDS of French workmen are beseeching Napoleon not to repeal the treaty of commerce with England

ONE WEEK IN HEAVEN.

"One week in heaven!" I sit within the room,
So strangely silent since thou art not there,
And wintry moonbeams silver all the gloom,
And whitely fall across thine empty chair.

"One week in heaven!" No thought of thee is bound
With the dark grave that hides thee from my sight,
But with the ransomed and the glory crowned,
Who dwell with thee in God's eternal light.

So near, perchance, thy tender, pitying face
But for this earthly film would meet my eyes;
So far no speech of mine can cross the space
That lifts thee from me to thy holy skies!

O patient hands, whose day of life is o'er,
So meekly folded on the silent breast,
How heavy was the cross of pain ye bore!
How sweet, at last, must be the promised rest!

Sad eyes! that saw earth's splendors fade away,
And moth and rust corrupt its fair delight,
How bright the glow of heaven's unchanging day,
The deathless lilies and the garments white!

Home, home at last! O city of the King!
O Lamb! whose glory is its fadeless light!
When shall our lips among the ransomed sing
In the bright streets where comes no shade of night.

—Congregationalist.

For the Advocate.

DEATH OF JOHN C. PHARES.

MOBILE, Ala., June 8, 1868.

The announcement of the death of this lay-prince in Israel will be sad tidings to many of the members of the Mobile Conference. He was, by eminence, the preacher's friend. The weary itinerant found it good and pleasant to enter his house. Old patriarchs and boy-preachers, honored bishops and young Timothys—no matter who came, it was enough that he came as a Methodist preacher. He was always welcome. And then such a welcome!—simple, heartfelt and home-like.

I shall never forget my first visit to that hospitable home. I was an agent for one of our church enterprises. Brother Phares was one of the wealthiest Methodists in south Alabama. I was on my way to his house to get money, and my experience taught me that a traveling agent of the church was not always a welcome guest in the houses of the rich. I had some misgivings as I passed under the lordly oaks to the mansion and sent in my name. The cordial manner in which the host met me, and his genial greeting, soon dissipated my fears. I could not have felt more at home in my own father's house; and before I went away his large soul responded to the cause I represented even beyond my asking. I was his guest that time from a sense of duty. I was his guest many times after that because I loved him and his dear Christian family. It saddens me to think that I shall see him no more in the flesh.

The record of such a man should be known to the whole church, and held up as an example, for he was of the few "of whom the world is not worthy."

He was born at the close of the last century—May 15, 1797. Of his early history I know but little, except his marriage to the excellent lady who survives him. This took place October 8, 1820. They toiled together for years, a loving, happy couple, and were blessed with sons and daughters, and a large earthly fortune. Better still, they grew rich in spiritual things, and had the satisfaction of seeing all their children members of the church. It was a Christian family, abounding in affection and good works.

Brother Phares was one of the old citizens of Sumpter county, Alabama. He was one of the most successful planters in the South—kind, provident and just as a master, and irreproachable in his intercourse and relations with his neighbors. He was a quiet man, of modest, retiring manners, winning his large influence in the community by his uniform justice and integrity. His character was a perpetual growth, so that when he was "old and gray-headed" he was a patriarch, whose voice had authority and whose counsel prevailed. He had a goodly heritage in that character, and it was transmitted without spot to his children. There was nothing noisy or demonstrative in his religion. The stream was deep, and flowed on without clamor, always running, and never lessening its volume.

Of late years he was severely tried. First his health failed. He became a paralytic, and for many years suffered greatly in body; but in all his afflictions he "possessed his soul in patience," and was hopeful and trustful. Then came the reverses in which so many thousands in the South have shared. He saw his property wasted, his servants scattered, his country a desolation, and yet his faith failed not. He trusted in God and was not confounded, and in the midst of all his losses was daily ripening for heaven.

When his last sickness came it found him "ready to be offered." He had apprehended its coming, and arranged to die at the old homestead, from which he had been absent since the close of the war. When he got back to it he said to his wife: "I have come home to die."

In a few days he sickened, and it was apparent to his family that his words would prove prophetic. His physical sufferings, which were intense, were borne without a murmur. His soul was perfectly serene, while his manner toward his wife and children, and the old family servants, grew in tenderness and gentleness.

His greatest concern was for the companion of his youth, the faithful wife of his bosom, who for nearly fifty years had walked the rough path of life by his side. He was unwilling for her to leave him a moment. The journey was nearly ended, and he wanted to hold that dear hand in his to the last. It was touching to hear him commending her, time and again, to his children and to the old servants, and urging them to care for her when he was gone.

After arranging his earthly affairs he asked: "For what am I now waiting?" This was the only sign of impatience. He was not permitted to wait long. He felt that the messenger was coming—that he was there—and so, after bidding his children farewell, and urging them, one by one, to meet him in heaven, he placed his arms around the neck of his faithful wife, and, with the words "blessed Jesus" trembling on his lips, went home, on the 1st of March, 1868.

One by one the fathers are going up. May their mantles descend upon their children.

PHIL. P. NEELY.

LETTER FROM FLOYD.

FLOYD, La., June 4, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: The people of this section commenced their agricultural pursuits this year amidst all the discouragements of scarcity of labor, disappointed hopes, defeat in their former efforts, want of money and credit, and consequent deficiency in nearly everything that they have been accustomed to. They are still laboring, and, with the blessings of heaven, they now have the prospect of a reward for their labors. Their corn crops are promising, and are now waiting the fruitful showers. The esculents and vegetables assist very much in making up the deficiency in breadstuffs. About every third acre in cultivation is in cotton, which has been doing well up to this time.

Our religious condition is also improving. We have three Sunday schools—one very flourishing, having seventy-five scholars. Congregations are increasing constantly. There are very few accessions to the church as yet. The people are being hunted up in "the highways and hedges." "No labor no harvest" is the law. But, after all, we are bound to wait for the times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. May the refreshing be with abundant outpourings. The ADVOCATE is not forgotten.

BAYOU MACON HILLS.

For the Advocate.

ARIZONA.

MR. EDITOR: This is the name of a little village just springing into existence in this part of our State. It is located about seven miles from Homer, and is the most beautiful site for a town that I have ever seen.

Only fourteen months since some of the moneyed men of our parish purchased land and began to erect a cotton factory at this point, and now Arizona can boast of an edifice which would reflect credit upon any city. It also contains fourteen neat, substantial residences, two academies, two stores and a hotel, and I am informed that arraugements are being made to remove to this place a fine, commodious neighborhood church.

It would seem, indeed, that the magic wand of some enchantress from fairy land had been waved over this lovely spot, to have transformed woodland and field so suddenly into a charming little village.

The factory is now the peculiar attraction of Arizona. The building is of brick, four stories high, eighty feet in length and forty-four in width, and contains a complete outfit of machinery, with all the latest improvements, which is said to excel everything of the kind in the State, and perhaps in the South. Thus, you see that we in Claiborne are not entirely behind the age.

It is capable of running three thousand spindles and sixty-four looms, but at present only fifteen hundred and eighty-four spindles and thirty-two looms will be put into operation, the result of which will be one thousand and fifty yards of cloth and one hundred bales of thread per day.

The water used to run this machinery is supplied from a living spring, and is conveyed into a reservoir twelve feet in depth and ten in diameter. The cash expended by the company in this noble enterprise is $82,000. They also own in this vicinity a saw mill, grist mill and planing machine.

A few days since I visited the factory while some of the machinery was in operation. I confess that I was delighted. Everything I saw greatly exceeded my expectations, and, judging of the future from the past, I venture to predict that in less than five years this little village will have become the most flourishing town in north Louisiana. The smoke-stack alone is an object of interest, being sixty-one feet high. An amusing incident, in connection with this vast structure, was related to me. It is said that when the workmen reached the top, and were in the act of completing their task, a preacher from below called out to them, saying: "Gentlemen, I think you had better remain up there, for that is nearer heaven than some of you will ever get again."

I had heard much of Arizona before I visited it, but when, at the termination of a long grove, a full view of the factory and town burst upon me, I was prepared to exclaim, as did the Queen of Sheba when she beheld the glory of Solomon: "Behold, the half was not told to me!"

LIZZIE.

HOMER, Claiborne parish, La.

SIZE OF THE STONES OF THE PYRAMIDS.—I dare say very many will differ from me in opinion, and say hard things in reference to my lack of taste and want of appreciation of the so-styled wonderful, but I am bold to confess that my first impression on reaching the pyramids of Sakkara was one of disappointment. From what I had read, and from all I had heard tourists relate from time to time regarding the wonderful size of the blocks of stone composing these great structures, I was led to imagine that the individual blocks of stone were so large that it became a difficult matter to form any clear conception as to the manner in which they were piled one upon another. The blocks of stone, when I had looked well at them, did not convey to my mind any very exalted idea of magnitude; neither could I, for the life of me, see any real difficulty, where laborers, as we read, were numbered by the thousand, in raising any one of the blocks of stone comprising the mass of the pyramid from the base to the summit. To put this matter to a more practical test, we carefully measured some of the larger blocks in the Gizeh pyramids, and by calculation we found that the heaviest block of stone making up the structure of the pyramid did not exceed two and a half tons, and that by far the greater part were, of course, much lighter.—J. K. Lord, in Land and Water.

DEATH OF COLIGNY.

Between three and four o'clock in the morning the noise of horses and the measured tramp of foot-soldiers broke the silence of the narrow street in which Coligny lay wounded. It was the murderers seeking their victim; they were Henry of Guise, with his uncle the Duke of Aumale, the Bastard of Angoulemo and the Duke of Nevers, with other foreigners, Italian and Swiss, namely, Fesinghi (or Tosinghi) and his nephew Antonio, Captain Petrucci, Captain Studer of Winkelbach with his soldiers, Martin Koch of Freyberg, Conrad Burg,* Leonard Grunenfelder of Glaris, and Carl Dianowitz, surnamed Behm (the Bohemian.?) There were besides one Captain Attin, in the household of Aumale, and Sarlabous, a renegade Huguenot and commandant of Havre. It is well to record the names even of these obscure individuals who stained their hands in the best blood of France. De Cosseins, too, was there with his guard, some of whom he posted with their arquebuses opposite the windows of Coligny's hotel, that none might escape.

Presently there was a loud knock at the outer gate: 'Open in the king's name.' La Bonne, imagining it to be a message from the Louvre, hastened with the keys, withdrew the bolt, and was immediately butchered by the assassins who rushed into the house. The alarmed domestics ran, half awake, to see what was the uproar; some were killed outright, others escaped up stairs, closing the door at the foot and placing some furniture against it. This feeble barrier was soon broken down, and the Swiss who had attempted to resist were shot. The tumult woke Coligny from his slumbers, and divining what it meant—that Guise had made an attack on the house—he was lifted from his bed, and folding his robe-de-chambre round him, sat down prepared to meet his fate.† Cornaton entering the room at this moment, Ambrose Pare asked him what was the meaning of the noise. Turning to his beloved master, he replied: 'Sir, it is God calling us to himself. They have broken into the house, and we can do nothing.' 'I have been long prepared to die,' said the admiral. 'But you must all flee for your lives, if it be not too late; you cannot save me. I commit my soul to God's mercy.' They obeyed him, but only two succeeded in making their way over the roofs. Pastor Merlin lay hid for three days in a loft, where he was fed by a hen, who every morning laid an egg within his reach.

Pare and Coligny were left alone—Coligny looking as calm and collected as if no danger impended. After a brief interval of suspense the door was dashed open, and Cosseins, wearing a corslet and brandishing a bloody sword in his hand, entered the room, followed by Behm, Sarlabous and others, a party of Anjou's Swiss guard, in their tricolored uniform of black, white and green, keeping in the rear. Expecting resistance, the ruffians were for a moment staggered at seeing only two unarmed men. But his brutal instincts rapidly regaining the mastery, Behm stepped forward, and pointing his sword at Coligny's breast, asked: 'Are you not the admiral?' He replied: 'I am, but, young man, you should respect my grey hairs,‡ and not attack a wounded man. Yet what matters it? You cannot shorten my life except by God's permission.' The German soldier, uttering a blasphemous oath, plunged his sword into the admiral's breast.

Jugulamque parans, immota tenebat
Ora senex.‖

Others in the room struck him also, Behm repeating his blows until the admiral fell on the floor. The murderer now ran to the window and shouted in the court-yard: 'It is all over.' Henry of Guise, who had been impatiently ordering his creatures to make haste, was not satisfied. 'Monsieur d'Angoulême will not believe it unless he sees him,' returned the duke.§ Behm raised the body from the ground, and dragged it to the window to throw it out; but life was not quite extinct, and the admiral, placed his foot against the wall, faintly resisting the attempt.* 'Is it so, old fox?' exclaimed the murderer, who drew his dagger and stabbed him several times. Then assisted by Sarlabous, he threw the body down. It was hardly to be recognized. The Bastard of Angouleme—the chevalier, as he is called in some of the narratives—wiped the blood from the face of the corpse. 'Yes, it is he; I know him well,' said Guise, kicking the body as he spoke.† 'Well done, my men,' he continued, 'we have made a good beginning. Forward—by the king's command.' He mounted his horse and rode out of the court-yard, followed by Nevers, who cynically exclaimed as he looked at the body: Sic transit gloria mundi. Tosinghi took the chain of gold—the insignia of his office—from the admiral's neck, and Petrucci, a gentleman in the train of the Duke of Nevers, cut off the head and carried it away carefully to the Louvre.‡ Of all who were found in the house, not one was spared, except Ambrose Pare, who was escorted in safety to the palace by a detachment of Anjou's guard.‖

Thus died, in the fifty-sixth year of his age,§ one of the noblest men of whom France, so rich in great men, can boast. His character has been described in his actions. In stature he was of middle height, of ruddy complexion, and well proportioned. His countenance was serene, his voice soft and pleasant, but his utterance was rather slow. His habits were temperate: he drank but little wine, and ate sparingly. He had been blessed with five children: Louisa, who married Teligny, and afterward William of Orange, ancestor of our William III.; Francis and Odet, who escaped the massacre; Charles, who fell a victim in the late massacre; his other son had died in battle. A posthumous daughter was born to him, of whose fate nothing is known.

Le Laboureur, a Catholic priest, says of Coligny: 'He was one of the greatest men France ever produced, and I venture to say further, one of the most attached to his country.' The papal legate, Santa Croce, describes him as 'remarkable for his prudence and coolness. His manners were severe; he always appeared serious and absorbed in his meditations. His eloquence was weighty. He was skilled in Latin and divinity, and he grew in people's love the more they knew his frankness and devotedness to his friends.' He never told a lie (minimo mentiretur;) but then, adds the legate, 'he had no pretensions to refined manners, and always kept a straw in his mouth to clean his teeth with.'¶

Il est mort toutefois, non au combat vaincu,
Non en guerre surprins, non par ruze deceu,
Non pour avoir trahi son roy ou sa province;
Mais bien pour aymer trop le repos des Francoys.
Servir Dieu purement, et reverer ses loix,
Et pour s'essaire fic de la foy de son Prince.

Coligny's headless trunk was left for some hours where it fell, until it became the sport of rabble children, who dragged it all round Paris. They tried to burn it, but did little more than scorch and blacken the remains, which were first thrown into the river, and then taken out again, 'as unworthy to be food for fish,' says Claude Haton. In accordance with the old sentence of the Paris Parliament, it was dragged by the hangman to the common gallows at Montfaucon,†† and there hung up by the heels.‡‡ All the court went to gratify their eyes with the sight, and Charles, unconsciously imitating the language of Vitellius,* said, as he drew near the offensive corpse, 'the smell of a dead enemy is always sweet.'† The body was left hanging for a fortnight, or more, after which it was privily taken down by the admiral's cousin, Marshal Montmorency, and it now rests, after many removals, in a wall among the ruins of his hereditary castle of Chatillon-sur-Loing. What became of the head no one knows. It was intended to be sent to Rome as a peace-offering to the pope; but it probably never got farther than Lyons, Mandelot, the governor of that city, having received orders to stop the messenger—one of Guise's servants—and take it away. What can have been the king's object? Was he conscience-stricken, and did he repent of the foul indignities offered to the man for whom he had once professed such love? Or was he jealous of the credit Duke Henry might acquire by laying the arch-Huguenot's head at the feet of the holy father? All that appears certain is, that the head never reached home. The Abbe Caveyrac states that he saw fragments of a skull in a coffin at Chatillon containing the admiral's remains; but, accepting the abbe's testimony as to what he saw, it by no means follows that the bones were a part of Coligny's head.

* 'Gravem lentiam hostilium cadaverum, quibusvis odoribus et pigmentis esse alii fragrationem.'

† Even Brantome is disgusted; he says the smell is certainly not sweet; 'point bonne, et la parolle aussi mauvaise.'

* According to Burg, he, Koch and Grunefelder were the admiral's murderers; he does not mention Dianowitz. 'At unus [M.K.] e tribus audacior bipenni (i. e., halberd) illum miserum transfixit, tertio ipse [C.B.] eum graviter percussit, itaque septimo tactus tandem (mirum!) in caninum cecidit.' Letter of August 26, from Joachim Opserus, then at the college of Clermont, to the Abbot of St. Gall. Archives de l'Hist. Suisse, Zurich, ii. 1827. The Neustadt letter does not corroborate this account.

† The Naustadt letter says the admiral was in bed, pretending to be asleep: 'Danach wider zu Beth gelegt, und schlaffendt angenomen, dan er woll gedacht es wurda ime letza gelten.' P. 279.

‡ 'Tened piedad de la vejez,' writes Olsegui.

‖ Beza: Mors Ciceronis.

§ Juan de Olsegui says that Guise 'le dio un pistoletazo en la cabeza,' and then flung him from the window. This is probably the pistol shot which so alarmed the royal murderers at the Louvre, though another report (Alva's Bulletin) says it was fired at the body as it lay dead in the court-yard. The Neustadt letter represents Coligny as struggling vigorously against four Swiss soldiers (das irer vier kunmerlich ime hezwingen mogten,) and that a French soldier killed him by shooting him in the mouth. Behm was rewarded with the hand of a natural daughter of Cardinal Lorraine, and Philip II. gave him 6,000 scudi (ostensibly as a dowry) for his life. See Petrucci's letter (September 16, 1572,) in Alberi, Vita di Caterina, p. 149. In 1575 he was captured by the Huguenots near Jarnac, as he was returning from Spain, and put to death.

* Alva's Bulletin. Tavannes says: 'embrasse la fenetre;' Serranus: 'brachio fenestræ columnam complectitur, ibi acceptis aliquot vulneribus.'

† It is uncertain to whom the disgrace of this last indignity attaches, some imputing the cowardly act to Angoulême. Alva, who was instructed by Gomicourt, says Guise did it; so also the Journal de Henri III.: 'Le roi donna un coup de pied * * * ainsi que le Duc de Guise en avait donne au feu admiral,' p. 118. (Cologne, 1672.)

‡ The Neustadt letter says it was cut for the sake of the reward: 'damit noch 2,000 Kronen zu gewinnen.' Alva says: 'la mettant au bout de son epee, la portait par la ville, criant, voila la teto d'un mechant. Bulletin, p. 563. He adds, the body was torn in pieces by the mob, so that 'jamais on n'en sat recouvrer piece.' At the time Gomicourt wrote to Alva, it was not known what had become of it.

‖ Malgaigne, the latest biographer of Pare, does not believe the tradition that the great surgeon was specially saved from massacre, and denies that he was a Huguenot.

§ Some writers make him two or three years younger.

¶ De Civilibus Galliæ dissentionibus, lib. 2, Nos. 39 and 52, apud Martene, Veter. Script. tom. v. 1459. Jacques Coppier, in a versified pamphlet on the massacre, called the Deluge des Huguenots, calls the admiral 'Ce grand Caspar au curedent.'

 Harleian MSS. No. 1625. In the Complainte et Regretz du G. de C. (Paris, 1572) the dead admiral is supposed to express his regrets: 'J'ai honni ma maison en trahissant la France—Et ralne les miens par mon outrecuidance.' See also another abusive pamphlet: Le Discours sur la Mort de G. de C., Paris.

†† Coryat (p. 16) describes it as 'the fairest gallows' he ever saw. It was on a hill, and consisted of fourteen pillars of freestone, and was 'made in the time of the Guisian massacre to hang the admiral.' In this he is wrong; other authorities reckon sixteen pillars on a stone platform, tied together by two rows of beams. The bodies were left a prey to beasts and birds; and the bones fell into a charnel where the filth of the streets was shot. Le Gibet de M. by Firmin-Maillard, 18mo., Paris, 1863; Des Anciennes fourches patibulaires de M., by M. de la Villegille, Paris, 1836.

‡‡ 'After the massacre his body was exposed with the eternal tooth-pick in his mouth.' Edinburg Review, cxxiv, 1866, p. 369. This is a mistake; the body was headless.

AUGUSTUS TOPLADY.—In the pleasant county of Devon, in one of its sequestered passes, with a few cottages sprinkled over it, mused and sang Augustus Toplady. When a lad of sixteen, and on a visit to Ireland, he had strolled into a barn where an illiterate layman was preaching, but preaching reconciliation to God through the death of his Son. The homely sermon took effect, and from that moment the Gospel wielded all the powers of his brilliant and active mind. Toplady became very learned, and at thirty-eight he died, more widely read in fathers and reformers than most dignitaries can boast when their heads are hoary. His chief works are controversial, and, in some respects, bear the impress of his over-ardent spirit. In the pulpit's milder agency nothing flowed but balm. In his tones there was a commanding solemnity, and in his words there was such simplicity that to hear was to understand.

Both at Broad Hembury and afterward in London, the happiest results attended his ministry. Many sinners were converted, and the doctrines which God blessed to the accomplishment of these results may be learned from the hymns which Toplady has bequeathed to the church: 'Rock of Ages, cleft for me,' 'A Debtor to Mercy alone,' 'When Languor and Disease Invade,' and 'Deathless Principle Arise,' hymns in which it would seem as if the finished work were embalmed, and the living hope exulting in every line.

During his last illness Toplady seemed to lie in the very vestibule of glory. To a friend's inquiry he answered with sparkling eye, 'O my dear sir, I cannot tell the comforts I feel in my soul—they are past expression. The consolations of God are so abundant that he leaves me nothing to pray for. My prayers are all converted into praise. I enjoy a heaven already in my soul.' And within an hour of dying he called his friends and asked if they could give him up; and when they said they could, tears of joy ran down his cheeks as he added, 'O what a blessing that you are willing to give me over into the hands of my Redeemer, and part with me; for no mortal can live after the glories which God has manifested to my soul!' And thus died the writer of the beautiful hymn, 'Rock of Ages, cleft for me.'

QUARRELING.—If anything in the world will make a man feel badly except pinching his fingers in the crack of a door, it is unquestionably a quarrel. No man ever fails to think less of himself after it than before. It degrades him in the eyes of others, and, what is worse, blunts his sensibilities on the one hand, and increases the power of passionate irritability on the other. The truth is, the more peacefully and quietly we get on, the better for our neighbors. In nine cases out of ten the better course is, if a man cheats you, cease to deal with him; if he is abusive, quit his company; and if he slanders you take care to live so that nobody will believe him. No matter who he is, or how he misuses you, the wisest way is to let him alone; for there is nothing better than this cool, calm and quiet way of dealing with the wrongs we meet with.

THERE is no funeral so sad to follow as the funeral of our own youth, which we have been pampering with fond desires, ambitious hopes, and all the bright berries that hang in poisonous clusters over the path of life.

THE PRETTY STANZAS.

Leaf by leaf the roses fall,
Drop by drop the springs run dry;
One by one, beyond recall,
Summer beauties fade and die;
But the roses bloom again,
And the spring will gush anew
In the pleasant April rain,
And the summer sun and dew.

So, in hours of deepest gloom,
When the springs of gladness fail,
And the roses in the bloom
Droop like maidens wan and pale,
We shall find some hope that lies
Like a silent gem apart,
Hidden far from careless eyes
In the garden of the heart.

Some sweet hope to gladness wed;
That will spread afresh and new,
When grief's winter shall have fled,
Giving place to rain and dew—
Some sweet hope that breathes of spring,
Through the weary, weary time,
Budding forth its blossoming,
In the Spirit's glorious clime.

DAVID.

BY DR. GUTHRIE.—NO. III.

The cause of his afflictions:

Our springs and streams rise in wet, and fall in dry weather. They are formed and fed by rain; and thus when the river, on some day of unclouded sunshine, suddenly rises and swells till it roars in red flood "between bank and brae," we conclude that the mountains from which it descends have been bellowing with thunder, and deluged with showers of rain. Nor to any other cause than rainfall do we attribute the springs and streams of those regions where, as in Egypt, for instance, snow never falls, nor even rain, for a long course of years. Though the source of the Nile, and of those annual inundations to which Egypt, once the granary of Rome, owes its remarkable fertility, was long enveloped in the profoundest mystery, it was never doubted that the cradle of that ancient river lay in some mountain region on which the loaded air discharged enormous quantities of snow or rain. Now as rain, however remote the place where it falls be from the river where it flows, or the fountain where it springs, is the source of the waters, so directly or indirectly, through an immediate or remote connection, all sorrow has its source in sin—"no sin no sorrow" is as true an adage as "no cross no crown."

The song of every bird, the happy gambols of every lambkin, the merry mazy dance of insects in the warm air of a summer evening, present God to us in an aspect of divine benignity—as taking pleasure in all his works; and careful for the enjoyment of his meanest creatures, as filling their hearts with gladness. No heretics are further from the truth than those who regard the Divine Being as indifferent to the happiness of his creatures; or as capable of doing what no kind, no just, no upright judge would do—of punishing innocence, or laying afflictions on any one without a cause. It is a canon of our courts of justice that it is better that nine guilty men should escape than that one innocent man should suffer; and, as the spectre asked of Eliphaz, "Shall a mortal man be more just than God? Shall a man be more pure than his Maker?". He has no pleasure in the death of him that dieth. And so far from regarding Him as, to use the words of the parable, "an austere man who taketh up what he laid not down, and reapeth what he did not sow," I believe that man to be in some respects most like God whose greatest happiness is to make others happy. How can I believe else of Him who so loved the world as to give his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life?

It is, I say, in no case God, but sin which is the source and cause of evil. This is the bitter fountain from which, directly or remotely, all sorrows flow; and the simple reason why there is no sorrow in heaven, is that there is no sin there. But while this is true, and the fall, the sin of man in Eden, is the only key that opens to any extent whatever the mystery of world-wide suffering, men suffer many afflictions which cannot be traced directly and immediately to their sins. It is always well when we are afflicted to inquire whether there is any cause for the Lord having a controversy with us; at the same time Jesus warns us against the error of referring every special suffering to some special sin.' This were, like Job's friends, to persecute him whom God has smitten, and talk to the grief of those whom He has wounded. "Think ye," said our blessed Lord, "that those eighteen upon whom the tower of Siloam fell, and slew them, were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you, nay; but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Meanwhile, the tares grow with the wheat, and not seldom grow the taller of the two; meanwhile, the goats go with the sheep, and climbing, according to their natural instincts, heights the others never reach, from often the most conspicuous part of the flock. It were a great mistake to suppose that the dispensations of Providence afford any infallible criterion by which to judge of our relationship, as friends or foes, to God—"Many are the afflictions of the righteous"—"Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourges the very son that He receiveth." Blessed balm, this, to bleeding hearts; a truth graphically set forth in that story where piety, clad in rags, sits begging at the gate, while sin is clothed in purple and fine linen, and fares sumptuously every day.

Still—and let it be a warning both to saints and sinners—it often happens in the providence of God, and no doubt through divine intention, that men's sins find them out. Justified through faith in the righteousness of Jesus Christ, his people are forgiven the iniquity of their sin; yet they are made to smart for it. Their sin produces suffering, and the suffering reminds them of their sin—the connection between the two being not remote but direct—manifest as that between drunkenness and rags; between theft and a prison; between debauchery and an impaired constitution; between a woman's fall from the paths of virtue and her loss of place, and character, and honest bread.

In this light David presents one of the most remarkable beacons ever set up to warn the unwary, and teach him "that thinketh he standeth to take heed lest he fall." Was his house rent asunder by domestic quarrels? Was it the scene of crimes such as have seldom broken a father's heart, or stained the purity and wrecked the peace of families? It may seem a great mystery to some how so good a man should have been so sorely tried. But it is no mystery. He reaped as he had sowed. If a second wife and a second family often breed discord among ourselves, with a plurality of wives—anabering at least seven or eight—David had nothing else than dispeace to look for. His domestic troubles were the price he paid for the pleasures of polygamy—for disregarding the ancient law of Eden, and indulging in a practice which has proved the curse of every country where it prevailed. The offspring of different mothers, and inflamed by their jealousies, envyings, rivalries and other bad passions, his children neither did, nor could regard each other with the affections to which we owe the peace and purity of our Christian homes. Hence the troubles that distracted, and the crimes that disgraced his house. In these his sin found him out.

This retribution was still more painfully, and not less plainly exemplified in the unnatural and monstrous rebellion of Absalom. It may be traced to his sin in the matter of Bathsheba. In that crime he sowed the wind, and in this rebellion he reaps the whirlwind—the death of the child, the fruit of their guilty love, being but the beginning, and the least, of all the sorrows of which his adultery was the fatal source. Bathsheba may not be known to many but as the wife of Uriah—that gallant soldier whose fate is so pitiful, and whose murder, planned with the coolest deliberation, and accomplished by the basest treachery, is David's blackest crime; one that constrains us to exclaim, "Lord, what is man?" "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of?" But on examining the Scriptures we find something more about this woman of fatal beauty and too easy virtue—whose simplest effort to fly, Joseph-like, from temptation might have recalled the king to his senses and his saintship; saving both from a load of guilt and a sea of troubles.

It appears from one genealogy that Bathsheba was the daughter of Eliam, and from another that her father Eliam was the son of Ahithophel, the Gilonite, David's counsellor. This near relationship between Bathsheba and Ahithophel throws a flood of light on Absalom's rebellion; for what more likely than that through means of that, Ahithophel sought vengeance for the wrongs which, in the double crime of adultery and murder, the king had committed against him and his house. Revenge is a strong passion in all, but especially in the bosom of eastern nations. There, concealed under smiling and specious appearances, it will lie burning for long years—like the fires of a volcano under the purple vineyards, and fair flowers, and umbrageous forests that clothe the mountain's side. Ahithophel's vindictive passions found their tool in Absalom; and their time when, like the pent-up fires of a volcano, the rebellion burst out. He lent it those extraordinary talents which constituted him David's ablest statesman, and led men to say that "the counsel of Ahithophel was as if a man had inquired at the oracle of God." With a devilish craft, for the purpose of making reconciliation between the father and son impossible, he counselled the shameless outrage that Absalom perpetrated on the royal concubines. The immediate pursuit which would have crowned the revolt with success was also his sagacious but bloodthirsty advice. He it was who fanned the flames of ambition in Absalom's bosom; he steeled his heart against the relentings which would otherwise have stayed his hand. In this man, whom he had deeply wronged, David saw the head, and front, and mainspring of the conspiracy. Thus God reminded him of his crimes, and showed him his sin in its punishment. His case presents a remarkable example of how long sin, so far as its effects are concerned, may slumber ere it breaks out—like a fire that, smouldering days and nights in some beam, at length bursts into flame, and reduces the fairest pile to a blackened ruin and a heap of smoking ashes.

If, like David, we are compelled to trace our sufferings to our sins, what a weight does that add to the load! Let us pray God that, while He forgives their iniquity for Christ's sake, and takes away their guilt through his blood, he would not visit us for our sins. If we are to suffer, may it not be for sins, but for righteousness' sake! A light load that—a fortune we should neither greatly dread nor deprecate. In words illustrated by those heroic spectacles of martyrdom where the saints praised God in prisons, took joyfully the spoiling of their goods, embraced the stake, and stretched out their hands with good, brave old Latimer to bathe them in its rising flames, Jesus says, "Blessed are ye when men shall persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil falsely against you for my sake; rejoice, and be exceeding glad, for great is your reward in heaven."

THE USE OF REFUSE.

Formerly this glycerine passed off as a refuse substance; in this manner, when the Belmont works were making their full supply of candles, this useful material escaped to the value of £400 per week! Glycerine is very valuable in certain skin diseases and ear affections, and it is found to be an admirable means of preserving all perishable matters, meat and fish being kept in it for months perfectly fresh.

Some of the more delicate perfumes are entirely guiltless of ever having had their homes in flowers; indeed they are made by chemical artifice, concocted, in short, from oils and ethers, many of them of a most disgusting kind, the by-products and refuse of other matters. Professor Lyon Playfair, in a lecture delivered in 1852, referring to the exhibition of the preceding year, says:

"Commercial enterprise has availed herself of this fact, and sent to the exhibition, in the forms of essences, perfumes thus prepared. Singularly enough, they are generally derived from substances of intensely disgusting odor. A peculiarly fetid oil, termed 'fusel' oil, is formed in making brandy and whisky. This fusel oil, distilled with sulphuric acid and acetate of potash, gives the oil of pears. The oil of apples is made from the same fusel oil by distillation with sulphuric acid and bi-chromate of potash. The oil of pine-apples is obtained from a product of the action of putrid cheese on sugar, or by making a soap with butter and distilling it with alcohol and sulphuric acid, and is now largely employed in England in the preparation of pine-apple ale; oil of grapes, and oil of cognac, used to impart the flavor of French cognac to British brandy, are little else than 'fusel' oil.

"The artificial oil of bitter almonds, now so largely employed in perfuming soap and flavoring confectionery, is prepared by the action of nitric acid on the fetid oils of gas-tar. Many a fair forehead is damped with the oil de millefleurs without knowing that its essential ingredient is derived from the drainage of the cow-house! The winter-green oil imported from New Jersey, being produced from a plant indigenous there, is artificially made from willows, and a body procured from a distillation of wood. All these are a direct modern appliance of science to an industrial purpose, and imply an acquaintance with the highest investigations of organic chemistry. Let us recollect that the oil of lemon, turpentine, oil of juniper, oil of roses, oil of copaiba, oil of rosemary, and many other oils are identical in composition, and it is not difficult to conceive that perfumery may derive still further aid from chemistry."

Dyes are often derived from the most repulsive sources: gas tar gives the magenta and mauve so fashionable of late; picric acid, from the same source, produces orange and yellow tones. The beautiful color ultramarine was formerly made of lapis-lazuli, and was far too precious an article to be used by the calico-printers; but the modern chemist, having discovered the elements of which it is made, now builds it up artificially. This is one of the most striking results of scientific knowledge, and was probably the first triumph of synthetical chemistry. The costly pigment that we treasured up is now made artificially at 1s. per pound! The method of applying it to cloth is very ingenious. As it is insoluble, how was it to be made to adhere to the material? Chemists answered the question by mixing it with albumen, which, coagulating by heat, fixed it firmly on the fabric to which it was applied. The waste heaps of spent madder were formerly a great nuisance, and were often thrown away, of course into those great carriers, streams and rivers; hence the water in the neighborhood of dye-works was always polluted; it is now found that at least one-third of this hitherto waste product can be saved by being treated with a hot acid. Prussian blue is made from pieces of horse-hoof, or refuse woolen material, by fusion with iron and alkali. A few years ago the scientific world was startled by the announcement that means had been arrived at of extracting the green coloring matter (chlorophyll) from grass, leaves, etc. To utilize the bloom of spring was indeed a daring idea, and by no means impossible of accomplishment; but that excellent intention has been baffled by the extreme alterability of the color in question.

Perhaps the most important refuse product that can be mentioned as proceeding from a systematic manufacturing process is that known as "soda waste." Large quantities of this substance are rejected as useless by most alkali-works; and it has been for many years at once a problem and a reproach to chemistry. The magnitude of our loss may be imagined when we reflect upon the fact that almost the whole of the sulphur employed in washing-soda is removed, in chemical combination, as a constituent of this waste. Such a circumstance did not, of course, escape the attention of scientific men; and many methods, some of them extremely ingenious, were devised for the recovery of the sulphur. All of these, though succeeding completely from a chemical point of view, shared in one important defect—they did not pay the manufacturer. The offensive heaps, therefore, continued to be a most serious local annoyance, by evolving foul and injurious gases, and were a source of litigation until, within only the last few years, the final removal of the nuisance was satisfactorily accomplished, and declared to be a profitable undertaking. The processes in actual employment would not be understood by a non-technical reader; but we may state that none of them involve the introduction of any material which the works themselves do not at present furnish. France has, perhaps, taken the lead in this matter; but several English manufactories are busy, and successful, at the new processes. Some of the sulphur thus prepared was shown at the last exposition in Paris; but much of it is converted into hyposulphites, another form in which it has been several times exhibited. Both the sulphur and hyposulphites thus produced are now made on a very large scale, and the recovery is complete. We may, then, congratulate ourselves on having witnessed this important and, indeed, necessary victory.—London Quarterly Review.

THE WOODPECKER'S FORESIGHT.—The woodpecker in California is a storer of acorns. The tree he selects is invariably of the pine tribe. He bores several holes, differing slightly in size, in the fall of the year, and then flies away, in many instances to a long distance, and returns with an acorn, which he immediately sets about adjusting to one of the holes prepared for its reception, which will hold it tightly in its position. But he does not eat the acorn, for, as a rule, he is not a vegetarian. His object in storing away the acorn exhibits foresight, and knowledge of results more akin to reason than to instinct. The succeeding winter the acorn remains intact, but, becoming saturated with rain, is predisposed to decay, when it is attacked by maggots, who seem to delight in this special food. It is then that the woodpecker reaps the harvest his wisdom has provided at a time when, the ground being covered with snow, he would experience a difficulty otherwise in obtaining suitable or palatable food. It is a subject of speculation why the redwood cedar or the sugar pine is invariably selected. It is not probable that the insect, the most dainty to the woodpecker's taste, frequents only the outside of two trees; but true it is that in Calaveras, Mariposa, and other districts of California, trees of this kind may be frequently seen covered all over their trunks with acorns, when there is not an oak tree within several miles.—A. B. Barton.

ENOUGH FOR BOTH.—A little sparrow lighted upon a trough where a horse was taking his feed. 'Horsie,' said the little sparrow timidly, 'let me pick a little, only a grain or two, and you will still have enough.' 'Help yourself,' said the horse to the sparrow, 'help yourself; there's enough for both you and me.'

And so they ate together, and neither the one nor the other suffered from hunger; and when the warm sunshine came, and swarms of flies began buzzing round, the sparrow killed them by hundreds, and so the horse was well paid.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Walks and Talks on the Farm.

"Nineteen acres of potatoes, 200 bushels per acre, and $1 25 per bushel, would bring $4,750." This is a very simple sum in arithmetic. Had I made such a calculation last summer and acted upon it, I might have had to pay an income tax! I had nineteen acres of potatoes, and I sold them this spring for $1 25 per bushel. The only trouble is, I did not have 200 bushels per acre. "Why?" The common answer would be, "owing to the dry weather." The true answer would be "poor farming"—and this arises in a good degree from want of faith in manure and good culture. I have no doubt that $500 judiciously spent would have put $2,000 in my pocket. It costs little more to plant and dig a crop of potatoes that yields 200 bushels per acre than one that yields only 75 bushels. There is no other country in the world where good farming, as compared with poor farming, will pay so well as in the United States at the present time. How long this state of things will last it is not safe to predict. I do not wish to see the price of wheat, barley, oats, corn, beans and potatoes as high as at present. It is not healthy. What farmers want is reasonable compensation for their labor, and capital, and skill. Doubtless we shall have a change, sooner or later; and prices may go as much below the true standard as they are now above it. But, on the whole, the indications are that we shall never see as low a range of prices for farm produce as before the war. At all events, I am confident that those farmers who make an effort to clean and enrich their land will in the end make the most money. And the prospects are that they will not have as long to wait for returns as is generally supposed.

An unwillingness to wait is one cause of poor farming. I know a young man whose father has 640 acres of land in Iowa, that he offers to give him if he will work it. He proposes to go out there this summer, and "put in 200 acres of wheat, and then return and spend the winter in Rochester." If he does he will know more about farming in a year or two than he does now. A few days since I asked a gentleman who commenced life poor and who is now reputed to be worth several millions, how he made his money: "I looked ten years ahead," he replied. This same man has a beautiful farm, and one of the best herds of Short horns in the State. With a bank account good for a million, most men when they commenced farming would put up a grand house and a "model barn." Not so Mr. Farseeing. He looked "ten years ahead," and commenced at once to improve his land and lay the foundation for a splendid herd of cattle. I know another gentleman who has a fine farm, an elegant house, and splendid buildings, and takes great pleasure therein; but, said he, mournfully, "I have not a son or a daughter that will stay at home. They all leave me, and it is rare that one of them spends a night in the house. They care nothing for farming." On the other hand, Mr. Farseeing's son takes charge of the farm and attends personally to the cattle, and is as enthusiastic about farming as the father himself.—American Agriculturist.

RAISING SEEDLING STRAWBERRIES.—Those who wish to go into the difficult matter of crossing and hybridizing are referred to the special works upon the subject. On this point we may remark that we have little confidence in many of the alleged crosses, as the operation is attended by difficulties and requires the utmost care. The fact is, our best varieties have in them such a variety of blood, so to speak, that we are not surprised at anything they may do from seed, even when self-fertilized. In raising seedlings, select the finest berries from the most productive plants, crush them with dry sand enough to separate all the seeds, and sow the sand and seeds in a well-prepared bed, in a shady place, or in boxes of earth where they can be properly shaded and watered. It is better to sow the seeds as soon as ripe, but if desired to keep them until the next spring, the berries may be crushed, the seeds washed out, dried, and kept like other seeds. The seeds should be sown in a light, rich soil; they will come up in a month or six weeks after sowing, and make good-sized plants before winter. Those in boxes should be transplanted to the open ground when large enough to handle, and proper attention to watering and shading given all through their early growth. The first winter the seedling plants should be protected by a covering of leaves or litter. Fruit is borne the second year sometimes, but generally the third. Blackberries, raspberries and other small fruits, may be sown in the same manner as strawberries.—American Agriculturist.

WOMEN are permitted to practice in the courts of Iowa.

WEIGH YOUR MILK.—"G. R.," Orange county.—"Three pailfuls a day" is a very indefinite statement, and may mean twenty-five or thirty-five quarts, beer measure. In all statements of the yield of milk it is best to give the weight. Accurate knowledge is of great importance to the dairyman. He should know just how much each cow gives in the flush feed of summer, that he may determine what cows it will pay to keep, and what should be turned off in the fall for beef. With a set of Family Scales in the milk room, a pail may be weighed in a second, and the result noted in a book kept for the purpose. Weighing, too, every day would enable one to determine whether extra feed paid. The farmer might get rid of guesswork, and know just what he was about.—American Agriculturist.

WHAT CALVES TO RAISE.—"Dairyman," Norwalk, Conn.—We find the large milk producers for the supply of our towns and cities are decidedly in favor of raising their own cows. They may cost a little more, but they more than pay for the expense in the quantity and quality of the milk they yield. The difference between an average and an extra milker is fully one thousand quarts of milk in a season, worth sixty dollars, or half the price of an extra cow. The calves to raise are the heifers of your best milkers, sired by a thorough-bred bull of good milking stock. This matter is so well understood that dairymen, who have their eye-teeth cut, will give any reasonable price for a cow who has such a pedigree. It is satisfactory and profitable to raise one's own cows, and see the steady improvement of the breed.—American Agriculturist.

THE FAMINE IN ALGIERS.—The famine in Algiers is producing awful results. 'At Orleansville,' says a correspondent of a Cherbourg journal, 'I have seen from 200 to 300 of these poor wretches (Arabs) scarcely covered with ragged burnous, eating the leaves of the aloe plant, the roots of the dwarf palm and the filthy fragments abandoned in the streets. I have seen natives coming down the mountains, with asses laden with dates, robbed of all in an instant by these famished Arabs. The latter I have seen endgelled unmercifully by Europeans in order to make them desist, and yet they received the blows without seeming to feel them rather than give up a single date. At Relizanne I noticed squatted on the footpath, with their backs against the wall, some dozen Arab children, the oldest of whom could scarcely be more than four. When I say children I make a mistake; they were only skeletons. Their legs and arms were, in the most rigorous meaning of the words, no more than bones covered with shrivelled skin. On looking at those poor little things, so frightfully shrunk, one was at a loss to know by what effort they could stand on their feet.' The writer relates a more painful evidence still of the severity of the famine. Every evening there is thrown out of the Hotel de l'Univers the remains of the kitchen—damaged leaves of salad, and other vegetables, the entrails of fowl and game, etc. One evening he saw a dozen Arabs fighting with the dogs of the neighborhood over this offal.—London Review.

ONCE A WEEK relates a story of a Frenchman who recently died in the greatest poverty in an obscure quarter of Paris, leaving in the shape of property but a cupboard, whose shelves were piled with a great number of bottle-corks, which he left as a legacy to his country, to be placed in a museum, that others might learn the lesson they had taught him. He had once been wealthy; but his wealth had been squandered and filched from him by his 'friends,' who deserted him when his fortune was gone. On each cork was written its history. One of them bore this inscription: 'Champagne cork; bottle emptied 12th of May, 1843, with M. B.——, who wished to interest me in a business by which I was to make ten millions. This affair cost me 50,000 francs. M. B—— escaped to Belgium. A caution to amateurs.' On another appears the following note: 'Cork of Cyprus wine, of a bottle emptied on the 4th of December, 1860, with a dozen fast friends. Of these I have not found a single one to help me on the day of my ruin. The names of the twelve are annexed below.'

THE Wheeling Intelligencer thinks the Kanawha valley is the heart and center of the great Alleghany coal field, which, without exception, is the largest, richest and most available coal field in the world.

AT the recent elections in the Sandwich Islands some of the plantation hands marched to the polls with the American flag at their head and the Hawaiian flag at the rear of the procession.

WEST POINT has furnished twenty-six college presidents, and thirty-five railroad presidents.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order. If this cannot be had, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

ATTENTION is called to the notice and programme of the Sunday School Institute, which is to meet at Opelika, Alabama, July 22. We are glad to notice everything that indicates increased interest in Sunday schools. We judge the plan adopted by the church in Opelika is a good one, and calculated to awaken and revive the cause. These carefully organized efforts cannot fail of great good, and we hope to chronicle many more movements of the same sort during the summer and fall. We can be with our brethren in spirit, and wish them success, and especially pray that the Great Head of the church may pour out his Spirit abundantly.

NOTICE.

The commencement exercises of Centenary College, at Jackson, La., will take place on Monday, July 13th. The Board of Trustees meet on the same day, at 12 M. The commencement sermon will be delivered on the 12th, at 11 o'clock A. M.

JAS. A. GODFREY,
Secretary of the Board.

BOOK NOTICES.

ALBERT HASTINGS.—A novel. By Mary Scrimzeour Whitaker. New York: published by Blelock & Co., 1868.

This is a volume of elegant binding and fair print—461 pages. It is written by a Southern lady. A truthful portraiture is given in its pages of Southern scenery, character and manners. We have had time barely to sample some of the chapters. We have heard the work highly praised by competent judges; and we believe, what the preface declares, that no doubtful morality sullies and that no impossible dogma obscures its pages. For sale by Blelock & Co., 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

Two neat little 12mo. volumes, by Charles Kingsley—"The Water of Life and other Sermons," "Discipline and other Sermons." Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co., 1868.

These are short sermons of a popular cast, and in the author's best style. They are simple, practical and will be read with interest by old and young.

WHERE IS THE CITY?—Boston: Roberts Brothers, 1868. This is a curious book, by an anonymous author. Somebody is seeking an answer to the question which constitutes the title of the work. All denominations are passed in review. None seem to answer the query, and the young man concludes by determining to be "a Christian." That the different churches are fairly represented we cannot expect. The work will be readable and entertaining to some, but of doubtful advantage to any. For sale by Blelock & Co., 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

RETIREMENT.

It is a luxury sometimes to be alone. It is more than a luxury: it is a mental and spiritual necessity. More than this, it is a needed bodily refreshment. The drain upon our whole being, from ceaseless contact and commingling with business and society, is greater than many imagine. The tonic for exhausted nature is occasional solitude, where silence lays its soothing poultice upon the excited and overstrung nerves, and where the everlasting attrition of life is for a while suspended. It is the unrelieved friction in the direction of industry, social pleasures and domestic duties which wears out and breaks down the constitution prematurely. It is a misfortune that so many people neither value nor seek occasions of retirement from the routine of every-day pursuits.

There are those who shun an hour of tranquil meditation, and are seemingly miserable when left to themselves. To be alone, for ever so short a time, is condemnation to the worst of punishments. The stimulant of society has become so essential to them that its withdrawal leaves them as flat and pulseless as the drunkard without his bottle. To be alone and wide awake at the same time is intolerable. Life is divided between sleep and companionship of some sort.

The bearings of this subject upon our spiritual interest are of most importance to the Christian.—Thought, meditation and prayer in secret cannot well be dispensed with, if we would have a healthful, uniform and progressive piety. The time for such exercises can generally be found, if they are adequately valued, but a place suitable and exempt from interruption is sometimes more difficult to command. The solitary hours which the Saviour spent in prayer convey an impressive lesson. The disciples were sent away, the multitude dismissed whilst He remained alone. Secret meditation and prayer have the authority of this most perfect example. It is particularly enforced by precept from the same high source: "Enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray." Religion is eminently social, and it is also solitary.

Prayer in the family, and worship and communion in the congregation of believers are not to be lightly regarded. These are helps to our spirituality which we cannot neglect without loss and guilt. But they do not substitute those secret devotions upon which the Saviour's example and precept put so much stress. No amount of social religious privileges can enable us to dispense with them. The closet is favorable for self-examination, and for that fullness of prayer and importunate supplication which public occasions do not always allow. It is also favorable to that concentration of all the powers of the soul, and that earnest abandon of faith which takes no denial. If there are blessings peculiar to united faith and prayer, there are other and important ones, secured by private communion with the Father. Jacob wrestled victoriously when he was left alone, and Christians in all ages have overcome some special temptation, and have been crowned as princes, under the same circumstances.

Secret devotion and solitary meditation are indeed the springs of a living and perennial piety. We may safely say that our religion is never deep and uniform where these means are neglected. Nothing so feeds the soul and gives such tone and power to faith. The closet becomes to us the mount of transfiguration, from which we descend to rebuke unbelief and to perform miracles of healing. An intermittent and fluctuating piety indicates the want of secret prayer. Backsliding in most instances may be traced to the same cause. The relation of religious retirement to every other duty is that of preparation and effectiveness. A prayer meeting composed of men and women, fresh from secret prayer, will always be lively and edifying; and a congregation, mellowed and solemnized by previous communion in private, will invest the preacher with unwonted interest and power. A revival of secret prayer would be the greatest of all revivals in the church, and lead to glorious ingatherings of the unconverted.

It is not impossible that some Christians of declining and comfortless experience overlook religious retirement as the most effectual means to restore their lost enjoyment. They are waiting for some public movement, when they shall be swept along in the tide of song, and wrought into a warmer zeal and a deeper joy, by a combination of social and spiritual influences. To be blest in the secret place seems not to have entered into their thoughts. The stimulant of society seems essential to religious enjoyment. Prayer, praise and all the sanctified emotions wither and die without it. Certain it is that many are religious only when the social means are active and exciting, and when these fall to their normal condition, their goodness becomes like the morning cloud and the early dew. Is there not here an aversion to being alone, and a disrelish for solitary communion with self and with God?

Precious and helpful as are all other means of grace, it is needful that the believer should often meet alone with his Maker. If we would have "salt in ourselves," and not depend upon others for our spiritual condition, we must wait in secret upon God. The throne of grace is accessible here to all, and there is nothing in the range of the inspired promises, or in the divine fullness, that we may not ask and receive. Thus, to wait upon the Lord will ensure the renewal of our strength, the fainting spirit will be revived, and we shall be prepared, not to weaken and discourage, but to cheer and confirm all who, like ourselves, are engaged in the spiritual conflicts of the holy war. *

THAT ENTHUSIASTIC DOCTRINE.

The evil under the sun which led our Founder to insert this admonition, "trampling under foot that enthusiastic doctrine that we are not to do good unless our hearts be free to it," is doubtless an evil still. This item in the general rules attests that the failings and infirmities of religious people vary but little from generation to generation. The more ancient records of Scripture prove that human nature, under the modifying influences of religion, presents about the same phases of inconsistency and weakness in all times. "That which is perfect" had not come in Paul's day; no more had it in the days of Wesley. There were enthusiasts then who, from a mistaken principle, stood all the day idle; and others, without principle, who did nothing because they felt like doing nothing. There are now those who act only, as the Quaker talks in meeting, when the spirit moves them. The heart must "be free to it," lubricated with a melting unction of comfort and joy, and aroused to a pitch of "double quicking" by some temporary stimulant, before they can go heartily to work.

We wish this freeness of heart could always be counted on, and that this gracious high pressure could always be commanded. Then we should witness the highest results of Christian devotion and activity, and there would be no occasional regressions and spasmodic advances. The progress of the church would be a uniform, stately and triumphant march to the goal of millennial conquest. Our moods and frames are not, however, altogether under control, and there must be a more reliable motive power. A closer and more careful walk with God would secure a larger measure of the Spirit, but not necessarily a continuously ecstatic frame. If the experiences of David, Paul and Jesus are worth anything to us, they certainly exhibit passages of depression, along with those radiant elevations to which they sometimes attained. But amidst these varying frames we have the manifestation of unflagging devotion to the demands of duty. Amidst temptations, sighs and tears Jesus advanced to the consummation of his great mission. The thorn in the flesh did not stop the apostle to the Gentiles. Cast down by affliction, mangled and bleeding with the stripes of persecution, and shut up in prison, he is ever found at work and pressing toward the mark for the prize.

Thus of all the first-inspired and spirit-baptized men of those times. There was something more reliable than mere freeness of heart that kept them sternly in the path, and sprung them to the loftiest achievements. It was by "trampling under foot that enthusiastic doctrine." A religion of mere convenience was foreign to their convictions, because they had been taught in the school of Christ. Denial of self and bearing their cross were practical and fundamental ideas. The enlightened conscience and the perception of obligation to the Lord that bought them governed their conduct.—These principles shine clearly and act powerfully when the emotional nature is engloomed and clouded. If we follow the latter, our "doing good" will be as fitful as the cloud-scenes of an April sky; if the former, we shall be "steadfast, unmovable and always abounding in the work of the Lord." Wesley says, in substance, somewhere in his journal, while looking out from a cosey study upon the spring landscape, that he would spend his life there if there were no world to come. Did not Bishop Pierce once say the same thing respecting his home at "Sunshine."

This working against the grain of nature, and trampling ease and inclination under foot, has marked the experience of all true laborers in the Lord's field. To be urged forward by a conscientious sense of duty, whilst the flesh cries out and the heart fails; to obey the mandate of Christ's love whilst self and sense protest, and to be borne onward by the convictions of judgment and accountability, regardless of temporary impulses, is not too much to be hoped for in those who are crucified with Christ. We fear that this aspect of zeal is often lost sight of, and that there are multitudes whose hands should be busy, who are illustrating "that enthusiastic doctrine." How few, comparatively, work systematically, and up to the full measure of their opportunities? How few carry their devotion beyond the line of convenience and to the limits of personal sacrifice?

In every religious duty there is no safety except in trampling this "enthusiastic doctrine under foot." The sinner is waiting upon his feelings, though sufficiently enlightened as to what he ought to do; and there he may wait until all hope is lost—as if the carnal nature would ever accept the wormwood of repentance, and take in the gall of contrition as a cordial. As Christians, we suspend our daily duties upon the spontaneous desires of hearts growing colder and colder in the exercises of religion. We shrink from the public testimony of our faith, because there is a cross in it; and the fields of usefulness are not entered, because it involves a sacrifice higher than the present measure of our joy. Where there is no freeness of heart, the more need to follow assiduously in the path of duty. Not to feel like praying should be our loudest call to prayer; and the absence of interest in the work of religion should alarm and incite to action. We like the Christian who does trample this enthusiastic doctrine under foot, and who persistently works from the firmer motives of conscience, and the clear perception of right. There is a blessing in such a life, and a moral sublimity and a glory that angels may envy *

A WASHINGTON letter-writer thus describes the "Bastile Cell" in which the contumacious Wooley has been incarcerated:

A nice Brussels carpet is on the floor, and the apartment is supplied with parlor and bedroom furniture to match. It is neatly arranged. While your reporter was in the room a waiter from one of the capitol restaurants entered with strawberries and cream, cigars and wine, and the "noisome dungeon" seemed far more comfortable, and even luxurious, than most of the parlors of our first-class hotels. No one, however, is permitted to have access to the prisoner, except his counsel, who were in consultation with him a long time to-day.

PROFESSION AND PRACTICE.

We are indebted to the Chicago correspondent of the St. Louis Christian Advocate for the following interesting items:

During this warm debate on the ecclesiastical status of the negro, Dr. Slicer, of Baltimore, took occasion to remind them that if a junction was formed with these Zion brethren, not less than two hundred thousand colored members of the M. E. Church would be disaffected, who had stood by the church in weal and woe, and who were as respectable as Brother Jones, and would make as good black bishops as any of the Zion Church. He took a plain, sensible view of the subject, and made a happy speech, which was received with great applause; and although the Doctor is in a hopeless conservative minority, this speech had a good effect, and the whole subject was finally referred to a committee of sixteen, including the Board of Bishops, with instructions to report to the next General Conference.

'WAKE NICODEMUS.'

About noon Saturday I walked up to a well-dressed, well-fed and well-to-do-looking dark mulatto negro, standing in the lobby with hat and cane in hand, and asked if he was a delegate to the General Conference?

'No, sir,' said he, 'not exactly. I am a kind of outside member. I am presiding elder of the Jackson District, Mississippi; a delegate to the Chicago National Convention, and a candidate for the State Senate in Mississippi.'

'Ah! what are your chances for election?'

'Certain,' said he, 'and I am not decided yet whether to accept the office of State Senator or not.'

'Why?'

'Because it will conflict with my duties as a preacher; and if we had any white Republican capable of filling the position I would not run.'

'Are the white people down there reconstructed, or are they still rebels at heart?' I asked.

'Very few of those capable of holding office are in the Republican party,' he said; 'but if we can elect Grant and Colfax, and use the government patronage, which is now used against us, a great many of the leading men of the country will come into the party.'

'Where do you stop?'

'On ——— street.'

'Where do the colored delegates to the General Conference find homes?'

'At the same place with me.'

'Do all the colored preachers stay there?'

'Yes, sir.'

'It is a boarding house?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Do not the white people of Chicago take you colored brethren to their homes?'

'They tell me that I am assigned to a room at Dr. Hatfield's, with Dr. Gilbert Haven.'

'Why don't you go and occupy it?'

'Well, I don't hardly know; I have not been personally invited.'

'I understood,' said I, 'that Dr. Hatfield took these colored delegates to his house, kept them one night and returned them next morning to the conference, saying that he could not keep them longer; and the committee could find no homes for them, and had to send them to a boarding house. Is it true?'

He did not know exactly. Had heard some such talk. Knew that they were now at the boarding house on ——— street, with him, and understood that the whites were paying their board.

Where is Dr. Haven's 'last and only obstruction to the perfect equality of the races?' Consistency is a jewel rarely found in a body of fanatics.

I was not slow to push the inquiries thus commenced with this Mississippi negro divine, and am prepared to state upon the best authority the following facts:

When the General Conference, after a long and warm debate, admitted the Mission Conferences to representation, amongst the delegates were two healthy-looking, black, sleek negroes from the two colored conferences. These, with other delegates, were thrown on the hands of the Committee on Homes. After long and painful, but fruitless effort, they had to let it be known on the General Conference floor, either publicly or privately, that amongst all the faithful of their Israel there was none good, no, not one, good enough to give these brethren a home. The preachers were chop-fallen. Dr. Eddy, editor of the Northwestern, and the champion of negro equality in Chicago and the Northwest, elongated his face and hung his head. What did all his faithful teachings amount to? And he mused on his own elegant home. Dr. Pershing thought of his cruel ejectment of a beautiful girl from his school in Cincinnati because it was reported to him that she was a little tainted with imperceptible negro blood. Dr. G. Haven thought of Brother Mars, and that unfortunate (?) intermittent ailment that deprived the colored brother of a bedfellow, and deprived the church of one martyr to the glorious cause of equality. Drs. Curry, Lanahan, Peck, Roddy, Butler, Foster, Jervis and others consoled themselves in the reflection that their homes were distant and their beds were already occupied, and the bishops smiled complacently from the platform upon the awkward perturbation below. But Dr. Hatfield, who has the good fortune to have a home in Chicago, rose and rebuked the conference, the church and the citizens for leaving these good brethren out in the cold, homeless and friendless. 'A man is a man,' a Christian is a Christian, and Methodism is founded upon Bible Christianity and Bible equality. Hath not God made of one blood all the nations that dwell on the face of the earth? and shall we raise up castes and make distinctions on account of color where God has not? A burning shame on the Methodism and humanity of Chicago. He would take these outcasts to his house, feed them at his table, sleep them in his beds, entertain them in his parlors and treat them as his equals. The conference was relieved. But unfortunately a man is not always lord of his own mansion. The power behind the throne is sometimes greater than the throne itself, and the good Dr. Hatfield had to repent of his rashness, and whimper and whine out an apology to the conference the next morning and beg the committee to take these brethren and provide homes for them elsewhere. Did pence at home require it? Ah! it was the Biddy in the kitchen that was; after having the very moment the nasty stinkenagers put their big feet in the house, she would.' And the preachers were industrious to circulate the slander upon the Irish servant. A 'scape goat' was needed, and Mrs. Gordle could easily command her high priest to lay his hands upon the chambermaid and cook, and send them off to the wilderness with the sins of at least one family.

A pony purse, made up so quietly amongst the Methodists of Chicago that they evidently don't want their right hand to know what their left hand doeth, pays the board of these negro delegates to the General Conference at a third-rate negro boarding house, and expresses the love of Chicago Methodism for the 'man and brother.'

THE CHURCH NORTH.

The General Conference at Chicago adopted the following report relative to the work in the South. Our benighted region is to be flooded with light and radicalism. 'A liberal system of transfers is recommended.' The Missionary and Church Extension Societies are to render special aid, and there is to be a religious journal here in the South.

WHEREAS, It is deemed important that weekly religious papers be published in the South; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the book agents at Cincinnati be authorized to establish and publish, on or before the first day of January, A. D. 1869, a weekly religious journal at Knoxville, Atlanta, or Nashville, where, in their judgment, may be deemed most advisable; the editor to be appointed by the bishops, with the concurrence of the book agents aforesaid; but the agents are at liberty to discontinue said paper in the event that its continued publication shall involve a greater loss to the Concern than $2,000 per annum.

Resolved, That the Missionary and Church Extension Societies be requested to render such special aid to church building enterprises in Southern States as the bishops and the said societies shall find practicable.

Resolved, That a liberal system of transfers of suitable ministers to our work in the South is hereby recommended.

Resolved, That the maintenance of training and theological schools in the South, for the preparation of persons for the work of teaching and preaching in that region, deserves the sympathy and co-operation of the Methodist Episcopal Church; and we therefore hereby commend said object to the liberality of our people, and specifically to the generous aid of our missionary and educational societies.

IN Italy there are 8,292,224 farmers; 3,923,631 mechanics and tradesmen; 56,581 miners; 549,255 lawyers, doctors, editors, etc.; 174,001 ecclesiastics; 147,448 public officers; 252,386 soldiers; 520,687 servants; 305,343 "poor;" and 9,285,582 little children, old men, and persons not engaged in any trade or business.

IN England at least 50,000 tons of cheese are made annually, and about 30,000 more are imported from America. The consumption of cheese in England is said to have increased much more rapidly than the population, and for some years past the price there has steadily risen, and the amount imported has already increased.

SOMETHING FOR THE SICK.—Frequently we find sick people whose stomachs reject all kinds of nourishments until conditions follow that in many instances terminate fatally. In twenty instances in which we have heard the popular sick-bed nourishments prescribed, and rejected by an invalid's enfeebled stomach, we have never known the simple saucer of parched corn pudding or boiled gruel refused. The corn is roasted brown, precisely as we roast coffee, ground as fine as meal in a coffee mill, and made either into mush, gruel, or thin cakes, baked lightly brown, and given either warm or cold, in clear water, or whatever dressing the stomach will receive or retain. Parched corn and meal, boiled in skimmed milk, and fed frequently to children suffering from summer diarrhea, will almost always cure, as it will dysentery in adults, and, we believe, cholera in its earliest stages.—Lynchburg News.

PARIS has a population of about 2,150,000 inhabitants. But, wonderful to say, less than 734,000 of these are Parisians. There are 33,000 Germans, nearly as many Swiss, 9,000 English, half as many thousand Americans, and Italians, Dutch, Poles and Russians enough to make the sum total of over two millions of resident inhabitants in that modern Babel.

OBITUARIES.

REV. NATHAN P. COOK.—TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

The following preamble and resolutions were adopted by the Quarterly Conference of Yazoo Circuit, Yazoo District, Mississippi Conference, May 30, 1868:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, in the dispensations of his wise providence, to remove from our midst our beloved brother, Reverend Nathan P. Cook, a local elder in the church; and whereas, we desire to give expression to our sorrow in this bereavement, and record our estimation of his character and virtues; therefore Resolved, That in the death of Brother Cook the community has lost a valuable citizen, the church a consistent member and the ministry a faithful co-laborer.

Resolved, That while we bow with humble submission to the will of Providence in this afflicting dispensation, we will cherish with affectionate remembrance the virtues and Christian character of our departed brother, and rejoice in the hope of a reunion with him in the "better land."

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to the family of our beloved brother, pointing them to the consolations of the gospel and the inspiring hopes of Christianity for comfort in their sad bereavement.

Resolved, That the above preamble and resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this conference, that a copy be borne to the family of our deceased brother, and that a copy be forwarded to the Jackson Methodist and the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

H. WILLIAMSON,
J. P. BRIGGS,
W. S. KING,
Committee.

Reverend JOHN J. RUSS was born in Brunswick county, North Carolina, July 5, 1809, and died at his residence in Vernon, Washington county, Florida, December 11, 1867. He joined the M. E. Church in 1833, and was licensed to preach in 1838, and continued in that relation until his death. Brother Russ was not blessed with early educational advantages; but being a man of clear mind and rigid application, he early became a power in the church and in the world for good. He was a patriotic citizen, a good soldier, a faithful county officer, a benevolent and charitable neighbor, a kind and affectionate husband and father, a zealous Christian and a self-sacrificing and efficient minister of the gospel. He was sound in faith and doctrine, and meek and holy in life.

In his afflictions he suffered long and severely, but he had the delightful remembrance that his sufferings constituted his whole portion of woe, and that they were only designed to exercise his faith and patience, and to brighten his virtues and to prepare him for greater rewards in heaven. Like St. Paul, he greatly desired to depart and be with Christ. He left the world with a sound mind and in perfect peace. By his holy life and peaceful death he has given us assurance that, while his body reposes in the silent grave, his soul lives in the smile and blessing of God.

B. F. BLOW.

The following preamble and resolutions were adopted at the second quarterly meeting conference of the Campbellton Circuit, Montgomery Conference, 1868:

WHEREAS, It has pleased the great Head of the church to remove by death from our midst our beloved brother, John J. Russ, who was for many years a faithful, efficient and beloved member of this Quarterly Conference, and who died in great peace, December 11, 1867; therefore Resolved, That while we bow with humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, yet we deeply deplore the great loss which the bereaved family, the church and the world have sustained in his death.

Resolved, That we hereby tender the family our most heartfelt condolence and kindest sympathy, and commend them to the grace of Him who is a friend to the widow and father to the orphan.

Resolved, That we devote a page of our journal to his memory, etc., etc.

B. F. BLOW,
[illegible],
Committee.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

Bishop William M. Wightman, D. D., L. L. D., will hold a District Meeting for the Wetumpka District, Montgomery Conference, at Tallassee, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M., on Thursday, August 13, 1868. Preachers and delegates are urged to be present with full reports at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew, D. D., is expected to be present. Rev. S. A. Pilley will preach the introductory sermon on Thursday night. Ample accommodations for all.

D. M. HUDSON, P. E.

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE.

CALENDAR OF COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Sunday, July 5—Sermon by Rev. T. O. Summers, D. D.

Monday, July 6, 9 A. M.—Meeting of the Board of Trustees. 8 P. M.—Freshman prize declamation.

Tuesday, July 7, 9 A. M.—Junior exhibition. 8 P. M.—Sophomore prize declamation. Prizes delivered by Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

Wednesday, July 8.—Commencement day. Literary address by Col. Joseph Hodgson.

E. J. HAMILL,
Secretary of Board.

SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

A Sunday School Institute will be held at Opelika on the 22d and 23d of July. Pastors, superintendents, officers, teachers and friends of the cause, in connection with the M. E. Church South, within the limits of the Montgomery District, Montgomery Conference, are earnestly invited to attend. Persons of other communions will be welcomed. The following is the programme:

Wednesday afternoon—3 to 3.20—Devotion: prayer for the Institute. 3.20 to 3.30—Election of conductor and secretary. 3.30 to 4.10—Nature and design of Institute, by Prof. George W. F. Price. 4.10 to 4.40—Superintendent: His Office and Work, by E. D. Pitts. 4.40 to 5.10—Teachers: Qualifications and Duties, by Hon. D. Clopton. 5.10 to 5.30—Review by conductor. 5.30 to 5.40—Question box.

Wednesday night—8 to 8.20—Devotion: prayer for scholars. 8.20 to 9—Teachers' Meetings, by Rev. John Mathews. 9 to 9.30—Library and Librarian, by Prof. John W. Glenn. 9.30 to 10—Review by conductor. 10 to 10.30—Question box and answers.

Thursday morning—8 to 8.30—Devotion: prayer for superintendents and teachers. 8.20 to 9.20—What Classes shall be Organized and how Conducted, by Rev. J. K. Armstrong. 9.20 to 10.20—The Blackboard and its Uses, with Model Lesson, by Prof. W. H. C. Price. 10.20 to 11—Review, with illustrations and model lessons, by conductor. 11 to 11.20—Question box and answers.

Thursday afternoon—3 to 3.20—Devotion: prayer for parents and church. 3.20 to 3.50—What is the Religious State of our Schools, by the Institute. 3.50 to 4.20—Personal Piety in our Schools: Its Influence, and how to Increase it, by Rev. E. J. Hamill. 4.20 to 5.20—How can our Sunday School Work be Extended, by Hon. H. Lowther. 5.20 to 5.50—Closing addresses, ten minutes each.

Thursday night—Sunday-school entertainment.

E. D. PITTS,
Chairman of Committee.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Gadsden District will be held at Center, Cherokee co., Alabama, commencing on the 17th day of July next. Traveling and local preachers, and official members of the church in the district are expected to be present. Ministers from a distance are also expected.

T. MOONY, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Camden District, Montgomery Conference, will meet at Pineville, July 10th.

The official members will please be in attendance, prepared to make their reports at the first meeting.

ASSON WEST, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

Brookhavon (Col.) Dist., Miss. Conf'e.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Scotland circuit, at Pleasant Valley	June	27, 28
Liberty circuit, at Liberty	July	4, 5,
Summit circuit, at Summit		11, 12
Brookhaven		.. ..
Meadville, at Beach Grove		18, 19
Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth		25, 26
Fayette, at Bethel	Aug.	1, 2
Georgetown, at Georgetown		8, 9
Chrystal Springs, at Chrystal Springs		15, 16
Hazlehurst, at New Church, near Bahata		22, 23
Brushy Creek, at Tabernacle		29, 30

The official members of the above circuits, and the preachers in charge of the work, are informed that Bishop Kavanaugh will hold the first Mississippi Colored Conference. All who expect to enter this conference must be recommended by their respective Quarterly Conferences.

JOHN B. BOWEN, P. E.

MINISTERIAL AID SOCIETY.

There will be a meeting of the managers of the Ministerial Aid Society of the Mobile Conference, at Greensboro', during the commencement exercises.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Yazoo District, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Durant, Holmes county, Mississippi, commencing on Thursday, the 6th day of August next, at 9 o'clock A. M.

All the official members of the district are invited to attend, and I hope they will feel it their duty to be present and participate in the deliberations and religious exercises of the meeting. We will be glad to welcome brethren from other districts. I am pleased to announce that Bishop Paine has promised to be present and preside, should his health permit. The preachers in charge of circuits will please forward to Brother T. C. Parrish, at Durant, the names of the official members of their respective charges, noting those who will most likely attend, that he may make every necessary arrangement for their accommodation.

The introductory sermon will be preached by Dr. T. M. Ward, or Dr. W. H. Lyons, alternate.

Delegates to the Annual Conference will be chosen. Pastors will be prepared to report the statistics of their several charges.

The following will be the order of business:

1. Organization of the meeting and the appointment of committees.
2. Written reports from pastors.
3. Reports from committees in the order of appointment.
4. Miscellaneous business.

The following will constitute the business of the committees, with the chairman of each:

1. Revivals—George W. Boyles.
2. Sunday Schools—J. W. Jones.
3. Missions—Dr. T. W. Ward.
4. Denominational Education—W. P. Barton.
5. State of the Church—Dr. F. G. Thomas.
6. Temperance—H. T. Beard.
7. The Pastorate—J. D. Newsom.
8. Ministerial Support—T. C. Parrish.
9. Church Property and Parsonages—T. W. Flowers.
10. Circuit Boundaries—J. P. Briggs.
11. Church, Class and Camp Meetings—H. Williamson.
12. Religious Publications—E. H. Monroe.
13. Religious Interests of Colored People—Stephen Johnson.
14. Public Worship—Presiding Elder.

The preachers will please announce the meeting, as all the official members may not see this notice.

Brethren, on arriving at Durant, will report to Brother T. C. Parrish or Brother Madison Weems.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Livingston	June	27, 28
Meridian	July	4, 5
De Kalb, at Mount Hebron		11, 12
Summerville, at Spring Hill		18, 19
Macon		25, 26
Enterprise	Aug.	1, 2
Marion, at Pleasant Hill		8, 9
Gainesville and Scooba, at Sumpterville		15, 16
Enterprise ct., at Sageville		22, 23

S. H. COX, P. E.

Shreveport Dist., Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many mission, at Many	June	13, 14
Mansfield ct., at Mansfield		20, 21
Keachie ct., at Keachie		27, 28
Natchitoches	July	4, 5
Anacoco ct., at Oak Grove		18, 19
Springville, at Holly Spring		25, 26
Greenwood, at Mt. Zion	Aug.	15, 16
Shreveport		29, 30
Pleasant Hill, at Pleasant Hill	Sept.	19, 20

The District Meeting will be held at Pleasant Hill, Sept. 18th, 19th and 20th.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Paulding Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mt. Carmel, at Mt. Moriah	June	27, 28
Columbia, at Byrd's Chapel	July	11, 12
Rankin, at Salem		18, 19
Ocoha, at Sharon	Aug.	1, 2
Handsboro' and Biloxi, at Handsboro'		8, 9
White Plains, at Coalville		15, 16
Sylvarena, at Mt. Olivet		22, 23
Paulding, at Holder's		29, 30

HENRY P. LEWIS, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Providence	June	13, 14
North Carroll, at Pine Ridge		20, 21
Carrollton, at Mount Zion	July	4, 5
Sunflower, at Bear Creek		11, 12
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater		18, 19
Durant, at Shady Grove		25, 26
Richland, at Goodman	Aug.	1, 2
Yazoo Ct., at New Hope		15, 16
Yazoo City station		22, 23
Mt. Olivet, at Short Creek		29, 30
Beo Lake, at Lodi	Sept.	5, 6

The District Meeting will be held at Durant, commencing on the 6th day of August.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Natchez Dist.—Mississippi Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Clinton circuit, at Olive Br'h	June	6, 7
Jackson circuit, at Pipkin's Chapel		13, 14
St. Helena circuit, at Centre		20, 21
East Baton Rongo circuit, at Jones' Creek (Zion)		27, 28
Percy's Creek circuit, at Percy's Creek	July	4, 5
Woodville station		18, 19
Wilkinson circuit		25, 26
Amite circuit, at Adams'	Aug.	8, 9
Liberty circuit, at Liberty		15, 16
Kingston circuit		29, 30
Natchez station	Sept.	5, 6

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

SECOND ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi and Floyd circuit	May	2, 3
Winsborough circuit		9, 10
Ion circuit, at New Salem		23, 24
Jefferson circuit		30, 31
Bastrop circuit	June	6, 7
Bastrop station		13, 14
Waterproof and St. Joseph, at Waterproof		20, 21

W. G. MCGEHEE, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CLEAR, SMOOTH SKIN AND beautiful complexion follow the use of HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA.

It removes black spots, pimples, moth-patches and all eruptions of the skin.

IN THE SPRING AND SUMMER months the system naturally undergoes a change, and Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla is an assistant of the greatest value.

YOUNG LADIES, BEWARE OF the injurious effects of Face Powders and Washes. All such remedies close up the pores of the skin, and in a short time destroy the complexion. If you would have a fresh, healthy and youthful appearance, use Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla.

NOT A FEW OF THE WORST disorders that afflict mankind arise from corruption of the blood. Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla is a remedy of the utmost value.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT SARSAparilla cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors that make disease.

THOSE WHO DESIRE BRILLIancy of complexion must purify and enrich the blood, which Helmbold's Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla invariably does. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENtrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla eradicates eruptive and ulcerative diseases of the throat, nose, eyelids, scalp and skin, which so disfigure the appearance, purging the evil effects of mercury, and removing all taints, the remnant of disease, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by adults and children with perfect safety.

Two tablespoonfuls of Helmbold's Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED Extract Buchu is the great diuretic.—Helmbold's Concentrated Extract Sarsaparilla is the great Blood Purifier. Both are prepared according to rules of pharmacy and chemistry, and are the most active that can be made.

The best test of their purity and superiority will be a comparison with the properties as set forth in the United States Dispensatory.

My laboratory for the manufacture of Fluid Extracts has been visited by thousands of physicians and druggists from all parts of the United States, and the modo of preparation received their unanimous commendation.

Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Fluid Extracts are pleasant in taste and odor, and immediate in their action.

None are genuine unless done up in the steel-engraved wrapper, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

The proprietor was compelled to adopt such a wrapper because of the growing popularity of his articles, and to prevent spurious and dangerous counterfeiting.

H. T. HELMBOLD, druggist, of eighteen years' experience, and manufacturer of Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Principal Depots—Helmbold's Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New York, next Metropolitan Hotel; and Helmbold's Medical Depot, No. 104 South Tenth street, Philadelphia.

Sold by druggists everywhere.

Price $1 25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6 50. may30 3mr

A SUBSTITUTE FOR SARATOGA WATERS.

COOLING, REFRESHING AND PLEASANT!

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.

In 6 oz bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick headache, sour or sick stomach, and all febrile cases. For sale by BARNES, WARD & CO., New Orleans, and by most druggists. Prepared by

ARTHUR ROGERS,
may16 3m 193 Spring street, New York.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's Domestic Family Physician describes all diseases and their remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR. S. S. FITCH,
may2 7mr 714 Broadway, New York.

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by

HOYT, FISHER, Agent,
may2 1y No. 203 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

POPULAR INVESTMENT.

Central Pacific Railroad Comp.'s

FIRST MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY are authorized by acts of Congress to construct, with the aid and supervision of the United States Government, the western and principal portion of the National Trunk Line between the Pacific coast and the Mississippi valley. They have built by far the most difficult and expensive portion of their road, and have an unprecedented working force extending the track across the Salt Lake basin. By the close of 1868 it is expected they will have 500 miles in full operation, and that

THE ENTIRE LINE WILL BE COMPLETED IN 1870.

More than Twenty Millions of Dollars have been expended in the work, and the available construction resources are ample for the remainder, as follows:

1. United States Bonds to the extent of $35,000 per mile, average.
2. First Mortgage Bonds to the same amount.
3. Grant of Public Lands along the route, 12,800 acres per mile.
4. Capital stock of $20,000,000, of which $5,000,000 is subscribed and paid on the work done.
5. Cash resources, comprising donations from California sources amounting to $1,250,000, net earnings, etc., 1865 to 1870, $6,500,000, making a total of more than Seventy Millions Upon the First 720 Miles.

One hundred and fifty miles are now built and in operation on both slopes of the Sierra Nevada range. The net earnings for the past year were over a million in gold, or more than four times the annual interest liabilities, and the net surplus for the present year, after payment of expenses and interest, is estimated at

$1,500,000 IN GOLD!

We have now on hand a supply, and are prepared to fill all orders at their

Par Value and Accrued Interest,

in currency, a limited amount of the

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS,

bearing six per cent. per annum—both interest and principal being explicitly made "PAYABLE IN GOLD COIN," conformably with the specie laws of the Pacific States.

The Bonds are $1,000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in July and January, the back interest from January 1st being charged to the purchasers, in currency.

☞ The Company reserve the right to advance the price at any time; but all orders actually in transitu at the time of any such advance will be filled at the present price. They are believed to be the most perfect and assured corporate security now offered, and are recommended to persons seeking desirable steady investments.

We receive all classes of Government Bonds, at their full market rates, in exchange for the Central Pacific Railroad Bonds, thus enabling the holders to realize from five to ten per cent. profit and keep the principal of their investments equally secure.

Orders and inquiries will receive prompt attention. Information, descriptive pamphlets, etc., giving a full account of the organization, progress, business and prospects of the enterprise, furnished on application. Bonds sent by return Express at our cost.

FISK & HATCH,
Financial Agents of the C. P. R. R. Co.,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

Offices of the Central Pacific Railroad Co.:
No. 54 William street, New York, and
Nos. 56 and 58 K street, Sacramento, Cal.

Subscriptions Received Through National Banks and Bankers Generally.

☞ All descriptions of GOVERNMENT SECURITIES bought, sold or exchanged at our office and by mail and telegraph, at market rates.

Seven-Thirty Notes converted into the new Five-Twenties, or any other class of Government Bonds.

Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, and favorable arrangements made for desirable accounts.

Gold, Coupons and Compound Interest Notes bought and sold.

Miscellaneous Stocks and Bonds bought and sold at the Stock Exchange, on commission, for cash.

☞ Dealers and investors out of the city desiring to make negotiations in any of the above may do so through us, by mail or telegraph, as advantageously as though personally present in New York.

Fisk & Hatch,

BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOV'T SECURITIES,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.
may30 4tr

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,
Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world; the only true and perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; removes the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st., New York. mar7 1y

AGENTS WANTED—MALE OR female, to sell my new and splendid engraving, From Shore to Shore, suggestive of life's journey from childhood to old age. A perfect gem. Address

H. B. HUSSELL,
may30 4tr Boston, Mass.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOYED.—Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents; twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANE, may30 4tr 91 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.

STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address

A. J. FULLAM,
may30 4tr Springfield, Vermont.

THE STIMPSON SCIENTIFIC PEN.

ONE FORWARD AND TWO BACKward arches, insuring great strength, well balanced elasticity, evenness of point, and smoothness of execution. Sold by all stationers. One gross in a twelve contains a Scientific Gold Pen. One dozen Stool Pens (assorted points) and Patent Ink-retaining Penholder mailed on receipt of 50 cents.

A. S. BARNES & CO.,
may30 4tr 111 and 113 William st., N. Y.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely. The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Your's, very truly,
SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO', Mass., June 9, '64.

MESSRS. BURNETT & CO.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than formerly. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair. With respect,

WM. S. EDDY.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.
For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may7 3mr

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being extensively used on children's first-class shoes. Sold everywhere.
may2 8tr

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT for Families.—Every family should have a case of Homœopathic medicine. Its simple directions and invitting sugar Pills are so indispensable for children, and so frequently meet the wants of those of larger growth, as to be a necessity. Sickness prevented is health and money saved, and that these simple remedies do arrest disease and restore health is incontestable. No family having once enjoyed their benefits would be without them. Humphreys' Homœopathic Specifics are prepared expressly to meet the wants of families. They are simple, convenient, safe and reliable, and their value has been confirmed by an experience of many years. A full case of thirty-five large vials and Book of Directions, with Specifics for every disease occurring in domestic practice is sent to any address, by express, free of charge, on receipt of Ten Dollars. Address Humphreys' Specific Homœopathic Medicine Co., 562 Broadway, New York. Send for our Almanac. apr4 3mr

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge.

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs.

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs, of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash, or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly installments. Second-hand Instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.
apr4 1yr HORACE WATERS & CO.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile,	$1 50	$1 60
Work of Christ, Marvin,	65	75
Ecce Ecclesia,	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson,	1 25	1 50
Lee and his Generals, half calf,	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles,	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals,	2 00	2 40

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.

ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

For the Advocate.

OUR BABY.

We have a baby 'neath our roof—
A five-months' dweller, he!'
'Twas God who sent him here, in proof
Of prayer on bended knee.

Our home was dark until he came,
With sorrows manifold;
Now worldly griefs are put to shame
By bliss that can't be told.

Misfortunes since have fallen fast—
New light shines through his eye,
And tells us we shall win at last—
No more shall fond hopes die!

He lines, as silver, ev'ry cloud
That floats, all-threat'ning, near;
Their lightnings cease—thy infant cawed—
A rainbow spans each tear!

Oh, ask his mother what she'd take
For that bright boy in arms,
Wha is such comfort when awake—
Or sleeping, full of charms!

There is no measure for the love
A mother bears her son.
You girdle space—beneath, above—
You then have but begun!

The love which God feels for our race,
'Tis that alone outruns
The confines of the love we trace
In mothers for their sons.

The first faint cry a baby gives,
Bursts ope a fount of love
Which ne'er can die, but ever lives
And ripens but above!

Can pain, then, harm the mother's heart;
Of her who bore our boy?
His future life shall ease each smart—
Bright, everlasting joy!

A tyrant he—yet sweet the chains
In which he binds our hearts;
He holds us firm by silken reins
And pins with golden darts!

He looks and smiles and coos and cries,
And wants to talk withal;
He's master in each role he tries—
Our little roguish Toll.

His eyes are blue as blue can be,
His mouth's an angel's, sure—
His maiden tooth we now can see,
He's fat and bright and pure!

In dimpling smiles his beauty lives
In cheek and chin and knee,
And fadeless joys he daily gives—
A blessing to us three!

Oh, Thou who art his father's Friend,
In tender mercy view
The boy whom Thou to him didst send From Heaven, all bright and new!

Tho' fresh from realms of bliss above,
He's born for earth as well;
And needs the mantle of Thy love
More than tongue can tell.

We would not have him puffed with pride
Of wealth or name or fame,
Owned he the world—the stars beside—
They could but bring him shame!

'Twere better he should die this day,
And wing his way to Thee,
Than live for sin, and not to pray
Each day at mother's knee.

In Thy good time, ah, Lord! incline
His heart to seek the Truth;
Then shall his light an others shine!
Make him a spotless youth!

QUITMAN, Miss., June 1, 1868. J. T. S.

THE DOLLS.

Lucie had won her 'discretion.' Though the late events in the family, Madame de Leonsac's death and Pauline's arrival, had distracted attention from this important subject, the little girl herself had by no means forgotten it. She was too proud of having passed a whole month without flying into a passion, and even without scolding, to neglect to claim her recompense. True, since the month's end, she has been as bad as ever; but then she accounted for it by saying that to be good for a month after being naughty for six years, was the utmost that could be expected of her; and that no one could lose all at once the habit of getting angry.

'All the stronger reason for trying hard to do so,' said the mother; 'each day that you do not fight against ill habits confirms them the more.'

'But, mamma, it is so difficult to be always trying to be good.'

'Undoubtedly, my daughter; but, nevertheless, we must keep on trying to the end of our days.'

'Mamma, do you never go into a rage?'

'I used to do it. When I was a child I was more passionate even than you; but, thank God, I have got over it; so you see this is possible.'

'I think, mamma,' Lucie said again, 'if you would give me a 'discretion' for each of my faults, one after the other, I might correct them, and then I should be perfect, and have no more need to try at all.'

'So after having passed a month without scolding, you are quite cured of that fault, I suppose?'

Lucie blushed. 'Don't tease me, mamma; you know well that I have been very angry more than once since February began, and I am very sorry for it too,' continued she, hiding her face on her mother's lap.

'Listen, my child,' said the mother, gravely. 'There is but one way of growing good — fighting resolutely against our faults, and asking God to help us. He always helps those who do ask Him, provided they ask Him with all their hearts.'

Lucie answered very softly, 'I'll do that, mamma. I ought to be good, for I shall soon be seven years old.'

'Very true, I had forgotten your mature years. But tell me—what will you have for your 'discretion?' Your birthday present I have already decided on.'

'Oh, mamma, dearest mamma, might I have a lot of paper and wafer seals? Pauline has such a pretty paper-case. I saw it in her trunk. It contains paper of all sorts of colors, pens, a seal, sealing wax, envelopes, transparent seal wafers, an ink-stand and a pounce-box. You never saw anything so pretty. And she has a P on the seal. May I have one like it? It is not too dear, I know, for Pauline told me it only cost ten francs. If I could only have some paper on which to write to Charles and Edouard!'

'We shall see. What have you done with Pauline this morning?'

'Paul has taken her with him to the fields. It is very funny; you know he said at first he would not have her for a sister, and now he is so fond of her he never quits her.'

Madame Bessard smiled. 'Go and meet them now; bring Pauline back, and say I want both of you to help me to unpack the trunks that have come by the wagon.'

As soon as Lucie was gone her mother opened her treasure closet, and took thence a charming little mahogany desk, rather ancient in shape, perhaps, but in very good condition. She filled it with paper, envelopes, wafers—keeping back, however, two quires of note-paper. Then, seating herself at the table, she opened a color-box, seldom touched, and began to trace, with light and skillful hand, on the top of each sheet the letters L and B, entwined in a monogram. When this was done she placed the ornamental paper in company with the rest, closed the desk, and put it back in her closet. The same moment the two girls ran into her room. Pauline looked quite another person, her eyes so bright, her cheeks so red, and her beautiful curls all in disorder.

'Where are my trunks, aunt?' cried she, as she came in.

'In the linen-closet. How could I put into your tiny room two big boxes? Indeed, where I shall stow them away when they are empty I have no idea.'

'May we sleep in them, aunt?' said Pauline, laughing.

'That will do beautifully,' added Lucie, 'and then every morning we can shut them, and sit down on the top of them.'

'Unless some fine day you are lost, and found long afterward, like Ginevra—whose story I once told you—smothered and dead.'

'That must have been because Ginevra had no mamma; I am certain my mamma would have found me,' said Lucie, energetically.—'And now, do let us go and open the trunks.'

They all went to the linen-closet. From the moment it was known these boxes were on their way to La Vacherie, Pauline had never ceased to talk to Lucie about the dolls they contained; so much so, that to hear her speak, one would have thought the little girl's wardrobe consisted entirely, not of frocks or petticoats, but only dolls. Lucie had half come to believe that in Algeria playthings were found at every step—one had but to stoop and pick them up. The fact was that Pauline, only child of a colonel of cavalry, was the pet of all the officers of the regiment, and, since the idea of a doll is the first that offers itself to the mind of a gentleman who wishes to make a present to a little girl, Pauline's family of dolls was very numerous; the more so, as she never broke or destroyed any of them, having been obliged to learn to play quietly with them during her father's illness, which lasted more than a year. For M. de Leonsac had continued in the army as long as he could sit on horseback; but when he was at home he was usually so ill as to need absolute rest, which was not difficult to get with a delicate wife and a sweet-tempered daughter. It was an astonishment often to Madame Bessard to see how, in spite of her own extreme quietness, Pauline soon got used to the noise of her cousins, and how, while still keeping her gentle reserved manner, she took part in their fun, and amused herself with their gayety.

The first trunk was opened, but the little girls were not allowed to search for dolls. Madame Bessard took from it piles of under-clothes, dresses and mantles, and commissioned her little handmaids to carry these direct to their room. It was after half an hour of this uninteresting exercise that Lucie, leaning over the box, saw a bit of rose-colored silk sticking out.

'Have you got a frock of pink silk?' asked she of her cousin, in great awe.

'No; it belongs to Amelie, my French daughter.'

'Have you, then, dolls of all countries?'

'Of a good many. Aunt, may I take out Amelie?'

'Stop a minute, and I will unpack her, my dear. There she is; very pretty, and quite unhurt.'

'But, aunt, she is not one of my favorite children. I like my Arab better. She is most likely in the other trunk.'

Lucie scarcely left her mother time to turn the key, so impatient was she to see the Arab doll that Pauline spoke of. Whosoever had packed the boxes had evidently no respect for dolls, for they were at the very bottom of the box—some of them being stowed away under the books. At last there came to view a doll, dressed in a yellow silk vest, embroidered with silver, a tunic of red silk, pantaloons of white silk, and a long veil of silver gauze. Her black curls were adorned with little pieces of silver money, and she had a necklace and bracelets also of coins, imitating gold.

'Oh, mamma, what a beautiful doll!' cried Lucie rapturously.

'Isn't she pretty?' said Pauline. 'And I love her best of all, because it was my mamma who dressed her. But I have a little Jewess, who is nearly as pretty.'

The Jewess was discovered; and Lucie divided her admiration between the two young orientals. Then there were unpacked three ladies—a Swiss, an Italian and a Spaniard, and a quantity of babies. They counted ten dolls in very fair condition, and many others only slightly damaged. Lucie examined them over, and over again, and planned how they were to be mended, their clothes ironed, and so on. She was not jealous; but doubtless she would not have been sorry had a share of all these riches belonged to herself.

Pauline whispered in her aunt's ear, 'May I divide my dolls with Lucie?'

'If you wish it, my child; but suppose you were to give her one?—it would be sufficient.'

'Oh, no, aunt. Lucie gives me half of all her playthings. Now, Lucie, choose for yourself among my dolls. You may take any you please, except the little Arab, because my mamma gave her to me. There are ten nice dolls. We shall have five apiece, and we'll throw the old ones away.'

'Nobody ever throws anything away here,' said Madame Bessard. 'Lucie will show you how we mend them, and make them do for the poor little children in the village. Lucie, child, don't look so stupefied—choose among the dolls that Pauline wishes to divide with you.'

Lucie threw herself on her cousin's neck. 'Oh, how good you are—how I love you—but I won't take half of your children. Give me just one—any one you choose.'

'But, Lucie,' said Pauline, 'how can I take care of ten children? Often for a whole month some of them are never undressed, and that fatigues them very much, you know. Since you will not choose for yourself, suppose you take the little Jewess, the Italian, the French lady and two babies; the smallest baby shall be the child of the French woman. And then I can keep the Arab, the Swiss, the Spaniard and two other babies. Look! this baby opens and shuts its eyes. Will you have it?'

The two little girls had quite forgotten all about the unpacking of the trunk and arranging of the clothes on the shelves. They sat on the floor, pulling out the crumpled dresses of the dolls, examining their faces, feet, hands and clothes. Pauline, for once more talkative than Lucie, told the history of all her daughters and passed in review for her cousin's edification all the officers of the regiment who had given them to her.

This interesting occupation was stopped by Madame Bessard, who reminded them that, if they wished the dolls to live in their room, they must finish the arrangements for their accommodation. So with a slight sigh the dolls were laid aside, and the little girls fell heartily to work. Soon their night-gowns, stockings, pocket-handkerchiefs, and the rest of their clothes, were arranged with so much art that they contrived to find room for the linen of both little girls in the same space which one had formerly occupied; and still there was left a tiny cupboard, which might serve for a doll's house. Of furniture for this, Lucie had a bed and a chest of drawers; Pauline, a second bed, a table, a sofa, two chairs and a glass wardrobe; but this latter, being too big to enter the cupboard, was obliged to be placed outside, like a soldier on guard.

The little cousins had just completed their arrangements when the first bell rang for dinner. They dressed very quickly, and descended the stairs, four steps at a time. In the drawing-room they found M. Bessard, who sat reading his newspaper beside the little desk which has already been mentioned, and which has been secretly placed on the table.

'Oh, what a pretty box!' said Pauline. 'It was not here this morning, was it, uncle?'

'No. Open it, Lucie.'

Lucie, not a little surprised, obeyed; but at the first glance inside she turned crimson, hardly daring to believe in what it all meant.

'Look at that ornamental paper,' said her father. And when she saw the L and B, poor little Lucie fairly cried with pleasure, and hid her face on her father's arm.

'Is it for me—all for me?'

'Yes, my pet; it is your 'discretion.' Your mother found this pretty little desk in her drawers, and she filled it with paper, as you wished, and, over and above the bargain, she has drawn this elegant monogram for you.'

'Oh, I am too happy—only too happy to-day!' cried Lucie, quite overcome. 'All these beautiful dolls and a desk besides! For, papa, you don't know that Pauline has given me half of her daughters. There is a Jewess and an Italian, a French woman and two babies; and we have arranged them all in their room in the cupboard. You must come and look how pretty it all is.'

'What—Pauline has given you half of her daughters! What a bad mother! I am sure mamma would never give anybody half of her children.'

Pauline crept close to her uncle, with her delicate, sad little face.

'Uncle, my mamma gave you her little girl; it is true, she could not take care of me herself any longer.'

M. Bessard stooped and kissed the child, as tenderly as if she had been one of his own.—A French Country Family, translated by Miss Mulock from the French of Madame Guizot.

WESLEYAN CHURCHES.—The growth of Wesley's churches is the most striking religious phenomena of the century. John Wesley originated his first society in 1739. The first society in America was started in 1766. The first conference met in 1784. Old men remember the bitter prejudice which existed against them among the Calvinistic clergy at the beginning of this century. To-day, as we learn from the Methodist, there are 3,321,539 church members in the world, representing a population of 9,000,000, of which nearly 8,000,000 reside in the United States. They are divided as follows:

"United States.—M. E. Church, 1,139,096; Methodist Episcopal Church South, (1860,) 757,205; American Wesleyan Methodists, 20,000; the "Methodist" Church, 50,098; Protestant Methodists (in the Southern States,) 70,000; African Methodist Episcopal Church, 200,000; African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, 60,000; Free Methodists, 4,800; Primitive Methodists, 2,000; Evangelical Association (exclusive of the "Germany Conference,") 57,226. There are, therefore, 2,359,425 Methodists of every name in the United States. In the American British Possessions, Hayti, and the Argentine Republic there are 139,134.

"In Great Britain the Wesleyan Methodists number 379,342; the Primitive Methodists, 150,127; and the other branches of the church, 194,995. In the other countries of Europe there are 14,391 Methodists.

"In Asia they number 3,669; in Africa, 21,004; and in Australia, 59,452 members."

A RECENT number of the London Times paints the following pleasant picture of an Irish city: "Dublin, though capable of such improvement, is quite as well adapted for spectacles of all kinds as London. Its bay is magnificent; its river very pretty; its park four times as large as Hyde Park and four times as beautiful; its public buildings, if anything, are a little too ambitious; its cathedral is large enough to seat three thousand, and handsome enough to have just now cost a hundred thousand pounds in restoration; its streets and squares are laid out better than our own; its railways are numerous, good, and well managed; its suburban scenery is enchanting and even grand; its atmosphere healthy, pleasant and clear; its markets are excellent; and its Crystal Palace, where the royal visitors will open a grand ball in a few days, is in the city instead of being eight miles off. You may spend a long day in the most beautiful mountain or sea-side scenery between breakfast and dinner in Merrion square or St. Stephen's green."

WE walk here, as it were, in the crypts of life; at times, from the great cathedral above us, we can hear the organ and chanting of the choir; we see the light stream through the open door, when some friend goes up before us—and shall we fear to mount the narrow stair-case of the grave that leads out of this uncertain twilight into the serene mansions of the life eternal?

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A J Wright, A M, President
Mrs A A Wright, Principal,
Mr R Scott Ricketts
Miss Anna M Ross

☞ Miss C A Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.

Other Instructors will be announced.

☞ This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars Apply to A J WRIGHT,
D G Humphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. aug 24

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October, 2d, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session. $360.

PAYMENTS. — $200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

W. H. N. MAGRUDER.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3-6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cato & Co.;

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL.

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

On the corner of Camp and Common sts,

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building.)

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals or Book-keepers in a large portion of the old houses of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR,
nov 17 1y President.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.,
102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. je16 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturers' prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the Implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS
n17 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,

Next door to the Picayune Office,

oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev J E C Doremus, D D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testimentary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans: then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $30 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitute a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitute a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible whether professors of religion or not: to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S.; by founding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them; according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church, the Board of Directors, representing in its body all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God, for except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the heart-cry of the Great Reformation. No forbidding of the Word; no tampering with the text; no man's note or comment; God's Word; Christ's Word; the Holy Spirit's Word; Free: Free: Free. o25 1y.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds,
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
a 11 20 1y New Orleans

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 6

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by J. E. BAILEY,
feb 9, 1y Formerly of Chartres Street.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The Institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent.....$67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency 27 00
French..... 15 00
Music, with use of instrument,..... 37 50
Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10-3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,
CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McOmber, A M, Pres't, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Gen. J C Moore, A M, Prof. of Mathematics.
Rev. B F Kavanaugh, M D, Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
T H Kavanaugh, M D, Prof. of Natural Science
B F Brown, A B Principal Preparatory Department.
B V Lunn, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868 closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS

—SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

Collegiate.....$21 00.....Preparatory.....$20 00
Elementary.... 16 00.....Primary..... 13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate.....$36 00.....Elementary.....$24 00
Preparatory ... 30 00.....Primary..... 20 40
Modern Languages. (extra) $4 00 per month.

No incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie — a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O. H. McOmber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas.
july-13-6

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS

126 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The institution is under control of the M. E. Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address
REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
jy-13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,
Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum; payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent, as Compared with any other Stove.

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to THE GOOD SAMARITAN, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this apparatus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, THE GOOD SAMARITAN to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of COOKING STOVES, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

C. W. W. GOODWYN,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn,) my6 1y 62 Camp street,
Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1.

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Ironsaeau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1866

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, Late Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—THOSE DESIRING THE NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. ROBT. J. HARP, Agt., Lock Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR
For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5..... " 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address..... " 40c
For any number over 25..... " 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

☞ Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays,—Biographical and Descriptive,— Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Hender, The Athenæum, The Examiner, The London, Saturday, and Fortnight Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs. Oliphant, J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swineburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR AND FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews.....$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews..... 7 "
For any three of the Reviews.....10 "
For all four of the Reviews.....12 "
For Blackwood's Magazine..... 4 "
For Blackwood and one Review..... 7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews..... 10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews 13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews 15 "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48,00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the POSTAGE to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1860, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORTON, of Yale College. 2 vols. Royal Octavo, 1550 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8. feb 2

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,
COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug24 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

72 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $4 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen.

Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mhr14 3m Lock Box 847, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.
Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.
Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.
Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.
Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.
Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $45 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, Ja.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.
Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.
Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.
Mrs Florence Rodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.
Miss Ellen Guild, School of Design.
Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this Institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month.
In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.
Board, with room furnished, $20.
The above, with washing and lights, $25.
Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar14 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. En.
sept28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE
AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College $30 00
Contingent Fee..... 3 00
Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School..... $15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee..... 2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C HAIFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,
Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. P. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAML. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HENSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles.....$2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
nly Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,
Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28-3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-6m

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, — of many years standing, —affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package,	$1 00	Postage	6 cts.
Six packages,	5 00	"	27
Twelve packages,	9 00	"	43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.
ja 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Easton, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

apr4 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
a25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

WALLACE & CO.,

Importers and Jobbers of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, and

PLANTATION CLOTHING,

CORNER MAGAZINE AND COMMON STREETS, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

☞ Sales guaranteed at New York prices.
a18 1y

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This Invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

112 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH-WEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25
AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c
THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50
PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00
SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with Instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25
NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00
"ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile." Baker.....$5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt..... 6 50
ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans, 2 00
BILL, ARP..... 1 50
PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS..... 10 00
KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth..... 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans,
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months..... $150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos., 60
" " Preparatory " " " 40
Fuel, for Boarders, " " 10
" " Day scholars, " " 8
Music on Piano, " " 50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each, 6
No extra charge for Greek or Latin.
Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.
No charge for use of room or use of pianos.
Oil Painting..... $30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each, 20
No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.
Bills payable semi-annually, in advance.
For further information, apply to
July-6 3m B. ARNOLD, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healty one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months.....$15 00
Primary Department..... 20 00
Collegiate..... 25 00
Music and Piano..... 25 00
Use of Instrument..... 7 50
Vocal Music..... 2 50
Incidental fee..... 2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month.... 18 00
Lights and washing, extra.
Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month.....$16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks.. $30 00
Music..... 25 00
Use of Instrument..... 7 50
Languages, each..... 10 00
Incidental Fee..... 2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month.. 20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing 16 00
aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct6 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,
WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00
Fuel, room-rent and contingent fee, 10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information.

Address. E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
ja 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.
SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages..... $80,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course.....$75,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing. 20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board of Trustees
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
FEB.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
MAR	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
APR				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
MAY						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
JUNE		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JULY				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
SEP.			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
OCT					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
NOV	1	2	3	4	5	6
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
DEC			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have no improvement to notice in the general market since our last review. The movement in our leading staple has been restricted by the limited stock in first hands, and the unwillingness of factors, despite the continued discouraging accounts from other markets, to yield to the extent required. Operations in sugar and molasses have been confined mainly to a few trifling lots, while the movement in Western produce, as will be seen from our report, has shown considerable dullness throughout.

In the freight market there has been little or no change. The number of vessels on the berth is very small, but the offerings for both foreign and coastwise ports are circumscribed.

Cotton.—In our last report we noticed that under the influence of discouraging telegrams from Liverpool and New York the market closed on Friday rather unsettled, at figures showing a decline of one-half cent per pound. On Saturday, with news of still further depression both at Liverpool and New York, the movement was brought to almost a complete standstill. There were several orders on hand which parties were anxious to fill, but as they were based on figures much below the asking rates, buyers were forced to postpone their execution, as factors refused to make the required concessions. The sales, in consequence, were restricted to 350 bales, at irregular but lower prices, the bulk of the business having been at 25⅜ to 25c. for Low Middling, and 27 to 27¼c. for Middling. On Monday the receipt of the 1.20 P. M. telegram from Liverpool, announcing an improvement of an 1/16d. in the rate for Orleans, caused a much better feeling to prevail among factors, but on the receipt, at a later hour, of advices reporting a reaction, the market became unsettled. The demand was fair, but the movement was confined mostly to the operations of three or four buyers, the day's business including 800 bales, (three-fourths of which were taken by one party,) Low Middling being quoted nominally, at the close, at 25½ to 26c., and Middling at 27 to 27½c. On Tuesday there was a fair inquiry, and as factors evinced a disposition to meet the demand more freely, the sales summed up 650 bales, at easier though not quotably lower prices.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 1,800 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 268 bales, against 452 during the corresponding period last week, showing a decrease of 184 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 580,016 bales, against 699,370 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 294,199 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 107,473 bales to Great Britain, of 7,252 to France, and of 108,841 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	—	to —
Ordinary	—	to —
Good Ordinary	24½	to 25
Low Middling	25½	to 26
Middling	—	to 27
Strict Middling	—	to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales	15256
Arrived past three days	268
Arrived previously	654040-654308
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc.	3239—657547
	672803
Exported past three days	1357
Exported previously	659608—660965
Stock on hand and on shipboard	11838

Sugar.—The market continues quiet and unchanged. The stock of Cuba now on hand is rather large for the demand. The only sales within our notice on Saturday were 90 hogsheads, on private terms, while business on Monday and Tuesday was confined to 150 boxes Cuba, Nos. 12 and 13, at 12⅛ to 13¼c. per pound, and 50 boxes, Nos. 19 and 20, at 15¼ to 15¾c. per pound. What little Louisiana sugar there is remaining in market is retailing slowly at 14½c. per pound for fair, 15¼ to 15⅝c. for prime, 16 to 16¼c. for yellow clarified, and 16½ to 17 for white.

Molasses.—Cuba molasses has been dull and depressed. The stock on hand is good. There is very little demand for distilling purposes. We heard of no transactions except 250 barrels Cuba, on Friday, at 46½c., and 107 hogsheads do. at 52½c. per gallon.

Cattle Market.

Jefferson City, Tuesday Evening, June 16, 1868.

Western Beef, choice, per lb net	12c to 15
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net	— to —
Texas Cattle, choice, per head	$35 to 40
Texas Cattle, 2d qual, per head	25 to 35
Texas Cattle, 3d qual, per head	12 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross	10c to 12
Sheep, 1st quality, per head	to 6 00
Sheep, 2d " "	to 3 00
Sheep, 3d " "	to 1 25
Milch Cows, choice, per head	80 to 125
Milch Cows, per head	50 to 87
Texas Cows, with Calves	— to 60
Yearlings, per head	6 to 12
Calves, per head	5 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 50	10 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	18 00
Spades	11 00	19 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₱ yard:
Kentucky	19	22
East India	22	24
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₱ lb	8½	9
Bran, ₱ 100 lbs		1 50
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs.: Pilot		7 50
Crackers	8 00
Bricks, Lake, ₱ M	13 00	14 00
English, Fire	45 00	50 00
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow		20
Adamantine	17	21
Star	18	25
Chocolate, No 1 ₱ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₱ bbl
Northern	13 00	15 00
Coal, Cannel ₱ ton		10 00
Anthracite ₱ ton
Western, ₱ barrel		55
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₱ lb	14½	18
Havana	45	55
Java	30	38
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	16 00
Hulled, ₱ bushel
Copper, Braziers' ₱ lb	35	36
Sheathing
Copper Bolts	35	36
Yellow Metal	28	29
Cordage, Manilla, ₱ lb	23	24
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₱ bbl	5 00
Dyes, ₱ lb:		3½
Logwood, Camp'y
St. Domingo	4
Fustic, Tampico	5
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 25	1 75
Madder	16	18
Eggs, ₱ doz. Western	12	14
Feathers, ₱ lb
Fish, Cod, ₱ box		70
Herrings	60
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl		22 00
——— No. 2		17 00
——— No. 3		13 00
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	4	6
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Superfine	8 50
Extra	9 00	14 50
Fine	7 50
Fruit, Prunes, ₱ lb		18
Figs, Drum	20	21
Dried Apples	7½	8
Currants, Zante	8	8½
Almonds, soft shell	30
Raisins, M R, ₱ box	none	here
——Layer	4 40	4 50
Lem's Sicily ₱ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₱ box
Oranges, La. ₱ 1000
Sicily ₱ box
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 80
10 x 12	3 90	4 00
12 x 18	4 40	4 90
Grain, ₱ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 85	2 90
Canada	2 90	3 10
Oats	77
Corn, shelled ₱ bushel	95	1 05
Beans, ₱ bbl	19 00	23 00
Hops, ₱ lb	25	45
Gunpowder, ₱ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₱ bag	20
Hay, Western, ₱ ton	19 00	20 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₱ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	16	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	9½	13
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₱ piece
Iron, Pig ₱ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₱ lb	5	6
English, ₱ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₱ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Boiler	8	9
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	7	7½
Castings, American	6½	8
Lime, Western ₱ bbl	1 65	1 90
Shell Lime	1 75
Rockland, &c.	2 25
Cement	3 00
Molasses, ₱ gallon:
Louisiana
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	75	85
Moss, ₱ lb:
Gray, Country	3
Black do	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	6½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₱ lb	5½	5¾
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₱ bbl:
Tar	3 00
Pitch	4 50	5 00
Rosin A No. 1	3 40	3 50
No. 2	3 00
No. 3	2 75
Spirits Turp ₱ gallon	42½
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₱ gallon	1 60
Coal Oil	39	42
in cases	50	55
Cotton Seed, Crude		85
Refined	1 05	1 10
Tanners' ₱ gallon	90	1 15
Oil Cake, Linseed ₱ ton
Cotton Seed		35 00
Meal
Provisions, ₱ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	20 00	21 00
" North half bbl.	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₱ lb	15	16
Tongues ₱ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess		29 50
Prime Mess		26 75
Hog, round, ₱ lb	13½
Bacon, Hams, ₱ lb	15
Do., canvassed	19	21
Sides	16	17
Shoulders	13¼	13½
Green Shoulders		13½
Lard, Prime, in tierces	18½
in kegs	20
Fair, in tierces
Butter, Northern	35	38
Western	22	28
Cheese, American	15	18
Potatoes, ₱ bbl	3 50	4 00
Onions	5 00	5 50
Green Apples
Rice, ₱ lb, Louisiana	6	11
India
Carolina	11½	12
Saltpetre, refined, ₱ lb	14	25
Crude	13	15
Salt ₱ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 50	2 55
from store	2 60	2 65
coarse, cargo
from warehouse	2 60	2 65
from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₱ bushel	1 90	2 00
Soap, ₱ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	18	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₱ lb:
In the city	14½	17
Havana, White	15	15½
Yellow	12½	14½
Brown	12	12½
Tobacco, in hhds, ₱ lb:
Balers & Cutters
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9½	12½
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	8	11
Good Refused	7	8
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₱ lb	60	80
Bailing	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₱ lb	32	34
Burry	10	15
Louisiana, Native	20	25
Texas, (@) Merino	26	28

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street.

Between Philip and First Streets.

NEW ORLEANS

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as references for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 83 Carondelet street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

Atlanta, February 13, 1868.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Colier's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D,
Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D,
Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wynn parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T. A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Colier, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible cure for Cancer

REV J F BELLAMY,
REV J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years. I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Colier's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar. I believe Dr Colier can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y Moore

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the cure—

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Colier

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES.

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $30.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's unabridged. Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sunday School Union's Biblical, and Anthon's Classical.

Books for

PRIZES, HOLIDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS,

beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care.

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound:

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell, $1 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, prepaid, for 50 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

fe29

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,
GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman, D D., LL D.
Rev. E Wadsworth, A M, D D,
O as , A M.
Rev. J C Wills, A M.
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term	$40 00
Incidental fee	5 00
Tuition in Preparat'y school per term	$30 to $35
Contingent fee	$2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights,	$20 to $25 per month.

All dues invariably in advance.

july 27-tf O F CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has a good school, which is designed to be permanent, in successful operation, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He would board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elementary Branches	$20 00
Higher Branches	25 00
Latin, Greek, etc	30 00
French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B. CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja 18-1 m

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.
WASHINGTON CO., VA.

On the 9th of January next we begin our Spring session. We invite those seeking Collegiate advantages to consider ours. To our Southern friends, desiring repose and exemption from many of their peculiar annoyances, our location and surroundings are especially attractive. One hundred and fifteen dollars will cover the expenses of a session of five months, including tuition, board, fuel, room rent, washing and contingent fee. A catalogue or other information can be obtained by addressing,

E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
[dec 7] Emory P. O., Va.

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin	60c.
Sent by mail at	70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a dnodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan	$1 50
" Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep	$1 25
Roan	1 50
Roan Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00
S. S. Bells (single)	$4 25 per doz.
" " (Double)	6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

july 27 1f

H. F. GIVEN, W. O. BROWN.
D. A. GIVEN, R. K. DUNKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186.....COMMON STREET.....186

feb3-67 1y

$100 A MONTH

SALARY WILL BE PAID FOR Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample, retailing at $4 50 for 50 cents. A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,
48 Broad street, New York.
[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 3m

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY,
308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(John Geddes—Jos. A. Shakspeare—S. Swoop.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 15 '67, 6m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondelet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

jan 26 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.,

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.,

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBURG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses Foundries and Steamboats. nov6 6m

T H HIGGINBOTHAM, C. W. HODGE W. E. MAYO,
New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants.

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS,
nly6 1y LA.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, Chinn and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS, Reps, Cornices, Bands, Pins, Rimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

J. L. DUNNICA. G. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 99 Poydras street, New Orleans, La.

Agents for the following brands of flour, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

McCutcheon Gordon & Co, choice XXX. W Rosborough & Co, choice XXX. Sucker State choice X. Sparta Mills choice superfine.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J L DUNNICA & CO.

sep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A fresh supply of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations; also Dr. Jones' Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE.

F. B. ALBERS, Agent,
No. 12 Baronne st., near Canal,
dec14 1y New Orleans.

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION

AND

FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

No. 64 North Commercial street.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Ragging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled: aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR,

AND

COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART, NEW ORLEANS
Late Stuart & James.

Represented by Capt. J. A. Binford, Duck Hill, Miss. 6e20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS,

General Commission Merchants,

And Commercial Agents. aug25 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchoupitoulas Street,

And 8 and 10 New Levee,

aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F O BARRIERE O W BABCOCK

F. G. BARIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

No. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.

n10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Wm. Edwards, Edwd. J. Gay. sep15 1y

J. O. ELLIS. W. C. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. jan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co.
SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 Union Street,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. C. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

ap7 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS,

New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Payne & Harrison)
Edward Harrison,
J. P. Harrison, jun.,
Sidney Harrison,
John N. Harrison. july7 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar7 6m

A. D. GRIEFF, Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st.,

aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS.

aug 8'67ly

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

COLGATE & CO.'S

FRAGRANT TOILET SOAPS are prepared by skilled workmen from the best materials, and are known as the Standard by dealers and consumers.

Sold everywhere. mar28 3m

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Custom-house Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

J. B. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS, M. J. WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

aly 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

57 Poydras street.

Cotton Office—192 Common street—In charge of Richard J. Nugent. aug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. R. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., corner Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. feb18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 32 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. Payne, G. W. Huntington,
W. H. Dameron, H. M. Payne.
je23-1y

G. M. STEIRER, THOS. C. SALTER

G. M. STEIRER & CO.

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market.)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves.

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER.

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar9-6m-67

D. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS.

AND

General Commission Merchants,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb2 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. M. SWENSON, N.Y., late of Austin, Tex. W. M. PERKINS, H. L. KENNION, Of Perkins & Co., N.O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

General Commission Merchants,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

s29 1y

K & S KEEP. I. CAULFIELD.

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oc18 1y

R. ATKINSON & CO: New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO., Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants

188 Common Street, New Orleans.

Cash advances made on consignments to us by Hewitt, Swisher & Co., Galveston, Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN,

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding

MERCHANT,

MONROE, LA

References: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Sandidge, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. L Walker, New Orleans, La. july 20

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 135 Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS

W. A. VIOLETT. R. Y. BLACE. S. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants

156m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans.

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D F. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

july 5 6m

F. L. RICHARDSON J. D. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW,

No. 5 Commercial Place,

fely New Orleans.

CANCERS CURED without pain. Circulars sent free of charge. Address DRS. BABCOCK & SON, apr4 3mp 700 Broadway, New York

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 23.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 685.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1868.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

For the Advocate.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

The Rev. Jason L. Jordan died at his residence, in Holmes county, Mississippi, March 31, 1868. He was born January 6, 1800, in Northampton county, North Carolina. He was of pious parents. He was the subject of early religious impressions. He was a spirited youth and quick to resent an insult, real or supposed, which again and again dispelled the pious impressions of his early years. He was of a lively disposition and passionately fond of society. These traits led him to scenes of drinking, where at times he indulged in drunkenness to an alarming extent. These orgies often resulted in outbreaks between himself and his companions. In these wranglings he was excessively profane. At such times, when wrought up to an uncontrollable pitch, his profanity was most intense and virulent. I have heard him advert to these scenes of sin and profligate wickedness in his experience in a love feast as "the story of his shame." This sort of life was not allowed to go unreproved by the memories of his early education, nor by the Holy Ghost. So terrible at times were the goadings of conscience that more than once he meditated self destruction. As a passenger, at one time, on one of our Southern steamers, he stood out upon the guard, thinking to bury himself beneath the waves of the peaceful flowing river, and was only deterred by the presence of persons whom he thought observant of his movements.

In early life he was married to Miss C. W. Hobbs, whose piety was a living admonition to his wayward ness and sin. During all this while he was a man of strict integrity, and truly upright in his dealings with his fellow-men.

During the year 1857 some of his children, including his two daughters, attended a camp meeting at C—— camp ground, Carroll county, Mississippi. The first intimation he had of the return of his children was seeing his daughter Jennie, (now Mrs. Wright,) at some work about the dairy. He had entered the back yard by a side gate, and was walking toward the house, when she saw her father, and hurried toward him. He saw that she was excited, but she did not speak until she reached him. Then throwing her arms round his neck, she said, "Pa, I mean to be a better girl." This, with her earnest expression, her tearful eyes, her affectionate caress, together with a thousand recollections, rushed upon his soul. He felt that it was more than he could endure. Almost rudely detaching his daughter's hands from his neck, he left the spot, hurrying away, governed by an impulse to be alone. Reaching a lonely part of his farm, he sank down in a tumult of feeling, terrible to be endured. He felt "that certainly he would die—that there and then God would kill him." How long he remained in that state of mind he knew not, but after the tempest of feeling had subsided, so that his ideas began to run a little more clearly, there in the silent hours of early night, he most solemnly vowed to God that if he would spare his life he would devote the remainder of his days to his service. When he thought himself sufficiently composed to meet his family, he returned to the house. He found his wife alone. She observed his unusual quietness. After a time she remarked: "There is a preacher in the other room." He was startled by the announcement. A revulsion of feeling ran over him which tended no little to shake his late resolutions. His notions of politeness compelled him to see his guest. Brother Abbey was more than usually pleasant and communicative. The late camp meeting came up as a subject of conversation. He spoke of the preaching, the unction, the praying, the singing, the conversions, and closed by alluding to the great work that had been done for his children. The manner in which this was told, and the idea that his children were the subjects of converting grace, together with what had passed between himself and one of them that evening, left him hardly in communication with man—he valued redeeming grace as he had never done before. Next morning, as his guest was leaving, according to his habit, he walked with him to the gate.—At parting Brother Abbey held him by the hand, and remarked in effect: "My dear friend, your children have made a wise start in religious life. I hope you will not leave them to go alone without you." This speech fixed the arrow of conviction deeper in his soul. For months he sorrowed and prayed over what he termed his "ruined condition." His business, his health, his family, were neglected. He had little to say to any one, not even to his wife and praying daughters, about the state of his mind. He was rather disposed to conceal his feelings, and in order to do this he pretended to spend his time in hunting. Before his family was ready he would partake of a slight breakfast, and with his gun repair to the woods. There he would spend his time, not in pursuit of game, but in lamenting over the accumulated sins of a long lifetime. Whether kneeling, sitting, standing or walking, the awful thought of being a sinner against God was ever present with his thoughts. His physical man wasted away under this mighty incubus of conscious guilt.

During these exercises of mind a protracted meeting was held in his immediate neighborhood. He was a faithful attendant at the altar for the prayers of the church. Not the prayers nor tears of his wife and children, nor exhortations of praying friends, sufficed to bring him to Christ during that series of services. He returned to his home with a pall of darkness upon his soul. Sad and disconsolate, he repaired again to the solitude of the fields and woods to ruminate upon his "lost and ruined condition." Before the close of that conference year, at the suggestion of Brother H. Williamson, who was then pastor of Black Hawk circuit, he joined the M. E. Church South, on probation, as a seeker of religion. The honest and unfaltering perseverance with which he sought the Lord made him a subject of the church's care and protection. Summer had departed; autumn, with its sear and sombre leaves, had strewed the earth. On a winter evening, while the sun in his roseate hues was painting upland and tree-top in beauty and gold, and throwing a halo of glory upon the light-floating clouds above, and was going down to leave the world to darkness, upon a retired part of his farm, beneath a beech tree held dear to memory upon his dying bed, wrestled Brother Jordan, Jacob like, pleading in accents of despair for mercy. Not the beauty of the evening, with its chilly breath, nor the gathering darkness, was aught to him as he looked in upon the night of his soul. The last extremity had been reached. In hopeless desperation of ever doing more, he would cease his prayers, still his agonizing, and dry his tears. If "Christ could save him, let him do it." There, what was that! A strange warning filled his heart, a new light and joy flooded his soul. His load was gone! What did it mean? Must he rejoice now! Nay, he could not suppress it—"glory to God" burst from his lips! He felt and saw that it was the Cross which had done it, and through the remainder of his life did he try most faithfully to adorn that Cross with glory.

I have heard him state, in health, that from the hour of his conversion his appetite for intoxicating drink was gone, nor did he ever feel the slightest impulse to swear. He believed, as our holy religion teaches can be done, that the very roots of these sins were removed. He was a powerful, living argument in favor of the truth of the gospel. Men who doubted the truth of religion, but did not inquire of the doctrines themselves, grew silent before the mighty change wrought and maintained in the character and person of Brother Jordan.

Early after conversion he felt it his duty to do more than act the part of a private member of the church." Following this impression, he offered himself for the ministry. In 1859 he was licensed to preach by the fourth quarterly meeting of Black Hawk circuit. In 1866 he was recommended and elected to deacon's orders, but was never ordained. As a local preacher he was ardent and zealous, in season and out of season, often traveling to a distance to labor for the good of souls. In his own neighborhood he would visit, doing the work of a pastor, and often, by conversation, song or prayer, he would leave the luke-warm in a better frame of mind. He has been known to stop the soldier upon the highway in the midst of his profanity, and, preaching to him Jesus, would leave him in tears.

During a series of protracted meetings, held in the fall of 1866, his health broke down. He returned to his home a confirmed consumptive. For almost eighteen months he survived but to suffer. Through those long months, no tongue can tell the agony he endured. He never murmured. He was sometimes distressed lest in his agony he should inadvertently complain against God. He was resigned, ready to depart, but willing to live and suffer if it was God's righteous will. As he neared his end his breathing became more difficult. Congestion increased his agony. At one time he called out, as if speaking to a son who had been dead some years before. His last words were: "Now, Lord, take me." Then speaking to his children, who held him up that he might breathe, he said: "Lay me down and let me die." Thus passed away one dear to the memory of many. Perhaps no subject was more common with him than the warning of the young against putting off their return to God until old age, as he had done. "God buries his workmen, yet carries on his work."

Joseph D. Newsom.

Southern Presbyterian Churches.—At the late session of the Old School Presbyterian General Assembly, held at Albany, the following preamble and resolutions in relation to the synods that separated from said assembly during the war were adopted:

Whereas, The Synods of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Memphis, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia, with the several presbyteries under their care, have, with the exception of the Presbytery of New Orleans, in the Synod of Mississippi, voluntarily withdrawn from our connection, and organized themselves into a separate church; therefore,

Resolved, That the permanent clerk is directed to drop their names from the list of our synods and presbyteries, and they are no longer to be regarded as a part of the Presbyterian Church under the care of this assembly, with the exception of the Presbytery of New Orleans, which is hereby attached to the Synod of Nashville.

Resolved, That the assembly does hereby recognize the organization into which these synods have formed themselves as a separate and independent church, sustaining to us the same relation which we accord to other branches of the Presbyterian Church, and hereafter it is to be treated accordingly by all the courts under our care.

Resolved, That the assembly also takes this occasion to say that while it cannot justify these brethren in separating themselves from the church of their fathers, it regrets their withdrawal, and expresses the earnest hope that they may see their way clear to return to their former relations.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Washington, June 17.—Since the name of Chase was first mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination Mr. Johnson has taken an unusual interest in the proposed convention. He has frequently expressed his preference for Chase, to those who introduced the subject to him, over all the other candidates. In his opinion the nomination of Chase would be the harbinger of victory for the Democrats, and his election would bring peace and quiet to the country, besides doing away with military rule and restoring the reign of law and order. During the conversation last evening the President frankly expressed the hope that the Democratic convention would have the wisdom and policy to nominate Chase, around whom the conservatives and the Constitution loving masses of the country could rally. If this was done he (Johnson) would do his utmost to insure the success of the ticket. The Chief Justice thanked the President for his kindness, and expressed his willingness to accept the nomination on the platform embracing the living issues of the day.

Washington, June 20.—The following is the President's message vetoing the Arkansas bill:

"The approval of this bill would be an admission that the act for the more efficient government of the rebel States, and acts supplemental thereto, were proper and constitutional. Whereas, the President's opinion is unchanged in this respect, but rather strengthened by results attending their execution. If Arkansas is not a State, then this bill does not admit her. If she is a State, no legislation is necessary to her representation in Congress. Each House, under the Constitution, judges the election returns and qualifications of its own members, and nothing is necessary to restore Arkansas but the decision of each House of the eligibility of those presenting credentials. If this plain and simple plan of the Constitution had been adopted in 1865, instead of legislation of doubtful constitutionality, and therefore unwise and dangerous, restoration would long since have been accomplished. The President again recommends the adoption of the constitutional plan. The terms proposed are scarcely applicable to a territory, certainly not to a State which has occupied a place in the Union for over a quarter of a century. The President is unable to find any authority for the conditions of the bill in the Federal Constitution. The election franchise is reserved by the Constitution to the States themselves. The bill fails to provide how Arkansas shall signify her acceptance of the fundamental conditions, nor does it prescribe penalties for their nullification. It is seriously questioned whether the constitution has been ratified according to the law assumed to be in force before its adoption. The Arkansas constitution restricted franchise on its ratification by tests unknown in the reconstruction acts—among them the acceptance of the political and civil rights of all men. It is well known that a large portion—if not a large majority—of electors do not accept this test, and if applied to voters North there is reason to believe many of them would remain away from the polls rather than comply with its degrading conditions."

The President concludes: "Should the people of Arkansas, therefore, desiring to regulate the elective franchise so as to make it conform to the constitutions of a large proportion of the States of the North and West, modify the provisions referred to in the fundamental condition, what is to be the consequence? Is it intended that a denial of representation shall follow, and if so, may we not dread at some future day a recurrence of the troubles which have so long agitated the country? Would it not be the part of wisdom to take for our guide the Federal Constitution, rather than resort to measures which, looking only to the present, may in a few years renew in an aggravated form the strife and bitterness caused by legislation which has proved to be ill-timed and unfortunate?"

Washington, June 20.—Speculative calculations by very high Democratic authority fix the chances for the nomination at New York as follows: Pendleton 2 in 10; Chase 2 in 10; Hancock, Doolittle, Hendricks, Dix and half a dozen others rauge lower. Close and impartial reading indicates that Chase's chances are very good, and equally close and impartial watching here demonstrates that Chase desires and that patient friends are working assiduously for his nomination.

Washington, June 20.—The bill introduced into Congress providing for the division of Texas into three separate States, apportions the territory as follows: All between the Colorado and the Rio Grande, up to thirty-two degrees north latitude, into South Texas. All between the Colorado and a line formed by the centre of Galveston Bay and San Jacinto and Trinity rivers, and thence north to the Red river, remains as the State of Texas. All east of the last-named line forms the State of East Texas. Of the population, the proposed division would assign not far from 500,000 to East Texas, 400,000 to Texas, and 300,000 to South Texas.

Taking these small populations as a basis for State representation, our readers will at once see how, with negro suffrage, and by constantly carving up the South, Radical power in the Senate will be perpetuated for all time. That such is part of the party programme there cannot be a shadow of doubt.—N. O. Times.

Jackson, Miss., June 29.—The following dispatch, relative to the removal of Gov. Humphreys and Attorney General Hooker, was received to day at the Democratic Executive Committee rooms from Washington:

Gen. J. D. Freeman: Removals disapproved and reasons demanded.
BEVERLY MATTHEWS.

Humphreys and Hooker are canvassing the State in opposition to the proposed constitution. The Democrats claim that they will carry the State by 20,000 majority. The election begins on Monday, the 22d.

Washington, June 22.—Sumner presented a memorial for the establishment of a government bank, contemplating the payment of the national debt without further taxation. Referred to the Committee on Finance.

The Arkansas admission bill passed over the veto by a party vote.

London, June 22.—The advance of the returning Abyssinian expedition has reached Plymouth, and the rear has reached Alexandria.

London, June 22.—In the House of Commons to-day Stanley agreed with the recommendation of the neutrality commission, but legislation on the subject is not possible this session.

A review of Farragut's fleet took place at Ostend to-day. The King and Queen of Belgium passed through the fleet, when the usual salutes were fired.

A mutiny occurred on an American clipper at Antwerp, which was repressed after a sharp fight.

The anniversary of the death of Maximilian was solemnly observed by Carlotta and the Belgium royal family, at Locher.

It is reported that E. C. Cushman, the American consul at Rome, has been recalled.

London, June 22.—The Queen of Madagascar is dead.

Alexandria, Egypt, June 22.—The steamship Urgent, with Napier and staff and Prince Alfred, has just departed homeward.

WHAT WAS GAINED IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

We quote from the New York Herald of the 16th:

The telegraph informed us yesterday that the Democrats had gained a majority of the districts in South Carolina at the recent local elections, having secured sixteen out of the thirty-one districts. There are about five white districts in the State—Spartanburg, Oconee, Greenville, Anderson and Chesterfield. But this gives only a faint idea of the extraordinary reaction in the popular vote in the State as compared with the vote on the new constitution. We find that in Union county the Democratic gain has been nearly two thousand, in Kershaw over seventeen hundred, in Laurens over thirteen hundred, in Chester over one thousand, and so on throughout the State. These local elections show the strength of the Conservatives in South Carolina, and are indicative of what they are capable of doing when they bring out their entire force.

Jackson, Miss, June 23.—To-day, at 12 o'clock, General Biddle, commander of the post, demanded the surrender of the governor's office. Governor Humphreys refused to vacate, when General Biddle asked if he would have to use force in order to get possession. General Biddle then brought in a squad of soldiers, and took forcible possession of the office. Governor Humphreys has fitted up another room, and claims to be Governor of Mississippi.

The election commenced yesterday for the ratification of the proposed constitution. Thirty-nine precincts have been heard from, giving a Democratic majority of over 2,000. The Radicals carried 10 of the 39 boxes. They have the American flag printed on the back of their tickets.

The following scattering returns of the voting yesterday, for and against the constitution, are given for the information of our readers: Water Valley, Democrats 462, Radicals 7; Vaiden, Democrats 300, Radicals 25; Springdale, Democrats 140, Radicals 1; Norton, Democratic majority 312; West Station, Democratic majority 200; Fair River precinct, Democratic majority 17; three precincts in Copiah county, Democratic majority 160.

Washington, June 23.—The Arkansas Senators were seated on the motion of Howard, without division.

There is reason to expect that the President will issue a proclamation of general amnesty, to take effect on the fourth of July.

The President to-night received a dispatch from Jackson, Miss., dated to-day, stating that that State has gone largely Democratic, the constitution being defeated by the colored vote.

London, June 24.—Farragut has arrived at Southampton.

Sunday next has been appointed as a day of thanksgiving and prayer for the Abyssinian success.

Baron Von Beust declares that the bishop's threats will not prevent the enforcement of the law concerning confessional.

The pope's allocution says: The concordat with Austria should have been perpetual in its effects, and he warns the spiritual of the pains attached to its violation. He granted amnesty, with few exceptions, to all persons who invaded papal territory last year.

London, June 24.—It is reported that Italy has announced, in a diplomatic note, her determination to observe strict neutrality between France and Prussia in the event of a war between those powers.

Selma, June 24.—Yesterday the Tuscaloosa Monitor was suppressed, under an order of Gen. Shepherd, for an alleged violation of General Order No. 51.—Randolph, its editor, has avoided arrest, and will proceed at once to Washington to lay the facts before the President and Gen. Grant.

Conversion of Children Expected.

It cannot be God's purpose that for fourteen or sixteen years children should grow up unregenerate—children of the devil—and then by a violent revolution, a conversion, great change of heart and life, become his children. If they have grown up in sin, we cannot be too thankful for the grace that converts them. But why should they grow up in sin? Is it not God's injunction that we 'bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord?' And if we obey, shall we not, as a rule, realize the great promise of their pious manhood? As a rule, we say—for exceptions there will be, as there are to every law; no culture will always insure goodness—the tenderest father may mourn his reckless and heartless prodigal; the holiest home may be forsaken for the far country of riotous living; but the exception does not abrogate the law; piety will be the general issue of a pious and wise education. Children trained for God will be found God's children; nurtured for heaven, will be found in heaven.

May not our want of faith in this issue be one great reason why we so frequently fail to realize it? Do we not almost take for granted an unspiritual childhood? Is not our commonest idea of a child's piety connected with a conversion in advanced youth? And where this is the expectation it will almost necessarily color our feelings, give a hesitating character to our efforts, and dash our prayer with latent unbelief. Oh, if we fully expected that our children would be consecrated from the womb, and trained them and prayed for them in the strong, glowing, enthusiastic faith of such an expectation, how much more of heart, and vigor, and joy, there would be in our training, and how much oftener we should see its blessed result!

Assuredly nothing can be more unscriptural, more unbelieving, more godless, than morbid fears, and almost expectation, that the children whom God gives as his 'heritage' will be the children of the devil—sinful and reprobate—that they will break the heart of the mother that bore them, and 'bring down their father's gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.' This is the spirit of fear and not of faith.—Rev. Henry Allon.

There is no dungeon so dark and dismal as the mean man's mind.

THE GYPSY CAMP.

FROM "THE SPANISH GYPSY," BY GEO. ELIOT.

Quit now the town, and with a journeying dream
Swift as the wings of sound, yet seeming slow
Through multitudinous compression of stored sense
And spiritual space, see walls and towers
Lie in the silent whiteness of a trance,
Giving no sign of that warm life within
That moves and murmurs through their hidden heart.
Pass o'er the mountain, wind in sombre shade,
Then wind into the light and see the town
Shrunk to white crest upon the darken rock.
Turn east and south, descend, then rise again
'Mid smaller mountains ebbing toward the plain:
Scent the fresh breath of the height loving herbs
That, trodden by the pretty parted hoofs
Of nimble goats, sigh at the innocent bruise,
And with a mingled difference exquisite
Pour a sweet burden on the buoyant air.
Pause now and be all ear. Far from the south,
Seeking the listening silence of the heights,
Comes a slow-dying sound—the Moslems' call
To prayer in afternoon. Bright in the sun,
Like tall white sails on a green shadowy sea,
Stand Moorish watch towers; 'neath that eastern sky
Couches unseen the strength of Moorish Baza;
Where the meridian beats like Gnadix, hold
Of brave El Zagal. This is Moorish land,
Where Allah lives unconquered in dark breasts
And blesses still the many-nourishing earth
With dark-armed industry. See from the steep
The scattered olives burry in gay throngs
Down toward the valley, where the little stream
Parts a green hollow 'twixt the gentler slopes;
And in that hollow, dwellings: not white homes
Of building Moors, but little swarthy tents
Such as of old perhaps on Asian plains,
Or wending westward past the Caucasus,
Our fathers raised to rest in. Close they swarm
About two taller tents, and viewed afar
Might seem a dark-robed crowd in penitence
That silent kneel; but come now in their midst
And watch a busy, bright-eyed, sportive life!
Tall maidens bend to feed the tethered goat,
The ragged kirtle fringing at the knee
Above the living curves, the shoulder's smoothness
Parting the torrent strong of ebon hair.
Women with babes, the wild and neutral glance
Swayed now to sweet desire of mothers' eyes,
Rock their strong cradling arms, and chant low strains
Taught by monotonous and soothing winds
That fall at night-time on the dozing ear.
The crones plait reeds, or shred the vivid herbs
Into the caldron; tiny urchins crawl
Or sit and gurgle forth their infant joy.
Lads lying sphinx-like with uplifted breast
Propped on their elbows, their black manes tossed back,
Fling up the coin and watch its fatal fall,
Dispute and scramble, run and wrestle fierce,
Then fall to play and fellowship again;
Or in a thieving swarm they run to plague
The grandsires, who return with rabbits slung,
And with the mules fruit-laden from the fields.
Some striplings choose the smooth stones from the brook
To serve the slingers, cut the twig from snares,
Or trim the hazel-wands, or at the bark
Of some exploring dog they dart away
With swift precision toward a moving speck.
These are the brood of Zarca's Gypsy tribe;
Most like an earth-born race bred by the Sun
On some rich tropic soil, the father's light
Flashing in coal-black eyes, the mother's blood
With bounteous elements feeding their young limbs.
The stalwart men and youths are at the wars
Following their chief, all save a trusty band
Who keep strict watch along the northern heights.

For the Advocate.

The Education of Young Ministers.

SUMMERFIELD, Ala., June 9, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: You see from the heading that I am not in favor of educating young men for the ministry, but educating them in the ministry. Let the proper authorities of the church satisfy themselves that the candidate is called of God to the work of the ministry, and then taking him in hand, see to it that he has those literary qualifications which are essential to respectability and usefulness in his high and holy vocation. This, I think, is the true policy in the premises, and the solemn duty of the church faithfully and fully to carry out in all cases in which the candidates have not the means within themselves. But some will say: when God calls a young man to the ministry, does he not qualify him for the work? I answer, emphatically, not fully. He gives him supplies to start on—not to last him through the journey. His Maker bestows upon him the gracious qualifications of heart, and gives him time and talents to read and to study, that he may make himself a workman that need not be ashamed. The question simply resolves itself to this: where can a young man best qualify himself for the work of the ministry—on a circuit or in some well-chosen church institution? My decided opinion is that he can do best, at least for a few years—say one or two, and sometimes more—in the school room, and for the following reasons: I would not close his mouth, which God has bid him open in warning sinners, but I would have him preach as much as a young man just beginning; in all probability, ought to preach, and at the same time prosecute his studies. Let him preach on the Sabbath: let him hold prayer meetings among the students, in the country around, at night, sometimes on Sabbath evening: let him establish Sunday schools in the neighborhood. Surely here is work enough.

If these young men had necessarily to shut themselves up in the school room for years, without any chance to labor, I should doubt the policy. But let them read and apply, study and digest—read books and talk to men, too—and the probability is that they may be as useful in their course of preparation for the ministry as they would be if they were engaged exclusively in the work of a circuit or station. And while pursuing this preparatory course they become personally acquainted with men of literary pursuits, and not only by precept, but by example, learn how to study. Here they have access to books, learn their names, find out not only where the rich ore of learning lies, but also how to penetrate the vein, become intimate with those engaged in the same pursuits with themselves, and by the friction of mind with mind are excited to effort and emulation, and in this way a foundation broad and firm is laid, for future success and usefulness, which never could be laid without these early advantages.

But right here we are met with the formidable objection that many of our greatest men had no such early advantages. Eminent bishops, learned divines, eloquent orators, mighty men who have shaken the continent by their tread, had no school but a circuit, and no library except such as they carried in their saddlebags. These men were great in spite of opposition, and probably would have been far more eminent with these early advantages; and, what is more, many a man who is now groping his way in obscurity would, by these early appliances, have been pushed forward into the foremost ranks of position and usefulness.

My thoughts have been called to this subject in various ways recently, and I confess my heart is full of it. The church, I fear, is slumbering over one of her dearest interests at this point, and altogether unconscious of her solemn duty in this regard. My object is to wake her up to a sense of her duty and responsibility, and I invoke your aid, Mr. Editor. Call public attention to the subject—write an article yourself. Let the church journals speak out once and again; perhaps they will hear you, though they pass me by in silence. But some will ask: where are the young men to be educated? I will tell you presently. Let the church make the needed preparation, and announce the fact, and they will come. Like George Muller's orphan asylum, no sooner was the house ready than it was filled with occupants.

And now let me tell you how I know that there are a plenty of young men abroad in the country, of the type above described, who would willingly come at such a call. At the last Mobile Conference we formed a society for the purpose of aiding young ministers in preparing for admission into the conference, and I was appointed its president. This has brought me in communication with this class of men. At that time we had but one on the funds of the society. One other was provided for gratuitously. Since the conference we have taken three others, and I don't know how many applications have been made to me to take others, whom we have been compelled to reject for the want of funds. One of these young men is at Greensboro', the other four at this place—Summerfield. They are all young men of piety, and, if I mistake not, of great promise to the church. O, ye friends of Zion, is not here a rich treasure, to be guarded, to be developed, and to be invested in future church enterprises? The young men at this place are costing the society nothing. The worthy superintendent of the male school at this place is instructing all these young men gratuitously, and he is illy able to do it in these days of small schools and unpaying scholars. And as to their board, the noble-hearted people of the community are doing as old field teachers used to do—boarding around among the scholars. The families here take them one or two months at a time, and thus pass them around, of course, gratuitously, or nearly so. This falls rather heavily upon some of us, since we have been robbed and ruined. This was once a rich church. I have heard it estimated at one and a half million dollars, at least. Now there are but two men among us worth as much as ten thousand dollars. This amount, added to our necessary church expenses, falls rather heavily upon us these times.

This community has always stood in the front rank among stations in this conference, small as it is, in responding to calls for missionary money, conference collections, endowment of the Book Concern, and all other enterprises of the church. I have a great mind to do as the apostle did—boast a little of the liberality of this small, obscure community in other days, when we had something. In the year 1864 this little place voluntarily contributed to the various calls of the church and country forty-five thousand dollars. I know whereof I affirm. But these were the days when we had something, and when that great and good man, Col. R. A. Baker, towered among us like a pillar of strength in all the benevolent operations of the church. We cannot do as we used to do, and therefore we call upon our brethren to help. Who now will send us ten, twenty, or fifty dollars to help these young men, struggling with poverty, to make themselves useful to us and our children. Come, brethren, let us look at this subject in the light of eternity. Many of us made a poor use of our money when we had it in abundance. Let us use the little we now have in such a way that the Judge may say: "Well done, good and faithful servants." Whoever will respond, let him send the amount to Dr. Weir, the treasurer, at Greensboro', or to me at this place.

A. H. MITCHELL.

BEAUTIFUL DEATH SCENE.—When one of Martin Luther's children lay on her death-bed, the great man approached her and said to her, 'My dear little daughter, my beloved Margaret, you would willingly remain with your earthly parents; but, if God calls you, you will go with your heavenly Father.' 'Yes, dear father; it is as God pleases.' 'Dear little girl!' he exclaimed, 'O how I love you!' 'The spirit is willing but the flesh is weak.' He then took the Bible and read to her the passage: 'Thy dead men shall live; together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing ye that dwell in the dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead.' He then said, 'My daughter, enter thou into thy resting place in peace.' She turned her eyes toward him, and said, with touching simplicity, 'Yes, father.'

ENGAGING MANNERS.—There are a thousand pretty, engaging little ways, which every person may put on without running the risk of being deemed affected or foppish.—The sweet smile, the cordial bow, the earnest movement in addressing a friend, the inquiring glance, the graceful attention which is so captivating when united with self-possession—these will insure us the good regards of even a churl. Above all, there is a certain softness of manner which should be cultivated, and which, in either man or woman, adds a charm that almost entirely compensates for lack of beauty, and inestimably enhances the latter if it does exist.

VESUVIUS.

BY DR. LIPSCOMB.

We dismounted and began the rough ascent. Imagine now a great, stormy, inky sea suddenly calmed—suddenly petrified, its billows twisted into one another and corded and twined one around another—and the blackness all remaining—and an iron-like strength settling into every line and curve—and the forms and shapes changing endlessly—and then you have the scene. Here it looked like the roots of an immense forest charred and heaved up by a convulsion—there like a huge multitude of colossal lions that in furious fight had been instantly transformed into dark bronze figures; farther on, anacondas and all sorts of mighty serpents rolled together and bound in vast bundles. The hidden seas of violence—away, away down, deep down in fathomless midnight—had surged out in unloosed strength, and around the mountain's side had checked their omnipotence and hushed their raging.

This was the work of years gone by. Not remote, we came to another scene.

It had a dull, heavy, red look. We approached nearer. The opening crevices soon revealed their contents—and there was the tide of lava! Over it a crust had formed, but you could easily penetrate it and see the fiery glow. A large area was in this state. Not far from our position was a sort of bluff or ball of the burning mass, and at intervals large blocks, blazing, would roll off from the other portion, and with a hissing noise fall down the mountain side. It was a precipice of fire, if I may so represent it, and much the most striking point in the whole range of my eye.—Everywhere over the kindled acres the smoke was rising in thin columns and floating away toward the sky, while 1,500 feet or more above our heads stood the great cone with its issuing clouds. The rumbling noise of the crater was intermittent. There was no constant sound except from the burning near us, and that was scarcely audible. But to the eye, the appearance was indescribably impressive. If so many things in the world were not solemn and even awful, one might apply these terms to such a phenomenon; but the sight was so peculiar, the feeling in its close presence so profound, the grandeur so thoroughly silencing to all language, that really one must have very weak sensations, and still weaker perceptions, who undertakes to convey more than a general idea of its amazing sublimity.

The heat was intense. This, however, was easily controlled by changing our standing-place. After awhile I began to feel weary from scrambling up and over the rugged surface. But I soon found that the heated slope of Vesuvius, added to the excitement of physical exertion, was not the place for rest. The warmth, while I was seated, became very oppressive; the air around me had the undulatory movement which you have observed in very hot summer days, the vibrations, however, being more rapid, and smiting the skin with a keenly-penetrating force. I rallied in a few moments from the fatigue, and the zest of the hour returned upon me with a quickening vitality. Hard by was another variety of the scene which caught my attention. It was a vent in the form of a funnel, the rocks having been thrown together so as to construct a sort of chimney, and presenting a singular imitation of regularity in the midst of the broken and confused masses everywhere visible. Approaching it as closely as possible, I tried to look down into the aperture, and so far succeeded as to have an instant's glance at the glowing furnace, which was quite enough for my eyes, if not for my curiosity. Around the top a whitish substance, tinged with yellow, lay upon the cooler lava, that bore some resemblance to the figures formed by the frost, and which I supposed to be sulphur. Yet neither here nor elsewhere was the appearance of the lava precisely what I had expected. So far from its being a continuous stream of fire, roaring and dashing down the mountain, it is more like a slowly-moving bed of coals; but when you thrust a stick into it and open the external crust, you immediately see the blazing channel. The extent of this fiery mass I had no means of ascertaining; its breadth was represented to me at 400 feet. The entire surface from which smoke was rising at different points was estimated by a party present at 300 acres, but such guess-work is extremely uncertain, and I merely allude to them that you may have some general idea of the burning volume.

Beyond this mass of gray and black lava lying below the great cone, and interspersed as just described, with streaks and precipices of fire, we made no effort to ascend. To toil up a wall of ashes at an angle of forty-five degrees, and to a height of 1,506 feet, would scarcely have repaid the exertion, even if I had had the muscular strength for such a task. Instead of a romantic adventure of this sort, I was sufficiently prosaic as well as hungry to find as comfortable a seat as could be commanded; and, to give you the whole story, toasted some bread by the coals, fried a piece of meat, ate both with a hearty relish, and then took something else from my pocket and borrowed a coal from Vesuvius to light it.

On my walk back to the place where our horses were left, I was more than ever impressed by the sublimity of the landscape. Such a picture of desolation as spread all around; such a conception of volcanic agency as these vast piles presented; such contrasts between their former tumultuous heavings and their still grandeur now; these united to create an image in my mind to which no past experience furnishes a parallel. The history of eighteen centuries, recording in language that cannot be misunderstood, the power of Vesuvius, lay right before me on an open page. Scarred and seamed was that broad page; rifted, too, and blurred; but its truths and their mighty meanings, who could pervert or who fail to feel, or who need the aid of imagination to vitalize thought?

As I descended the long slope to the town, the soil was there rich and fruitful, that Vesuvius had given for the vine and orange. The various forms of luxuriant vegetation; the luscious fruits that convert sunshine and air into nutriment and joy for our blood; the three harvests of the year that these fields are said to yield, what are they but the ashes of Vesuvius? And so what was once destruction is now life—what once seemed wrath is changed to mercy. A thought this, that we do well to remember. At last the terrible volcano is only another form of the goodness that rules the world.

And as I took my final look at the most beautiful landscape I ever saw, the sun descending in pomp of splendor, the Bay of Naples reposing in the embrace of the shadowing hills and gleaming in the varied hues of the closing day, I could but think that Vesuvius was worthy to be the central glory in such a scene of magnificence.

That old Sinai of Fire which rises from this plain utters, day by day, night by night, one of the primal laws of nature's code. And God has given it the voice of proclamation; and science, whenever truthful to itself, is but fulfilling in humbler measure the ministry of Moses in the Sinai of the wilderness by interpreting to us the wisdom and grace of its utterance.—Southern Christian Advocate.

WATCH YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES!—Clergymen, parents, superintendents, teachers, watch your Sunday school libraries! Do you know the character of the books you are giving out? Parents, do you feel entirely satisfied, as your child sits absorbed in his Sunday school book, that he is keeping God's holy day, and reading that which will raise his mind to heavenly things, and fill his heart with love toward God and toward the kind earthly relations God has given him? Strange books creep into Sunday school libraries sometimes.

'Well, John,' said a Sunday school teacher a few Sundays ago, 'what was your library book about?'—'Oh! just like all Mayne Reid's books, sir; about a girl and a fine horse!' Mayne Reid's book in a Sunday school library!

'Ah!' said a young lady of our acquaintance, 'if you give out novels in your Sunday school I think I will come!' 'Novels?' 'Yes, novels; Susie brought home Adele today, and says you have all Miss Kavanaugh's works, and plenty of others.'

A word to the wise is sufficient. Examine your libraries, and if these things have crept in, weed them out without delay. Obtain from an honest bookseller a priced catalogue of Sunday school library books and imported religious works, and from the large and attractive variety to be found there select a sufficient number to fill the place of the trash spoken of with good books. Your child had better never acquire a taste for reading than to gratify it with foolish and wicked books. The Sunday school library is certainly no place for them; and a fearful responsibility rests upon those who put into the hands of young persons such unhealthy stimulants and moral poison as the pernicious class of works above referred to, and especially when issued from a source whence we ought to have no reason to suspect danger.—American Churchman.

TO HAVE vegetables of a good color, put them into boiling water, and let the water boil, but allow no lid on the kettle. Peas and asparagus, especially, are kept of a fine green color by this treatment.

NAPOLEON is trying to reclaim the great African Desert by means of drove wells. He has succeeded in getting down one hundred, and around them the barren sand has been changed to beautiful gardens.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

Our venerable mother, Mrs. Jane Baker, of Friendsburg, Baltimore county, is no more. She passed calmly and peacefully away, on the 18th ult., in the 84th year of her age.

Thus has been dissolved another of those fast-going links which bind the present generation of Methodists with the former. Seventy-three years had she stood in the ranks of our Israel, a worthy and beautiful exemplar of its true primitive character and spirit. Many of us will ever remember how, in latter years, she loved to linger upon other days, to recall former scenes, to recount the heroic labors of the early itinerants, to speak of the holy life of her honored father, Richard Jones, who had been received into the Methodist society, in Liverpool, England, by the immortal Wesley himself, and to tell, with tender emotion,

Of the blest hour, when from above,
She first received the pledge of love.

Yet all this was with no spirit of harsh complaint, or of severe judgment, as to changes which are apparent in later days, but with a sweetness, a simplicity, an unaffected humility, a grateful recognition of the hand of Providence in all things, which it was most refreshing to behold. Perfectly simple an unostentatious in all her tastes and habits; genial and pleasant to the last in social intercourse; full of kind and tender considerations for others, whether young or old, rich or poor; abundant and constant in acts of benevolence and goodness; and, above all, affording a consistent example of genuine piety in its most artless and beautiful form, she threw around her life a charm, which has left an impression on all who knew her that can never be effaced. During her last sickness her ripeness for glory became more and more apparent. She seemed lost in the precious influences of love divine—frequently testifying to her love for God, and expressing her great love for her friends, and for everybody; bearing witness to the efficacy of the sustaining grace of God, and rejoicing in the glorious prospect of a blissful immortality, yet in a spirit of the deepest humility, seemingly amazed at the goodness of God to her, and declaring, again and again, that it was 'All of grace! All of grace!' The hours immediately preceding her dissolution were passed, for the most part, in a state of unconsciousness. Once, however, she roused in the middle of the night, and sweetly asked why it was that Jesus should be so sweet to her, and then, before sinking back again into the heavy slumber from which she waked no more, she repeated those lines, which form the dying testimony of so many thousands:

"Jesus can make a dying bed
Feel soft as downy pillows are;
While on his breast I lean my head,
And breathe my life out sweetly there."

No more shall we see her going in and coming out of the house of the Lord, bending at the holy table, or rising to bear an humble testimony to the goodness of God; no more shall we be cheered by her step, her voice, her presence, in the home of her childhood and her old age; no more shall we behold her the venerated and honored head of pleasant family gatherings in the hospitable homes of her children and grandchildren; no more shall we meet her on earth, but we find consolation in the hope which soothed our hearts as we bore her away from the venerable shades and hallowed associations of the old homestead, to lay her to rest in the quiet spot where repose husband, children, friends—that she lives and rejoices now in that home on high, that "house above, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."—W., in Baltimore Episcopal Methodist.

THE ROCKS OF CALVARY.—In Fleming's "Christology" it is stated that an unbeliever, visiting the sacred places of Palestine, was shown the clefts of Mount Calvary. Examining them narrowly and critically, he turned in amazement to his fellow-travelers, and said, "I have long been a student of nature, and I am sure that the rents and clefts in this rock were never done by nature, or an ordinary earthquake; by such a concussion the rock must have split according to its veins, and where it was weakest in the adhesion of parts; for this," he said, "I have observed to have been done in other rocks when separated or broken after an earthquake; and reason tells me it must always be so. But it is quite otherwise here; for the rocks are split athwart and across the veins, in a strange and preternatural manner, and therefore," said he, "I thank God that I came hither to see the standing monument of miraculous power by which God gives evidence to this day of the divinity of Christ."

THE real object of education is to give children resources that will endure as long as life endures; habits that will ameliorate, not destroy; occupations that will render sickness tolerable, solitude pleasant, age venerable, life more dignified and useful, and death less terrible.—Rev. Sydney Smith.

DAVID.

BY DR. GUTHRIE.—NO. IV.

The use and profit of his afflictions:

When Queen Mary, by her marriage, was about to plunge herself and the kingdom of Scotland into dark and bloody troubles, Knox publicly condemned the step. For this she summoned the bold reformer to her presence, complained bitterly of his conduct, and saying, "I vow to God I shall be revenged," burst into a flood of tears. Waiting till she had composed herself, he proceeded calmly to make his defence. It was triumphant; but produced no other effect on Mary than to exasperate her passions. Again she began to sob, and weep with great bitterness. While Erskine, the friend of both, and a man of mild and gentle spirit, tried to mitigate her grief and resentment by praising her beauty and accomplishments, Knox continued silent—waiting with unaltered countenance till the queen had given vent to her feelings. Then explaining how he was constrained to sustain her tears rather than hurt his conscience and by his silence betray the commonwealth, he protested that he never took delight in the distress of any creature; and that so far from rejoicing in her majesty's tears, it was with great difficulty he could see his own boys weep when he corrected them for their faults.

In this beautiful expression we see the feelings of every father; and in these a faithful, though feeble, reflection of the kind heart of God. In no case does He afflict his people willingly; and always for their good.

"We have had fathers of our flesh," says an apostle, "which corrected us, and we gave them reverence. Shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of our spirits, and live? For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure, but He for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness." A glorious object; and what precious consolation to his people—to them we may address in the words of the prophet: "O thou afflicted, tossed with tempest, and not comforted?" Why not comforted? God beats his people, but it is to make them better; nor when blow follows on the back of blow are their trials other than the strokes of the flail on a threshing-floor—it falls not to bruise the grain, but to separate the chaff from the wheat. Deep, no doubt, were the sorrows that wounded, the anguish that tore David's heart—"I am poor and needy," he cries, "my heart is wounded within me. I am gone like the shadow when it declineth. My soul is full of troubles, and my life draweth nigh unto the grave. Thou hast laid me in the lowest pit; in darkness, in the deeps. Thy wrath lieth hard upon me, and thou hast afflicted me with all thy waves. Lord, why casteth thou off my soul? Why hidest thou thy face from me? I am afflicted, and ready to die." Yet in all this, in David's as in every such case, God afflicted not willingly.

And how his gracious purpose was accomplished in the Psalmist's afflictions, may be seen, for instance, in the sorrow, and even horror, with which he regarded his saddest fall. His bitterest enemies could not have exposed, nor his dearest friends lamented, it more than he himself. Never man was less like those whom a prophet addresses, saying, "Hearken unto me, ye stout-hearted!" He was not stout-hearted. He lies prostrate in the dust, both before God and man—concealing nothing; offering no excuse, or palliation; his grief, as expressed in the 51st Psalm, not grief but agony. If for a time his heart seemed a flinty rock, struck by a power mightier than the rod of Moses, it pours forth a torrent of tears, and prayers, and the deepest sorrow. "Have mercy upon me, O God," he cries, "according to thy loving kindness; according to the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions. Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy Holy Spirit from me. Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God, thou God of my salvation!"

Affliction proved in his case, as in many others, the greatest preacher. Brought through it and the grace of God to a deep sense of the insufficiency of the world, and of the evil of sin, led thereby to earnest prayer, with strong crying and tears, for pardon, no wonder he said, "It was good for me that I was afflicted." But his afflictions have been good also for the church. She owes not a few of his most prized and precious psalms to the afflictions that brought out the noblest features of his character, as the darkness of night does the stars, the crushing of some flowers their latent odors, and fire the shining metal which lies concealed in the earthy ore. We had been great losers if David had not been greatly afflicted. In these psalms he points us to our refuge in times of trouble; and furnishes us with language to express the wishes, and relieve the burden of our hearts. So long as men have wounds to heal, and war with sin to wage, and faults to confess, and forgiveness to seek, and trials to endure, and death to face, so long will his words ascend to the ear of God, from spiritual battle-fields and domestic altars, from praying-closets and beds of death.

The greatest of all afflictions, as has been justly said, is an unblessed affliction. On the other hand, let the Holy Spirit, in answer to prayer, turn them into the means of our sanctification, and there are no greater mercies. How many, when they became poor in this world, have grown rich toward God? How many have found life in the death of dear ones? How many, by being brought to weep over a broken cistern, have turned their trembling steps to the fountain of living water? and when God sent storms to wreck their earthly happiness, how many "on the broken pieces of the ship" have reached the shore in safety? No chastening for the present is joyous, but grievous; yet let us not shrink from its pain, since our blessed Lord makes use of it to work out the peaceable fruits of righteousness. The harrow that tears up the bosom of the soil, laying it open to heavenly influences, to show the showers and sunshine of the sky, brings joy in harvest. So shall it be with afflictions. Bitter frosts, by means of which God kills the weeds our hearts are so ready to throw up—thorns he lays on our pillow to prevent us spending our lives in sleep—sharp spurs, without whose touch most would make slow progress in the way to heaven; afflictions are of the greatest advantage to God's people. They teach us the vanity of the world; they call us to our senses; they remind us of our sins; they give depth to repentance; they give fervor to love; they give wings to prayer; and they quicken our longings, and, with them, our preparation for that happy world, where there is no death, nor sickness, nor sin, nor sorrow, and Jesus wipes away all tears from all eyes.

Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Action.

We mentioned in brief, last week, the action of the Reformed Presbyterian Synod, suspending from the eldership and membership of that church Mr. George H. Stuart, of Philadelphia, the well-known and esteemed president of the United States Christian Commission. The offence alleged against him was that of joining in worship where Christian hymns were sung. After a lengthy discussion the vote in favor of his suspension was twenty eight yeas to fifteen nays. The action of the synod was summary, the action of the lower courts of the session and presbytery being entirely ignored. Another resolution, equally high-handed and revolting to the good sense of an enlightened Christendom, was rushed through by the synod, declaring the pastor and session of the First Reformed Church of Philadelphia, (Dr. Wylie's,) of which Mr. Stuart is a member, suspended from all authority in questions relating to his case, thus estopping Mr. Stuart's church from taking any such action as shall be likely longer to afford him a church home.

The Reformed Presbyterian Church limits its psalmody to Rouse's version of the Psalms. That version has no poetic or other literary merit, and in numerous instances consists of the merest doggerel, and is, of course, offensive to all good taste. Here are a few specimens selected at random:

Let not my wrongful enemies proudly rejoice o'er me:
Nor who me hate without a cause, let them wink with the eye.

Like as the hart for water brooks in thirst doth pant and bray,
So pants my longing soul, O God,
that come to thee I may.

At evening let thou them return making great noise and sound,
Like to a dog, and often walk about the city round.

O call to thy remembrance
thy congregation,
Which thou hast purchased of old:
still think the same upon.

Take I the morning wings and dwell in utmost parts of sea;
Ev'n there, Lord, shall thy hand me lead, thy right hand hold shall me.

Is it surprising that when the Reformed Presbyterian Church furnishes no better psalmody than the above, Mr. Stuart and others, whose souls appreciate the pure, chaste and lovely in style, should join in singing the beautiful hymns found in the collections of other churches? It was asserted during the debate in the synod that many of the ministers of the church, and even Rouse himself, had broken over the restrictions of the church.

The decision in the case of Mr. Stuart was certainly most extraordinary. We need not say it is an outrage upon the good sense of Protestant Christians, without respect of denomination. We are not surprised to learn that the fraternal delegates from the Old and New School Presbyterian churches withdrew from the synod immediately after the decision was announced.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH, NORTH.

We insert two reports upon interesting subjects from the proceedings of this body:

D. Curry said there had not been a Methodist chaplain appointed to West Point, and there was not any likelihood of there being one until some pretty strong pressure was brought to bear. It was significant that until the war the politics and spirituality under the chaplaincy of West Point were at low ebb. He hoped for favorable action on the report.

J. McClintock favored the report, and believed the appointments to West Point had not always been made in the most honorable way.

W. J. Rutledge said he had been three years in the army as a chaplain, and everywhere had been surprised to find the numbers of Episcopal chaplains as sixteen to one for all others.

H. Slicer thought this was of more importance than might appear on the surface. The army and navy exert a powerful influence upon the social status and moral influence of the country. Mr. Lincoln was not in favor of the almost entire absorption of these chaplaincies by the representatives of a small denomination, and President Polk strongly opposed it, and did not specially favor that denomination. West Point was in many respects the most important military position in the country, and thought it was high time to wake up to the interests of Methodism.

J. B. Wakely thought it was time something was done. He had the honor to be the presiding elder of West Point. Brother Slicer intruded last summer, by being an official visitor, and preached in the chapel there, and it was only by some such way that Methodist preachers ever got in there. The Methodist service was held in a place where the Roman Catholics worship in the morning, and we go in there among all the paraphernalia of that service, and he had understood if any cadet went to the Methodist service there it had to be on a special statement that he did so on conscientious convictions. He hoped we would let the nation know that we knew our rights and had the courage to maintain them.

The previous question was called for and sustained.

On motion the first resolution was adopted.

On motion the second resolution was adopted.

W. H. Hunter moved that the secretary be instructed to furnish a certified copy of the report to the Secretaries of War and of the Navy.

G. B. Jocelyn moved to lay the motion of W. H. Hunter on the table, and the motion prevailed.

K. P. Jervis moved to amend so as to strike out the word or anything that would imply a significant denomination, and make it so it would read "a comparatively small membership."

The motion to amend prevailed.

On motion the report was adopted as a whole, as follows:

There is a deep and wide-spread conviction that great, though perhaps unintentional, injustice has been done to the leading religious denominations of the land, in the appointment of chaplains to the army and navy. These appointments have been confined, if not exclusively, yet very largely, to one of the smallest branches of the Christian church. A practical union of church and State could scarcely have secured to it a more exclusive monopoly, as the following facts and figures will clearly demonstrate:

The various branches of the Methodist church in the United States number 2,358,425; the several Presbyterian bodies nearly 1,000,000, and the consolidated Baptist divisions fully 1,300,000. These three gigantic denominations, with an aggregate membership of 4,658,425, had at the time of the latest official report to which your committee had access, 11 chaplains in the navy of the republic, while the Protestant Episcopal Church, with the comparatively small membership of 154,000, entitling it to less than 1 clerical representative, had sixteen clergymen in the service.

Other facts are equally suggestive.

Twenty-three years have elapsed since the establishment of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. During eighteen years of the time chaplains, representing the Protestant Episcopal clergy, have had the exclusive religious training of the successive classes. The Presbyterians and Congregationalists were represented for five years, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, a church which gave more men to the nation during its years of peril than any other, was represented just three weeks! A Methodist minister was appointed, but his appointment was the occasion for earnest efforts for his displacement, efforts which, we are sorry to state, were but too successful, and Rev. C. A. Davis, a man of God, possessed of fine pulpit abilities, pastoral energy, personal popularity, and peculiar adaptation to the work, was retired from the place before he had entered upon his official duties, and his place supplied by a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The same is true of the appointments to West Point, and in the regular army. Is it not high time for the three overshadowing branches of American Protestantism, and, indeed, for all branches, to unite in an earnest protest against this unequal distribution of chaplaincies in the army and navy, and this great outrage upon their denominational dignity? Hundreds of the sons of members of these denominations are gathered to these institutions, and their religious culture is a question of vital importance. Too many of these under whose religious tuition they are placed, according to the testimony of eminent evangelical Protestant Episcopal clergymen, whom we all delight to honor, are apidly drifting into mere ritualism and semi-popery. We call attention, therefore, to this matter, no to excite mere sectarian bigotry. The question touches deeper interests than those excited by mere enominational pride.

What is the remedy? We answer, in nore equal legislation only. In this way alone can the unequal and unjust policy be corrected. The various denominations should unite in memorializing Congress to enact that the Secretaries of War and of the Navy, in selecting chaplains, shall not appoint more than a fixed proporion for any one denomination, and that the position shall not be held for longer than a fixed time by the ministers of any one church. These appointments, in part at least, ought to be made from civil life.

Your committee recommend for adoption the following resolutions:

Resolved, By the General Conference, in the name and in behalf of the ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, that we hereby protest against the unequal and unjust appointment of chaplains in the Military and Naval Academies, and in the army and navy of the United States.

Resolved, That a committee of five, consisting of three ministers, one of whom shall be a bishop and two laymen, be appointed to confer with other religious bodies, and also to memorialize Congress, in order to secure proper legislation on the subject.

The report of the committee on the memorial of the Holston Conference was presented and read, and on motion adopted.

The report as adopted is as follows:

Your committee have had before them a memorial from a committee of seven appointed by the Holston Conference, of the M. E. Church South, stating that our ministers and people within that region have seized the churches and parsonages belonging to said Church South, and maltreated their ministers. The statements of the paper are all indefinite both as to places, times and persons, and no one has appeared to explain or defend the charges. On the contrary we have also before us, referred to our consideration, numerous affidavits from ministers and members of our church, in various parts of this country, evidently designed to refute any charges that might be presented by this committee of seven. It seems from these papers that as soon as the federal power was re-established in East Tennessee whole congregations came over to the M. E. Church, bringing with them their churches and parsonages, that they might continue to use them for worship. It also seems that much of the property in question is deeded to the M. E. Church, it being so held before the secession of the Church South. We have no proof that any is contested or held otherwise. The General Conference possesses no power, if it would, to divest the occupants of this property of the use or ownership of it, paid for by their means, and would be guilty of great impropriety in interfering at all at this time when test cases are already before the courts. If, however, we should proceed so to do, with the evidence before us largely ex parte, it is true, but all that we have, the presentation of the memorialists cannot be sustained. By personal examination we have endeavored in vain to ascertain what foundation there is for the affirmation that our ministers and people encourage violence toward the ministers of the M. E. Church South. We believe and trust there is no foundation for the charge, for if true, it could but meet our unqualified disapprobation. Our own ministers and people in the South suffer severely in this way, and sometimes, we apprehend, at the hands of our Southern brethren; but neither the spirit of our Master, the genius of our people, nor our denominational interest could allow us to approbate in any parties the practice. We are glad to know that our brethren laboring in that region had their attention early called to these matters, and we content ourself with repeating the sentiments of their address to the people. It was, in effect, as published in the Knoxville Whig, by authority of at least four presiding elders, and several other members of the Holston Conference, as well as often stated from our pulpits in the South, and through our church papers in the North, that violence toward the preachers and people of the Church South is unwise, unchristian and dangerous. Our preachers and people in the South, so far as we are apprized and believe, have all and ever held this position on the subject. We recommend the following:

Resolved, That all the papers connected with this matter be referred to the Holston Conference, believing, as we do, that this conference in the future, as in the past, will be careful to do justly, and, as much as lieth in them, to live peaceably with all men.

Your committee have also had before them a letter, published in various Southern journals, and signed by S. F. Waldro, being dated from Chicago, and presuming to state the objects and intentions of the Methodist Episcopal Conference in the prosecution of its Southern work. We are also informed that several similar letters have been published in the South. No effort that we have been able to make has enabled us to discover any such person in this city. Certainly no such person has a right to speak in our behalf, or declare our purposes, much less does he declare them correctly. We recommend that the paper be dismissed as anonymous, and unworthy of our further consideration.

L. HITCHCOCK, Chairman.
J. M. REID, Secretary.

BRUCE'S OX STORY CONFIRMED.

Three of the officers of the Fourth Regiment saw the other day, at Fokada, an operation which was described by Bruce, which has been denied by all subsequent travelers, and by the Abyssinians themselves. This was the operation of cutting a steak from a living ox. They came upon the natives just as they were in the act of performing it. The unfortunate bullock was thrown down and its four legs tied together. The operator then cut an incision in the skin near the spine, just behind the hip-joint. He blew into this to separate the skin from the flesh, and then cut two other incisions at right angles to the first, and then lifted a flap of skin four or five inches square. From this he cut out a lump of flesh, cutting with the knife under the skin, so that the amount of flesh taken out was larger than the portion uncovered. The operator then filled up the hole with cow-dung, replaced the flap of the skin, plastered it up with mud, untied the feet of the poor animal, who had kept up a low moaning while the operation was going on, gave it a kick to make it get up, and the whole thing was over. I should mention that the operator cut two or three gashes in the neighborhood of the wound, apparently as a sign that the animal had been operated upon in that part. The officers observed that several cattle in the same herd were marked in the same manner. They returned in about half an hour, and found the animal walking about and feeding quietly. I have not mentioned that it bled very little at the time the operation was being performed.

It is certainly very singular that after so many years Bruce's story, which had always been considered as a traveler's tale, should have been confirmed. All travelers have denied it. Mr. Speedy, who was a year among them, tells us he never saw or heard of it being done, and the Abyssinians of whom he had inquired respecting the truth of Bruce's statement had always most indignantly denied, and indeed asserted that it would be entirely contrary to their religion, for that they strictly keep the Mosaic law, to eat no meat unless the throat of the animal had been cut, and the blood allowed to escape. Anatomists have denied the possibility of an animal, when such an operation had been performed, being able to walk afterward. Here, however, was the indisputable fact. The party may have been some wandering tribes belonging to the lower country who might have come up for trading purposes. It is very unfortunate that neither Mr. Speedy nor any of the interpreters were at hand to find out the exact tribe to which these savages belonged.—Letter from Abyssinia.

NEVER let your honest convictions be laughed down. You can no more exercise your reason, if you live in constant dread of ridicule, than you can enjoy your life if you live in constant terror of death. If you think it right to differ from the times, and to make a point of morals, do it—not for insolence, but seriously and gravely, as if a man wore a big soul of his own in his bosom, and did not wait till it was breathed into him by the breath of fashion. Be true to your manhood's conviction, and in the end you will not only be respected by the world, but have the approval of your own conscience.

The Railroads of the United States.

Mr. Henry V. Poor has compiled a very valuable manual of the railroads of the United States, and in a preliminary essay gives a variety of interesting information upon the growth and extent of the railroad system of this country, from which we take a few prominent facts.

The first railroad in the United States—the Baltimore and Ohio road—was chartered in 1827, and sixty miles of it were opened, but worked by horse power, in 1831. New York opened in the same year the second railroad—the Albany and Schenectady. The third was the South Carolina railroad, which was opened in 1835, and was at that time, Mr. Poor tells us, the longest continuous line in the world.

In 1831 we possessed but little over 100 miles of railroad; in 1835 we had 1,098 miles; in 1867, 39,244. In 1837 224 miles of new track were laid; in 1867 2,227 miles of new track. In 1843 only 159 miles were laid; in 1856 3,643 miles were opened, which is the largest number of miles of new track laid in any year.

In 1840 we had one mile of railroad to 7,415 people; in 1850 one mile to 3,298 people, and in 1860 one mile to 906 people. In 1870, Mr. Poor thinks, we shall have 45,000 miles of railroad opened, or one mile for every 837 inhabitants.

If we take geographical sections, we discover in Mr. Poor's tables that in 1839 the New England States had 328 miles of iron track laid, the Middle States had 1,463, the Southern States 437, and the Western States only 44. In 1867 the New England States had 3,938 miles laid, the Middle States 9,552, the Southern States 10,087, while the Western States, excluding those on the Pacific slope, had 15,226.

Massachusetts has the greatest number of miles in proportion to her territory—one mile for every 5½ square miles. Connecticut comes in next, and has one mile to 6 4-10 square miles; New Jersey has one mile for 8 8-10 square miles; Rhode Island follows with one mile of track for 10½ square miles of land. Pennsylvania is ahead of New York, having a mile for every 10 7-10 square miles, while we have only a mile for every 14 4-10 square miles. The States we have named above, and New Hampshire, Ohio and Delaware, all have more miles of railroad in proportion to territory than New York.

Mr. Poor remarks that if all the New England States had a ratio of mileage to area equal to Massachusetts, this group of States would have 12,000 miles of iron track, instead of the 3,938 they actually possess. If the Middle States equaled New Jersey they would possess 15,640 miles, instead of what they have, 9,552. If the Western States equaled Ohio, they would have 51,350 miles, while they have really but 15,226. From these comparisons we may form an idea of the probable extension of the railroad system in the future; for though it is improbable that the New England States, as a group, will soon reach the ratio of Massachusetts, it can scarcely be doubted that the Middle and Western States will, before many years, equal New Jersey and Ohio in the extent of their railroads. We had, according to Mr. Poor, in 1867, in the whole country, 39,244 miles of railroad; but if all the States, excluding the territories, were furnished as well as Ohio, we should have the enormous aggregate of 165,800 miles; and if they all equaled Massachusetts we should have 352,860 miles.

The whole railroad system of the United States has cost, according to Mr. Poor's estimate, $1,600,000,000—about two-thirds the amount of our national debt.

The gross earnings of the railroads for the whole country are said to equal about twenty-one per cent. of their cost; those of the Northern States, about twenty-three per cent.; and this ratio of earnings to cost, Mr. Poor reports, is steadily increasing. The ratio of expenses to earnings is fully seventy per cent.; and Mr. Poor states the net earnings of the Northern roads at six and a half per cent. of their total cost.—N. Y. Evening Post.

BOTTLING RASPBERRIES.—Red raspberries are the best for this purpose. Proceed in the same way as for strawberries. If no juice runs from them, add a little water, or place the dish of fruit on the back of the stove, and the juice will soon start. Many use water always, though they will be much richer without. A little red currant juice added is a great improvement.

HE that has found a way to keep a child's spirit easy, active and free, and yet, at the same time, to restrain him from many things he has a mind to, and to draw him to things that are uneasy to him; he, I say, who knows how to reconcile these seeming contradictions, has, in my opinion, got the true secret of education.—Locke.

FEMALES are gradually working their way into watch-making.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, In Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order. If this cannot be had, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

TO AGENTS.—A NEW THOUGHT!

We wish them to forward promptly the money when they send the name of the subscriber, not because their credit is not the very best at this office, but because we need daily food, and the food of a printing press is money. But we urge them, by all the thieves in the Post Office Department, and they are legion, to either remit in a post office order, in a draft, by express, or register. We have given the order of preference as to security. To hold back a subscription one month is to each of our five hundred agents a small matter. To us it is like cutting the Croton Aqnednct.

CITY MONEY.

Five dollars of city money are now reqnired to pay for the ADVOCATE for one year.

"Der Evangelische Apologete."

The first number of The Evangelical Apologist, published at 112 Camp street, edited by Rev. J. B. A. Ahrens, is upon our table. It is a single folio sheet, beautifully printed, and full of excellent and varied matter. The principal articles are: What is Truth; Flee the Wrath to Come; Eloquence; To-day; Abont Classes; Correspondence from Texas; Our Missionary Work; Status of German Churches in New Orleans; Minister's Wife—Duty and Privileges; Methodism in Germany; The Holy Land; Political Sitnation; then the editor's introdnction, setting forth the absolnte need of snch a journal to Southern German Methodists, in Louisiana and Texas, as a medinm of mutnal commnnication and strength. All this is written in good classic German. Onr readers have freqnently had opportunity to judge of the vigor and polish of the pen of Professor Ahrens. We doubt not they wish the enterprise God-speed. The fact that it is nndertaken in snch times as the present is an evidence of the great necessity there is for an organ of our German people having undivided sympathy with Southern Methodism. At no point is our church being assailed with more cnnning or persistence; bnt here are many German brethren, true men, who feel that they owe all they are nnder grace to godly ministers and members of the M. E. Church South, and who will abide by her fortnnes eqnally in woe and weal. We hope all Americans who wish to uphold this great interest will forward one dollar to Brother Ahrens—whether they can read German or not. The success of Methodism among the Germans in New Orleans is the best yield of our missionary labors as a church.

OUR POVERTY.

It was never greater—we should say deeper, using the apostle's adjective, for he was very apt to get the right word. One of the preachers, in a letter just received, says: "I have never known what it was to suffer before." This was nothing new to Paul: "Not that I speak in respect of want." He had graduated in that school: "Everywhere and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need." He looked upon it, from his exalted stand-point, as merely a change of lessons in the same course. His apostleship would have been incompleto without the eloqnence of a "deep poverty." It was the human condition of the Master, and was therefore not incompatible with the character of the great mission of his Hebrew messenger. In many instances, in most, the converts to Christianity were as poor as Paul. The wealthier Greeks and Romans did not compose the staple of Macedonian and Corinthian churches. The rabble, who have inherited the dregs of the cup of human woe, were the first to esponse the cause of David, and have ever been earliest in the acknowledgment of "King David's Holy Son." The wasted prodigal was indeed, and probably ever will be, the fit emblem of that part of mankind which turns to Christ; and the wealth of trne Christianity mnst continue to be found where St. James places it, associated not with "a gold ring" or "goodly apparel," bnt with "vile raiment." Tho philosophy of this union between a rich faith and a lean snbstance we do not attempt to discover, but only to affirm that it is both gennine and venerable, even as the gospel itself. It was in a "great trial of affliction" that an abundant joy and a deep poverty conspired to constitnte the riches of the church at Philippi; the union, therefore, of these elements was not their association by force, or by accident, but was a hearty spiritual combination, thorongh, of new natnre and effect.

These periods of power, poverty and faith belong to the early history of all branches of the Christian church. They do not continue, because one of the elements is soon wanting. The morals and habits of the truly religions soon insnre snbstance, bnt that faith and zeal which by good works shonld ever superindnce a healthy poverty fail. The influences of material wealth have effected a paralysis in the later vitallty of nearly all these true chnrches. It is rare indeed that the providence of God, by a single wave, separates a people from all their snbstance—that in a single instant an entire chnrch passes from the highest point of hnman prosperity to the profonndest deep of poverty; but that phenomenon we have lived to see. One law is that wealth succeeds to faith, then faith expires. Shall we not also see that ether law, that faith succeeds to poverty, and gloriously lives!

Our church has reaped the advantages of a great substance—the intelligence, the self-respect, the industry, the social refinemen:—and still possesses them; now she has the spiritual advantage offered of a great poverty. Let us accept it gladly, cheerfully. Let us, by the grace of God, "know how to be abased." We must not do as "the Gentiles;" but we mnst face, meet and welcome a position new, unexpected, but also full of new opportnnity and power. The trustees of onr own colleges, the preachers in our small stations and upon our starving circuits, our bishops and our elders must draw their girdles tighter abont their leanness and say, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

THE Emperor of Austria speaks to Pius IX. in a tone of truth and manliness. "Tho hand of iron," he says, "which your holiness recommends me has reigned for more than fifteen years, but it did not produce that love and satisfaction on the part of my subjects which has resulted now from a wise and mild policy of a few months."

WE should not measure men by Sundays, without looking to what they do all the week after.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

The commencement exercises of this institution have always been the occasion for a delightful reunion of ministers, members and friends of our church. Nowhere have we seen larger or more intelligent audiences gathered than at Jackson. Even the graduating classes of the medical or law schools, or of the high schools, in this city, do not have so large a number of interested friends to witness the most momentous event of their student life. From these gay throngs we have concluded that no college in our church was more fortunately located, and we see no reason to change that opinion.

During the war, and since the war, this institution has felt as severely as any person—farmer or merchant—the tremendous change which has passed upon the resource of these States of Mississippi and Louisiana; bnt not more severely. We have all been brought to the verge of beggary. The failure of the last three crops in succession added to the destruction that went before, have made the whole land like the seven lean kine of Pharaoh. Even Egypt, the most fertile valey in the world, for a time sank nnder accumulated pressnre. Men sold their cattle, their lands, their service and everything but their soul. Doubtless to them the world was about to end, because the Nile ceased to overflow its banks. But, thanks be to the Father of mercies, nature does not long maintain snch sullen moods. Those years of famine ended, for the river presently reclaimed its ancient domain, and its swollen, fertilizing floods spread over the breadth of the land, filling every house with food and gladness.

We have many reasons for believing that the tide is turning in our affairs. On every side we hear of good seasons and waving crops. The political horizon too is evidently clearing, despite the malice and machinations of revengeful men. And it is just at this point, with land in the dim distance, that hope and nerve are specially demanded. The floating seaweed gave more strength and inspiration to the Florentine navigator than the solid sight of a new world did to his despairing crew. By so much as the times depress, by so much must the true friends of Christianity and education determine that every one of our colleges shall be upheld yet longer. Our fields are already yellow with corn, and in a few weeks they will be white with cotton. Then boys who have been kept at home will be sent forth to fill up the halls of our colleges, and to make up by diligence the loss of precious time. College trustees should be men who are something more than merely abreast with the times. They represent always the advance body of either church or State. Their hope gathers strength from that future which is beyond the vision of the multitude. It is well to ask, before we yield one brick that we have laid down, whether our schools and teachers have suffered more, or are in any more straitened condition, than all the other interests, commercial, agricultural or industrial. We do not suppose they are. Just now, before the corn is hard, everything is at the gasping point—the gasp of a severe asthma, but not of death. Most students are somewhat hypochondriachal. Professors and presidents, when not stirred up by the boys, study themselves into various stages of mental depression unawares. It is the natural result of abstraction. Trustees must not therefore take complexion wholly from the views of these true, self-sacrificing friends of education. Let them maintain their own healthy out-door views of future policy, or at most but modify them, it may be, by less hopeful ones of these equally devoted men. Stand by the college.

NOTICE.

The commencement exercises of Centenary College, at Jackson, La., will take place on Monday, July 13th. The Board of Trnstees meet on the same day, at 12 M. The commencement sermon will be delivered on the 12th, at 11 o'clock A. M.

JAS. A. GODFREY,
Secretary of the Board.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

NEW IBERIA, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Rev. A. E. Goodwyn writes: "I received eleven members last Sabbath, and five more yesterday, (14th inst.) Have large congregations, and a standing rule to call for penitents after every sermon."

TUSKEGEE, MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE.—Rev. O. R. Blue writes: "More hopeful state of feeling than at any time for three years past. We feel that the shadows are moving off—that day will soon break."

ION CIRCUIT, LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.—Rev. D. Stayton says: "Prospects are very flattering for a crop this year, also for a general revival. I hope to give you a good report very soon for the ADVOCATE."

NEW BOOKS.

We have received from J. A. Gresham, No. 92 Camp street:

THE TABLE TALK OF MARTIN LUTHER Translated by William Hazlitt. Philadelphia: Lutheran Board of Publication, 42 North Ninth street, 1868. 12mo., pp. 464. The English reader will be sufficiently attracted by seeing two such names as those of Luther and Hazlitt uniting in one volume.

Every thing from the great Reformer has interest—a man whose courage, sagacity, energy and faith were the turning point of the world. Everything that transpired in his solitary cell we wish to know—that cell where he forged the thunderbolts that made the popo tremble, and that broke the tyranny of papal Rome then and forever from off the necks of the people. All he said in the most solemn moments of his highest inspiration, as the representative of religious freedom, and all that he said in the unrestrained hours of social fellowship, is equally precious. It was natural that so great a man should, after his greatest battles and victories, have many admirers who regarded him with Boswell-like idolatry, who would wait upon his words, treasure up his wisdom and note his peculiarities. Snch were Anthony Lanterbach and John Aurifaber, his friends and disciples, who were very much with Luther toward the close of his life.

The first German edition of Table Talk appeared at Eisleben in 1566, under the supervision of Aurifaber, and subsequently there have been editions pnblished in 1567, 1568, 1569, 1577, and so on. For a long period the work was scarce in Germany, from the vigilance and influence of the Catholic Emperor, Ferdinand II. It was pnblished in England abont 1646, from a translation by Captain Henry Bell. Mr. Hazlitt has retranslated the work from the best German editions, and thereby we have probably in this edition a more perfect reprodnction of all that has been treasured up of the noble German than ever before.

We are indebted to Mr. Gresham for another work of the Lutheran Board of Publication:

THE LIFE OF GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS, by Rev. L. W. Heydenreich, graduate of the University of France. Philadelphia: Claxton, Remson & Haffelfinger, 1868. 12mo., pp. 130. The great Swede was one of the bravest of the brave. His name stands beside that of Coligny, Orange and Prince Maurice. He combined the highest gallantry with the purest faith. In that great furnace of trial which purified the Reformed church, and in those storms which strengthened the cause of Protestantism, he lived and was nurtured. His endurance and genius, his courage and faith must ever be a study and an example for the good, who wish the reign of light and liberty. This sprightly work presents to our youth a notable and great example for their imitation and instruction. They can learn how a great captain can go into battle with prayer on his lips, and faith in his soul, as they see Gustavus kneeling upon the hard field of Lutzen, in front of his lines, and crying, "Jesus, Jesus, help me fight to-day for the glory of thy holy name!"

THE Hindoos extend their hospitality to their enemies, saying: "The tree does not withdraw its shade even from the woodcutter."

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE.

We call special attention to the new advertisment of this institute in our paper to-day. This college is under the patronage of the Holston Conference, and is located in the healthiest part of Virginia. It has survived, grandly survived, the times, the war, and the whole machinery of trouble, ecclesiastical and other, which has been set in motion by the events of the past eight years. Its halls are filled with students, and it presents to our people facilities for the education of their sons in all the branches of a collegiate course, by competent professors of their own faith. Dr. Wiley and the Board of Trustees deserve great credit for the way they have managed this valuable institution. While many of our Southern institutions languish, this is vigorous and full of promise.

PUBLIC SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

We regret that we could not be present at the public exhibitions of the city schools. They were numerously attended by the parents and friends of our public school system The report given of the occasion by the city newspapers is highly encouraging to the teachers and superintendent of these schools. The Times furnishes an extended notice of the several schools. We quote a sentence or two:

"There were many agreeable circumstances connected with the recitations of all the schools, which, being unable to attend, we cannot represent as we would wish. The souls of the pupils are wrapped up in the exhibitions; the songs and little speeches which there take place gratify their little hearts, and also reach the hearts of the parents. Of course, the pieces recited are those which have long ago become so familiar that the shadow of their memories appears as an every-day impression. Not so with the children. It is a great novelty to them, and although grown persons have, in all probability, recited the same exercises in their younger years, yet it should not detract in their minds from a respect for the children or their emotions; on the contrary, in looking at the happy animation exhibited and the eager interest felt, it carries the visitor back to the days when he, too, was a youngster and felt happy. As we look over the schools of the First District it is with a deep sense of pride at the self-sacrifice which the teachers have shown in doing their whole duty, although their pay in city money has been reduced nearly one-half, and not paid regularly at that. Our teachers have much to struggle against, and deserve the thanks of the community as a body."

The whole number of white pupils who attend, in the First District alone, is 6,734; colored, 1,911.

The average attendance in the Second District schools is 2,477 white and 631 colored.

A PACIFIC RAILROAD IN 1869.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company, who are building the western portion of the overland road across the continent, commencing at the navigable waters at the head of the Bay of San Francisco, have successfully carried their track across the snowy crest of the Sierra Nevada, and the whistle of the locomotive is now heard in the Washoe district at the western edge of the Salt Lake Basin. To cross the plateau to the eastward will be mere child's-play in comparison to the work that is left behind, and there is a fair chance for the through connection being made in 1869.

Meantime the great mining and agricultural region of the Pacific slope are feeling the benefit of the railroad, which is doing a large and profitable business. Messrs. Fisk & Hatch, the financial agents of the company, in their advertisement of the first mortgage bonds, in another column, present some interesting facts relative to the progress of this great work.

BE slow in choosing a friend and slower to change him; courteous to all; intimate with few; slight no man for his poverty, nor esteem any one for his wealth.

IT is not until the flower has fallen off that the fruit begins to ripen. So in life it is when the romance is past that the practical usefulness begins.

PRIDE is a vice, which pride itself inclines every man to find in others, and to overlook in himself.

THE joy, the happiness of home is won by love, and love is gained by "kind words."

NEVER consider a person unfeeling or hard-hearted because he refuses what he cannot grant.

Japan.—An Act of Reparation.

The special correspondent of the New York Times, in a letter dated Hiogo, Japan, March 18th, says:

On the 2d of this month, at 1.15 P. M., in one of the Hiogo temples, Ikeka Iso, the author of the recent troubles, suffered death. He was the secretary of Prince Bezen, and gave the order to fire on the foreigners. The combined powers demanded his head, and neither his own position nor the influence of his Prince could save him. But he was permitted to commit the hari kari, thus rescuing his property from confiscation and his name from dishonor among his countrymen. Up to the last moment his friends sought his pardon. Each of the six legations sent a representative as witness, and to this number was added an interpreter. The closest mystery shrouded the whole affair, and as few witnesses as possible were permitted, in order to impress the Japanese that the execution was to satisfy the ends of justice, and not gratify a prurient curiosity. The chosen ones left the legation during the evening, and walked to the Hiogo, where a guard of Japanese soldiers met them, and conducted them through several narrow streets to one of the larger temples. One of the ante-rooms was placed at their disposal, and there they indulged in pipes and cigars, and awaited the event.

At a few minutes past 11 P. M. word came that all was ready. They arose and followed their conductor into the main temple. Here, in front of the large and elaborately-finished altar, was spread a green cloth, and over this a smaller red covering. Near the centre stood a tray containing a number of small knives, corresponding to the sharp short sword of the Japanese, unsheathed. The seven Europeans sat down in silence on the matting, after the Japanese fashion, and the same number of native officials located themselves opposite. Above them glimmered several Japanese paper lanterns, shedding over the altar a dim and spectral light, which lost itself in the mysterious darkness beyond. With a slow, but firm and unfaltering step the doomed man entered and approached the altar. He wore the white-winged State dress, indicative of high rank, the "Kami Shino." Turning toward the dimly-outlined images of his gods, bowed and muttered a prayer. Then gathering his feet beneath him, he sat down, resting on his knees, in the usual Japanese manner, beside the tray. It is customary for the individual performing the hari kari to complete the act by cutting his own throat. But this unhappy man, fearing that at the last moment his resolution might fail, caused one near of kin to assume the duty of headsman. The executioner took his position behind him, seizing the long handle in both hands. He raised the sword and assumed the attitude of one about to strike. It was a tableau impressive and awful. The long razor-edged blade reflected the lantern light with horrid effect. The executioner's eyes were fixed with fearful earnestness on the victim before him, watching eagerly every motion. The doomed man methodically prepares his dress and selects a sword, grasping it firmly in his right hand. Then summoning all his resolution, he plunges it into his side and completes a transverse incision. At this moment his head falls forward, and instantaneously the poised sword of the headsman flashes through the air, and the head falls with a dull sound upon the heavily-matted floor.

The seven robed and sworded Japanese officials bow their heads to the ground, exclaiming in a loud voice: "Are you satisfied?" and the seven Europeans bow their faces in return and reply, through the interpreter, "We are satisfied." They arise and are immediately conducted away.

This is the famous hari kari allowed to officers of position as an alternative of disgrace. The incision saves their honor and their property, and the gash in the throat terminates their sufferings.

THE mere lapse of years is not life. To eat and drink and sleep; to be exposed to darkness and the light; to pace around in the mill of habit and turn the wheel of wealth to make reason our book-keeper, and turn thought into an implement of trade—this is not life. In all this but a poor fraction of the consciousness of humanity is awakened, and the sanctities still slumber which make it most worth while living. Knowledge, truth, love, beauty, faith, alone can give vitality to the mechanism of existence; the laugh of mirth which vibrates through the heart; the tears that freshen the dry waste within; the music that brings childhood back; the prayer that calls the future near; the doubt which makes us meditate; the death which startles us with mystery; the hardships that force us to struggle; the anxiety that ends in trust, are the true nourishment of our natural being.—James Martineau.

RETURNING GOOD FOR EVIL.—We find the following in one of our exchanges:

"A planter was recently hunting in the vicinity of Adams' Run, S. C., when a fine buck was started and driven into a swamp. A negro, who was hoeing cotton, threw away the hoe and ran into the swamp to prevent the hounds tearing the deer to pieces. As he was making the last leap, he came down on a huge rattlesnake. His snakeship, not liking the intrusion, struck his fangs through Cuffee's pantaloons into his thigh. The planter came up soon after, when the negro said, 'Oh, Massa E——, a rattlesnake bite me.' The planter shot the snake, which exhibited fourteen rattles, a proof of his age, and then turning to the prostrate Cuffee, said, 'Although you are a great rascal, I shall not let you die that way,' and instantly taking out his hunting knife, cut open the leg of Cuffee's snake-pierced pantaloons, applied his lips to the wound, and then and there sucked from it the deadly serpent's venom. The negro was taken home in a state of insensibility; but though very feeble, Mr. E. thinks he will recover. Before the war Cuffee was the slave of Mr. E. On the breaking out of hostilities he enlisted in the Union colored troops, and in one engagement shot at his late master. When the war was over, however, bearing no malice, he returned to the old plantation, solicited and was granted employment, and has been there ever since."

MARRIED.

June 9th, at the house of M. D. A. Rutledge, by the Rev. H. J. Hunter, Mr. JAMES FLOWERS, of Butler county, Alabama, to Miss EMMA J. RUTLEDGE, of Cheshaw county, Alabama.

OBITUARIES.

SARAH LOUISA KEENER, daughter of Rev. Dr. J. C. Keener, departed this life on the 17th of June, 1868, in her seventeenth year, at Ocean Springs, Mississippi.

She was "of fair countenance and good understanding," fluent in speech, agreeable in manners, of sprightly wit and well-balanced propriety. She at once attracted attention and inspired respect.

Being brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, she remembered her Creator in the days of her youth, and realized the fruition of the promise: "They that seek me early shall find me." Her conversion, at Pleasant Hill, Louisiana, several years ago, was most clear and happy. She was fond of good books, and habitual in the use of the means of grace.

About a week before her death her father frankly stated to her the precariousness of her health. After the announcement she remained silent for some minutes; then said, "Pa, I want to talk about Jesus. Does Jesus love me?" Being asked: "Do you not know he loves you? have you not been converted?" she responded: "Yes, but I have not kept the rules." Many precious promises were quoted as applicable to her case. She listened and said, "I should like to shout." She left most loving and Christian messages to the absent members of her family, and said: "Tell them to meet me in heaven. Lord bless the boys! Tell Brother C.," (now at the University,) "I die happy in the Lord; I shall meet him in heaven." She then added, "I shall see grandma there." On hearing the precious words, "In my Father's house there are many mansions; I will come again and receive you to myself, that where I am there ye may be also," she added, as her last words on this subject, "How good God is!"

She was an example to the young, and being dead, yet speaketh. Her memory, like the odor of a sweet perfume, will long linger in the affections of those who knew and loved her. Though a great sufferer, her closing hour was painless and serene.

"So fades a summer cloud away;
So sinks the gale when storms are o'er;
So gently shuts the eye of day;
So dies a wave along the shore."

Surrounded by a circle of sympathy and love, we laid her down to sleep beneath the shade of the evergreen pines, in hope of the resurrection of the just.

JOSEPH B. WALKER.

DEATH OF JUDGE LEWIS.

There is mourning in our Zion. One of our chief men has been suddenly summoned to eternity from our midst. But a few days since Brother Lewis was with us in the public congregation and in the class meeting; to-day his seat is vacant in the sanctuary, and his voice is no more heard in our social assemblies. On Wednesday evening of last week, after riding over his plantation near this place, he was taken with violent spasm of the intestines. Medical aid was immediately called in, but no relief whatever could be afforded, and on Friday, at 4 P. M., he breathed his last.

Brother William B. Lewis was, at the time of his death, and has been for some years, the circuit judge of the ninth judicial district of the State. He was a member of the Methodist Church for upwards of fifty years, and worthily occupied a prominent position among her official laymen during that period. He was born in this parish in October, 1811; and in 1826, while in his fifteenth year, he joined the Methodist Church, and ever since has lived a useful member of the same, always ready for any good word or work requested of him. He was a man of a remarkably amiable disposition, and there was in him a rich vein of piety. He was ardent in his attachment to Methodism, and was thoroughly indoctrinated in her teachings. The class meeting and the prayer meeting were services he delighted to participate in when he had opportunities to do so, and his experiences and prayers on such occasions were always unctious and edifying. At the last class meeting he attended—a few days before his death—he said, among other things: "I know I have but a few more days to live; and I feel the necessity of redoubling my diligence in preparation for eternity. * * * I expect to be absent from you attending my courts for some months. My thoughts shall often be with you. Think of me at your class meetings, and pray for me that I may hold out faithful amid the peculiar temptations which assail me in the discharge of my official duties. * * * We may never meet here again, brethren. Let us strive to meet each other in heaven. Farewell." These were remarkable words from a man in his usual health. As he was speaking a strange thrill ran through me, and we were all deeply affected. But how little did we realize how near our dear brother then was to the close of his earthly career. Who shall take his place in our church? The Lord alone can answer.

May the Almighty soften this great grief to the bereaved widow of our deceased brother; and may his death, like his life, prove a blessing to his numerous relatives, in leading them to that Saviour in whom he lived hopefully and died peacefully.

J. W.

OPELOUSAS June 8, 1868.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

Bishop William M. Wightman, D. D., L. L. D., will hold a District Meeting for the Wetumpka District, Montgomery Conference, at Tallassee, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M., on Thursday, August 13, 1868. Preachers and delegates are urged to be present with full reports at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew, D. D., is expected to be present. Rev. S. A. Pilley will preach the introductory sermon on Thursday night. Ample accommodations for all.

D. M. HUNSON, P. E.

SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

A Sunday School Institute will be held at Opelika on the 22d and 23d of July. Pastors, superintendents, officers, teachers and friends of the cause, in connection with the M. E. Church South, within the limits of the Montgomery District, Montgomery Conference, are earnestly invited to attend. Persons of other communions will be welcomed.

E. D. PITTS,
Chairman of Committee.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Gadsden District will be held at Center, Cherokee co., Alabama, commencing on the 17th day of July next. Traveling and local preachers, and official members of the church in the district are expected to be present. Ministers from a distance are also expected.

T. MOODY, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Camden District, Montgomery Conference, will meet at Pineville, July 10th.

The official members will please be in attendance, prepared to make their reports at the first meeting.

ANSON WEST, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Yazoo District, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Durant, Holmes county, Mississippi, commencing on Thursday, the 6th day of August next, at 7 o'clock, A. M.

Brethren, on arriving at Durant, will report to Brother T. C. Parrish or Brother Madison Weems.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE.

CALENDAR OF COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Sunday, July 5—Sermon by Rev. T. O. Summers, D. D.

Monday, July 6, 9 A. M.—Meeting of the Board of Trustees. 8 P. M.—Freshman prize declamation.

Tuesday, July 7, 9 A. M.—Junior exhibition. 8 P. M.—Sophomore prize declamation. Prizes delivered by Rev. J. B Cottrell.

Wednesday, July 8.—Commencement day. Literary address by Col. Joseph Hodgson.

E. J. HAMILL,
Secretary of Board.

Brookhaven (Col.) Dist., Miss. Confer'e.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Scotland circuit, at Plensant Valley	June	27, 28
Liberty circuit, at Liberty	July	4, 5
Summit circuit, at Summit		11, 12
Brookhaven		.. ..
Meadville, at Beach Grove		18, 19
Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth		25, 26
Fayette, at Bethel	Aug.	1, 2
Georgetown, at Georgetown		8, 9
Chrystal Springs, at Chrystal Springs		15, 16
Hazlehurst, at New Church, near Bahnta		22, 23
Brushy Creek, at Tabernacle		29, 30

The official members of the above circuits, and the preachers in charge of the work, are informed that Bishop Kavanaugh will hold the first Mississippi Colored Conference. All who expect to enter this conference must be recommended by their respective Quarterly Conferences.

JOHN B. BOMEN, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Livingston	June	27, 28
Meridian	July	4, 5
De Kalb, at Mount Hebron		11, 12
Summerville, at Spring Hill		18, 19
Macon		25, 26
Enterprise	Aug.	1, 2
Marion, at Pleasant Hill		8, 9
Gainesville and Scooba, at Sumpterville		15, 16
Enterprise ct., at Sageville		22, 23

S. H. COX, P. E.

Shreveport Dist. Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many mission, at Many	June	13, 14
Mansfield ct., at Mansfield		20, 21
Keachie ct., at Keachie		27, 28
Natchitoches	July	4, 5
Anacoco ct., at Oak Grove		18, 19
Springville, at Holly Spring		25, 26
Greenwood, at Mt. Zion	Aug.	15, 16
Shreveport		29, 30
Pleasant Hill, at Pleasant Hill	Sept.	19, 20

The District Meeting will be held at Pleasant Hill, Sept. 18th, 19th and 20th.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Paulding Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mt. Carmel, at Mt. Moriah	June	27, 28
Columbia, at Byrd's Chapel	July	11, 12
Rankin, at Salem		18, 19
Ocoha, at Sharon	Aug.	1, 2
Handsboro' and Biloxi, at Handsboro'		8, 9
White Plains, at Conlville		15, 16
Sylvarena, at Mt. Olivet		22, 23
Paulding, at Holder's		29, 30

HENRY P. LEWIS, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Providence	June	13, 14
North Carroll, at Pine Ridge		20, 21
Carrollton, at Mount Zion	July	4, 5
Sunflower, at Bear Creek		11, 12
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater		18, 19
Durant, at Shady Grove		25, 26
Richland, at Goodman	Aug.	1, 2
Yazoo Ct., at New Hope		15, 16
Yazoo City station		22, 23
Mt. Olivet, at Short Creek		29, 30
Bee Lake, at Lodi	Sept.	5, 6

The District Meeting will be held at Durant, commencing on the 6th day of August.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Natchez Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Clinton circuit, at Olive Br'h	June	6, 7
Jackson circuit, at Pipkin's Chapel		13, 14
St. Helena circuit, at Centre		20, 21
East Baton Rouge circuit, at Jones' Creek (Zion)		27, 28
Percy's Creek circuit, at Percy's Creek	July	4, 5
Woodville station		18, 19
Wilkinson circuit		25, 26
Amite circuit, at Adams'	Aug.	8, 9
Liberty circuit, at Liberty		15, 16
Kingston circuit		29, 30
Natchez station	Sept.	5, 6

JAS. A. GONFREY, P. E.

N. Orleans Dist., Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

German churches, Dryades st	July	5
German Quarterly Conference, at Dryades street		3
N. Orleans circuit, at Algiers		19
Quarterly Conference for do		18
At 112 Camp street, at 6 P. M.
Jefferson City		26
Moreau street	Aug.	2
Thibodeaux		9
Felicity street		16
Carondelet street		23
Baton Rouge		29, 30
Plaquemine	Sept.	7

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

GEN. R. E. LEE'S OWN PEN.—The best Pen in use. Every Pen warranted. Try it. Price, $1 50 per gross. Sent by mail. A sample box, containing two dozen Pens, sent free by mail on receipt of 30 cents.

BLELOCK & CO.,
Sole Manufacturers,
Booksellers and Stationers,
je27 1m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

SPECIALTY.—A QUIRE OF THE finest Note Paper and Envelopes, elegantly stamped in Old English, with any letter, in a handsome box. Sent by mail, to any address, for $1. Address BLELOCK & CO.,
Booksellers and Stationers,
je27 1m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE, Washington county, Virginia.

The FALL SESSION of this institution begins on the 20th of August next.

Our terms, for a session of five months, are as follows:

Tuition in Collegiate course, payable in advance	$30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, payable in advance	10 00
Board, at $13 per month	65 00
Washing	7 50

Tuition in the Preparatory Department is $5 less. Board is payable monthly in advance. Students supply their own beds and furniture for their rooms, and take their meals with the families boarding them.

We invite those seeking collegiate culture to consider the excellent advantages here offered.

For a catalogue, or for any other information, address E. E. WILEY, Pres't.,
je27 3m Emory P. O., Va.

TOBACCO ANTIDOTE.

WARRANTED TO REMOVE ALL desire for Tobacco. This great remedy is an excellent appetizer. It purifies the blood, invigorates the system, possesses great nourishing and strengthening power, enables the stomach to digest the heartiest food, makes sleep refreshing, and establishes robust health. Smokers and Chewers for Fifty Years Cured. Price, Fifty Cents, post free. A treatise on the injurious effects of Tobacco, with lists of references, testimonials, etc., sent free. Agents wanted. Address DR. T. R. ABBOTT,
Jersey City, N. J.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.—One box of Antidote cured my brother and myself.—It never fails.—Rev. Isaiah W. Shoemaker, Kelley's Station, Pa. je27 4tr

A NEW PORTRAIT OF GRANT, large size, handsomely engraved on steel. Price, $1 25. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Also, small portraits of Grant and Colfax, 25 cents each. Liberal discount to agents. Address J. C. BUTTRE, je27 4tr 53 Franklin street, N. Y.

A CLEAR, SMOOTH SKIN AND beautiful complexion follow the use of HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA.

It removes black spots, pimples, moth-patches and all eruptions of the skin.

IN THE SPRING AND SUMMER months the system naturally undergoes a change, and Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla is an assistant of the greatest value.

YOUNG LADIES, BEWARE OF the injurious effects of Face Powders and Washes. All such remedies close up the pores of the skin, and in a short time destroy the complexion. If you would have a fresh, healthy and youthful appearance, use Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla.

NOT A FEW OF THE WORST disorders that afflict mankind arise from corruption of the blood. Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla is a remedy of the utmost value.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT SARSAparilla cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors that make disease.

THOSE WHO DESIRE BRILLIancy of complexion must purity and enrich the blood, which Helmbold's Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla invariably does. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENtrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla eradicates eruptive and ulcerative diseases of the throat, nose, eyelids, scalp and skin, which so disfigure the appearance, purging the evil effects of mercury, and removing all taints, the remnant of disease, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by adults and children with perfect safety.

Two tablespoonfuls of Helmbold's Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED Extract Buchu is the great diuretic.—Helmbold's Concentrated Extract Sarsaparilla is the great Blood Purifier. Both are prepared according to rules of pharmacy and chemistry, and are the most active that can be made.

The best test of their purity and superiority will be a comparison with the properties as set forth in the United States Dispensatory.

My laboratory for the manufacture of Fluid Extracts has been visited by thousands of physicians and druggists from all parts of the United States, and the mode of preparation received their unanimous commendation.

Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Fluid Extracts are pleasant in taste and odor, and immediate in their action.

None are genuine unless done up in the steel-engraved wrapper, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

The proprietor was compelled to adopt such a wrapper because of the growing popularity of his articles and to prevent spurious and dangerous counterfeiting.

H. T. HELMBOLD, druggist, of eighteen years' experience, and manufacturer of Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Principal Depots—Helmbold's Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New York, next Metropolitan Hotel; and Helmbold's Medical Depot, No. 104 South Tenth street, Philadelphia.

☞ Sold by druggists everywhere.

Price $1 25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6 50. may30 3mr

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by

ROBT. FISHER, Agent,
may2 1y No. 213 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS OF THE Central Pacific Railroad Comp'y,

BEARING SIX PER CENT. PER annum. Principal and interest expressly payable in

GOLD COIN

OF THE UNITED STATES.

These Securities, based upon the most favored portion of the Great National Pacific Railroad Line,

representing the first claim thereon, and which rest upon a valuable and productive property furnished by an equal amount of the Government Bonds, and a similar amount of private capital, net earnings, donations, etc. They have thirty years to run, are already taken in large amounts for steady investments both in this country and in Europe, and are favorably regarded as being among the very offered on this continent, and are believed to be secure against all ordinary contingencies.

Best and Safest Corporate Obligations

The Bonds are $1,000 each, with semi-annual coupons attached, payable in New York city in January and July, and are offered for sale at

103 Per Cent. and Accrued Interest,

in currency, from the date of the payment of the last coupon. At the present rates of gold they yield

More than Eight Per Cent. upon the Investment, with the prospect of a steady appreciation of the premium upon the Bonds.

The Company have now built and in successful operation 150 miles of road, on both slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains, including by far the most difficult and expensive portion of the whole. They have also an unprecedented force, extending the track into the Salt Lake basin, the middle of which will be reached in Autumn, making more than 330 miles in operation. Several important tributary branch and connecting roads are projected and now being built, and the prospect is fair that the continuous will be completed early in 1870, or about two years from this time.

Through Line Across the Continent

The net earnings from local business merely, for the past year, upon less than 100 miles, operating under temporary disadvantages, amounted to $1,087,901, in gold, over the operating expenses; and the gross earnings for the first quarter of the current year were 50 per cent. greater than for the same period in 1867. It is estimated that the net earnings for 1868 will reach $2,500,000, which, after deducting interests payments (estimated at less than $1,000,000,) are applied to construction purposes. Besides further subscription to the capital stock and other resources, the Company will be receiving from the United States Government its 30-year six per cent. Bonds, at the rate of $32,000 per mile, and are therefore enabled to carry forward the enterprise with the utmost confidence and vigor.

☞ The Company reserve the right to advance the price at any time; but all orders actually in transitu at the time of any such advance will be filled at the present price.

We receive all classes of Government Bonds, at their full market rates, in exchange for the Central Pacific Railroad Bonds, thus enabling the holders to realize from five to ten per cent. profit and keep the principal of their investments equally secure.

Orders and inquiries will receive prompt attention. Information, descriptive pamphlets, etc., giving a full account of the organization, progress, business and prospects of the enterprise, furnished on application. Bonds sent by return Express at our cost.

FISK & HATCH,
Financial Agents of the C. P. R. R. Co.,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

Offices of the Central Pacific Railroad Co.:
No. 54 William street, New York, and
Nos. 56 and 58 K street, Sacramento, Cal.

Subscriptions Received Through Banks and Bankers Generally.

☞ All descriptions of GOVERNMENT SECURITIES bought, sold or exchanged, at our office and by mail and telegraph, at market rates.

Seven-Thirty Notes converted into the new Five-Twenties, or any other class of Government Bonds.

Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, and favorable arrangements made for desirable accounts.

Gold, Coupons and Compound Interest Notes bought and sold.

Miscellaneous Stocks and Bonds bought and sold at the Stock Exchange, on commission, for cash.

☞ Dealers and Investors out of the city desiring to make negotiations in any of the above may do so through us, by mail or telegraph, as advantageously as though personally present in New York.

FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOV'T SECURITIES,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.
je27 5tr

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world, the only true and perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st., New York. mar7 1yr

DUTCHER'S LIGHTNING FLY-KILLER.—The original article, containing more than double the poison of any other, and therefore better and cheaper. Every sheet will kill a quart of flies.

Sold everywhere. je27 1tr

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMployed.—Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents; twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANG, je27 1tr 94 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.

STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address A. J. FULLAM, je27 1tr Springfield, Vermont.

$10 TO $20 A DAY, SURE, AND no money required in advance. Agents wanted everywhere, male or female, to sell our Patent Everlasting White Wire Clothes Lines. Address the American Wire Company, 75 William street, New York, or 16 Dearborn street, Chicago. je27 4t

PERSONS SUFFERING FROM Deafness, Asthma, Whooping Cough, and other diseases of the Lungs, Fever and Ague, Piles and Chronic Diarrhea, may find a cure by addressing DR. BOARDMAN.
je27 4tr 38 St. Mark's Place, N. Y.

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips, will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being extensively used on children's first class shoes.

Sold everywhere. je27 4tr

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely.—The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Your's, very truly,
SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO', Mass., June 9, '64.

MESSRS. BURNETT & CO.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than former y. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair.

With respect,
WM. S. EDDY.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.

For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may2 3mr

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT for Families.—Every family should have a case of Homœopathic medicine. Its simple directions and inviting sugar Pills are so indispensable for children, and so frequently meet the wants of those of larger growth, as to be a necessity. Sickness prevented is health and money saved, and that these simple remedies do arrest disease and restore health is incontestable. No family having once enjoyed their benefits would be without them. Humphrey's Homœopathic Specifics are prepared expressly to meet the wants of families. They are simple, convenient, safe and reliable, and their value has been confirmed by an experience of many years. A full case of thirty-five large vials and Book of Directions, with Specifics for every disease occurring in domestic practice, is sent to any address, by express, free of charge, on receipt of Ten Dollars. Address Humphrey's Specific Homœopathic Medicine Co., 562 Broadway, New York. Send for our Almanac. apr4 3mr

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge,

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs, of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash, or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly installments. Second-hand Instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.
apr4 1yr HORACE WATERS & CO.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile,	$1 50	$1 60
Work of Christ, Marvin,	65	75
Ecce Ecclesia,	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson,	1 25	1 50
Lee and his Generals, half calf,	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles,	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals,	2 60	2 40

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.

ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

SING, MERRILY SING.

Sing, merrily sing,
As birds do in spring,
For now is the time to be cheerful and gay;
With heart and with voice
Let each one rejoice,
And send all dull thoughts and cross tempers away.

The soft fragrant breeze
That glides through the trees,
The murmuring brooklet that dances along:
The insects, whose hum
Tells that summer has come,
Each and all take their part in nature's glad song.

If woodland and field
Rich melody yield,
If ocean and air in the concert unite,
We surely shall raise
Our tribute of praise,
And sing our glad carols in tones of delight.

Sing, merrily sing,
All care away fling,
For blessings are twined round our home and our hearth;
And gifts full of love,
Sent down from above,
Are scattered, like flowers, on life's sunny path.

Sing, merrily sing,
As birds do in spring;
Be happy and joyful, for why should we fret?
Kind friends are around,
Our comforts abound,
And many bright hopes are awaiting us yet.

THE OLD MILLER.

BY FANFAN.

"I'll watch for the wagons, grandpa," said little Bessie Searle.

The old miller had sat down upon the bags of flour to rest, and, wearied by the heat of the summer day, his head drooped upon his breast, and he would have had a nice sleep but for the fear of missing the farmers who might perhaps come to have their grain ground. Every wheel that he heard startled him, he felt such a responsibility.

He was very glad to shift this upon the little ready shoulders. "Be sure that you wake me, daughter," he said, stretching himself upon the comfortable bags, and giving himself up to the luxury of an untroubled nap.

"Dear old grandfather!" said Bessie, stealing softly near, and looking at his serene face, with the silvery hair falling upon the brow.

He had removed his white hat, and the soft breeze came in at the window and fanned his forehead, and the rippling water made a sweet humming as it glided past the mill, and lulled the old man to sleep.

The wheel was still for a while; but it had not many idle minutes in the day, for the farmers, far and wide, depended upon it for their bread; and its rest, as well as the old man's, was well earned.

When Bessie saw that her grandfather was really quite lost in slumber, she took her rag-baby and went out by the mill door to watch.

She could see away up the road to what they called "the bend," and if a horse's head appeared, turning the corner to come toward her, she looked sharply for a heap of full bags upon the wagon, for then she would have known that grandpa's nap was over. So she was very glad that there was no prospect of a job just yet.

Across the stream, opposite the mill, was the old miller's cottage, upon the top of a hill, with a tree in front and a tree in the rear, and one at the foot of the slope.

There was a rude fence at the bottom of the hill, with bushes beside it, and beyond the hill, where the stream was narrow, was a rustic bridge leading from one side to the other.

It was altogether a pleasant spot; and Bessie was quite a happy little girl when her father took her to the white cottage and told her that was to be her home, and grandpa and grandma Searle were to be father and mother to her, while he and her real mother went to sea together; for Bessie's father was the captain of a vessel, and his wife was ill, and needed a voyage to restore her health.

To be sure, the little girl was sad at parting with her dear mother and father, even for a time; but then grandpa told her it was God's will; and the old man had a way of saying those things that made the child feel that all was right—not only a way of saying them either, but a way of trusting them to the Divine hand to give or to withhold a thing, and to lead him all the day long, whether it was over a rough road or in a smooth path.

He and Bessie had many a talk together in the old mill about the loving Lord, who cares for his children, and keeps tender watch over them always.

For a half hour, to-day, the miller slept his sweet sleep, and then Bessie touched him gently. "Such heaps of wheat!" cried the child. "Two wagon loads, grandpa.—Come!" and she clapped her hands joyfully, for she liked to see the white flour, as the grain was crushed between the two large stones, falling into the reservoir below.

Farmer Gould helped to unload the grain, and then went away to come again for the flour at some future day; and the mill wheel had to wake from its rest, and go round and round, dashing the water, and moving the machinery that turned the stone, that crushed the brown wheat, and let the snowy powder from the husks.

"Funny things mills are, ain't they, grandpa?" said Bessie, as she sat with her dolly noticing the process of changing the grain to flour.

She meant curious things—things that are wonderful by their strange contrivance; and her grandfather, who was always teaching her something new, said, "This water mill is a great improvement upon long, long ago, little Bessie. The earliest way of grinding grain was by pounding it between two stones, as some of the under nations do to this day, or by the use of a pestle and mortar. A slight advance upon this mode was the 'nether millstone' and the 'rider,' such as the ancient Hebrews had, and such as some of the people of western Asia and northern Africa still use. The upper stone, or 'rider,' was placed upon the 'nether,' and two women turned it by means of a stick or handle, that was put upright in it. You may see the picture in grandma's Bible Dictionary."

"'Twas slow work grinding that way, wasn't it, grandpa?"

"Yes, daughter; but every house had its own mill then, and its own servants to grind it. Among us there are water-mills and wind-mills and steam mills. As men get more light and knowledge they are constantly finding some way to make their own labor easier. It is very merciful of God to put into our minds the thought of making the water and the wind work for us, so that our life's burden may not be too heavy."

"The wind and the water can turn the wheel all day long, and never be tired," said Bessie. She seemed to be speaking to her doll now, for she had left her old grandfather, and gone down again to the door, where she sat thinking, with the rag-baby perched upon her knee.

She could not keep away from the miller very long, though. Somehow there is a strong affinity between little children and old people, and Bessie wanted no dearer companion than the gray-headed grandfather. So she ran up and busied herself with helping him to "feed the hopper" from the bags of wheat; and when the sun was setting, and the wheel was quiet for the night, the little girl and the old man crossed the river and went up the hill to eat supper with grandmamma in the snug cottage, and to sing the evening hymn together, and to ask God to bring them all, some day, to one bright home above.—Sabbath at Home.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Picking and Marketing Fruits.

When the small fruits begin to ripen, horticulture affiliates with commerce, and he who has heretofore given all his thought to raising fruit must now turn his attention to disposing of it. Much of the pecuniary success depends upon the way in which the fruit reaches the market. In the Eastern markets small fruits of most kinds are sold in baskets or other packages, holding nominally a pint or a quart; while at the West they are sent to market in trays holding a half bushel, and are measured out to the purchaser. To several inquirers as to the best box or basket for fruit, we have not replied, as the question is yet unsettled. It depends in a great measure upon local prejudices. Whatever package is used, it should admit of being well rounded up, so that when it reaches market it will be at least level full. A basket containing three-quarters of a pint, if it is well rounded, will be preferred, by the majority of purchasers, to a full pint of fruit that does not fill the basket. Very few people have a definite idea of what a pint or a quart is, and a wide difference may be made in the capacity of baskets, without the inexperienced being able to perceive it. Until we have a law, or custom, which prescribes that fruit shall be sold by weight, the grower must observe the customs that people have made "a law unto themselves." Why cherries, currants and grapes should sell by the pound, and strawberries, blackberries, etc., by measure, is not easy to perceive. We advocate selling by weight, but as all our people buy by measure, we must accept it. Picking of the small fruits is generally done by the piece—so much for the so-called quart. On large fruit farms the succession of small fruits, beginning with strawberries and ending with blackberries, furnishes employment for at least three months. We know of some establishments where the pickers are employed by the day, but this is where there is a class of women who are willing to do hoeing and other field work, and may be considered exceptional. The work is mainly done by women and girls, though boys and feeble men sometimes take a part. In fruit communities it is not considered "degrading" for any one, whatever his pretensions, to go into the field. And why should it be anywhere? A shanty or tent is put up in the field, as the headquarters of the "boss," and to shelter the fruit from the sun. The empty baskets are delivered from here and are received here when filled. Each picker has her row assigned to her, and she is expected to pick it clean. A foreman passes along the rows occasionally to see that the work is properly done. The fruit is to be picked with the hull on, and the stem must be broken without injuring any fruit yet unripe. The fruit is to be assorted as it is picked, and all of under size or defective shape to be put into baskets by itself. When the picker returns with full baskets to headquarters, she is credited with the number of them on a check list, or receives tickets for them, according to custom. The one who receives the fruit puts the basket into the crates, placing the poorer fruit in a crate by itself, to sell at second rate. The overseer of the whole work must see that no part is slighted, the fruit must be properly assorted, picked clean, and the baskets properly rounded.—Sometimes the fruit is picked in trays and afterward assorted and put into baskets; but this is an old way, and is not advisable, as it requires the fruit to be handled twice. Picking should not be commenced until the dew is off, and the fruit after being gathered should be sheltered from the heat of the sun as soon as possible. It should be so arranged that the picking of one day shall reach the market next morning. This, of course, often requires night work, and there should be a sufficient force to carry out every part with promptness. All crates and packages should be plainly marked with the name of the owner, and, if forwarded by public conveyance, both that of the owner and consignee should be placed on the package. Baskets rounded full and a little pressed will reach their destination in better condition than those merely level full, where the berries have a chance to rattle by jolting.—American Agriculturist.

SCIENTIFIC.

The Possibilities of Science.

Could we bring from the old ages of the world one of its denizens to behold the conditions of life as existing in our own time in civilized lands, he would see, in the place of the parchment and papyrus on which the thinkers of his day slowly recorded their slight knowledge of men and things, myriad sheets of slighter texture bearing news from all portions of the globe, and produced in all their completeness in in an hour; he would find in the place of the bow of brass the breech-loader and revolver, and in lieu of the galley worked by many banks of oars huge vessels propelled by the vapor of water and shielded by iron sides that would almost resist the fabled thunderbolts of Jove. Instead of the courier borne fleet over waste and desert by steed and dromedary, he would know how the message flies silent along the electric circuit that with slender wires belts the land and water of the earth, and how mighty and heavy laden carriages move upon slim tracks of iron with greater velocity than the lightest chariots at the ancient games. He would see the proud purple of Tyre excelled by dyes derived from materials baser in his eyes than the asphaltum that lies on the dismal shores of the Dead Sea, and pictures fair as those that graced the canvas of Grecian artists drawn from life by the agency of the sunbeam; and as the rude native from the interior of Africa sprang affrighted into the sea when he saw the white man's ships, so might the inhabitant of the olden ages be dazed and dazzled to distraction at the sight of triumphs greater a thousand times over than were ever wrought at Vulcan's forge.

Yet the tendency of our age to seize and wrest to practical purposes the laws of nature is proving day by day and year by year the truth of the glorious axiom that "the thoughts of men are widened with the circling of the suns," and that as the world grows older humanity is raised to higher destinies, and it may be that if we could be permitted to look upon the accomplished progress of five hundred years from now, we would be as stunned at the sight as would a representative of the time of the Pharaohs at the characteristics of our own.

The field of science is full of possibilities of greater things than have ever yet been accomplished. The realization of some of them has been sought in vain for centuries, while others are as yet undreamed of in the thoughts of men. Should a motor be discovered or invented which will yield power bearing the same proportion to its weight that the force of the falcon's wings bear to the weight of its body the problem of aerial navigation will be well-nigh solved, and buoyant ships may sail among the clouds. Should some experimenter search out the secret of unlocking its basic metal from common clay, as iron is eliminated from its ore, vessels of aluminium of lighter draught than those now known might skim the ocean at a more wondrous speed; and should some like discovery enable the manufacturing chemist to produce magnesium at the same cost as paraffine, cottage and workshop and lonely light house may be lighted with more splendid rays than illumined the palace arches of Assyrian kings. So, too, should some accident reveal the secret, said to have been twice found and as often lost in the days that are past, of making malleable glass, forged crystal may take its place in a hundred industries, and open up new avenues to experiment and research; and more than this, should some one divide into new-found elements some of the now called simple ones, as Davy reduced soda and its kindred salts, the first step would be taken to the possible transmutation of metals, and the thought be encouraged that the wild dream of Eastern sorcerer and European alchemist might be a dream no more.

When we reflect how many changes and improvements may be wrought by the discovery and utilization of a single hitherto unknown law of science, often indeed from the working out into practical shape of a well known but neglected truth: how the diffusion of information and facilities of education have enabled men to think and to reason more effectively than of old, and how the intellects of myriads are directed to the advancement of science in all its innumbered phases, we can only reach the conclusion that any attempt to state the limits of the possible results of scientific progress are vain indeed. Every artisan who by forge or work-bench or engine lathe strives to elevate the standard of mechanical execution, every inventor who seeks to add new resources to the capabilities of machinery, each experimenter who in the silence of the laboratory watches the multiform reactions of nature's elements upon each other, and every student who labors to store his brain with knowledge that may strengthen him in his own efforts to assist the work of discovery, has his share in the accomplishment of whatever these results may be, and though many may work vainly and many may be forgotten, yet even a slight effort may claim its share in the guerdon of success and be remembered in connection with things for ages yet unborn, even as the toy of Hero, the Egyptian priest, carries back the history of the steam engine nearly two thousand years.—American Artisan.

"THE FLYING MAN."

At a recent meeting of the Aeronautical Society it was announced by Mr. Wenham that one of the members of the society, Mr. Spencer, had already constructed an apparatus by the aid of which he had accomplished the feat of raising himself from the ground-level and performing a horizontal flight of 60 feet, and it was further stated by Mr. Wenham that Mr. Spencer expected to fly the length of the Crystal Palace during the meeting of the Aeronautical Society to be held there on the 25th inst. Since the above announcement was made, we have received from Mr. Spencer some particulars of the apparatus employed by him. It consists of a pair of wings of rather small size, arranged so that they can be worked by the arms; and a large fan-shaped tail of a very light construction connected to the body by basket-work, so that it stands at an angle of about 3 degrees with the horizontal. Mr. Spencer does not profess to fly, in the ordinary sense of the term. He uses his apparatus by taking a short, quick run, this run being continued until by pressure of the air against the under surface of the tail he is raised from the ground. He then, by using the wings, maintains the momentum which he has acquired as long as possible, and is thus enabled to skim along at a short distance above the ground. Mr. Spencer commenced his operations by practicing long jumps without the aid of apparatus, and he then commenced using the wings, and finally added the tail. By continued practice, and from time to time making alterations in his apparatus, Mr. Spencer has been enabled to extend considerably his early flights or 'skims,' and we were informed by him a few days ago that he had lately accomplished a horizontal flight of 180 feet, starting and alighting at the ground-level. Mr. Spencer is now engaged in completing a new apparatus, which he hopes to finish in time for the exhibition of the Aeronautical Society at the Crystal Palace, and we look forward with some interest to witnessing his performance.—Engineering.

HEREAFTER no one in the French army will wear a white plume in the hat except marshals and generals of division intrusted with important commands.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies, with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A J Wright, A M, President
Mrs A A Wright, Principal,
Mr R Scott Ricketts
Miss Anna M Ross
☞ Miss C A Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.
Other Instructors will be announced.

☞ This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars Apply to A J WRIGHT.

D G Humphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. aug 24

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October, 2d, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session, $300.

PAYMENTS.—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability,

W. H. N. MAGRUDER.

Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3-6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cato & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL.

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets,

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

On the corner of Camp and Common sts,

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building,)

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals or Book-keepers in a large portion of the old houses of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR,
nov 17 1y President.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.,
102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. je16 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturer's prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the Implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS,
a ul7 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,
Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev J E C Doremus, D D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testamentary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans: then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $50 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not: to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S: by founding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church, the Board of Directors, representing its body, all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God, for except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the heart-cry of the Great Reformation. No forbidding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment: God's Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. n25 1y.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds,
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
a 1120 1y New Orleans

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Everysort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by J. E. BAILEY, jab 9, 1y Formerly of Chartree Street.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The Institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is to the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent.....$67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency 27 00
French 15 00
Music, with use of instrument,..... 37 50
Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10-3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McOmber, A M, Pres't, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Gen. J C Moore, A M, Prof. of Mathematics,
Rev. B F Kavanaugh, M H, Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
T H Kavanaugh, M D, Prof. of Natural Science.
B F Brown, A B, Principal Preparatory Department.
B V Lens, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868 closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

Collegiate.....$24 00.....Preparatory.....$20 00
Elementary.... 16 00.....Primary..... 13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate.....$36 00.....Elementary.....$24 00
Preparatory ... 30 00.....Primary..... 20 00
Modern Languages. (extra) $2 00 per month.

No incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie — a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O. H. McOmber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas.
july-13-1f

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 13th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The Institution is under control of the M. E. Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address
REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
jy-13-6m Pres'nt Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent, as Compared with any other Stove.

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to THE GOOD SAMARITAN, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to these baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work; and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this apparatus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, THE GOOD SAMARITAN to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of COOKING STOVES, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn,) july6 1y 62 Camp street, Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1.

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1866

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, La'e Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper, is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—THOSE DESIRING THE NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. ROBT. J. HARP, Agt., Lock Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.

For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5..... " 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address..... " 40c
For any number over 25..... " 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

☞ Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays,— Biographical and Descriptive,— Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenæum, The Examiner; The London, Saturday, and Fortnightly Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs. Oliphant, J. Bullioi, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swineburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country; for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR AND FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews.....$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews..... 7 "
For any three of the Reviews.... 10 "
For all four of the Reviews..... 12 "
For Blackwoods's Magazine..... 4 "
For Blackwood and one Review... 7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews..... 10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews 13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews 15 "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48 00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the POSTAGE to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORTON, of Yale College. 2 vols. Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8. feb 2

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug24 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HABBISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

92 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of Dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $4 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen.

Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mar14 3m Lock Box 847, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.

Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.

Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.

Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.

Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $45 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, Ja.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Hortense Rodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Guild, School of Design.

Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar34 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents,

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. En.
sept 28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College.....$30 00
Contingent Fee..... 3 00
Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School.....$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee..... 2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C RAIFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug24 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HABBISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

92 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of Dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $4 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen.

Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mar14 3m Lock Box 847, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.

Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.

Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.

Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.

Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $45 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, Ja.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Hortense Rodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Guild, School of Design.

Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar34 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents,

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. En.
sept 28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College.....$30 00
Contingent Fee..... 3 00
Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School.....$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee..... 2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C RAIFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 76 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vender.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetable Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAML. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of House of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles.....$2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.

sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
n1y Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,

Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.

—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

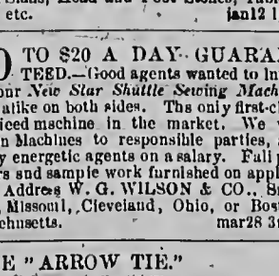
For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans' Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-67-6m



It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, — of many years standing, —affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package, $1 00 Postage 6 cts.
Six packages, 5 00 " 27
Twelve packages, 9 00 " 43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.
e 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Enston, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

apr4 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
a25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

WALLACE & CO.,

Importers and Jobbers of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS, and

PLANTATION CLOTHING,

CORNER MAGAZINE AND COMMON STREETS, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

☞ Sales guaranteed at New York prices. a18 1y

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway,

NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1860.

This invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

112 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH-WEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25

AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c

THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50

PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00

SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with Instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25

NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

"ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile. Baker.....$5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt..... 6 50

ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans.. 2 00

BILL. ALIP..... 1 50

PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS..... 10 00

KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully Illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth..... 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months..... $150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos., 60
" " Preparatory " " " 40
Fuel, for Boarders, " " 12
" " Day scholars, " " 8
Music on Piano, " " 50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each, 0

No extra charge for Greek or Latin.

Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of pianos.

Oil Painting..... $30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each, 20

No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi-annually, in advance.

For further information, apply to july-6-3m B. ARMSTRONG, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healty one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months.....$15 00
Primary Department..... 20 00
Collegiate..... 25 00
Music and Piano..... 25 00
Use of Instrument..... 7 50
Vocal Music..... 2 50
Incidental fee..... 2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month.... 18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month.....$16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE.

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks.. $30 00
Music..... 25 00
Use of Instrument..... 7 50
Languages, each..... 10 00
Incidental Fee..... 2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month... 20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing 16 00
aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,

Corner of St. Andrew Street,

oct6 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, 10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less:

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information.

Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages..... $80,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course..... $75,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing. 20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board of Trustees
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.				1

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The general market continues extremely dull, every branch of business participating to a greater or less extent in the prevailing apathy. The stock of our leading staple is now reduced to so low a point that there is little left on sale, and the receipts are of such limited extent that they afford very little scope to purchasers.—Operations in sugar and molasses are confined to retail transactions, and the movement in Western produce to an inconsiderable jobbing business, without any marked variation in prices.

The weather has been warm and showery. The accounts from the country immediately tributary to the city are to the same effect, and are regarded as favorable to the growing crops, which have recently suffered from drought. Upon the whole, the season may be regarded as highly encouraging to the planter, who may well anticipate a generous yield of grain, as well as of cotton and sugar, unless his hopes should be blasted by some untoward change at a later period.

COTTON.—On Saturday the movement commenced with a fair inquiry, but the few lists offering were held at advanced rates, predicated on favorable accounts from Liverpool, where Middling Uplands was quoted at 11½d., and Orleans at 11¾d., (against 11⅜ to 11½d. and 11⅝ to 11¾d. respectively on Friday,) and as the supply offered very little scope to buyers, the business was confined to 250 bales, at figures indicating a general improvement of one-half cent, Low Middling commanding 28c: and Middling 29c. On Monday the Liverpool telegrams proved to be rather discouraging. The market was quiet and prices easier, having in fact receded to Friday's figures, Middling Uplands being quoted at 11⅜d. to 11½d., and Orleans at 11⅝d. to 11¾d. Factors, however, showed no disposition to recede from their previous pretensions, and as the supply offering was extremely limited, and the inquiry was mostly confined to the purchase of small lots, to complete pending orders, the sales were confined to 130 bales, at easier but not quotably lower prices. On Tuesday, with advices of a still more discouraging character from Liverpool, (Middling Uplands being quoted at the close at 11¼d. and Orleans at 11½d.,) the market was dull and depressed. The offerings were very light, while the inquiry was limited, most buyers holding aloof in anticipation of a further decline, and the sales were consequently restricted to about 105 bales, affording no basis for quotations, which we are accordingly compelled to omit.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 479 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 243 bales, against 268 during the corresponding period last week, showing a decrease of 25 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 580,378 bales, against 701,909 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 292,280 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 96,447 bales to Great Britain, of 988 to France, and of 112,241 to other foreign ports.

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales....	15256
Arrived past three days. 243
Arrived previously.....654536-654779
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc.....	3239—658018
	673274
Exported past three days..... 2513
Exported previously ..... 661713—664226
Stock on hand and on shipboard....	9048

SUGAR.—Since our last review the market for Cuba sugar has been very dull. The transactions were confined to jobbing and retail lots. The stock on hand continues good. What little Louisiana sugar there is remaining in market is retailing slowly at 14½c per pound for fair, 15¼ to 15½c. for prime, 16 to 16¼c. for yellow clarified, and 16½ to 17c. for white.

MOLASSES.—Cuba molasses, since our last review, has continued dull and depressed. The stock on hand is good. There is very little demand for distilling purposes. We heard of no transactions in round lots. It is quoted at 46½ to 52½c. per gallon. The small amount of choice reboiled Louisiana molasses now remaining is retailing at 85c. per gallon.

FLOUR.—Extreme dullness continues to prevail in the flour market, and prices rule lower.

CATTLE MARKET.

JEFFERSON CITY, Tuesday Evening, June 23, 1868.

Western beef, choice, per lb net.....	12 to 15c
Western beef, second qual, per lb net	— to —
Texas cattle, choice, per head	$35 to 40
Texas cattle, second qual, per head.	25 to 35
Texas cattle, third qual, per head ...	12 to 20
Hogs, per lb gross	10 to 12c
Sheep, first quality, per head.....	$— to 6
Sheep, second quality, per head....	— to 3
Sheep, third quality, per head.....	— to ¼
Milch cows, choice, per head.....	80 to125
Milch cows, per head.....	50 to 87
Texas cows, with calves.....	— to 60
Yearlings, per head.....	6 to 12
Calves, per head.....	5 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire).

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 50	10 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	1 00	11 00
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	18 00
Spades	11 00	13 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₱ yard:
Kentucky	19	22
East India	22½	24½
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₱ lb	8½	9
Bran, ₱ 100 lbs		1 30
Bread, ₱ 100 lbs.: Pilot		7 50
Crackers	8 00
Bricks, Lake, ₱ M	13 00	14 00
English, Fire	45 00	50 00
Candles, ₱ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow		20
Adamantine	17	21
Star	18	25
Chocolate, No 1 ₱ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₱ bbl
Northern	13 00
Coal, Cannel ₱ ton		15 00
Anthracite ₱ ton		10 00
Western, ₱ barrel		55
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₱ lb	14½	18
Havana	45	55
Java	30	38
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₱ ton	16 00
Hulled, ₱ bushel
Copper, Braziers' ₱ lb	35	36
Sheathing
Copper Bolts	35	36
Yellow Metal	28	29
Cordage, Manilla, ₱ lb	23	24
Tarred, American		21
Russia	30
Corn Meal, ₱ bbl	4 75
Dyes, ₱ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y		3½
St. Domingo	4
Fustic, Tampico	5
Indigo, ₱ lb	1 25	1 75
Madder	16	18
Eggs, ₱ doz. Western	12	14
Feathers, ₱ lb
Fish, Cod, ₱ box		70
Herrings	60
Mackerel, No. 1, ₱ bbl		22 00
No. 2		17 00
No. 3		13 00
Flaxseed, ₱ lb	4	6
Flour, ₱ bbl:
Superfine	7 75	8 00
Extra	7 50	15 50
Fine	7 00
Fruit, Prunes, ₱ lb		18
Figs, Drum	18	20
Dried Apples	7
Currants, Zante	8	8½
Almonds, soft shell	32
Raisins, M R, ₱ box	none	here
——Layer	4 40	4 50
Lem's Sicily ₱ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₱ box
Oranges, La. ₱ 1000
Sicily ₱ box
Glass, ₱ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 80
10 x 12	3 90	4 00
12 x 18	4 40	4 90
Grain, ₱ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 85	2 90
Canada	3 00	3 10
Oats	75
Corn, shelled ₱ bushel	95	1 00
Beans, ₱ bbl	19 00	23 00
Hops, ₱ lb	25	45
Gunpowder, ₱ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₱ bag	20
Hay, Western, ₱ ton	21 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₱ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	16	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	9½	13
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₱ piece
Iron, Pig ₱ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₱ lb	5	6
English, ₱ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₱ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Boiler	8	9
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	7	7½
Castings, American	6½	8
Lime, Western ₱ bbl	1 65	1 90
Shell Lime	1 75
Rockland, &c	2 25
Cement	3 00
Molasses, ₱ gallon:
Louisiana
Muscovado
Refinery, Reboiled	75	85
Moss, ₱ lb:
Gray, Country	3
Black do	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	6½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₱ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₱ bbl:
Tar	3 00
Pitch	4 50	5 00
Rosin A No. 1	3 40	3 50
No. 2	3 00	3 25
No. 3	2 50	2 75
Spirits Turp ₱ gallon	45
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₱ gallon	1 50
Coal Oil	39	42
In cases	50	55
Cotton Seed, Crude		85
Refined	1 05	1 10
Tanners' ₱ gallon	90	1 15
Oil Cake, Linseed ₱ ton
Cotton Seed		35 00
Meal
Provisions, ₱ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	20 00	21 00
" North half bbl	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₱ lb	15	16
Tongues ₱ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess		29 25
Prime Mess		26 50
Hog, round, ₱ lb	13½
Bacon, Hams, ₱ lb	16
Do., canvassed	20	21
Sides	16	17
Shoulders	13½	13¾
Green Shoulders		13½
Lard, Prime, in tierces	18½
In kegs	20
Fair, in tierces
Butter, Northern	35	40
Western	28	32
Cheese, American	15	16
Potatoes, ₱ bbl	2 50	3 00
Onions	5 00	5 50
Green Apples	4 00	5 00
Rice, ₱ lb, Louisiana	6	11
India
Carolina	11½	12
Saltpetre, refined, ₱ lb	14	25
Crude	13	15
Salt ₱ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 50	2 55
from store	2 60	2 65
coarse, cargo
from warehouse	2 60	2 65
from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₱ bushel	1 90	2 00
Soap, ₱ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	18	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₱ lb:
In the city	13½
Havana, White	15	15½
Yellow	12½	14½
Brown	12	12½
Tobacco, in hhds, ₱ lb:
Balers & Cutters
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9½	12½
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	8	11
Good Refused	7	8
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₱ lb	60	80
Bailing	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₱ lb	32	34
Burry	10	15
Louisiana, Native	20	25
Texas, ¡@¡ Metinos	26	28

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,

Between Philip and First Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as references for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 83 CARONDELET street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

ATLANTA, February 8, 1868.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Collier's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana. THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D,
Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D,
Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wynn parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Collier, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible cure for Cancer

REV J F BELLAMY,
REV J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years. I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Collier's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar. I believe Dr Collier can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y MOORE

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the cure

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Colier

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES.

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $30.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's unabridged, Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sunday School Union's Biblical, and Anthon's Classical.

Books for

PRIZES, HOLIDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS,

beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care.

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound;

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell, $4 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, prepaid, for 50 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

fe29

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman, D D., Ll. D.
Rev. E Wadsworth, A M., D D.,
O. as A M.
Rev. J C Wills, A M.
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this Institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term..... $40 00
Incidental fee..... 5 00
Tuition in Preparat'y school per term $30 to $35
Contingent fee $2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

July 27-tf O F CASEY: Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has a good school, which is designed to be permanent, in successful operation, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He would board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elementary Branches..... $20 00
Higher Branches..... $25 00
Latin, Greek, etc..... 30 00
French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B. CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja 18-1 m

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin 60c.
Sent by mail at 70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan $1 50
" Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep $1 25
Roan 1 50
Roan Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
S. S. Bells (single) $4 25 per doz.
" " (Double) 6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

july 27 tf

H. F. GIVEN, W. G. BROWN.
D. A. GIVEN, E. K. DUNKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON — FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186.....COMMON STREET.....186

feb3-67 1y

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY,

308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(JOHN GEDDES—JOS. A. SHAKSPEARE—S. SWOOP.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 18 '67, 6m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondelet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

jan 26 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.,

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.,

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBURG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Foundries and Steamboats. nov4 6m

TH HIGGINBOTHAM, C. W. HODGE W. R. MAYO, New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants.

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, uly6 1y LA.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR SARATOGA WATERS.

COOLING, REFRESHING AND PLEASANT!

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA.

In 6 oz. bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick headache, sour or sick stomach, and all febrile cases. For sale by BARNES, WARD & CO., New Orleans, and by most druggists. Prepared by

ARTHUR ROGERS,

may16 3m 193 Spring street, New York.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's Domestic Family Physician describes all diseases and their remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR S. S. FITCH,

may2 7mp 714 Broadway, New York.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Cromb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carriage, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS,

Reps, Cornices, Binds, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

J L DUNNICA. G P HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 99 POYDRAS street, New Orleans, La.

Agents for the following brands of flour, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

McCutcheon, Gordon & Co., choice XXX. W Rosborough & Co, choice XXX. Sucker State choice X. Sparta Mills choice superfine.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J L DUNNICA & CO.

sep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A fresh supply of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations; also Dr. Jones' Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE.

F. B. ALBERS, Agent,
No. 12 Baronne st., near Canal,
dec14 1y New Orleans.

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION

AND

FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No. 64 North Commercial street,

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled. aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR,

AND

COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART, } NEW ORLEANS
Late Stuart & James.

☞ Represented by CAPT. J. A. BINFORD, Duck Hill, Miss. oe20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS,

General Commission Merchants,

And COMMERCIAL AGENTS. aug25 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchoupitoulas Street,

And 8 and 10 New Levee,

aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F G BARRIERE G W BABCOCK

F. G. BARIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

No. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.

n10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

WM. EDWARDS. }
EDWD. J. GAY. } sep15 1y

J. G. ELLIS. W. C. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. jan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co.
SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 UNION STREET,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. C. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

ap7 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS,

New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Payne & Harrison)
Edward Harrison,
J. P. Harrison, jun.,
Sidney Harrison,
John N. Harrison. july7-1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar7 6m

A. D. GRIEFF,

Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st.,

aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS.

ang 8'67 1y

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

COLGATE & CO.'S

FRAGRANT TOILET SOAPS are prepared by skilled workmen from the best materials, and are known as the Standard by dealers and consumers.

☞ Sold everywhere. mar28 3m

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Customhouse Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. je25 1y

J. B. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS. M. J WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

41y 36 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

57 Poydras street.

Cotton Office—192 Common street—in charge of RICHARD J. NUGENT. aug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. B. R. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., corner Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. feb18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 32 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON,
W. H. DAMERON, H. M. PAYNE.
je23-1y

O. M. STEIRER. THOS. C. SALTER

G. M. STEIRER & CO.

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market.)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves;

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER.

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar9-6m-67

D. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS

AND

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb21y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

C. M. SWENSON, N.Y., late of Austin, Tex. W. M. PERKINS, D. L. KENNION, Of Perkins & Co., NJ.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

s29 1y

E. S. KEEP. I. CAULFIELD.

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oc13 1y

R. ATKINSON & CO: New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO., Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants

188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS;

☞ Cash advances made on consignments to us by HEWITT, SWIGHER & Co., Galveston, Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA

REFERENCES: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Sandidge, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. L Walker, New Orleans, La. july 20

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 155 Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS

W. A VIOLETT. R. W. BLACK. A. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants

15 6m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans.

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D F. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

july 5 6m

F. L. RICHARDSON J. D. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

No. 5 Commercial Place.

fely New Orleans.

CANCERS CURED without pain, use of the knife or caustic burning. Circulars sent free of charge. Address

DRS. BABCOCK & SON,

apr4 3m 700 Broadway, New York

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 24. | WHOLE NUMBER ..... 686. |

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1868.

[$3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE. | OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Yesterday an immense assembly of colored men thronged the sidewalks in front of the Mechanics' Institute long before 12 o'clock, the hour fixed by the proclamation of Gov. Warmoth for the meeting of the General Assembly.

The lobbies of the Senate chamber and of the House were crowded to excess.

It appears that a portion of the crowd were in wait for the inauguration of the governor elect. Gov. Baker and Lieut. Gov. Voorhies were in readiness since 9 o'clock to turn over the papers of their respective offices to the governor-elect, H. C. Warmoth, and Lieut. Gov. O. J. Dunn, colored.

THE SENATE.

The Senate was called to order at 12 o'clock, O. J. Dunn in the chair, and thirty-two members present. The chairman caused to be read the late military orders appearing in the papers, by which he was appointed. He appointed the secretary, who entered upon the duties of his office; appointed the sergeant at arms, and this being accomplished, he called upon a minister for prayer.

The roll was called in accordance with military order.

Mr. Dunn then called upon those able to take the test oath to come forward and take it; that he did not recognize the validity of the recent orders of Gen. Grant—he had been officially informed of them—and that he, Oscar J. Dunn, decided the test oath to be requisite.

Mr. W. B. Blackburn, of Claiborne, objected, as he believed it was not required that the test oath should be taken—the only oath should be that under the constitution.

Mr. Sambola, of Orleans, held that the president (Dunn) had no authority to prescribe any other oath than that prescribed by the constitution.

Mr. John Ray held that, in his opinion, the present was not a provisional government such as required the test oath to be taken, but a permanent government which required no such test.

Mr. E. L. Jewell, of Orleans, was opposed to the test oath, and quoted the reconstruction laws to show the absence of all authority to administer it.

O. J. Dunn persisted in his determination to administer the test oath.

Mr. Ogden made an emphatic protest against any such action, and the ground of his address was that parties should be cast aside and the members unite for the good of the State.

Mr. Sambola moved to adjourn.

O. J. Dunn refused to entertain the motion. He was called upon to put it on the ground that a motion to adjourn was always in order, but declined.

An ominous silence then ensued—nobody broke it.

A call was made for the Senators to come up and be sworn.

They came up to the desk by twos and threes, and the oath: 'I solemnly swear that I have never voluntarily borne arms,' etc., was administered, the Democratic members consulting meanwhile.

O. J. Dunn abandoned the administration of the oath and turned over the papers to R. H. Shannon, conveniently sitting near, and he concluded the operation.

O. J. Dunn refused to hear or pay attention to any of the Senators who were on the rolls returned by military order, unless they would take the test oath.

A motion to reconsider was made, but the motion was not entertained.

When the administration of the test oath was completed it was found that no quorum was present—only 18—and a full-blooded Radical was dispatched for Major Beares, who would make up the 19.

Mr. Ray moved to adjourn, as there was no quorum.

O. J. Dunn answered that a member would be in directly.

Major Beares was duly escorted in and took the oath. This made 19—a naked quorum.

All of the nineteen then came to the front and took the constitutional oath: 'I do hereby recognize the equality of all men, and agree not to molest them in the rights enjoyed by any other class of men,' etc.

On taking their seats, O. J. Dunn declared the Senate organized.

A motion was made and unanimously carried to appoint a Committee on Elections.

Then the seat of each member of the Democratic party in the Senate was individually contested by a member of the Radical Republican party.

All were referred to the Committee on Elections, which, as appointed, consists of five members, Mr. Smith being chairman.

The Senate adjourned, accepting the motion of Mr. Ray to adjourn every day hereafter at 12 o'clock—meeting at 10 o'clock.

During all these proceedings in the Senate the lobby, packed with a crowd of negroes, cheered 'aye!' on the slightest provocation, as if they had been there before and rehearsed the thing. The exact words of O. J. Dunn, when he decided against the opinion of Gen. Grant that only the test oath should be required, were, 'that he did not believe as Gen. Grant did; that he differed from him, and that he was the sole judge of the matter.'

The nineteen Senators who took the test oath were all of those who were elected on the Radical ticket; the remainder, who withdrew, were Democratic members.

THE HOUSE.

The House of Representatives assembled in the large up-stairs room of the Mechanics' Institute, memorable for the association with one or two conventions and supreme assemblages, yesterday afternoon. Before the hour appointed the seats assigned to members were pretty well all occupied, and the lobby was packed with a dense crowd, composed of the proportion of about five colored men to one dusky white. As soon as order had been called and members subsided into their places, it was curious to notice how strong a resemblance the House of Representatives bore to the late convention in all its general features, though particular faces were readily missed. Crane's fiery figure-head was supplanted by a staunch Democratic representative, less obtrusive, but almost as energetic. Simon Jones's pale, poetic eye was absent, (being directed rather hopelessly Congressward); and the seats of Blackburn, Wapples and Belden were filled by native Africans. But the broad resemblance was there, and when the Democratic members elect had retired, rather than take the test oath, it was more evident still that the Legislature and convention are going to be very much alike, especially the Legislature.

The Democratic members, for the most part, arranged themselves on the left of the Speaker; the colored representatives took the right side—not a pleasing nor a striking coup d'œil; too much shade everywhere—like the badly managed chiaro obscuro of a spurious Rembrandt picture.

The proceedings were conducted with a fair amount of decorum—nothing much to speak of. A strong body of police was in attendance in the building, and in reserve near at hand. The chairman pro tem. hinted at calling in the 'policemans' once, but didn't do so. This threat was called forth by the Democratic delegate from St. Bernard, whose perpetual sallies from his seat on the sixth row in the gangway, in front of the chair, and whose perpetual retreats before the stern visage of the sergeant-at-arms, resembled strongly Micawber's denunciation of Uriah Heep, when that gentleman continually rushed out of the corner where Copperfield and Tommy Traddles tried to hold him, and flourishing a three-foot rule before his foe, ejaculated the first syllable of 'scoundrel,' and then retired.

Mr. Melvin, of Natchitoches, coming up to be sworn, and wearing his hat Quaker fashion whilst taking the oath, fell in for a storm of reprobation. The chairman first inquired what he was doing with his hat on. After the matter had been explained to him with some little trouble, quite a torrent of abjurgation fell upon the unlucky member from the colored side of the House, and requests to 'take dat 'at off' were loud and frequent. An embarrassing personal explanation had to be gone through before all was set right.

ORGANIZATION.

Col. Batchelder, Jr., of Gen. Buchanan's staff, called the assemblage to order at 12 o'clock, and directed the roll to be read. The Colonel's appearance in his uniform, and the presence of another officer of Gen. Buchanan's staff, (Col. Johnson,) caused a stir in the room, and a Radical member proposed the appointment of a clerk to assist Col. Batchelder in calling the roll.

Col. Batchelder, however, put his foot down on the proposition by paying no heed to it.

Gen. McMillen, speaking from the gangway in the centre of the room, formally protested as a Representative returned to the Legislature of the State of Louisiana, against the interference of the military in the organization of the House.

Col. Batchelder called him to order, but

Gen. McMillen proceeded with his remarks, ending with a proposition, which he believed would be acceptable to his friends, that they should allow Gen. Buchanan and his representative, Col. Batchelder, to do what they like, but should do so under protest, and with a distinct understanding that when the legislative chamber was once organized, Gen. Buchanan and the U. S. Army at large must understand that their interference must cease.

[These remarks were received with yells of applause from the Radical side of the House.]

Six Democrats and six Republicans from the country parishes were absent. Col. Batchelder having read to the House Gen. Grant's telegram to Gen. Buchanan, stating that the oath to be imposed on members of the Legislature was discretionary, but that he would suggest that the oath prescribed by the constitution should be the only oath required, withdrew in company with Col. Johnson.

Mr. R. H. Isabelle, of New Orleans, (colored Radical,) and Mr. Peter Harper, of St. Charles, (white Democrat,) were nominated for the position of chairman pro tem.

Mr. Isabelle's name was received with such a tornado of ayes that he took the chair at once, without his opponent's name being submitted to the vote.

Mr. Vigers, the secretary of the late convention, was made secretary of the House, and Mr. Johnson sergeant-at-arms.

A Democratic Representative protested that the organization was illegal in consequence of the short notice given of the Legislature.

Mr. Briout, (Dem.,) of St. Martia, moved to lay all the propositions on the table, and demanded the ayes and noes, and when all his protestations were passed over, told the chairman that his conduct was based on injustice, and that he (Mr. Briout) would appeal to the House.

Chairman Isabelle curtly retorted that until the House was organized no appeal could be taken.

Members being called up to take the oath, Mr. Briout again protested that Mr. Isabelle, as chairman pro tem, had no power to administer the oath.

Chairman Isabelle thereupon called up Chief Justice Hyman from the body of the room to the Speaker's stand.

Stepping forward, Chairman Isabelle then said: I announce myself as being about to be sworn in. In being sworn in, as this State is under military rule as well as under the reconstruction acts, I feel myself bound to take the test oath, as well as that required by the constitution. [Yells of applause.]

Chief Justice Hyman thereupon read the test oath from a bound volume of such like documents to Mr. Isabelle, who swore to it, and also to the oath prescribed by the constitution.

Beginning with the parishes in their alphabetical order, the various Representatives from the country were called up and sworn in in batches of five or six at a time. The secretary got no further than the C's before a hitch occurred with the Democratic Representatives from Caddo, Messrs. Howell and Christian. They were ordered to stand back, and the chairman announced that no candidate could take his seat without first taking the test oath.

Mr. Knapp, (Dem.,) of St Bernard, said he could take the test oath, but he wouldn't. He didn't recognize the right of the chairman to impose it, and further inquired whether the House had resolved itself into a mob.

The chairman assured him that if he didn't take the oath he could not be sworn in.

Mr. W. Pope Noble, (Dem.) of Orleans, respectfully inquired what would be the position of any member elect by the people who didn't choose to take the test oath.

Several members rose to order.

Mr. Noble—I ask only for information. It is not my intention to create any disturbance, but having been elected by the people, I have a right to a place in this assembly, and I ask the conditions under which a man must rest if he declines to take the test oath.

The chairman—I should consider the seat vacant for the present until the committee report upon it.

Mr. Noble wanted to know, if the seat was considered vacant for the present, how long would that present be?

The chairman said that was more than he could answer, and he desired the secretary to go on calling the roll.

Mr. Noble said he could only respectfully protest. He declined to take the test oath because he could not conscientiously do so. [Applause.] He had been a private soldier in the Confederate army, and he had gone into it voluntarily, and could not swear that he didn't. [Cheers.] Therefore he refused to take the test oath.

Dr Knapp, advancing from his seat to the foot of the platform, insisted upon the chairman looking at his certificate of election from military headquarters.

The chairman ordered him back to his seat, in charge of the sergeant-at-arms, and, on the Doctor repeating his protests, kept on sending him back by the sergeant-at-arms, and threatened to appoint an assistant sergeant, or call in the police.

Fifty-three members took the test oath.

The chairman declared this number to be a quorum, and said the House would now proceed to business.

A committee of five Republicans—Messrs. Yorke, Brewster, Antoine, Lott and Gray—was appointed to investigate the claims of the Democratic members.

At 1½ o'clock an adjournment till 12 the next day was ordered.

The last seen of Mr. Knapp, he was protesting, and was being pressed back into his seat by the sergeant-at-arms.

The proceedings of Tuesday are thus summed up by the Crescent:

Yesterday, at meridian, when the Senate was about being called to order, a soldier dismounted from his horse in front of the State House, and entered the Senate chamber. The large cavelop he delivered to the doorkeeper was handed to Mr Dunn just as that functionary opened the session. Before the reading of the minutes Messrs. Sambola and Jewell, Democratic Senators, whose names were not called on the roll, and who were accepted as the spokesmen of their confreres, vehemently protested against any further proceedings until every member was qualified and admitted to his seat. Dunn, the president, called them both to order, and peremptorily ordered them to remain silent. Mr. Sambola declared that he knew Mr. Dunn was at that moment in possession of a communication from Gen. Buchanan, covering another from Gen. Grant, in which the general-in-chief gave it as his opinion that the only oath to be required of Senators elect was the oath prescribed by the State constitution of Louisiana.

Mr. Ray, of Ouachita, then arose and said there was one alternative—there were two opinions for the Senate to decide between: the opinion of General Grant and the opinion of Mr. Dunn, the lieutenant governor and president of the Senate. He thought the Senate should be guided by the presiding officer's opinion. The Senators tacitly agreed with the Hon. Mr. Ray, and the communication of the commanding general of the Fifth Military District, quoting the opinion of the commanding general of the armies of the United States, was referred to a committee of five, whilst, in the meantime, the communication was ignored, and the gentlemen who had brought their credentials, and were ready and willing to take the oath prescribed by the constitution of Louisiana, were deprived of all their rights, and treated as so many unwelcome intruders.

ORDER FROM GENERAL GRANT.

Below will be found a dispatch from General Grant. This dispatch directs the replacement of Gov. Baker with H. C. Warmoth, governor elect, and of Lieut. Gov. Voorhies with Oscar J. Dunn, lieutenant governor elect.

[Telegram.]

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., June 27, 1868.

Brevet Maj. Gen. R. C. Buchanan, Commanding Fifth Mil. Dist., New Orleans, La.:

To avoid any question as to who shall exercise the offices of governor and lieutenant governor of the State of Louisiana, after notice convening the legislature of said State under the act of Congress passed June 25, 1868, you will appoint Henry C. Warmoth, governor elect, governor of the State of Louisiana, vice Joshua Baker, removed; and Oscar J. Dunn, lieutenant governor elect, lieutenant governor of the State of Louisiana, vice Albert Voorhies, removed.

These removals and appointments to take effect at the date of the convening of said legislature.

U. S. GRANT, General.

A true copy:
JNO. B. JOHNSON,
Brevet Lieut. Col., U. S. A.,
Assistant Secretary Civil Affairs.

There is said not to be a single stove pipe hat in Utah.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

ELECTION RETURNS — THE RADICAL ORGAN SUSPENDED, ETC.

Jackson, June 29.—The second day's election closed here with a Radical majority of 616 in this county, where there is a registered colored majority of 1,700. The election throughout the State will not close for several days.

Full returns have been received but from few counties. Some of the Radical strongholds have been heard from, leaving the majority for the Democrats, as far as heard from, 12,785. The Radical newspaper of this place says that in all the counties where the Democrats have received majorities the election must be declared illegal and void—although there is not a single outrage known to the public.

The official organ of the Radical party in the State has suspended publication.

The polls at Vicksburg were kept open till 10 o'clock on Saturday night by order of Gen. McDowell, against the earnest protest of the citizens.

Washington, July 1.—A great many Southern delegates to the New York convention are here. They generally express themselves in favor of the Northern delegates nominating the candidates. A comparison of the views of the delegates passing through here only shows that little can be prognosticated, and that action will be shaped by the course of events and the caucusing at New York. Jesse D. Bright said yesterday that Pendleton and Seymour would go into the convention the strongest, and one of them would be nominated.

Washington, July 1.—The President has relieved Gen. McDowell from command of the Fourth Military District. He is ordered to report without delay to the War Department. Gen. Gillem succeeds McDowell in command of the Fourth District.

Washington, July 1.—Hamilton, a member of the House from Florida, was sworn in.

The Coup De Main.—The revolutionary blow struck on Monday by those ambitious men of color, Dunn and Isabelle, under the direction not merely of a minority of the members of the respective Houses of the General Assembly, but of less than two-thirds of the Radical members alone, so that they dared not allow an appeal from their own decision, as it would have been reversed, may answer for a while the purposes of party, but must result, finally, in the undoing of the mass of its adherents, of all, indeed, who expect to remain within the borders of Louisiana.

Its present object was the exclusion of a portion of the Democratic members who were unable to take the test oath, and of the residue of those who refused to take it through sympathy for their associates thus wrongly treated. It was intended thus to obtain possession of the organization of the Legislature. With this in their hands, they have undertaken to unseat divers elected Democratic members and to admit others, replacing them, without trial as required by the constitution, under the pretext that they are entitled to their seats through extra legal certificates and proofs, thereby obtaining an uncontrollable majority of each House.—N. O. Picayune.

Columbus Prisoners.—The history of nations does not record a more terrible act of military despotism than that displayed by Gen. Meade in arresting and throwing into prison thirty of Georgia's best citizens, on the mere supposition, without the least proof, that they were concerned in the cowardly assassination of a Radical leader called Ashburn.

It seems Ashburn was killed in a negro brothel on the night of the — by parties unknown, and these gentlemen, without knowing by what charge, were arrested; released after a few hours' confinement on bail; a week afterward again arrested, carried to Atlanta, a city one hundred miles from their homes, and then thrown into prison. The secret of this whole proceeding is thought to be the large reward offered; but five of the above gentlemen were thrown into dungeons and there confined for four days and five nights, without bed clothes, when they were removed to comfortable quarters, then back to the cells, which had been made smaller, where they are now confined.—New Orleans Picayune.

The pope has received a supply of the Remington rifles from America, which he expects will do wonders. The Pontifical troops are being exercised every day in the use of these blessed weapons.

Commencement Exercises at Whitworth Female College, Brookhaven Miss.

Eighteen months ago this institution became the property of the Mississippi Conference, through the generosity of the noble man whose name it bears.

The building was immediately repaired, and on the 11th of September, 1867, the school opened, with Rev. H. F. Johnson president, and a full and competent faculty. Unusual prosperity has marked the history of the college since its inauguration under present auspices. Over one hundred pupils have been in attendance during the session which has just closed. The annual examination, commencing the 16th and ending on the 22d inst., passed off with great eclat. It was a decided success, and the result will be to extend the reputation and influence, and to increase the patronage of the school. The several classes in grammar and arithmetic displayed remarkable proficiency in these important branches. But we cannot go into detail.

The large audience which attended the daily exercises will not soon forget the occasion.

Tuesday, the 23d inst., was commencement day. Eight bright, blooming girls received the honorary degree of Mistress of English Literature. They won their honors fairly.

There was the usual reading of compositions, delivering of diplomas, addresses, etc., which mark the ordinary routine of exercises on commencement day.

There was the tender valedictory, and the delivering of prizes for proficiency in various studies and for excellence of behavior. All these things came along in regular and pleasant order, and we need not dwell upon them. One thing unusual, not on the programme, occurred. A very handsome gilted-ged, double clasped bevelled royal quarto Bible was presented to the college, through Rev. B. Jones, from ———. Shall I say who?

Rev. Robt. J. Harp, agent of the Book Depository, No. 112 Camp street, is the generous donor.

You are perhaps acquainted with this tall, modest bachelor friend of ours. We thank him most heartily, and commend his taste in the selection of the book, and his judgment in disposing of it. All things end, and so did this bright day.

A novel feature was the grand reunion of faculty, pupils, parents, trustees and friends, at the college, on Tuesday evening. A most magnificent supper was furnished the guests in the dining hall of the college. Until the train came along, to bear our sweet girls away, all went merry as a marriage bell. The whistle blows, the heart-breaking sob, the long-drawn kiss, the tender good by, and Whitworth College is silent and deserted.

Not to trouble you with a longer description, it is sufficient to add that the whole demonstrated the fact that Brother Johnson is the "right man in the right place."

The order, system and good behavior were very remarkable, and the thoroughness with which the principles of science have been taught commends this institution to the patronage of intelligent educators. Nothing is taught by note or done for mere show. Utility and practicality are prominent ideas at Whitworth College.

Withal, a healthy moral and religious tone pervades the institution. The cross is not forgotten in the class and lecture rooms, in the chapel, church and Sabbath school. The name of Jesus is proclaimed and the truths of the Christian religion inculcated. Your's truly,

"Member of Miss. Conference."

Men confess everything but their own besetting sins. They steer quite clear of these. Who ever heard a man say: "O Lord! I am as proud as Lucifer; humble me;" or, "O Lord! I am mean and stingy. Make me generous.'

For the Advocate.

THE THREE HEALTHS.

BY RAMON.

Lady Alice, she sat on her palfrey white
And she called to a page to fill
And fetch from the streamlet so pure and bright
That fell from the rocks like a liquid light
A cup of its crystal rill.

By her father fair hand rode a stately knight
And they strove for her constant smile;
In battle or siege they were men of might
That fought for their faith and their country's right,
And were sworn against guile and spite.

"Prithee, tell me, sir knight," said the lady fair,
As she bent for the dripping cup,
"Ye roam thro' the world without fear or care
And dares to do what the just may dare,
Ye startle adventures up.

"Prithee, what is the boldest, sweetest draught?"—
And she balanced the dewy chalice—
"That, distant or nigh, ye have ever quaffed—
To friendship and home"—then she softly laughed—
"And the health of the Lady Alice."

"Faith, a bolder draught did my lips never have,"
Said the rugged Sir Guy de Salle;
"Than dipped I one eye from the Severn's wave,
For 'twas tinged with the blood of our fallen brave,
And I drank to the Lady Alice."

"Yet, the warrior's cup, when the day is done"
Lady Alice she sweetly said,
"When tinged with the blood that the field hath won,
Is hallowed; yet something of wrath doth run
In its circle so bright and red."

Quoth the gentle Sir Henry: "I drank of one Blessed cup without wrath or malice;
'Twas the merciful gift of a holy nun;
I drank the sweet wine 'neath a foreign sun,
And remembered the Lady Alice."

Now the seneschal gray lingered gravely by,
In the midst of the bustling throng;
His hoary locks waved to the soft wind's sigh,
For the time of the harvest of death drew nigh
And his life had been grand and long.

Never speaking, he drew from her fair white hand
The brimming and sparkling cup,
And, casting his eye o'er the youthful band
His gesture half blessing and half command,
He lifted the goblet up.

"Yonder rhand of silver, whence came this draught,
Ripples out of a hither spring;
'Tis called by the lads of the shepherd's craft
The 'Tears of Affliction' and 'Sorrow's Shaft,'
For its chilling and bitter sting.

"Lady Alice, no gratefuller cup know I
Than to drink thine afflictions up;
The sorrow of error, dejection's sigh,
And the terrors of death, if thou needs must die"—
And he swallowed the bitter cup.

For the Advocate.

The True Object of Sabbath School Instruction.

The Sabbath school is one of the most important institutions of the church. In it the children and youth are instructed in the knowledge of the Scriptures—wherein God has revealed himself to man, and taught us the way of life and salvation. They contain the history of redemption by the sufferings and sacrificial death of our blessed Saviour, and exceeding great and precious promises for our encouragement in the discharge of our duty to God and man. They also clearly reveal the awful penalty of sin, in the eternal undoing of the soul of the unbelieving and finally impenitent sinner. Surely no book should be studied more carefully or so highly revereneed as the word of God. But it is to be feared that many, both teachers and scholars, do not sufficiently realize the importance of religion, and fall into the habit of merely hearing and reciting the lessons as a matter of form; or, at most, of attaining an intellectual acquaintance with the Scriptures, while they lose sight of the true object, which should be their own personal salvation, and perfection in the graces which adorn the Christian character.

How few teachers labor to make a personal application of the great truths they teach! How few aim, in all their instructions, to bring the members of their classes to the exercise of genuine repentance, and a personal, saving interest in the Redeemer. These things ought not so to be. The teachers should be deeply impressed with a sense of the worth of the souls of their scholars, of their own responsibility for their faithfulness to those immortal spirits, and pray earnestly and labor affectionately to lead them to serious reflection, and to seek that divine change of heart, without which they cannot be saved. No person is strictly qualified to be a Sabbath school teacher who is not an experimental Christian, or sufficiently so to know the way to heaven when they see others walking in it themselves.

Children will never be permitted to extricate themselves from embracing religion because of their youth. That is a device of the great adversary, and directly in conflict with the command of God: "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth," and again: "Suffer little children even to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of God." Just as soon as children know right from wrong, and are capable of committing willful sin, they are qualified to be pointed to Christ, and become subjects of regeneration. It is not necessary to be complete theologians and understand all the mysteries of the Bible before they come to Christ. Let them give their young hearts to the Saviour, and learn to lisp his name in prayer, and praise before they become occupied with the follies and vanities of the world. Children can learn a vast amount of wickedness before they are ten years of age. Why can they not learn righteousness with equal precocity?

If Sabbath school and Bible-class teachers were all properly impressed with their responsibility, and were constantly, earnestly and prayerfully engaged in laboring for the immediate conversion of their pupils, every Sabbath school in the land would become truly a nursery of the church, and multitudes would have cause to praise God, in eternity, for having enjoyed its heaven-born privileges.

G. SHAEFFER.

COLUMBUS, June 13, 1868.

For the Advocate.

Evidence Found in the Style of the Scriptures.

OPELIKA, Ala., June 22, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: I have heard a great many arguments advanced to support the doctrine that the Bible is the work of divine inspiration. There is one argument, however, I have never seen noticed, which carries with it not only great weight, but to my mind, thorough conviction. It is this: outside of the sacred book there is no other writing like unto that style. No half dozen consecutive sentences in all other books are possessed of the same terse, comprehensive and meaningful simplicity. Take any selection of the great minds, ancient or modern, and not one of them can imitate the style or elegance of the divine diction, or write anything on any subject, that would for a moment compare with its unaffected narrative of passing events, or its easy, natural flow of choice language in publishing the divine law and commandments. It is remarkable that, it matters not what may be the breadth and depth and strength of a man's mind, he cannot produce just such writing, nor can he assume a style so similar as to have his production mistaken for a chapter of the Bible.

But note this other remarkable fact, that there were about half a hundred writers of the Bible, living at various times, in different countries, taught in different schools of thought and by different masters of style, yet all—it must be under divine influence—adopting the same concise, forcible, inimitable, unapproachable manner of conveying their different ideas. I can account for it in no other way than that it was inspired by God.

Respectfully,

W. J. SAMFORD.

THE new head-master of Eton has introduced great reforms in the curriculum of that ancient classical school. French is to be taught all through the school, German and Italian through the first three divisions, and physical science in the fifth form.

For the Advocate.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CELEBRATION.

MANSFIELD, La. June 11, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: The 6th of June was the anniversary celebration of the M. E. Sabbath school at Mansfield. It was under the direct management of our devoted superintendent, Mr. J. L. Scales, to whose untiring energy we are indebted for the pleasures we enjoyed.

We were partially prepared for the festivities of the day by an entertainment given on the Friday evening previous. At 8 o'clock on this evening the school, accompanied by a large concourse of people, assembled at the M. E. Church. Here the exercises opened with the hymn "Anniversary Day," which was sung by the school with much ease and spirit. As the voluptuous swell of music arose on the evening breeze all were animated.

Then followed prayer, offered up by Rev. John Pipes, the preacher in charge, in which ascended, as in one voice, the warm thanksgiving of many hearts to the Great Shepherd for his protecting love.

The audience was then highly entertained and edified with two addresses, one delivered by Mr. B. A. Holmes, a member of the school, and the other by Rev. Mr. Allen, a Presbyterian minister. Their theme was Sabbath schools, their object the instruction and entertainment of the children. Nobly did they succeed. The entire audience seemed spell-bound, and responded, internally, as the speakers urged the importance of this noble institution, and we hope many resolved to devote themselves anew to the great work of Sabbath schools.

Several other appropriate and sprightly songs were sung by the children, when we were dismissed with the benediction.

At 9 o'clock on Saturday morning the school again met at the church. A procession was here formed, and was led onward by the banner carried by one of the officers. The school, consisting of one hundred and fifty members, composed the procession, each class standing in the order of its number. In this manner we marched to the ravine adjacent to the town. It was a magnificent sight—that long line of soldiers of the Cross—and we fancied the superintendent looked not a little proud as he paused and glanced down that moving column, and beheld the sparkling eyes and bright faces of those dear children committed to his charge.

Arrived at the ravine, we were disbanded and told to "go anywhere, and do anything we pleased, provided we did no wrong." These were joyful words to those who had all the week been poring over dull school books, and you may imagine this order was obeyed with no little alacrity. Not only was the school present, but an immense crowd had gathered from the surrounding country to participate in this great festival. Rev. C. B. Stuart, president of the Female College at this place, was on the ground, and his face seemed wreathed in smiles as he saw the young ladies of the institution, no longer pent up in the college walls, but "free as birds on the wing," so smiling and so happy. Capt. J. W. Stuart, principal of the Mansfield Male Academy, was also there, and we fancied, we saw his eye brighten as he viewed the boys join the gay throng. Our preacher, too, was present, with elastic step and beaming smile, saluting his many friends and members of his fold, who seemed to welcome him to this scene of joy, as a personage essential to its perfect success. The great friend of the Sabbath school, Rev. H. C. Thweatt, was there. We are glad to say a large, comfortable arm-chair had been provided, under one of the most beautiful shade trees, for the venerable patriarch. It was a beautiful and touching sight to see the bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked children voluntarily crowding around to catch, with eagerness, the words of instruction that fell as drops of honey-dew from the lips of this aged saint, whose palsied limbs, sunken cheek, and eye, now dim, evoked at once reverence and love.

But it would have done your heart good to have seen our superintendent. As he stood and looked upon the scene, beheld the children scrambling over rocks and hills, gathering flowers, and playing in the limpid waters that gushed forth at the base of the hill and wound like a silver thread around the entire encampment, as he beheld these scenes his face was lit up with a placid smile, indicative of that happiness of soul that only those can feel who have made others happy.

The ringing of the bell called us once more together around an almost endless table, spread under an arbor, and loaded with all that could attract the eye or tempt the appetite. A pause ensued, during which we heard the voice of Dr. Thweatt raised to high heaven, entreating the blessing of God on the sumptuous repast. We then prepared to do justice to the feast, which, you may well imagine, was no unpleasant task. The repast ended, we hastened to our various pleasures. Groups might be seen rambling amid the rocks of our romantic ravine; others, seated under shade trees, were conversing; while ever and anon you might hear the expression: "What a delightful time we are having!" No cloud was there, but the sunshine of happiness and peace enlightened the brow of every one. As evening drew on all began to repair to their respective homes with the happiest of hearts. Indeed, this was one of the happiest days we ever remember to have spent, and we think all who were present will agree with us. On Sabbath morning a letter was read, addressed to the school by Rev. H. C. Thweatt, mentioned above. He had intended to address the school in person, but his infirmities prevented him from doing so. It was written for the children, but we think older hearts might have drawn instruction from its pages. It was like the advice of an aged father to his own children.

Thus began and thus was finished this delightful celebration.

P. K.

[Pity we were not there.—Ed.

THE 'INDESCRIBABLE SOMETHING.'—When one takes up a book that is written by a spiritual-minded Christian, no matter to what department of literature it belongs, nor what may be its subject, he detects or feels in it a peculiar quality that is not found in other books. This quality is felt, though the book contains no profession of faith, and nothing of a didactic character.

It comes like a sudden breath over the soul, stirring new thoughts and emotions, and touching the finer springs of existence. It changes our moods, and even our views and moral estimates, placing things in a new light as by a flash of intuition. It awakens something in us that has slumbered until thus finely and mysteriously touched. It is nothing that belongs to art, or that is the result of culture. It is more than intellectual refinement, or elevation of spirit resulting from high morality. It is different in kind from anything that mere morality can develop in the human soul. There have been wise sages and noble moralists among the heathens. The moral precepts of Seneca, Confucius, and others, as well as many of those inculcated by Mohammedan and Buddhist teachers are admirable, and often bear a close resemblance to those of Christianity. We may admit, too, that there have been men of all creeds and races who were upright and noble in their impulses, and who conscientiously endeavored to conform to the laws of natural morality. Our libraries contain many works written by those whom we call heathens, breathing a severe and exalted moral spirit—but none, no not one, that has this mysterious quality which is developed from the spiritual part of our nature, from a region into which man cannot ascend until lifted there by God through that supernatural action upon the soul which we call grace; the voice of the Divine Spirit waking up the human spirit to its true life.—The Covenant.

NEWLY planted trees, when summer approaches, should be mulched with litter enough to keep down the growth of grass and weeds, and preserve a uniform moisture. Straw to the depth of four or five inches, and to the distance of four feet from the stem, answers the purpose best. The ground between newly planted trees may be cultivated in growing vegetables, if well manured.

PEOPLE who like so much to talk their mind, should sometimes try to mind their talk.

INDIAN CONVERTS.

Experience Mayhew, in 1727, published a volume, made up from the manuscripts of his father, grandfather and great grandfather, supplemented by tradition and his own memory and observation, entitled: Indian Converts; or some account of the Lives and Dying Speeches of a considerable number of the Christianized Indians of Martha's Vineyard, in New England, in which he gives accounts, more or less copious, of thirty Indian ministers, thirty-seven godly men not in church office, thirty-nine religious women and twenty-two pious children—128 in all—who had given such evidence of genuine conversion and earnest devotion to the Saviour as to merit particular mention. Two or three extracts, which are all for which space can be spared, will hint the flavor of their piety.

When Hiacoomes, an Old Head Indian, and one of the nobles of his tribe, was dying, he was visited by Peter Ohquohamut, afterwards a preacher, and the following dialogue took place, which was preserved:

Peter. You do believe there is a God?

Hia. Yes, indeed, I believe that there is a great God named Jehovah, and that he created the world and all things in it.

Peter. Do you know that you have sinned against this God who made you?

Hia. Yes, indeed I do. I know I have committed many and great sins against him.

Peter. Are you sensible that for your sins you deserve to be punished?

Hia. Yes. I know that my sins have deserved that I should be cast into hell, and be there tormented forever.

Peter. Have you then any hope of being saved, and if so, by whom and how?

Hia. I have been informed that God sent his Son into the world to redeem and save sinful men, and that such as come to him by true faith and repentance are saved from wrath by him; and on this I ground my hope for salvation.

Peter. Do you repent of your sins, and by faith come to Christ, since you hope for salvation in this way?

Hia. Yes, I do. I keep coming to Christ, and I mourn for my sins, and entreat him to pardon them, and cleanse me from them, and now bursting into tears he was not able for some time to say anything more; but after a while he asked: Had God but one Son, and no more?

Peter. He had but one. He gave his only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

Hia. Oh, the wonderful love of God! that having but one Son, he was willing to give him to suffer and die for us miserable sinners, that so we might live through him.

Japheth Hannit had a remarkable history. He was the child of Panunnuit and Wattunnaikamkook, whose birth is connected with the incident related by Cotton Mather in his Magnalia, under the heading of "The unknown God wonderfully making himself known to a poor Pagan," which has such an interesting relation to one of the great questions of natural theology. The facts, related in the most careful and authentic manner by Mayhew, are briefly these:

Panunnuit, a Chilmark Indian of high caste and his wife had had five children, and buried every one within ten days of their birth, notwithstanding all that the Powwows could do to help them. A sixth—this Japheth—was born a short time before the coming of the English to the Vineyard, about 1635. The mother, greatly distressed by the fear of losing this child also, and utterly despairing of help from any means formerly tried, as soon as she was able—which was within the fatal ten days after his birth—with a sorrowful heart wrapped him in her mantle and went out into the woods that she might there weep out her sorrow. While weeping there and bewailing the insufficiency of human help, it was powerfully suggested to her mind that there is some unseen Power who created the child, and who could, if he pleased, preserve its life. And so she poured out her soul in entreaties to that unknown God, that he would spare her baby's life. The infant past the dreaded period in safety. She accepted the fact as an answer to her prayer, and in the gladness of her heart she dedicated the child to this unknown God, who, as she firmly believed, had spared its life. When, five or six years after, she heard of Mayhew, and the new gospel which he preached, she said at once, "that God of his is the God who saved my child's life, and to whom he belongs;" and she and her husband hastened to hear the good news in full, and were among the earliest converts. Japheth was sent to school, and so trained that in good time—himself a believer—he was called to the ministry, being the third pastor of the Indian church.

Possibly the peculiarity of his own early history may have had some influence upon his mind, but I find a very neat answer given by him to an over-zealous brother, who had been a teacher to Japheth and other Indians, and who subsequently changed his views on some important points, and felt it his duty to labor with him, to bring him to accept the "new light." To whom Japheth replied:

You know, sir, that we Indians were all in darkness and ignorance before the English came among us, and instructed us, and that yourself are one of these English men by whom we have been taught and illuminated. You taught us to read, and instructed us in the doctrines of the Christian religion which we now believe, and endeavor to conform our practices to. And when, sir, you thus instructed us, you told us that it may be there would shortly false teachers come among us and endeavor to pervert us, or lead us off from our belief of the things wherein we had been instructed; but you then advised us to take heed to ourselves, and beware that we are not turned aside by such teachers so as to fall into the errors into which they would lead us. And now, sir, I find your prediction true; for you yourself are becoming one of these teachers you cautioned us against; I am therefore fully resolved to take your good counsel, and not believe you, but continue steadfast in the truths wherein you formerly instructed me!—Sabbath at Home.

They Won't Trouble You Long.

Children grow up—nothing on earth grows so fast as children. It was but yesterday, and that lad was playing with tops, a buoyant boy. He is a man and gone now! There is no more childhood for him or for us. Life has claimed him. When a beginning is made it is like raveling a stocking; stitch by stitch gives way till all is gone. The house has not a child in it—there is no more noise in the hall—boys rushing pellmell; it is very orderly now. There are no more skates or sleds, bats, balls or strings left scattered about. Things are neat enough now. There is no longer any task, before you lie down, of looking after anybody and tucking up the bed clothes. There are no disputes to settle, nobody to get off to school, no complaint, no importunities for impossible things, no rips to mend, no fingers to tie up; no faces to be washed, or collars to be arranged. There was never such peace in the house! It would sound like music to have some feet to clatter down the front stairs! Oh for some children's noise! What used to all us, that we were hushing their loud laugh, checking their noisy frolic and reproving their slaming and banging the doors?

We wish our neighbors would only lend us an urchin or two to make a little noise in these premises. A home without children! It is like a lantern and no candle, a garden and no flowers, a brook and no water gurgling and gushing in its channel.

We want to be tried, to be vexed, to be run over; to hear children at work with all its varieties. During the secular days this is enough marked. But it is the Sabbath that puts our homes to the proof. That is the Christian family day. The intervals of public worship are spaces of peace. The family seems made up that day. The children are at home. You can lay your hands upon their heads. They seem to recognize the greater and lesser love—to God and to friends. The house is peaceful but not still. There is a low and melodious thrill of children in it. But the Sabbath comes too still now. There is a silence that aches in the ear. There is too much room at the table, too much room at the hearth. The bedrooms are a world too orderly. There is too much leisure, and too little care. Alas! what mean these things? Is somebody growing old? Are these signs and tokens? Is life waning?—H. W. Beecher.

THE most extraordinary telegraphic feat on record is the transmission of an extraordinary message from London to San Francisco. The wires in America were joined up for experiment from Heart's Content to California, and the message was sent from Valentia at twenty-one minutes past seven in the morning; the acknowledgment of its receipt was received back in Valentia at twenty three minutes past seven, the whole operation having only occupied two minutes; the distance traveled was about fourteen thousand miles, and the message arrived, according to San Francisco time, at twenty minutes past eleven on the evening of January 31, or the day preceding that on which it left England. A Dublin editor considers it unnecessary to send a message at all, since a telegram reaches its destination ten or fifteen hours before it is sent!

THE Sultan of Turkey has just ordered to be manufactured in Paris a silver table, the price of which will not be less than $600,000 in gold.

For the Advocate.

MY MOTHER'S PORTRAIT.

BY JULIA WESTWOOD.

How sweetly look those eyes on mine,
So deep, so calm, so beautiful!
Methinks they almost move, so full
Of love they are and seeming life.
I cannot feel, when gazing on Those feathres, that I have lost my Mother; for as I look into Those soul-full eyes, and meet from them
A look into my own, she lives
And loves me. I have watched it till
It seemed the lips had spoken, and
As my ear leaned close, to catch the Benediction it so oft had Heard in days by-gone, it came.
Ah! yes—God bless my child! I have gazed
Again, till in my fancied thoughts
The brooding arms, that used to shield
Me, have opened wide and fallen
On my neck; and then once more the Bosom true, that shrined my mother's Heart, was beating 'gainst my own. Oh!
Would these dreams were real; and yet,
My selfish grief, be still, and in Thy sorrowing make visions of Another home—that higher home
Of many mansions, fitted up
By Christ for those who love and serve
The Father. 'Tis there my mother,
Now clad in vestments purified,
Is dwelling with the angels, while
Her life-like semblance hangs mute
Before me, yet speaking, in sweet,
Magic looks, love-tones to my heart.
Ah! sacred is this image of My lost mother!...And I can gaze
Into those eyes until my own,
Full of tears, shut out their beauty.
This picture dear, and one soft lock
Of silvery hair, is all that's left
Me here of her who gave me birth.
And as I treasure these, she goes
God, and dwells hard by the Eternal
Throne, arrayed in white.

JOHN RAY.

Judge Scott, late of Chillicothe, Ohio—himself a pioneer preacher in Kentucky—thus describes him, as he appeared about the year 1795: "The Rev. John Ray was a rather tall, well-proportioned man, with a very pleasant countenance; and, on account of his meek, courteous manners, and chaste, instructive conversation, was held in high estimation by all who knew him. He was a very faithful and useful minister of the gospel, but did not rank as high as some few of our ministers of that day."*

Many amusing incidents are related of him, among which we give the following, from the "Autumn Leaves:"†

"On one occasion an old gentleman of some wealth and influence had been guilty of very unfair conduct in the settlement of certain matters, for which Ray, who was immediately concerned, unhesitatingly remarked that the old man was a great rascal. The person so complimented, hearing of it, said that Ray should take that back, or he would thrash him. A short time afterward Ray was passing along the road where the old gentleman was out with his hands at work. He immediately called out:

"'Mr. Ray, I want to see you a moment.'

"'Very well,' said Ray, 'what is your will?'

"'I understand that you said I was a rascal.'

"'Yes, I did say it, and I said precisely what I thought.'

"'Well, sir, I said I would thrash you the first time I saw you.'

"'And did you think that that would make you an honest man, or alter my opinion of you? It would do neither the one nor the other, so that my whipping would go for nothing. I think you would be acting very foolishly. Now, if you want to find out which of us is the stouter man, we can settle that in a more decent way than by having a fight. Let us try it by lifting at that log. If you can raise it higher than I can, I will acknowledge that you are the stouter; but if I lift it higher than you—which I am pretty well persuaded will be the case—then you must acknowledge yourself beaten.'

"'Well, Mr. Ray, don't you acknowledge that you slandered me in saying I was a rascal? and won't you take it back like a Christian?'

"'No; I shall always look upon you as a scoundrel until you repent, and give evidence of the sincerity of your repentance by making restitution.'

"The old man flew into a rage again, and repeated vehemently that he would flog him.

"'I think,' said Ray, 'you are a little rash. If you were to attempt such a thing you could not do it.'

"'What! you are a minister of the gospel, and threatening to fight!'

"'You had better not provoke me. I don't know what I might do; only this, I certainly am not going to let you beat me.'

"'Ah! well, Mr. Ray, let us make it up, and have no more quarreling.'

"'Agreed,' said Ray. 'I will take back what I have said when you repent and make restitution; but until then I shall hold you as a dishonest man.'

"The old man did not get angry again, and Ray rode away, leaving him in a better humor, but still feeling that he was regarded by him as a dishonest man.

"Brother Ray was a stranger to fear. I once saw him tried in circumstances where most men would have quailed. He, with several others, had prosecuted a man for kidnapping a family of free negroes.

This person had carried off two lads and sold them in West Tennessee. In order to save himself from the State prison he was compelled to send and purchase the negroes at an enormous advance, and surrender them to the court. He was greatly exasperated, and determined to seek revenge on his prosecutors. Not long afterward Ray and myself, with two other persons, were returning from the city of Lexington, where we had attended a conference. We had not traveled far before we found ourselves pursued by a party of five men, armed to the teeth, with knives and pistols. They followed us until we reached a certain place, when they rode up, swearing that they would be revenged by shedding Ray's heart's blood. He received them as coolly as if they had been harmless travelers. 'If you think,' he said, 'to frighten me by this maneuver, you are mistaken. I know well that you are a set of cowards, or you would not come up armed against an unarmed man. It is dastardly. You are young men; I am an old man; why all this parade?'

"I and the other brethren present told them that if they touched Ray it would be at their peril, and urged them to desist for the sake of their own reputation, if for no other reason. We finally succeeded in dissuading them from their purpose, but through it all the intended object of their vengeance remained perfectly unmoved."

A member of the Kentucky Conference,* who knew him well, writes thus:

"The Rev. John Ray, about forty years ago, was a minister of very marked character, of the Kentucky Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was a man of large stature—tall, well-proportioned, rather portly, erect, noble and commanding in appearance. His features were regular, of a strong, masculine cast. Benignant humor, independent boldness, uncompromising firmness and biting sarcasm were strongly written upon his countenance. His step was firm and elastic. He was of graceful and commanding mien. His complexion, though dark, was not swarthy. His hair—though doubtless originally a deep-brown—when I first saw him, was a magnificent iron gray, standing nearly erect upon his forehead, and hanging down, from ear to ear, in bushy curls upon his shoulders.

"A man of such personal appearance, we may reasonably suppose, would be a marked and decided character in whatever sphere he might move. And such he was. I have been informed that, in early life, his advantages were few, his education limited, and his training rough and little refined. He was a ringleader in all the frolicsome amusements and rough sports of the neighborhood. He could out-run, out-jump, out-fiddle and out-box the most celebrated of his associates.

"But when converted he was equally bold and decided. He soon became a minister; and though, to use his own language, he often 'drew the bow at a venture,' he seldom failed to 'send the arrow to the heart' of some of 'the King's enemies.' He was certainly no book-worm. He read comparatively but little, except the Bible and the standard works of the church; yet he was a man of great quickness of perception, and keen, practical sense. He thought much and closely. His ideas were clear; his reasoning strong and logical; his method simple and natural; his voice strong, melodious and manly; his emphasis was correct and impressive, and his manner dignified and earnest. Though ignorant of etymology and syntax, his language was generally in accordance with grammar.

"With him, shrewdness of mother-wit supplied, to a great extent, what culture had denied. In the pulpit, as well as in the social circle, he abounded in pithy, epigrammatic remark. His illustrations, though always taken from the common affairs of life, and sometimes coarse, were pointed and forcible—always understood and seldom forgotten.

"Many amusing incidents, illustrative of his ready wit and repartee, have been told, and are yet in the memory of his friends. He became noted in Kentucky, in his day, for his strong opposition to slavery; and was quite rough, and sometimes offensive in the manner in which he obtruded that subject, especially upon people of the world. He would seldom lodge at the house of a slave-holder, if he could well avoid it. Often, at his appointments, when invited home with a stranger, his prompt interrogatory would be: 'Have you any negroes?' In the annual conference, whenever a preacher was proposed for admission, every eye would be turned to Father Ray, expecting him to arise, as was his custom, and say: 'Mr. President, has he any negroes?'

"Once, in his presence, a young preacher was rather boasting that he was very popular on his circuit with a certain denomination. 'It is a bad sign, young man,' said Father Ray. 'That only shows that you are both impudent and ignorant; for those are the passports to popularity in that quarter.'

"In his own neighborhood resided a Baptist minister named John S., familiarly called 'Raccoon S.,' who also was a man of much wit. These ministers had many a friendly sparring together. One day they met in the road, in the presence of some friends—Ray returning from a camp meeting, and S. from an Association.

"'How do you do, Brother Ray?' said S. 'You seem to be returning from camp-meeting; and I suppose you had the devil with you, as usual.'

"'No, sir,' replied Ray; 'he had not time to leave the Association.

"Ray generally rode a very superior horse. Once, as he was riding through the town of M., a group of young lawyers and doctors, seeing him approach, plotted that they would 'stump' him, in some way, when he came up. On his arrival their chosen spokesman commenced:

"'Well, Father Ray, how is it that you are so much better than your Master? He had to ride on an ass, but you are mounted on a very fine horse. You must be proud. Why don't you ride as did your Master?'

"'For the simple reason,' said Ray, 'that there are no asses now to be obtained—they turn them all into lawyers and doctors.'

"They said no more.

"These amusing incidents, though of little consequence in themselves, serve to illustrate the character of the man. We add but one more:

"He was celebrated for his capacity to command order, and tame the ruffians who sometimes infested camp meetings. On one occasion he had asked some young men to leave the seats appropriated to the ladies. They did not obey; whereupon he left the stand, and was approaching toward them, when he overheard one of them say to his companion: 'If he comes to me I'll knock him down.' Ray very coolly replied: 'You are too light, young man;' and, taking him by the hand, led him quietly to his appropriate seat. He misbehaved no more.

"Though years have elapsed since the subject of this sketch passed from earth away, numbers are now living who trace their religious impressions to his labors.

"He remained in Kentucky some years after he had superannuated, but, previous to his death, he had removed to Indiana.

"Hundreds are yet living—not only in Kentucky, but in Indiana, Illinois and Missouri—who once knew him well, and can call up, with the freshness of yesterday, the swelling melody that rolled from his clear, musical voice, as he would lift it up in his favorite hymn:

"'Our souls by love together knit,
Cemented, mixed in one!'

"But this laborious servant of God now rests from his labors in his Master's kingdom. He and his son Edwin, of precious memory in the Indiana Conference, are now doubtless singing together the 'song of Moses and the Lamb.'"—Redford's Methodism in Kentucky.

AGES OF ANIMALS.—The average life of cats is fifteen years; of squirrels and hares, seven or eight years; of rabbits, seven years; a bear rarely exceeds twenty years; a dog lives twenty years; a wolf twenty; a fox fourteen to sixteen; lions are long-lived; the one known by the name of Pompey lived to the age of seventy; elephants have been known, it is asserted, to live to the great age of four hundred years. When Alexander the Great had conquered Porus, king of India, he took a great elephant, which had fought very valiantly for the king, and named him Ajax, dedicated him to the sun, and let him go with this inscription: "Alexander, the son of Jupiter, dedicated Ajax to the sun." The elephant was found with this inscription three hundred and fifty years after. Pigs have been known to live to the age of twenty, and the rhinoceros to twenty; a horse has been known to live to the age of sixty-two, but averages from twenty-five to thirty; camels sometimes live to the age of one hundred; stags are very long-lived; sheep seldom exceed the age of ten; cows live about fifteen years. Cuvier considers it probable that whales sometimes live one thousand years; the dolphin and porpoise attain the age of thirty; an eagle died at Vienna at the age of one hundred; ravens frequently reach the age of one hundred; swans have been known to live three hundred years. Mr. Malerton has the skeleton of a swan that attained the age of two hundred years. Pelicans are long-lived; a tortoise has been known to live one hundred and seven years.

* We are indebted to Rev. W. T. Harvey, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Chillicothe, Ohio, for a copy of the manuscript left by Judge Scott, in reference to early Methodism in Kentucky. We shall quote from it frequently.

† Rev. Jonathan Stamper, in Home Circle.

* Rev. Dr. Ralston, in a letter to the author.

MISSIONARY NEWS.

We copy the following summary from the New York Independent:

The income of the missionary societies of England, America, Germany, France, etc., for 1866, was $4,425,000; which, though large in the aggregate, is less than five mills for each of the 965,000,000 souls of the earth's population who are Pagans, Muhammedans or Jews.

At a missionary anniversary held at Mahratta, in India, a native pastor gave thirteen dollars—more than a month's salary. Another native pastor, who last year lost sixty-five rupees—they were stolen from him—this year gave the same sum as a thank-offering to God, who had kept him and his.

The Emperor Napoleon has given an audience to the secretary of the Evangelical Alliance on the subject of the interference with the operations of Protestant missions in New Caledonia by the Romish priests. His majesty expressed his regret that any interruption had occurred to the work of the Christian missionaries on the part of the French authorities, and assured the secretary that the same religious liberty which prevailed in France would be extended throughout the French dependencies.

The monthly religious paper of the Zulu Christians of South Africa is filled with discussions of the questions whether it is consistent for Christian parents to sell their marriageable daughters for cattle. It is the universal practice; and the highest legal authority of Natal has declared that the payment of cattle is the only thing that makes a native marriage legal. Comely girls will sell for thirty or forty head of cattle, and are often sold at public auction. The American missionaries, some years since, made it a disciplinable offence for a Christian father to sell his child; but their rule had, from the force of circumstances, been relaxed.

The Presbyterian (O. S.) missions have been very successfully carried on the past year. Eighteen new laborers have been sent out, besides their wives. The receipts of the board have been $285,808, but a debt of $27,000 now stands against the treasury. Of eighty-four native pastors connected with the missions of the American Board, one half are entirely supported by their people—pastors of independent churches. This is work finished. The amount contributed to the support of the gospel by the native Christians, for the year 1866, was over $40,000 in gold—an eighth part as much as was given by all who contribute through the board to advance the cause of Christ in foreign lands.

Rev. Mr. Clark, who has the charge of the missions of our Am. and For. Christian Union in Northern Italy, regards the progress made in that country during the past few years as remarkable. He quotes an eminent Christian scholar and statesman—probably the American minister, Mr. Marsh—as saying: 'Comparing Italy to-day with what she was ten or twelve years ago, there is no country or government in Europe that has made such rapid progress; and, though the political has been more apparent, the religious has been more real and profound. Italy is now the freest, religiously, of all the nations on the continent. There are twenty young men being trained in the theological school at Milan; and so great has been the demand for their services that Mr. Clark has been compelled to allow them to leave before their course was completed, for active labor. Many are applying to enter this seminary. Infidelity can gain no stronghold, as in France; and there are no obstacles that could withstand a vigorous work of evangelization.

We are glad to be able to present a summary of the receipts of all the English foreign missionary societies for the past year. Belonging to the Church of England, the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, High Church, received £114,456; the Church Missionary Society, Low Church, £157,288. Among the Dissenters, the Wesleyans contributed £149,371; the Independents, £111,306; the Baptists, £34,912; the Scotch Free Presbyterians, £19,530; the United Presbyterians, £21,418; the English Presbyterians, £5,283; and the United Methodists, £10,052, including, however, in this last item their home work. Omitting the United Methodists altogether, we have a total of £613,564 contributed for foreign missions, of which £272,744 were contributed by supporters of the Established Church, which includes nearly the whole of the rich aristocracy. To this ought, perhaps, to be added £42,168 in aid of Colonial and Continental Societies. All but £5,723 was contributed for Episcopal purposes.

Dr. Hepburn speaks of the changes going on in Japan as most marvelous. This is especially true of the upper or military class. 'We are not without hope that some of the many young men who have been under our instruction, at different times, and who have learned to value the Bible and see the excellence of Christianity, may some day be helpers to us. Most of these young men have quite given up all idolatrous practices, and laugh at the superstitions of their countrymen. One or two of them, we are inclined to think, have a true sympathy with the truth, are praying men, and earnest students of the Bible.' He also refers to the adoption of Western ideas as to dress, furniture, etc., by many of the Japanese. He found a native gentleman, whom he had lately visited, on a bed, with sofas, center-table, astral lamp, book-case, etc., in his parlor; where, a few years ago, would have been found nothing but mats on the floor—no furniture of any kind. Dr. Hepburn reports the building of a dispensary and chapel on the mission premises, at a cost of eleven hundred dollars in gold, eight hundred of which were generously given by friends in Yokohama. This building was much needed.

The Baptist Foreign Missionary Union has twelve missions in Europe and Asia. Connected with these are 18 Asiatic stations where American missionaries reside, and about 400 outstations. Laboring with them are 93 missionaries, including their wives and teachers, while the native assistants number 400, about sixty being ordained. The number of church members is 16,000, of whom over a thousand were baptized last year. Of these missions, nearly all of them in Burmah, the most prosperous is that to the Karens, who are much more accessible than the Burmans, who constitute the ruling race. The Karens are very teachable and are rapidly accepting the gospel. This is the same phenomenon which we see in India. There missions like the Madura Mission of the American Board, or the Travancore Mission of the Church Missionary Society, are wonderfully blessed, the labors being there expended on the aboriginal population, who were conquered in the invasion which gave the control of India to the ruling Hindoo race. The European missions of the American Baptists are situated in France, a weak mission; in Germany, where they have 16,050 members and 93 churches; and in Sweden, where there are 199 churches and 7,444 members. The German and Swedish missions are being pushed with great energy and success. The whole number of members in all the missions amounts to 40,000.

SICK-ROOM COOKING.

CHOCOLATE MILK.—Dissolve an ounce of scraped chocolate in a pint of boiling new milk.

BRAN TEA.—Take of fresh wheat bran one pound, and water three quarts; boil down to one quart; strain and sweeten to taste.

ISINGLASS BLANC MANGE.—Isinglass, a quarter of a pound; rose-water, half a pint; milk, two quarts; milk of almonds, half a pint; boil to a proper consistence and cool.

PRESERVATION OF SOUPS.—Beef soup, broths or jellies may be preserved from turning sour in the sick-room, or elsewhere, by stirring in a few drops of the solution of bisulphite of lime. This will not impair the taste in the least.

LEMON PEEL WATER.—Pare the rind of one lemon which has been previously rubbed with half an ounce of refined loaf sugar; put the peeling and sugar into a jar, and pour over them a quart of boiling water. When cold, pour off the fluid and add a tablespoonful of lemon juice.

MULLED WINE.—Take a quarter of an ounce of bruised cinnamon, half a nutmeg, grated, and ten bruised cloves; steep them in half a pint of boiling water for an hour, strain, and add half an ounce of white sugar; put the whole into a pint of hot port or sherry wine. It is a good cordial and restorative in the low stages of fever, or in the debility of convalescence from fevers.

CHICKEN PANADA.—Take the white meat of a boiled or roasted chicken, free it from the skin, and cut it into small pieces; pound these in a mortar with an equal quantity of stale bread, and a little salt, adding gradually some of the water in which the chicken has been boiled, or some beef tea, until the whole forms a thin fluid paste. Put this into a pan and boil for ten minutes, continually stirring.

BY reading, we enjoy the dead; by conversation, the living; and by contemplation, ourselves. Reading enriches the memory, conversation polishes the wit, and contemplation improves the judgment.

A CHINESE maxim says: "We require four things of woman—that virtue dwell in her heart; that modesty play on her brow; that sweetness flow from her lips; that industry occupy her hands."

BENEFIT your friends that they may love you still more dearly, benefit your enemies that they may become your friends, is an old Arabian maxim worth cultivating.

FARM AND GARDEN.

GUESSWORK IN THE HOUSEHOLD.

'Good morning, Mr. Smith. Can you tell me the road to Boston?' 'How did you know my name was Smith?' replied the man addressed, standing somewhat on his dignity. 'I guessed it,' was the reply, and the guesser was planning himself on his shrewdness. 'Guess your way to Boston then,' came the gruff rejoinder, which at once convinced him that guessing was a guide not always to be trusted. Probably the Yankee nation (they are not confined to New England) are as shrewd at a guess as any other people, which perhaps has led them to overdo the matter, and 'guess,' or 'reckon,' or 'calculate,' when a certainty could easily have been ascertained. A case in point, considerably affecting domestic economy, is the uncertainty of measures and weights used in the household. From time immemorial, cooking recipes have been followed out by 'cupfuls,' and a 'pint to the pound' has been the standard of weight. The pint for the pound has been usually ascertained by a tumbler, supposed to hold half a pint. In many cases such estimates may answer, but in the delicate matter of getting things just right, they will more frequently disappoint. Many a spoiled jar of preserves and loaf of cake have resulted from 'guessing' at the proportions. A good scale for weighing would remedy all this, and serve many other useful purposes. The heaviest eggs can be selected for setting; the weight of the fat chickens be ascertained to a notch; the pounds of honey yielded by the bees be known; the weight of the baby be noted; the pounds of butter sent to the store be made sure of; and, not less important, the honesty of the storekeeper be tested by weighing the coffee, tea, sugar, etc., brought home. In a hundred ways the housekeeper will find a good family scale superior to any amount of guessing, in each of which, except perhaps in weighing the baby, money enough to pay for the instrument may be saved—and in the exceptional case there will be no little satisfaction, especially if it be the first baby. Recent improvements have been made in scales, giving a far more convenient article than the old-fashioned steelyard or the hanging spring balance, which should be looked after by the good man who desires to thoroughly furnish his house with labor-saving and money-saving appliances.—American Agriculturist.

RAISING TURKEYS.

Turkeys are but little more difficult to raise than any other kind of poultry. The most simple methods are always the best.

While the eggs are being incubated they should not be permitted to get too dry. It is a good plan to moisten each egg every day for four days before they are hatched, with a cloth dipped in lukewarm water. When the chicks are hatched, care should be taken that they are kept in nests free from lice; hardly any chicks suffer from the attacks of these vermin so much as these. Have the nests sprinkled every few days with powdered sulphur, and have some of this in the dusting place of the mother. Young turkeys thrive best with mothers of common fowls. Have each brood by itself in a ploughed patch where the young birds can obtain insects, etc., without running into long wet grass, which is, notwithstanding our correspondent's observation, hurtful—that is, if the chickens get wet, and they will, even if there is but little dew.

For food, the best is undoubtedly coarse Indian meal, moistened into dough, with, in cold weather, a little powdered black pepper scattered in it. The practice of stuffing a pepper corn down the throat of a chick, which many men still practice, is barbarous and unnecessary, to say the least. Have plenty of pure clean water always accessible. Have the coop in which the mother is confined large enough for her to move around in, without being obliged to walk over her young, and our word for it, if the above directions are followed, you can raise turkeys.

Of course, if you keep your different broods near enough together to permit the quarrelsome hens to peck each other's chicks, there is no help for it.

For size and delicacy of flesh the best variety is the Bronze turkey, undoubtedly, but eggs from any well taken care of breed, in which parents are good sized, but not too old birds, will bring out good chickens.—Mass. Ploughman.

THE pope has actually conferred the promised decorations on the Jewish physicians who distinguished themselves during the prevalence of cholera. The world moves.

THE German expedition in search of the North Pole has left Spitzbergen, with a fair wind.

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St. New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.B.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for its loss, if lost, but not otherwise—beginning on the eleventh of July. Our losses by mail have been very heavy of late. Send the money forward, and send it in the safest way.

TO AGENTS.—A NEW THOUGHT!

We wish them to forward promptly the money when they send the name of the subscriber, not because their credit is not the very best at this office, but because we need daily food, and the food of a printing press is money. But we urge them, by all the thieves in the Post Office Department, and they are legion, to either remit in a post office order, in a draft, by express, or register. We have given the order of preference as to security. To hold back a subscription one month is to each of our five hundred agents a small matter. To us it is like cutting the Croton Aqueduct.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

The Rev. T. Moody, presiding elder of the Gadsden District, Montgomery Conference, writes: "Our church is in a good condition—perhaps better than before the war. Our congregations are large and attentive to the word. Our Sunday school interest has greatly enlarged. We have only one drawback—lack of books. Were our people in circumstances to supply this need the benefits of the Sunday schools would be greatly augmented. The radical Methodists of the North broke over the line of agreement and rushed down upon us with many threats of what they were going to do; but their fanatical schemes have failed, and the designed evil has proved a signal benefit to us. Our beloved Church South has come out of the trial purer than before, and, having dropped all weights, we now have more feeling, union and effort to accomplish the great work of salvation."

The Rev. W. D. Shea, from Minden, Louisiana Conference, paid us a visit of a few moments. There has been a revival at Minden. The church there and at Homer is in excellent condition. Brothers T. B. White and N. A. Cravens be reports hard at work. [While God is helping north Louisiana, why will not our good Brother J. C. Blackman push the battle and get that Homer College out of the clutches of the law and the Baptists? We doubt not he will.—ED.]

Rev. J. T. Heard writes from Shubuta, Mobile Conference, June 6: "We have just closed a very interesting district meeting at this place, Bishop Andrew presiding."

THE DEPARTED.

So soon as the spirit of a dear friend has taken its flight, and there only remains the beloved form now wasted, the countenance already changed, and a strange weight of corruptible flesh, it would seem as if by a powerful effort of love this dear one might be called back, might have been detained. The first thread of the new life upon which our beloved has just entered appears to be as slender as the last one of this. How slight the transition, now asleep, and now—dead! as if some new glory had suddenly opened upon its path and drawn away the soul to a point from which it will not return. A single glimpse of the Bridegroom might be sufficient to take away from the redeemed all desire to come back to us. They are allured from this life by the stronger attraction of a greater life. The conscious presence of the Saviour has become the visible beauty of their Lord, and with this love no friendship of earth, however sacred, can compete:

"O, if my Lord would come and meet,
My soul would stretch her wings in haste."

The thought of the stream or the sepulchre may possess us, but no darkness rests upon the field of their view. The light pours in steadily and from such a point that the shadows are all thrown behind them. As the streaming rays of the morning shoot upward and kindle the whole heaven, so with clear and swift announcement the blessed Saviour comes to the rescue of his beloved, and will not suffer them even so much as to see death.

The work of dissolution goes on, alas, how rapidly! The beauty of the mansion will not survive the loss of its tenant—no, not a day. Wedded forever to its own, the body will wait all the appointed time, until, by the gracious permission of the Creator and the power of the Son, it shall be raised incorruptible and with glorious splendor be presented again to its own true love, as a bride adorned with her jewels. Our own yearnings over the cold form are checked by the decay of all its loveliness, and we surrender to the charge of the great God the silent, pale body the more readily because we are not able to keep it "against that day!"

Now all the memories awaken; the last words we heard or the last we uttered in that sweet intercourse; every act of thoughtlessness which might have given pain; all the love we ought to have shown, the sympathy we ought to have felt, and above all, the conversations we ought to have had about the unseen world and the precious Saviour. O, why is it that Socrates, the heathen, could talk so readily about the gods and the state of the dead, and we, who have such a steady view of the Lord himself, and are come to Mount Zion with its living throngs and speaking blood, should be so slow to converse with each other about our own hopes of heaven! How much comfort have we missed, how much opportunity for increasing faith, when one was in our midst who was just about to return to God, yet was suffered to go unquestioned!

Unexpectedly and rapidly does God withdraw us from each other, one by one; the whole world dies, but so quietly that they go as if stolen away in the night. They pass from sleep to death as if two worlds out each other in invisible lines. There is no rude shock while a thousand millions disappear. Yet every death is a lesson to some one; every heart, sooner or later, will have felt the bitter pang of parting, and seen, in the rigid, ghastly features of some familiar face, the image of its own inevitable fate. Amid the confused views which nature takes of the realm where the dead have been gathered, it is consoling to think of the well known countenance and to call up the sweet tones of the departed; but the expectation of faith goes far beyond this, as it anticipates meeting again with those precious ones who have died "in the arms of Jesus."

We hear of fine rains in the hill lands.

PRINCIPLES IN POLITICS.

The value of principles in the long stretch of life, either this world or the other, is admitted in regard to everything excepting the involved business of public affairs. By common consent it is understood that every man who adopts the profession of politics becomes a tide-watcher, a wind-gauge, and, in regard to the temperature of men and sympathy with public opinion, combines in himself morally and mentally the various apparatus which scientific men place in the open weather to ascertain daily meteorological phenomena. The states of the popular mind are known to be variable and shifting, and men have therefore agreed to hold this public watchman as irresponsible for changes as any other mercurial column. This is the politician of the old style, when the greatest question was, whether or not the President should veto a United States bank charter—an amateur public man that finds but little room for his vocation in the fierce times which have been upon the country now these seven past years. The occupation of this character has gone, and to a great extent he went with it. When the sun of peace fairly shines again, and all the thundering has gone down to regions beyond the sea, he may again come forth in the calm atmosphere and resume his ancient calling.

We have long been persuaded that the great difference between the Republican party and its opponents was in its immense seriousness. It incorporated questions of life and death into its platform—moral propositions which can be made political issues only twice in the history of a country's legislation, once at its birth and once at its death, but which cannot enter into its yearly discussions without annual revolutions, because they are questions not of judgment with room for doubt, but of moral conviction with the fixedness of conscience. The mere introduction of such questions as that of slavery into a Presidential contest is an incipient revolution, because it does not relate to the conduct or the condition of society, but to its very existence. A school of politicians confined by and to the policy of legitimate legislation never could catch up with the Radical strategic and rapid movement of the Garrison and Greeley party. For when questions of great social change or territorial acquisition are presented for the decision of the people, they pay but little attention to all minor articles of a platform; even the candidate ceases to be important; what he is and what he has done are lost sight of in the greater matter: what does he at present stand for?

We are glad to see that the prospect now is that the whole country will be called to decide, not upon the history of an individual, but upon such matters as, whether the governed are entitled to representation; whether the genius of this government is civil or military; whether the several States and local legislation shall continue to be one of its constituent elements; whether the white race shall be dominant over, equal with, or subject to the black race; whether the debt of the war period shall be settled by us who contracted it, or be entailed upon our children to the tenth generation. Here is no room for the nice balancings of expediency, but for out and out advocacy in the plainest, broadest, most undisguised declaration of what it is we are after, and how we hope to accomplish it. The old smooth-bore style, upon a square platform, will be better than anything of modern improvement, upon an equivocal, half-uttered declaration of principles. With the right doctrines honestly set forth, we believe that any man of fair reputation can lead the country out of the present revolution back again to the government of the men of seventy six.

The people of New South Wales have resolved to mark their gratitude for the escape of Prince Alfred by the erection of a hospital. Upward of £4,000 has been subscribed. The hospital will bear the name of Prince Alfred.

THE TWO NEGRO PRESIDENTS.

The president of the Senate of Louisiana is a negro, and the speaker of the House of Representatives is a mulatto; and a very large proportion of the members of the two branches of the Legislature are negroes. By the order of Gen. Grant and the reconstruction act of Congress this state of things exists. One has only to read Uncle Tom's Cabin and the current literature of the North to see that it is quite impossible for these people, just released from slavery, to be sufficiently intelligent to frame laws or to discharge the functions of State office. It is certain that the military force, which now presides over every private and public interest in the South, could alone secure to these colored men the places they now occupy, and that they sit there as the representatives of New England and the Northern States generally, and not as the true representatives of the people of this State. They sit there the essence of a whole wilderness of monkeys.

"Grave and disgusted with all merriment," and as venerable as

"A serious ape whom none take seriously."

They know themselves to be out of place, and everybody else knows them to be; that they have no right to represent either the wealth, the intelligence or the industry of a State; and that in a thousand years they could not, by their own force or merit, if freed from every disadvantage of caste prejudice, have attained to such an eminence. Sitting as they do in the presence of a race superior to themselves and to most other races of men, they cannot but reflect that they themselves belong to a race inferior in wisdom, genius and achievement to all others; that they have been placed by the white man of the North temporarily in position as the exponent of his unappeased rage, and as an illustration of his great power over the white man of the South. Knowing all this, they consent to be the cat's paw of the lowest instruments of Northern Radicalism. If any more were wanting to show the inherent weakness of these colored puppets, it may be found in the position which has been taken by Dunn and Isabelle. In order to serve the purposes of those who back them, they have ignored the constitution by which they can alone act, the military authority which appointed them, and all the opposition members of the Legislature. The truth is, no really sensible colored man would allow himself to be thrust into any such attitude, or to be put in prominent position, because it must be evident that any advantage gained by such an unnatural lift, and depending upon the passions of the hour, cannot be of long continuance or prove of any solid value either to himself or to the colored people generally. The colored population of Mississippi have awakened to this, and have discovered that their worst representatives are those colored men who, to gratify personal vanity, allow themselves to be put forward by men who have but just come into the country, and who have no real sympathy with its population, either white or black. These two colored men in Mechanics' Hall, sitting in the chair of the Senate and in the chair of the House, have seriously compromised the interests of the colored man of Louisiana, by exhibiting the very spirit of prejudice and exclusiveness that every wise friend of the colored race deprecates.

THE NEW CITY TREASURER.

The election of Mr. W. S. Mount, by the City Council, to the office of City Treasurer is regarded by every one as the most important step yet taken for restoring confidence in the management of the finances of the city. With such a man in office we feel sure that one department of its vast business will be managed competently and honestly. It is the harbinger of a new era in municipal affairs, which we hail with unaffected pleasure.

NOTICE of a birth, marriage or death costs five shillings sterling in the London Times.

For the Advocate.

OUR FOREIGN MISSIONS.

ABINGDON, Va., June 27, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: The season is approaching when, according to usage, our missionary collections will be taken up. My duties as acting secretary of the Foreign Board, under the present arrangement, are limited to the correspondence. I cannot visit the conferences. What I do must be done with the pen. The Bishops, and the secretary of the Domestic Board, have undertaken to supply the place, at our conferences, of a traveling secretary. I hope they will succeed in awakening a general interest in foreign missions among our preachers and people, and in raising money to pay off our debts, and support our missionaries. Something must be done this year, or our foreign work is ruined. The preachers ought to know this, and our people ought to know it.

Our Indian missions have been partially relieved by the noble efforts of that apostolic man, Bishop Marvin. The church owes him a debt of gratitude for his service in this department. But he cannot act as special agent for our Indian missions, and discharge his episcopal duties, marvelous worker as he is. Our bishops are well worked, some of them over-worked; we cannot expect them to do everything. The preachers must consider the support of our foreign missions a part of their duty as pastors. They must bring the subject before their congregations, furnish information, inculcate the duty of giving to the cause of Christ in this form, and thus bring the whole church into the blessed work of sending the gospel to the ends of the earth. Until our preachers take hold in good earnest, and work for the world, our church will do little at home or abroad. God will bless us a hundred fold at home for every effort we make to save the heathen world.

Our China mission is in distress, and must be relieved soon, or help will come too late. The brethren in that field have "endured, like good soldiers," all manner of trial. They received nothing during the war, and the remittances sent out since have not been sufficient to pay off the debts they were compelled to contract, or starve. They have supported themselves for eight years, but they write now that they can do so no longer. Shall we leave them to perish, or call them home?

The signs of promise were never so encouraging in China before. Other churches are strengthening their missions in that land. What will we do? We want to send out two men this fall. The men are willing to go, but we cannot send them without money. Brethren of the ministry! friends of Christ! and perishing souls! let us be up and doing. We can support our missions—we must support them.

Brethren, begin the work now in earnest. Appeal to all—not publicly only, but privately also. Set the Sunday school to work, and you will see your congregations improving, our foreign missions will be relieved, and the church generally blessed.

W. G. E. CUNNYNGHAM,
Acting Secretary B. F. M.

YESTERDAY'S DANGER.

The city was yesterday in the condition of a powder magazine; a spark would have created a most disastrous explosion. On the countenances of the sober and the thoughtful a dread of impending danger could be detected, and the many seemed instinct with suppressed indignation which could with difficulty be restrained. To find negroes presiding in both branches of the Legislature—to find them treating with scorn not only the old citizens of the State and their chosen Representatives, but Gen. Grant himself, and the worthy officer who commands under him in this military district, was more than could be borne with patience. Fortunately the consequences of an open rupture, in an attempt to seize by force what had been withheld by fraud, negro insolence and party trickery, was wisely weighed and sober counsels prevailed. The steel and the flint were kept apart, and the incendiary spark, which would have set all ablaze, was considerately restrained. For this we should all feel grateful. A temporary triumph would have been dearly purchased at the cost of a riot, for a riot in this city yesterday would have made Grant's election sure. We do not think that the white citizens of this State are anxious to bring about such a result, and if they would make their intents and acts go hand in hand they must not permit themselves to be provoked into excesses. For the Christian forbearance already shown they deserve high praise. Never, since barbarism felt the first benign influences of a civilization which has, during many centuries, been exalted and enlarged by the teachings of Christianity, was a trusting, hopeful people subjected to such indignities and outrages, and yet compelled by a sense, involving their highest interests, to practice such forbearance.—N. O. Times, 2d inst.

For the Advocate.

BUTLER DISTRICT MEETING.

MR. EDITOR: An annual meeting for the Butler district, Mobile Conference, has just closed, and a precious season it has been to many of us. Here we sat for several days under the fatherly counsel of our aged Bishop Andrew. We are sorry to see him failing so rapidly. He is now forced, on account of old age and feebleness, to sit while preaching; yet his sermons are full of power and spiritual food, and fall like showers of rain in a dry season on the hearts of those who may chance to hear him. May he long live to bless the church by his holy example and Christian counsel.

Owing to the busy season and political excitement in Mississippi, the meeting was not largely attended; yet many important subjects were presented and discussed, giving light in a new direction, and we go away with better feelings and new resolutions. Here permit me to say, that I hope the brethren will not forget the resolutions in reference to our church periodicals, remembering that not only the ministers but laity have resolved to exert themselves in getting up subscribers for our church papers. We need a little more zeal and love for the church in this direction. Some of us will exert ourselves when we get home, and I trust that you will soon hear from us in the way of subscribers. The reports from the different charges in the district are encouraging. We have signs of better times, while there have not been many additions to the church. Congregations are large and improving, and the church is in a healthy condition. The Sabbath school interest is better than ever known by the most aged members of the church. We think this a good omen. At Shubuta, where the district meeting was held, they have one of the most interesting Sunday schools we ever saw in a town of the same size. They gave us a perfect treat on Sunday morning. While speaking of Shubuta, we will say that the meeting was most hospitably and kindly entertained. They have some as noble-minded Methodists there as we have met with anywhere. Time, money and labor are freely given for the comfort of the ministry and good of the church. Some of us had to travel from sixty to ninety miles, sometimes through a perfect fog of dust, and then over hills and rocks on roads uncared for, but we feel well paid for the trouble. This has afforded us a fine opportunity of seeing the prospect for a living in a large scope of country. The recent showers have been partial; in some places the corn is very promising, while in others there will be but little made. The cotton crop is generally good, but the farmers are very much excited, seeing now and then signs of the cotton worm. Upon the whole, this section of country is looking up a little, both spiritually and financially. May the good work continue.

Your's truly,

J. F. EVANS.

JUNE 24, 1868.

THE House of Commons showed its inherited prejudices in favor of privileged classes by its late treatment of Mr. Reardon, the member who asked Mr. Disraeli the question whether, in allowing her majesty, at the height of the ministerial crisis, to go to Scotland, he meant to advise her abdication. The question, though bold, was not at all uncourteous; yet he was hooted down, and charged with the most shocking indecorum. And a few days later, when he rose to speak on a matter of business, the House refused to hear him.

The famine in Algiers is still terrible, and murders are frequent, men being killed by those whom hunger has made cannibals. The price of revolvers had doubled. The Archbishop of Algiers has arrived in France, to demand succor for the native population, whose sufferings by famine are intense, and who are rapidly diminishing.

MARRIED.

By the Rev. S. M. Thames, on the 9th of June, 1868, Rev. GEORGE W. BROWN, of the Mobile Conference, to Miss MARGARET H. LARKINS, of Sumpter county, Alabama.

OBITUARIES.

A GREAT MAN IN ISRAEL FALLEN.

Jude BURREL THOMAS POPE died May 8, 1868, at his residence in Gadsden, Alabama, after an illness of six weeks, in the full assurance of immortal life.

"Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his." Brother Pope was born in Oglethorp county, Georgia, January 7, 1813; was the son of Wiley and Sarah Pope; and was converted and joined the M. E. Church at Athens, Georgia, in 1827. He studied law in the office of Judge Clayton, of Athens, and was admitted to the bar in 1836. In the spring of 1837 he removed to Wetumpka, Alabama, at which place he commenced and continued the practice of his profession until he removed to Asheville, St. Clair county, Alabama, in 1844. While at Wetumpka he was married to Miss Joanna Lester. The marriage occurred January 3, 1838. At Ashville he continued the practice of law until his removal to Gadsden, Alabama, in 1867.

Judge Pope was a Union man out and out. When secession was before the people he believed it to be the wrong policy although all his sympathies were with the South, as his after-life proved by his devotion to her cause. In 1865 he was before the people for a seat in the Congress of the United States, and was elected from the fifth Congressional district of the State. But the Alabama delegation not being admitted, he never served the public in that capacity.

In the summer of 1867 he was appointed judge of the twelfth judicial circuit of Alabama by Major General Pope, which office he filled faithfully and efficiently until God called him from labor to rest. As a judicial officer he was dignified and firm, yet approachable and mild. In the death of Judge Pope the State has lost one of its ablest jurists and the country a friend; society has lost one of its brightest ornaments and the church one of her purest members. Brother Pope was one of those Christians who made everything he did a matter of conscience. Any position he took in public life looked to the public good, and that alone. No selfish motive was manifest in any of his plans of public action. When settled upon his course, from conviction of duty, he was as firm as the rock. In one instance, just before his death, he was incarcerated in a felon's prison because he would not violate his convictions of right on a legal point in the organization of his court. I forbear to speak of this further, as it has been before the public, and Judge Pope so ably defended by General Meade's order and otherwise. But this is only one of the many instances in which his Christian character shone so brightly.

In closing this tribute to one so much beloved by a wide circle of friends, and the country generally, I would say that Judge Pope's place in the various departments will be hard to fill, especially his place in the church. As a member of the church he was devoted to her interests, his means always at her command, and his prayers ascending for her success. In a word, Brother Pope was a Christian gentleman.

He left a bereaved companion—a lady altogether worthy the place she occupied as the wife of Judge Pope—and eight orphan children, some of whom have grown to manhood and womanhood, and have families. May God be a husband to the widow and a father to the orphan.

We commend the family to God, and to the sympathies and prayers of the church.

W. L. CLIFTON.

Nashville and Southern Christian Advocates please copy.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. ELIZABETH ROBERTSON, wife of Mr. William Robertson, of Black Hawk, Mississippi, late of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, (sister of the Rev. Mr. Avery, of Honduras.)

The writer has no statistics of her life—not even the date of her death—but still would render meed of praise to the beautiful Christian life, lately finished; doubting not that the hearts of many preachers' families will recall the pleasant hospitality of the home which, in its beautiful order and spotless purity, seemed the fitting dwelling place for the pure nature of our departed sister. Suffering many years with consumption, she labored often in pain and weakness for the cause she loved. The church, the Sunday school, the prayer and class meetings and the sick room found her ever faithful. Whatever might influence others in going, she went to the sanctuary to meet her Saviour, and one felt instinctively afterward, in speaking to her, that she had "been with Jesus." She knew the secret of earnest, prevailing prayer. Once, when the writer's life was in great danger from fever, her prayers, joined with her pastor's, brought relief as strangely and suddenly as if the Master had been present, and had spoken the healing word. Once only I knew her constant faith eclipsed—the sad, dreadful death of a beloved son in battle (the second she had given) seemed so hard for her to reconcile with God's tender love; but the Bible was her treasury. In those hours of darkness she kept it open before her, and one day finding these words, "What I do thou knowest now, but shalt know hereafter," her heart recovered its rest in an ever-present Saviour; and though the mother's heart bled over the unfinished garments of her soldier boy, the Christian felt all was right and looked forward to the eternal reunion. In speaking of her future, she said she only desired to be with Jesus, feeling his presence would fill her capacity for happiness. And now realizing the fervent desire of her soul, she, who was his living epistle, here doubtless sees the wisdom of the trials which often pained her here, and that they helped her on in the way till she walked in his likeness and was satisfied.

H.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Jackson District, Mississippi Conference, will be held in Jackson, commencing on Thursday, July 30, 1868. Accommodations will be provided for all. Visitors from a distance will please call on Rev. W. B. Lewis, at the parsonage. R. ABNEY, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The Gadsden District Meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Center, Cherokee county, Alabama, commencing on the 17th day of July. Traveling and local preachers and official members, and ministers from a distance, are expected to be present. T. MOODY, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

Bishop William M. Wightman, D. D., L. L. D., will hold a District Meeting for the Wetumpka District, Montgomery Conference, at Tallassee, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M., on Thursday, August 13, 1868. Preachers and delegates are urged to be present with full reports at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew, D. D., is expected to be present. Rev. S. A. Pilley will preach the introductory sermon on Thursday night. Ample accommodations for all. D. M. HUDSON, P. E.

SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

A Sunday School Institute will be held at Opelika on the 22d and 23d of July. Pastors, superintendents, officers, teachers and friends of the cause, in connection with the M. E. Church South, within the limits of the Montgomery District, Montgomery Conference, are earnestly invited to attend. Persons of other communions will be welcomed. E. D. PITTS,

Chairman of Committee.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Gadsden District will be held at Center, Cherokee co., Alabama, commencing on the 17th day of July next. Traveling and local preachers, and official members of the church in the district are expected to be present. Ministers from a distance are also expected.

T. MOODY, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Camden District, Montgomery Conference, will meet at Pineville, July 10th.

The official members will please be in attendance, prepared to make their reports at the first meeting.

ANSON WEST, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Yazoo District, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Durant, Holmes county, Mississippi, commencing on Thursday, the 6th day of August next, at 9 o'clock A. M.

Brethren, on arriving at Durant, will report to Brother T. C. Parrish or Brother Madison Weems.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

EAST ALABAMA COLLEGE.

CALENDAR OF COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Sunday, July 5—Sermon by Rev. T. O. Summers, D. D.

Monday, July 6, 9 A. M.—Meeting of the Board of Trustees. 8 P. M.—Freshman prize declamation.

Tuesday, July 7, 9 A. M.—Junior exhibition. 8 P. M.—Sophomore prize declamation. Prizes delivered by Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

Wednesday, July 8.—Commencement day. Literary address by Col. Joseph Hodgson. E. J. HAMIL,

Secretary of Board.

N. Orleans Dist., Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

German churches, Dryades st.	July 5
German Quarterly Conference, at Dryades street	3
N. Orleans circuit, at Algiers	19
Quarterly Conference for do	18
At 112 Camp street, at 6 P. M.
Jefferson City	26
Moreau street	Aug. 2
Thibodeaux	9
Felicity street	16
Coroudelet street	23
Baton Rouge	29, 30
Plaquemine	Sept. 7

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

Brookhaven (Col.) Dist., Miss. Conf'e.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Scotland circuit, at Pleasant Valley	June 27, 28
Liberty circuit, at Liberty	July 4, 5,
Summit circuit, at Summit	11, 12
Brookhaven
Meadville, at Beach Grove	18, 19
Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth	25, 26
Fayette, at Bethel	Aug. 1, 2
Georgetown, at Georgetown	8, 9
Chrystal Springs, at Chrystal Springs	15, 16
Hazlehurst, at New Church, near Bohata	22, 23
Brushy Creek, at Tabernacle	29, 30

The official members of the above circuits, and the preachers in charge of the work, are informed that Bishop Kavanaugh will hold the first Mississippi Colored Conference. All who expect to enter this conference must be recommended by their respective Quarterly Conferences.

JOHN B. BOWEN, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Livingston	June 27, 28
Meridian	July 4, 5
De Kalb, at Mount Hebron	11, 12
Summerville, at Spring Hill	18, 19
Macon	25, 26
Enterprise	Aug. 1, 2
Marion, at Pleasant Hill	8, 9
Gainesville and Scooba, at Sumpterville	15, 16
Enterprise ct., at Sageville	22, 23

S. H. COX, P. E.

Shreveport Dist. Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many mission, at Many	June 13, 14
Mansfield ct., at Mansfield	20, 21
Keachie ct., at Keachie	27, 28
Natchitoches	July 4, 5
Anaeoco ct., at Oak Grove	18, 19
Springville, at Holly Spring	25, 26
Greenwood, at Mt. Zion	Aug. 15, 16
Shreveport	29, 30
Pleasant Hill, at Pleasant Hill	Sept. 19, 20

The District Meeting will be held at Pleasant Hill, Sept. 18th, 19th and 20th.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Providence	June 13, 14
North Carroll, at Pine Ridge	20, 21
Carrollton, at Mount Zion	July 4, 5
Sunflower, at Bear Creek	11, 12
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater	18, 19
Durant, at Shady Grove	25, 26
Richland, at Goodman	Aug. 1, 2
Yazoo Ct., at New Hope	15, 16
Yazoo City station	22, 23
Mt. Olivet, at Short Creek	29, 30
Bee Lake, at Lodi	Sept. 5, 6

The District Meeting will be held at Durant, commencing on the 6th day of August.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Natchez Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Clinton circuit, at Olive Br'h	June 6, 7
Jackson circuit, at Pipkin's Chapel	13, 14
St. Helena circuit, at Centre	20, 21
East Baton Rouge circuit, at Jones' Creek (Zion)	27, 28
Percy's Creek circuit, at Percy's Creek	July 4, 5
Woodville station	18, 19
Wilkinson circuit	25, 26
Amite circuit, at Adams'	Aug. 8, 9
Liberty circuit, at Liberty	15, 16
Kingston circuit	29, 30
Natchez station	Sept. 5, 6

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

Paulding Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mt. Carmel, at Mt. Moriah	June 27, 28
Columbia, at Byrd's Chapel	July 11, 12
Rankin, at Salem	18, 19
Ocoha, at Sharon	Aug. 1, 2
Handsboro' and Biloxi, at Handsboro'	8, 9
White Plains, at Coalville	15, 16
Sylvarena, at Mt. Olivet	22, 23
Paulding, at Holder's	29, 30

HENRY P. LEWIS, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NOTICE.—F. M. ECKFORD, BY mutual consent, has this day withdrawn from the firm of D. L. Campbell & Co. Either party will sign in liquidation.

D. L. CAMPBELL.
F. M. ECKFORD.
J. F. CAMPBELL.

New Orleans, July 1, 1868.

PARTNERSHIP.

The subscribers have this day formed a partnership, under the firm of Eckford & Cage, for the transaction of a

COTTON FACTORAGE AND GENERAL COMMISSION BUSINESS,

and respectfully solicit the patronage of their friends and correspondents.

Particular attention will be given to filling orders. Consignments of all kinds of Produce solicited. Strict attention will be given to all interests entrusted to our care. Liberal advances made on consignments.

F. M. ECKFORD.
GEO. ALPH. CAGE.

Office, No. 42 Union street.

New Orleans, July 1, 1868. july4 6m

GEN. R. E. LEE'S OWN PEN.—The best Pen in use. Every Pen warranted. Try it. Price, $1 50 per gross. Sent by mail. A sample box, containing two dozen Pens, sent free by mail on receipt of 30 cents.

A. EYRICH,
Successor to Belock & Co.,
Sole Manufacturer, Bookseller and Stationer,
je27 1m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

SPECIALTY.—A QUIRE OF THE finest Note Paper and Envelopes, elegantly stamped in Old English, with any letter, in a handsome box. Sent by mail, to any address, for $1. Address A. EYRICH,

Successor to Belock & Co.,
Bookseller and Stationer,
je27 1m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

TOBACCO ANTIDOTE.

WARRANTED TO REMOVE ALL desire for Tobacco. This great remedy is an excellent appetizer. It purifies the blood, invigorates the system, possesses great nourishing and strengthening power, enables the stomach to digest the heartiest food, makes sleep refreshing, and establishes robust health. Smokers and Chewers for Fifty Years Cured. Price, Fifty Cents, post free. A treatise on the injurious effects of Tobacco, with lists of references, testimonials, etc., sent free. Agents wanted. Address DR. T. R. ABBOTT,

Jersey City, N. J.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.—One box of Antidote cured my brother and myself. It never fails.—Rev. Isaiah W. Shoemaker, Kelley's Station, Pa. je27 4tr

A CLEAR, SMOOTH SKIN AND beautiful complexion follow the use of HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA.

It removes black spots, pimples, moth-patches and all eruptions of the skin.

IN THE SPRING AND SUMMER months the system naturally undergoes a change, and Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla is an assistant of the greatest value.

YOUNG LADIES, BEWARE OF the injurious effects of Face Powders and Washes. All such remedies close up the pores of the skin, and in a short time destroy the complexion. If you would have a fresh, healthy and youthful appearance, use Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla.

NOT A FEW OF THE WORST disorders that afflict mankind arise from corruption of the blood. Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla is a remedy of the utmost value.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT SARSAparilla cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors that make disease.

THOSE WHO DESIRE BRILLIancy of complexion must purify and enrich the blood, which Helmbold's Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla invariably does. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENtrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla eradicates eruptive and ulcerative diseases of the throat, nose, eyelids, scalp and skin, which so disfigure the appearance, purging the evil effects of mercury, and removing all taints, the remnant of disease, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by adults and children with perfect safety.

Two tablespoonfuls of Helmbold's Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED Extract Buchu is the great diuretic.—Helmbold's Concentrated Extract Sarsaparilla is the great Blood Purifier. Both are prepared according to rules of pharmacy and chemistry, and are the most active that can be made.

The best test of their purity and superiority will be a comparison with the properties as set forth in the United States Dispensatory.

My laboratory for the manufacture of Fluid Extracts has been visited by thousands of physicians and druggists from all parts of the United States, and the mode of preparation received their unanimous commendation.

Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Fluid Extracts are pleasant in taste and odor, and immediate in their action.

None are genuine unless done up in the steel-engraved wrapper, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

The proprietor was compelled to adopt such a wrapper because of the growing popularity of his articles, and to prevent spurious and dangerous counterfeiting.

H. T. HELMBOLD, druggist, of eighteen years' experience, and manufacturer of Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Principal Depots—Helmbold's Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New York, next Metropolitan Hotel; and Helmbold's Medical Depot, No. 101 South Tenth street, Philadelphia.

Sold by druggists everywhere.

Price $1 25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6 50. may30 3mp

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS OF THE Central Pacific Railroad Comp., BEARING SIX PER CENT. PER annum. Principal and interest expressly payable in GOLD COIN OF THE UNITED STATES.

These Securities, based upon the most favored portion of the Great National Pacific Railroad Line,

representing the first claim thereon, and which rest upon a valuable and productive property furnished by an equal amount of the Government Bonds, and a similar amount of private capital, net earnings, donations, etc. They have thirty years to run, are already taken in large amounts for steady investments both in this country and in Europe, and are favorably regarded as being among the very offered on this continent, and are believed to be secure against all ordinary contingencies.

Best and Safest Corporate Obligations

The Bonds are $1,000 each, with semi-annual coupons attached, payable in New York city in January and July, and are offered for sale at

103 Per Cent. and Accrued Interest,

in currency, from the date of the payment of the last coupon. At the present rates of gold they yield

More than Eight Per Cent. upon the Investment,

with the prospect of a steady appreciation of the premium upon the Bonds.

The Company have now built and in successful operation 150 miles of road, on both slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains, including by far the most difficult and expensive portion of the whole. They have also an unprecedented force, extending the track into the Salt Lake basin, the middle of which will be reached in autumn, making more than 330 miles in operation. Several important tributary branch and connecting roads are projected and now being built, and the prospect is fair that the continuous will be completed early in 1870, or about two years from this time.

Through Line Across the Continent

The net earnings from local business merely, for the past year, upon less than 100 miles, operating under temporary disadvantages, amounted to $1,087,901, in gold, over the operating expenses; and the gross earnings for the first quarter of the current year were 50 per cent. greater than for the same period in 1867. It is estimated that the net earnings for 1868 will reach $2,500,000, which, after deducting interests payments (estimated at less than $1,000,000,) are applied to construction purposes. Besides further subscription to the capital stock and other resources, the Company will be receiving from the United States Government its 30-year six per cent. Bonds, at the rate of $32,000 per mile, and are therefore enabled to carry forward the enterprise with the utmost confidence and vigor.

☞ The Company reserve the right to advance the price at any time; but all orders actually in transitu at the time of any such advance will be filled at the present price.

We receive all classes of Government Bonds, at their full market rates, in exchange for the Central Pacific Railroad Bonds, thus enabling the holders to realize from five to ten per cent. profit and keep the principal of their investments equally secure.

Orders and inquiries will receive prompt attention. Information, descriptive pamphlets, etc., giving a full account of the organization, progress, business and prospects of the enterprise, furnished on application. Bonds sent by return Express at our cost.

FISK & HATCH,

Financial Agents of the C. P. R. R. Co.,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

Offices of the Central Pacific Railroad Co.:
No. 54 William street, New York, and
Nos. 56 and 58 K street, Sacramento, Cal.

Subscriptions Received Through Banks and Bankers Generally.

☞ All descriptions of GOVERNMENT SECURITIES bought, sold or exchanged, at our office and by mail and telegraph, at market rates.

Seven-Thirty Notes converted into the new Five-Twenties, or any other class of Government Bonds.

Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, and favorable arrangements made for desirable accounts.

Gold, Coupons and Compound Interest Notes bought and sold.

Miscellaneous Stocks and Bonds bought and sold at the Stock Exchange, on commission, for cash.

☞ Dealers and investors out of the city desiring to make negotiations in any of the above may do so through us, by mail or telegraph, as advantageously as though personally present in New York.

FISK & HATCH,

BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOV'T SECURITIES,
No. 5 Nassau street, New York.
je27 5tp

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,
37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St., Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world, the only true perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; removes the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and saves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st., New York. mar7 1y

DUTCHER'S LIGHTNING FLY-KILLER.—The original article, containing more than double the poison of any other, and therefore better and cheaper. Every sheet will kill a quart of flies.

Sold everywhere. je27 4tr

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOYED. Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents; twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANG, je27 4tr 91 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.

STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address A. J. FITLAM, je27 4tr Springfield, Vermont.

$10 TO $20 A DAY, SURE, AND no money required in advance. Agents wanted everywhere, male or female, to sell our Patent Everlasting White Wire Clothes Lines. Address the American Wire Company, 75 William street, New York, or 16 Dearborn street, Chicago. je27 4t

PERSONS SUFFERING FROM Deafness, Asthma, Whooping Cough, and other diseases of the Lungs, Fever and Ague, Piles and Chronic Diarrhea, may find a cure by addressing DR. BOARDMAN, je27 4tr 38 St. Mark's Place, N. Y.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely.—The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Your's, very truly, SUSAN R. POPE

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MINNLENONO', Mass., June 9, '64.

MESSRS. BURNETT & CO.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the palns, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than formerly. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair. With respect,

WM. S. EDDY.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.
For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may2 3mr

HOMŒOPATHIC TREATMENT for Families.—Every family should have a case of Homœopathic medicine. Its simple directions and inviting sugar Pills are so indispensable for children, and so frequently meet the wants of those of larger growth, as to be a necessity. Sickness prevented is health and money saved, and that these simple remedies do arrest disease and restore health is unquestionable. No family having once enjoyed the benefits would be without them. Humphrey's Homœopathic Specifics are prepared expressly to meet the wants of families. They are simple, convenient, safe and reliable, and their value has been confirmed by an experience of many years. A full case of thirty-five large vials, and Book of Directions, with Specifics for every disease occurring in domestic practice, is sent to any address, by express, free of charge, on receipt of Ten Dollars. Address Humphrey's Specific Homœopathic Medicine Co., 562 Broadway, New York. Send for case Almanac. apr4 3mr

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge.

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs.

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs, of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly instalments. Second-hand Instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.
apr4 1yr HORACE WATERS & CO.

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by may2 1y ROBT. FISHER, Agent,

No. 203 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

A NEW PORTRAIT OF GRANT, A large size, handsomely engraved on steel. Price, $1 25. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Also, small portraits of Grant and Colfax, 25 cents each. Liberal discount to agents. Address J. C. BUTTRE, je27 4tr 53 Franklin street, N. Y.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

THE GARDEN.

Lucie and Pauline had a garden of their own, though they sometimes condescended to assist Madame Bessard in tying up her pinks and cutting off her withered roses in the great garden—everybody's garden, as they called it. Lucie, who was an enterprising damsel, became dissatisfied with the shape of her flower-borders.

'Pauline,' said she one day, 'we must make a change in our flower-beds. When Charles comes home this year, from that horrid school, where they are teaching him military exercises, he shall not know our garden again.'

'But what are you going to do? I think it looks very pretty, with the turf in the middle, the walk and the borders all round.'

'No, I have an idea!' said Lucie. 'I will make in the four corners the names of the four boys, and in the middle have mamma and papa's initials, yours and mine.'

'How? I don't understand.'

'You understand nothing! With flowers, of course. There shall be a C in crocuses, a P in pansies, a G in gilly-flowers, and so on. It will be charming.'

'I think it will be rather ugly,' said Pauline timidly.

Lucie grew very angry. 'You think you know every thing, but you don't. I say it will be extremely pretty; and I am a year older than you, and I ought to know things much better than you do.'

'Well,' said Pauline, 'I had another plan in my head. I heard aunt say that vegetables were very dear this year, so I thought we might grow vegetables instead of flowers, and give them away to poor people.'

'Then where shall we get the flowers for mamma's room and our own?'

'We could gather them in the fields; and besides, aunt often gives some of hers both to us and the boys.'

'The boys had better have a vegetable garden also. When once we begin that system we shall no longer have a place for any flowers. Still, I agree that your idea is a finer one than mine, and more easily carried out.'

So the two little girls, fully reconciled, ran to find the boys, whom they discovered busy watching two rabbits which had been brought to them. The girls joined in admiring the little creatures.

'But where shall we put them?' said Paul.

Gustave thought a proper house should be built for them.

'Of course, but in the mean time?'

'There is in the stable-yard an old cask, open at top, half filled with hay; it would do for them very nicely. Look, Pauline, did you ever see anything so pretty? They are Himalayan rabbits; the man said so who brought them; and besides, I was sure of it, for papa told me of some Himalayan rabbits he had seen at Caen, and how they had hair as fine and soft as feathers. Touch them; it is just like the neck of a swan.'

'I never saw a swan,' said Pauline.

'I forgot, you girls see nothing; you never go from home. But there are four swans at Heryville; I saw them one morning when papa took me with him to pay a visit there.'

While this conversation was going on, Paul had run away up stairs and burst into his mother's room like a bomb shell, crying out—

'Mamma, may we have the cask?'

'What cask?'

'The old cask in the yard. We want to put our rabbits in it; the rabbits we got this morning.'

'Anything you like; only leave me a minute's peace, pray,' said Madame Bessard, once more taking up her pen.

Paul came back triumphant, darted at the cask, and rolled it with a great noise to where his brother and sisters were all on their knees beside the basket which contained the rabbits.

'The cask is ours! Now let us go after some hay.'

'Paul,' cried Lucie, 'Gustave tells us we girls see nothing. Just say how much time it would take him to see as much of the world as Pauline has done?'

'Oh! but I have forgotten it all. I was so little when I came here. I remember nothing but La Vacherie, except — except — my papa and mamma.'

Lucie put her arm tenderly round Pauline's neck, then she said: 'Boys, I have a proposition to make to you; will you join your garden to ours, and grow vegetables for poor people? This year they would be much more useful than flowers.'

'But,' said Paul, 'I thought I heard you speak of borders of your own invention, and all sorts of pretty things that you were going to do?'

'So I was, but Pauline's idea was better.'

'Ah! it was Pauline's, then. All right! if it had been yours, I should have doubted it.'

'Don't tease her; you're always teasing her,' said Pauline. 'Just tell us, will you grow vegetables in your garden? Ours alone is too little.'

'For my part,' observed Gustave, 'I think we have enough on our hands with having a rabbit house to build.'

'But we don't ask you to give us your garden to cultivate, only to do as we do.'

'Very well,' said Paul. 'And if we build a rabbit-house in a corner of our garden, will you give us your cabbage leaves? And do plant a great many cabbages—rabbits are so fond of them.'

'And poor people also. Indeed, we should not give ourselves so much trouble only for your rabbits,' exclaimed Lucie.

'No,' added Pauline; 'but we will give ourselves a little trouble to give the boys pleasure, and then they will help us as much as they can.'

'Pauline always settles everything,' said Gustave. 'And now let us go and plan the rabbit-hutch.'

The children had scarcely decided upon establishing the rabbits under a big tree, and placing them temporarily in their cask, at another corner of the garden, when they heard themselves called for lessons.—Hastily the basket was placed at the opening of the cask, and Paul, who had a holiday to-day, because it was Thursday, remained alone in the garden. His brother and sisters, who on other days worked much less hard than he did, enjoyed on Fridays only a quarter of a day's holiday, while he had a half one.

He walked up and down, his hands in his pockets, until he perceived six stakes, well cut, well sharpened; but which looked as if they had lain a long time under shadow of the hedge, for the rain had much discolored them. Paul's first thought was that they had been accidentally forgotten; his next, should he take them for the posts of the rabbit-house?

No sooner said than done. Paul seized a stake and dragged it, for he could not carry it to the garden; then went in search of a second, and finished by carrying away the whole six. He found a large mallet, and having with much pains set the stakes in their places, he struck on them with all his might. But he was still too small a boy; he could not reach high enough; his efforts to drive them in were useless. So, putting three or four big stones one on top of the other, he tried to mount this extempore scaffolding, but still he was not tall enough. Finally, he set up on one end the cask destined for the rabbits, and climed upon it. Then he could hammer at his ease, and the stake allowed itself at last to be driven into the earth. Two others followed, after which the young mason descended from his eminence in order to see about his lunch, which he ate so hungrily that his brother and sisters joined him at table before he had finished.

'What! you have had your lunch already?' said Gustave.

'Yes; I was so tired with hammering on those superb stakes I found. They will be just the thing for our rabbit-house.'

'Where did you find them?'

'Under the hedge; but come and see.'

'Capital! With branches between, they will make such a solid, good—'

'But what will papa say?' interposed Lucie.

'Oh! papa will have forgotten them; they have been cut so long, they are quite gray and old-looking.'

'Still, you had better tell papa.'

'I won't. Leave me alone. You may tell him if you choose.'

'You know,' replied Lucie with dignity, 'that I am no tale-bearer. If you do bad things it is your own affair. You often get scolded because you have not listened to me. Come, Pauline, you and I have plenty of digging to do.'

The garden was got into capital order, planted with cabbages, and sown with turnips, carrots and beans—nay, they were thinking of making a potato-bed likewise; and the rabbit hutch began to look quite respectable, when, one day at break fast, Denis knocked at the dining-room door.

'Come in,' said M. Bessard.

Denis opened the door, and stood on the door-sill.

'I'm too dirty to enter, monsieur,' said he. 'Only I can't find the stakes which I cut in autumn to tie up the young trees to, and I want to know if monsieur has taken them for anything?'

'No; I have not even seen them. Have you asked at the farm if any one has touched them?'

'Yes, monsieur, and nobody has touched them. Only Lucas, he says that — that—' And Denis looked steadily at Paul.

'What did Lucas say?'

'Lucas said, I suppose, papa, that he saw the stakes in my rabbit-house.'

'Precisely, Monsieur Paul,' interrupted Denis. 'He did say that.'

'I found them under a hedge, and I thought they were of no use, so I just took them.'

'You ought first to have asked my permission, or your mother's.'

Paul answered between his teeth. 'Mamma had told me that very morning to take anything I liked, so I did not trouble her.'

There was a pause, and then M. Bessard said: 'I will forgive you, my boy, if you will not hide your misdoing under any more bad reasons. But you must give to Denis the twenty sous, which will be half a day's wages to the man who has to cut new stakes; unless you like better to give up the old ones, and demolish your rabbit-hutch.'

'No, certainly papa. I shall have hard work to earn the twenty sous; but I should have much more to build my house up afresh.'

Here Denis humbly begged the young gentleman's pardon; but said he did want the stakes so much; the young trees were all growing crooked for lack of support.

Had Paul been alone with Denis, perhaps he might have been rather cross; but a look from his mother restrained him.

Breakfast was scarcely over when Pauline and Lucie rushed up to their room, and then rushed down again, in search of Paul, who had gone off with Gustave to the rabbit-house.

'Here!' cried Lucie. 'Here, Paul, are five sous of my money.'

'And five more of mine,' added Pauline. 'So the matter will be equally divided if—'

'And Gustave has already offered me ten sous. No, keep your money, all of you; I don't deserve it. I ought to have listened to Lucie.'

But when Paul entreated him he agreed to keep ten sous and give back the rest. 'And—and—I thank you all very much,' said the boy, briefly.

'So it's all settled,' said Gustave. 'I give four sous and the girls three sous apiece, that makes ten. Now let us go and look at the rabbits.'

A fortnight after this the rabbits were solemnly installed in their new habitation; and were given, as a feast of rejoicing, so splendid a dinner of cabbages, that the eight little ones which had lately been added to the family were near dying of indigestion. However, thanks to the great medical skill and care of Gustave, they slowly recovered from their indisposition.

The garden was full of vegetables, and the little girls had made many promises concerning them to various poor old women, when one morning Lucie, who had risen very early to water a small plantation of lettuces, entering the garden, uttered a cry of despair. Paul, just starting off to M. Darbois, his father being too busy to teach him that day, heard it and rushed to the spot. Pauline and Gustave also ran thither.—What a scene of devastation presented itself! No more cabbages; scarcely even a lettuce; the peas and the beans all ravaged and torn up; the potatoes alone unhurt!—

'It looks if a whole army of rabbits had been here!' cried Paul. Then struck with a sudden idea, he flew to the rabbit-hutch. It was empty; all its inhabitants had disappeared. 'Oh! my rabbits! my rabbits!' was all he said.

'And I shut the door close last evening; I am sure I did!' cried Gustave.

Lucie said that was true, but the wind could open it easily enough; she had found it open, and shut it herself once or twice when she was working in the garden. But oh! what a quantity they have eaten—the wretches! It will be a month before we get any more cabbages, and Mother Benard expects some on Monday next!'

'We must ask aunt to give us a few for her,' suggested Pauline. 'But is there no chance of our ever seeing the rabbits again?'

The wild rabbits might fight them, and then possibly they would return, Paul thought.

Lucie proposed putting a good dinner inside their house, in case, driven back from the woods, they might come to see if there was anything more to eat in the garden.

So, over night, the hutch was filled with beautiful cabbage leaves; and at four in the morning Paul, stealthy as a wolf, crept down to the garden. Denis was busy with his horses, so there was no one to disturb the little runagates, if they had come back. Paul stole on tiptoe to the rabbit-house, where he fancied he saw a glimmer of white that made his heart beat.

There they were, all his rabbits—old and young—devouring cabbage leaves in their old familiar home! Paul shut the door quickly upon them, and they were safe.

Then, taking out of his pocket a piece of pack-thread, he fastened the hutch so that the wind could do no more mischief, and ran back to the house as fast as he could. Happily, on reaching it, the drawn blinds reminded him that it was still only four in the morning, and everybody must be sound asleep. He went quietly to his own room. Gustave had not stirred; but Paul could not settle to sleep again. So he busied himself with writing upon little bits of paper, which he stuck on every door in the corridor—

'TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCH.—The rabbits have returned.'

When, at half-past five, M. Bessard left his room, this important communication met his eye. Lucie and Pauline did not receive it till two hours later; but then their joy was equal to that of Paul and Gustave.

On examination, it was supposed, from the quantity of fur missing from the backs of the eight little rabbits, and their generally forlorn appearance, that their wild cousins, the gray rabbits in the woods, had not given them an amiable reception; and that therefore their father and mother, seeing their helpless condition, had thought it advisable to bring them back home.—A French Country Family, translated by Miss Mulock from the French of Madame Guizot.

SCIENTIFIC.

SCIENTIFIC RAT-CATCHING.

According to the Paris Moniteur there are in France upward of two thousand million of rats and other rodents. Supposing each of these little quadrupeds to commit the damage of only one centime per annum, this loss would amount in the aggregate to twenty millions of francs annually. Hence it is most desirable to find some means of destroying this vermin in large numbers as expeditiously as possible. Nux vomica, arsenic, phosphorus and traps have been successfully tried, but with no very decided success, and certainly not equal to the rate of increase of these prolific creatures. Recent experiments, however, show that squills (Scilla maritima,) the enormous bulbous root of which is much used in medicine, is not only a powerful poison for rodents, but also one they are very fond of. The way of preparing it for the desired purpose is as follows: One of the bulbs is cut into slices, hashed and bruised, then done in the pan with fat, which is afterward strained through a cloth and poured into broken plates and saucers to be placed in the cellars and other places infested with rats, mice, etc. To prevent dogs and poultry from eating of this poisonous compound in stables, pigeon-houses or farm-yards, it may be put into a wooden box about 1½ feet long, and having a hole at each end. The rat gets in at one end and goes out at the other, after partaking of the noxious food, which soon kills it. Squills may also be reduced to powder for the same purpose by bruising them in a mortar to a pulp, which is afterward incorporated with as much flour as it will hold. This paste is then rolled out, as they do for a pudding, then cut into shreds, which are left to dry on hurdles or on sheets of pasteboard, and are afterward pounded in a mortar. The powder thus obtained will keep for years, and may be put into boxes or barrels. If manufactured on a large scale it may become a profitable article of exportation. In Algeria squills cost nothing, the country being absolutely overrun with them. They have a different notion of dealing with the question in America, where a correspondent of a scientific journal recommends the following method of catching rats in a cheap and effectual manner: "Cover a common barrel with stiff stout paper, tying the edge around the barrel; place a board so that the rats may have easy access to the top; sprinkle cheese parings or other food for the rats on the paper for several days, until they begin to believe they have a right to their daily rations from this source. Then place in the bottom of the barrel a piece of rock about six or seven inches high, filling with water until only enough of it projects above the water for one rat to lodge upon. Now replace the paper, first cutting a cross in the middle, and the first rat that comes on the barrel-top goes through into the water and climbs on the rock. The paper comes back to place and the second rat follows the first. Then begins a fight for the possession of the dry place on the stone; the noise of which attracts the rest, who share the same fate."

THE Hotel des Invalides, at Paris, contains at present about 940 inmates who served under Napoleon I. Of that number more than 150 are amputes, and a few are blind. One has lost both fore-arms, and uses with surprising dexterity a couple of hooks fastened to his stumps. About sixty wear the military medal, and nearly 200 are decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor. There are thirty inmates whose services date from the first republic. One of them—a survivor of the crew of the Scipion, blown up in 1793—has been in the hotel since 1806. He lost both his legs on that occasion, and has contrived to live without them seventy-five years. He is now ninety-two.

HISTORY tells us of illustrious villains, but there never was an illustrious miser in nature.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A J Wright, A M, President
Mrs A-A Wright, Principal,
Mr R Scott Ricketts
Miss Anna M Ross
Miss C A Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.
Other Instructors will be announced.

This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1831, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars Apply to A J WRIGHT,
D G Humphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. aug 21

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October, 2d, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session, $360.

PAYMENTS.—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

W. H. N. MAGRUDER.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3 6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL,

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

On the corner of Camp and Common sts.

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building,)

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals or Book-keepers in a large portion of the old houses of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR,
nov 17 1y President.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W COFFIN & CO.,
102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. je16 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Deelers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturer's prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the Implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS,
n17 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,
Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev J E C Dorenius, D D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testamentary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans: then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $30 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not: to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S.: by founding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church, the Board of Directors, representing in its body all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God; for except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the heart-cry of the Great Reformation. No forbidding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment: God's Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. a25 1y.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds,
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
a 11 20 1y New Orleans

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE.
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by J. E. BAILEY,
feb 9, 1y Formerly of Chartres Street.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent.....$67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency 27 00
French.....15 00
Music, with use of instrument.....37 50
Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10 3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McOmber, A M, Pres't, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Gen. J C Moore, A M, Prof. of Mathematics,
Rev. H F Kavanaugh, M D, Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
T H Kavanaugh, M D, Prof. of Natural Science.
H F Brown, A B Principal Preparatory Department.
B V Lynn, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868 closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

collegiate.....$21 00.....Preparatory.....$20 00
lementary.... 10 00.....Primary..... 13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate.....$36 00.....Elementary.....$24 00
Preparatory... 30 00.....Primary..... 20 40
Modern Languages. (extra) $2 00 per month.

No incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie — a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O. H. McOmber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas.
july 13-tf

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J. & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The Institution is under control of the M. E Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For farther information, address

REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
jy 13 6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the fall reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilator of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent. as Compared with any other Stove.

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally knows as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to The Good Samaritan, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such on oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this apparatus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, The Good Samaritan to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of Cooking Stoves, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day; equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

G. W. W. Goodwyn,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn,)
62 Camp street,
jly6 1y Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. HEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1.

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1866

GEO. W. RACE. W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK, La's Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—Those desiring the New Orleans edition should forward immediately to Rev. Robt. J. Harp, Agt., Lock Box 814. New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR

For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5.....each 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address.....each 40c
For any number over 25.....each 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays, Biographical and Descriptive,— Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenæum, The Examiner; The London, Saturday, and Fortnigly Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in Every Saturday are many of the wisest and wittest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs Oliphant, J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swinebarne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

Every Saturday is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

Every Saturday contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by Ticknor and Fields. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews	$1 per annum
For any two of the Reviews	7 "
For any three of the Reviews	10 "
For all four of the Reviews	12 "
For Blackwood's Magazine	4 "
For Blackwood and one Review	7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews	10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews	13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews	15 "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48,00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the Postage to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866; inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. Norton, of Yale College. 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8. feb 2

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug21 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Honduras.

For particulars apply to J. B. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans; JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Honduras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

92 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Metre, a Dictionary of dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $1 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of binding.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen.

Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mar14 3m Lock Box 847, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.

Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.

Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.

Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.

Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $15 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, Jr.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M R N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Hortense Fodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Gaild, School of Design.

Miss T M Wolker, Primary Department.

Rates.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this Institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drowing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

Beneficiaries.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of particulars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, maf14 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum; or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people. ☞

All communications on business should be addressed to

Robert J. Harp, Publisher, N. O, En.
sept28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty:

Tuition—Full Term in College.....$30 00
Contingent Fee..... 3 00
Tuition—Full Term in Preporutory School.....$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee..... 2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C RAIFORD,
aug 31 2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 50 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. Price, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

Dear Sir—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. R. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HYNSON, Ship Agent.—
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz Bottles	$2 00
6 " "	2 50
8 " "	3 00
12 " "	5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount on retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.

sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
n1y Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,

Late of and successor to John Staoud

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10/TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

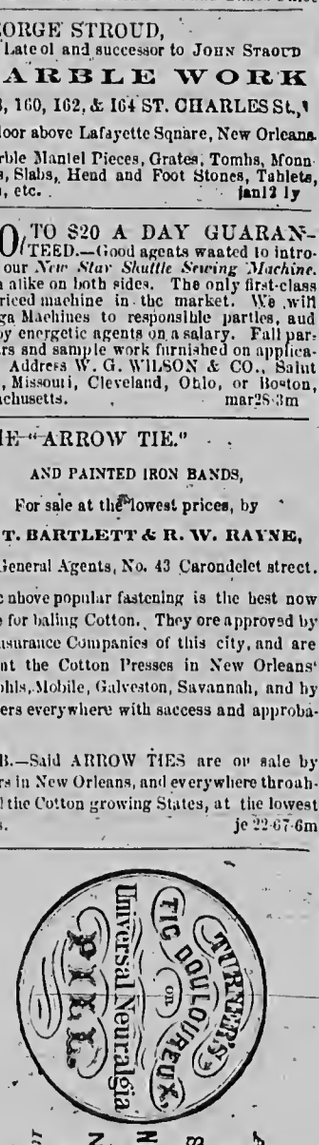
For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans' Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-67-6m



It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, — of many years standing, —affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package,	$1 00	Postage	6 cts.
Six packages,	5 00	"	27
Twelve packages,	9 00	"	43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.

c 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.,

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Elston, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

ap1 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, Camp Street, New Orleans.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
n25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,

Washington county, Virginia.

The FALL SESSION of this institution begins on the 20th of August next.

Our terms, for a session of five months, are as follows:

Tuition in Collegiate course, payable in advance.....$30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, payable in advance..... 10 00
Board, at $13 per month..... 65 00
Washing..... 7 50

Tuition in the Preparatory Department is $5 less. Board is payable monthly in advance. Students supply their own beds and furniture for their rooms, and take their meals with the families boarding them.

We invite those seeking collegiate culture to consider the excellent advantages here offered.

For a catalogue, or for any other information, address E. E. WILEY, Pres't.,
je27 3m Emory P. O., Va.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile,	$1 50	$1 60
Work of Christ, Marvin,	.65	75
Ecce Ecclesia,	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson,	1 25	1 50
Lee and his Generals, half calf,	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles,	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals,	2 60	2 40

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.

ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips, will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being extensively used on children's first-class shoes.

Sold everywhere. je27 4tp

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This Invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the Instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

114 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTHWEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25

AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c

THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50

PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler. $2 00

SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25

NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

"ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile." Baker.....$5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt..... 6 50

ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans.. 2 00

BIBLE.....1 50

PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS..... 10 00

KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully Illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth..... 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months	$150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos.,	60
" " Preparatory " " "	40
Fuel, for Boarders, " "	10
" " Day scholars, " "	8
Music on Piano, " "	50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each,	6

No extra charge for Greek or Latin.

Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of pianos.

Oil Painting	$30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each,	20

No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi annually, in advance.

For further information, apply to july 6 3m B. ARGOBAST, Pres't.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healty one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months	$15 00
Primary Department	20 00
Collegiate	25 00
Music and Piano	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Vocal Music	2 50
Incidental fee	2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month	18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month.....$16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks	$30 00
Music	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Languages, each	10 00
Incidental Fee	2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month	20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing	16 00

aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,

Corner of St. Andrew Street,

oct6 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, 10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information.

Address, E. E. Wiley, Pres't.
je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency,

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages	$80,00
Incidental Fee	5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course	$75,00
Incidental Fee	5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing	20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address.

A. H. Mitchell, Pres't. of Board of Trustees
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
Jan.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
Feb.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
Mar	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
Apr				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
May						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
June		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
July				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
Aug							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
Sep.			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
Oct					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
Nov	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
Dec			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31

To Agents.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received; a circle the amount of dollars received and a half circle the amount of cents.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have no improvement to notice in the general market, which continues extremely dull in every branch of trade. The stock of cotton is now so much reduced and the receipts are of such limited extent, that little or no scope is offered to buyers. Operations in other leading articles are confined to an inconsiderable jobbing or retail business.

The weather has been clear and without our advocate from the country state that timely showers have protected the injury previously apprehended in some districts from a protracted drought, and that the crops generally look unusually well. This applies to cotton as well as to sugar and grain; but with regard to the staple it should not be overlooked in any speculations with regard to the probable extent of the crop that the moderate breadth of land planted in some of the most productive districts will prevent as abundant a yield as might have been otherwise anticipated.

The river has fallen one foot since our last report, and is now three feet six inches below high water mark.

Cotton.—We noticed in our last report that the market closed on Friday evening at 26½ c. for Good Ordinary, 27½ to 28c. for Low Middling, and 29½ to 29¾ for Middling, showing a general improvement of one-half cent, caused by the favorable tenor of the accounts from Liverpool and New York. There was no material change on Saturday. If any thing, factors were even more stringent in their pretensions, asking extreme rates in consequence of the limited supply, but buyers, on the other hand, were reluctant to go on unless at some concessions, and the sales were consequently confined to 130 bales, taken in small lots, at Friday's figures. On Monday the accounts from Liverpool reporting a steady market at 11½ to 11¾d. for Middling Uplands and 11½ to 11¾d. for Orleans, while at New York the former was quoted at 31½ c., factors continued to claim outside figures, and 250 bales changed hands on the basis of 27c. for Good Ordinary, 27½ to 28c. for Low Middling, and 29c. for Middling. On Tuesday the Liverpool advices were of an unfavorable character, the 5 P. M. telegram quoting Middling Uplands at 11½d. and Orleans at 11⅝d., New York prices closing at 31⅝c. for the former. There was a fair inquiry in the market, but as factors evinced no disposition to recede from their former pretensions, only 350 bales changed hands at prices showing no change from those of the previous day.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 730 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 237 bales, against 243 during the corresponding period last week, showing a decrease of 6 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 580 796 bales, against 763,694 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 259,-570 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 74,712 bales to Great Britain, of 4,073 to France, and of 112,792 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	—	25 —
Ordinary	—	26 —
Good Ordinary	—	26 27
Low Middling	—	27 28
Middling	29	29 —
Strict Middling	—	29 —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales	17156
Arrived past three days	237
Arrived previously	580796—581033
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc.	1219—583449
	571749
Exported past three days	243
Exported previously	569706—569949
Stock on hand and on shipboard	1800

Sugar.—During the past three days the market for Cuba sugar has continued very dull. The transactions were entirely confined to jobbing and retail lots. The receipts have been light for some time past, and the stock on hand is only moderate, though ample for the limited demand which prevails.

Molasses.—Cuba molasses, since our last review, has continued dull and depressed, with scarcely any retail sales. The stock on hand is good, with very little demand for distilling purposes. We heard of no transactions in round lots. It is still quoted nominally at 46½ to 51 c. per gallon.

CATTLE MARKET.

JEFFERSON CITY,
Tuesday Evening, June 30, 1868.

Western beef, choice, per lb net	11 to 11c
Western beef, second qual., per lb net	— to —
Texas cattle, choice, per head	130 to 135
Texas cattle, second qual., per head	90 to 95
Texas cattle, third qual., per head	50 to 55
Hogs, per lb gross	8 to 10c
Sheep, first quality, per head	1— to 4
Sheep, second quality, per head	— to 1
Sheep, third quality, per head	— to 1½
Milch cows, choice, per head	85 to 100
Milch cows, per head	50 to 67
Texas cows, with calves	50 to 60
Yearlings, per head	6 to 12
Calves, per head	5 to 10

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED EVERY WEEK.

Made up from Actual Sales on Day Previous.

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements
Cotton and Sugar Tools	4 50	40 00
Cotton Gins	70	1 00
Cotton Screws	10	1 00
Cotton Presses	15 00	25 00
Corn Mills	15 00	25 00
Shovels	1 50	2 00
Spades	1 50	2 00
Axes	1 50	2 00
Bagging ₩ yard
Kentucky	18	19
East India	18	19
Bale Rope Kentucky ₩ lb
Bread ₩ lb		1 00
Bread ₩ bbl		7 00
Crackers	8 00
Boots Long ₩ doz	7 00	8 00
Brandy ₩ gallon	2 00	10 00
Candles ₩ lb
Sperm, N England	61	61
Adamantine	22	23
Star	22	23
Cheese ₩ lb
American	16	16
Cheese No 1 ₩ lb	15	16
Sweet and Skim	15	17
Coffee, Western ₩ lb
Northern		21 00
Cuba, Prime ₩ lb		23 00
Assorted ₩ lb		24 00
Havana ₩ lb
Coffee Rio, Prime ₩ lb	24	25
Havana	45	45
Java	43	43
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed
Bushel ₩ 100	11 00
Bushel ₩ bushel		50
Copper, Brittany ₩ lb	55	56
Sheathing
Copper Bolts	55	56
Yellow Metal	35	40
Carriage Materials ₩ lb	25	27
Varnish, American		35
Russia	50
Corn Meal ₩ bbl	4 75
Cigars ₩ lb
Longwood, Cuban		15
St. Domingo	4
Fancy, Tampico ₩	7
Trabuco, ₩ lb	1 25	1 75
Madeira	1 25	1 50
Eggs ₩ doz. Western	18	20
Feathers, ₩ lb
Flax, Cuba ₩ box
Hemp	10	14
Manilla, No 1 ₩ bale	12 00	13 00
——— No 2	11 00	12 00
——— No 3	10 00	11 00
Fluxseed, ₩ lb	4	4
Flour ₩ bbl
Superfine	6 75
Extra	7 25	11 00
Fine
Fruit, Prunes ₩ lb
Figs, Cream	15
Dried Apples	12
Currants, Zante	9	12
Almonds soft shell	22
Raisins M. R. ₩ box	none	here
——— Layer	4 50	5 00
Lemons Sicily ₩ box	none	here
——— Malaga ₩ box
Oranges La. ₩ 1000
——— Sicily ₩ box
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet
Prunes, 8 x 10	3 50
——— 10 x 12	4 50	4 50
——— 12 x 18	6 00	6 00
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	1 45	1 50
——— Canada	1 40	1 50
Oats	65	70
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	90	95
Beans, ₩ bbl	25 00	27 00
Bags, ₩ lb	25	65
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	5 50	5 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	20
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	30 00	35 00
Northern
Louisiana
Hides, ₩ lb.
Dry salted Mexican	14	15
Wet salted, city slaughter	10	11
Kip Skins
Dry country	17	19
Polos ₩ piece
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	6
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	8
Boiler	6	10
Nail Rods	10	15½
Iron Cotton Ties	6	7½
Castings, American	4½	5
Lead, Western ₩ bbl	6 50	7 00
Shot Lime	1 75
Blacksmith do	1 25
Cement	1 50
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana
Muscovado
Refinery, Extended	53	55
Mess, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	8
Black do	14	17
Scotch, water rotted	12	14
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d, ₩ lb	7½	8
Wrought, German	17	20
——— English	14	16
Naval Stores ₩ bbl:
Tar	3 00
Pitch	4 50	5 00
Rosin A, No 1	3 50	4 00
——— No 2		3 00
——— No 1		2 50
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	41	42
Turpentine, virgin	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	2 50
Coal, Oil	70	85
——— in cases	50	55
Castor Seed, Crude		85
——— Refined	2 00	2 10
Linseed ₩ gallon	90	1 10
Olive, Lampico ₩ gal		2 00
Castor Seed		25 00
Neat's
Provisions ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
——— Western	20 00	21 00
——— Prime, Northern	15 00	17 00
Tongues ₩ bbl	25	30
Hams, ₩ lb	18	20
Bacon, Hams ₩ lb	17	18
——— Shoulders	12	13
Green Shoulders	11	12
Lard, Prime in tierces	17	18
——— in kegs	18	19
Pork, Mess	30 00	31 00
Prime Mess	26 00	27 00
Rice, round ₩ lb	7	8
Bacon, Hams ₩ lb	17	18
——— Dry salted	14	15
——— Sides	15	16

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 25.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 687.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1868.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

GENERAL AMNESTY.

THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The President has issued the following:

A PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

WHEREAS, In the month of July, Anno Domini 1861, in accepting the condition of civil war which was brought about by insurrection and rebellion in several of the States which constitute the United States, the two Houses of Congress did solemnly declare that the war was not waged on the part of the government in any spirit of oppression, nor for any purpose of conquest or subjugation, nor for any purpose of overthrowing or interfering with the rights or established institutions of the States, but only to defend and maintain the supremacy of the Constitution of the United States, and to preserve the Union with all the dignity, equality and rights of the several States unimpaired, and that so soon as these objects should be accomplished the war on the part of the government should cease; and

WHEREAS, The President of the United States has heretofore, in the spirit of that declaration, and with the view of securing for it ultimate and complete effect, set forth several proclamations offering amnesty and pardon to persons who had been or were concerned in the aforesaid rebellion, which proclamations, however, were attended with prudential reservations and exceptions then deemed necessary and proper, and which proclamations were respectively issued on the 8th day of December, 1863; on the 26th day of March, 1864; on the 29th day of March, 1865, and on the 7th day of September, 1867; and

WHEREAS, The said lamentable civil war has long since altogether ceased, with an acknowledgment by all the States of the supremacy of the Federal Constitution, and the government thereunder; and there no longer exists any reasonable grounds to apprehend a renewal of said civil war, or any foreign interference, or any unlawful resistance by any portion of the people of any of the States to the Constitution and laws of the United States; and

WHEREAS, It is desirable to reduce the standing army and to bring to a speedy termination military occupation, martial law, military tribunals, abridgment of the freedom of speech and of the press, suspension of the privilege of habeas corpus, and the right of trial by jury—such encroachments upon our free institutions in times of peace being dangerous to public liberty, incompatible with the individual rights of the citizen, contrary to the genius and spirit of our republican form of government, and exhaustive of the national resources; and

WHEREAS, It is believed that amnesty and pardon will tend to secure a complete and universal establishment and prevalence of municipal law and order, in conformity with the Constitution of the United States, and to remove all approaches or presumptions of a retaliatory or vindictive policy on the part of the government, attended by unnecessary disqualification, pains, penalties, confiscations and disfranchisements, and on the contrary to promote and procure complete fraternal reconciliation among the whole people, with due submission to the Constitution and laws:

Now, therefore, be it known, That I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do, by virtue of the Constitution and in the name of the people of the United States, hereby proclaim and declare unconditionally and without reservation, to all and to any person who, directly or indirectly, participated in the late insurrection or rebellion, excepting such person or persons as may be under presentment or indictment in any court of the United States, having competent jurisdiction, upon a charge of treason or other felony, a full pardon and amnesty for the offences of treason against the United States, or of adhering to their enemies during the late civil war, with restoration of all right of property except as to slaves and except as to any property of which any person may have been legally divested under the laws of the United States.

In testimony whereof I have signed these presents with my hand and have caused the seal of the United States to be hereunto affixed.

Done at the city of Washington the fourth day of July, in the year of our Lord 1868, and of the independence of the United States of America the 93d year.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

By the President: Wm. H. Seward, Secretary of State.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The platform was unanimously adopted, and the convention proceeded to ballot at noon for President.

Maine nominated Hancock; Ohio, Pendleton; Connecticut, English; Pennsylvania, Packer; New Jersey, Parker; New York, Church; Wisconsin, Doolittle; Tennessee, Andrew Johnson.

The whole vote is three hundred and seventeen; necessary to a choice, two hundred and two.

On the first ballot Pendleton received one hundred and five votes, Andrew Johnson sixty-five, English sixteen, Blair one and a half, Church thirty-four, Hancock thirty-three and a half, Reverdy Johnson eight and a half, Packer twenty-six, Parker thirteen, and Doolittle thirteen.

On the third ballot Pendleton received one hundred and nineteen and a half votes, English seven and a half, Hancock forty-five and a half, Parker thirteen, Church thirty-three, Packer twenty-six, Andrew Johnson thirty-four and a half, Doolittle twelve, Blair four and a half, Hendricks nine and a half, R. Johnson nine and a half.

On the fourth ballot there was but little change.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—House.—Stevens introduced impeachment articles, and asked for the appointment of a committee. Consideration was postponed until Monday.

The Russian appropriation was resumed.

Night sessions ordered. Adjourned.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Committee on Resolutions did not get through till three o'clock this morning.

There was a great deal of discussion on the reconstruction and bond questions.

Gov. Preston, of Kentucky, proposed a resolution that the execution of the reconstruction laws should be opposed and defeated by every department of the government. It was opposed by Murphy and others of New York and New England as too violent and revolutionary.

Finally the committee settled upon a resolution declaring the reconstruction laws unconstitutional, null and void.

Mr. Eustis, of Louisiana, moved to add the word "revolutionary," which was adopted.

On the bond question the resolution adopted binds the government to pay debts, not specially stipulated to be payable in gold, in lawful money of the United States.

Other resolutions of an unimportant but satisfactory character will be reported to day and adopted.

Fourth ballot—English 7½, Hancock 43½, Pendleton 118½, Parker 13, Church 33, Packer 26, Andrew Johnson 32, Doolittle 12, Reverdy Johnson 8, Hendricks 11½, Blair 2, Ewing 1, Seymour 9.

Fifth ballot—English 7, Hancock 46, Pendleton 109, Parker 13, Church 33, Packer 27, Andrew Johnson 24, Doolittle 15, Reverdy Johnson 9½, Hendricks 19½, Blair 19½, J. Q. Adams 1.

Sixth ballot—English 6, Hancock 47, Pendleton 122½, Parker 13, Church 33, Packer 27, Andrew Johnson 21, Doolittle 12, Reverdy Johnson 30, Hendricks 5.

On the second ballot Texas changed from A. Johnson to Hancock, and Virginia to Blair. On the third Virginia went for Pendleton; on the fifth Florida changed from Hancock to Doolittle; Michigan from Reverdy Johnson to Hendricks; North Carolina gave Hancock six and a half, and Pendleton two and a half; South Carolina gave one for Adams; Georgia nine for Blair; Arkansas three for Pendleton.

The Indiana, Pennsylvania and New York delegations each held consultation pending the third and last ballot, but there was no change in their action. It is believed that Pendleton has reached his full strength, and will decline to-morrow.

Chase's name was not once mentioned to-day.

NEW YORK, July 8.—National Democratic Convention.—On the seventh ballot Indiana split, the minority going for Hendricks; Mississippi for Pendleton; Tennessee four and a half for Pendleton.

On the eighth ballot Louisiana went for Pendleton and New York for Hendricks. This produced the wildest excitement. Cheers and hisses. Result—Pendleton, 156½; Hendricks, 77.

9th ballot—Pendleton 144; Hendricks 80½; Hancock 34½—balance wildly scattering—Pennsylvania adhering to Packer.

The tenth and eleventh ballots show but little change. On the eleventh Chase received 1½, which produced great applause and some hisses.

Twelfth ballot—Pendleton 145½, Hancock 30, Hendricks 89, Chase ½, McClellan 1. [Cheers.]

NEW YORK, July 8.—On the 13th ballot Virginia voted for Hancock; 14th, unchanged.

15th—Connecticut split, giving Hancock 3. Nebraska goes for Hendricks. Pennsylvania voted for Hancock. Result—Pendleton 129, Hancock 79½, Hendricks 82½.

16th ballot—Arkansas, Georgia and Louisiana voted for Hancock. Result—Hancock 116, Pendleton 107, Hendricks 70.

17th ballot—Illinois split between Hendricks and Pendleton. Nebraska voted for Hoffman. Result—Hancock 127, Pendleton 70, Hendricks 80.

18th ballot—Jersey gave Hancock 3. Illinois voted solid for Hendricks. Result—Pendleton 56, Hancock 144, Hendricks 87.

NEW YORK, July 9.—On the twentieth ballot Hancock received one hundred and forty-two and a half, Hendricks one hundred and twenty-one. The rest scattering.

Twenty-first ballot—Hancock, 135½; Hendricks, 122; Field, 8; rest scattering.

SEYMOUR NOMINATED BY ACCLAMATION.

NEW YORK, July 9.—On the twenty-second ballot Horatio Seymour was nominated by acclamation.

Salutes are being fired. Great excitement.

THE SUN ECLIPSE of August 18th, coming, will be in many respects the most remarkable ever recorded in any known annals of the human race. The same conjunction of circumstances has not occurred before, and cannot occur again in thousands of years. The sun will be nearly at its farthest distance from our planet, and consequently be greatly reduced in apparent size, and about midnight between the 17th and 18th of August the moon will be at its nearest and, consequently, largest revelation. Now, the eclipse will take place at five minutes past six in the morning, and our satellite, in her broadest, will cover a greater proportion of the sun at his narrowest dimensions. But the grand point is, that in this instance the moon will stand so directly between us that her central point, the earth's and the sun's, will be exactly in a line with each other, and the shadow of the satellite must therefore cover the greatest possible space of our surface. An observer at the equator will of course be nearer to the conjoining heavenly bodies by more than 4,000 miles than one at either Pole, and proportionately than others who look from less central points. This space, which makes no perceptible difference in looking at the sun, has a magnifying effect 400 times greater than that on the moon, because the latter is 400 times nearer to us than the former. This will deepen and prolong the obscuration of the central luminary. In the third place the eclipse follows the course of the moon from west to east over the earth's surface, but the latter turning on her axis, also from the west to east, runs, as it were, after the darkness! At the equator, plainly, this effect lasts the longest. At its highest place of culmination the eclipse, from first to last, will continue for the extraordinary period of six minutes and fifty seconds. It will begin at Perim at sunrise, reach India during the morning, Assam by noon, and passing over Borneo, Celebes, and the Molucca group of islands, approaching New Guinea toward evening. This eclipse ought to be richer in scientific observations than any celestial phenomenon ever witnessed by man; and the British and French astronomers, aided by their governments, are taking measures and fixing posts of observation from the Red Sea to Australia. The Austrian government will have an astronomical corps at Aden, and the pope will send a similar expedition to India. Shall our keen men of science be left out from the general effort to make a proper record of this great scientific event?—N. Y. Independent.

THE Viceroy of Egypt has bound himself not to contract another debt for five years. On this condition a Dutch banking house has lent him the sum of thirty million dollars, sufficient to fund the entire floating debt of Egypt. His finances are in a remarkably good state, if, as is asserted, the Egyptian Budget estimates the revenue at £7,477,495, and the expenditure at £4,826,805, showing a surplus of £2,650,690.

ACCORDING to an Austrian journal, the sultan eats only once a day, drinks nothing but water, and, what is extraordinary in an Ottoman sovereign, never smokes.

CIVIL MARRIAGE IN AUSTRIA.

BY PROF. WM. WELLS.

It sounds strange to republican ears that the question of marriage should become one of political strife, yet it has been such for the last few months in Austria.

Throughout the Catholic portion of this realm the Jesuits and the papacy lay their grasping hands on every thing, and are especially desirous of controlling every family and social influence that they can by any process turn to their own benefit. If marriages by the Catholic clergy alone are valid, then they can control the religions education of the children, and force from the parents the pledge to educate them in the tenets of the Roman Catholic Church; and if in addition to this the educational institutions are, by special papal treaty, confided to their hands, then the work is pretty effectually done. It would not be easy to invent a means of riveting chains more tightly.

Under these galling fetters the Austrians have suffered for a long series of years, to say nothing of the other Catholic States of Germany. Without actual experience one can hardly conceive how minutely this power ramifies, and how tyrannically it enters every avenue of domestic life. We will cite a few cases in point: While residing in Vienna we counted among our friends a gentleman in one of the civil bureaus, who was desirous of marrying a Swiss Protestant lady. To be able to do so he found it necessary to obtain a score of privileges, concessions, etc., that led him through an almost interminable labyrinth of red tape, and to secure the lady's personal rights to remain a Protestant he found it necessary to marry her in her native place, whereby a special treaty protected her thus far; and the last we heard of the case was that the government was insisting on the education of the children in the Catholic faith, contrary to the wish of both parents.

Again another friend, a military officer of fine education and large influence, but narrow means, has vainly been trying, for the last twenty years, to obtain permission from the government to marry. But this liberty is not granted to him because he is not able to deposit with the government the sum of ten thousand dollars as security that his family, in case of his death, would not become a burden to it. He still lives hoping, though now passing into the shady side of life.

Our own relations with a few of the laboring portion of the community were such that we were several times importuned to give them certificates vouching that they were receiving five florins a week as wages, when they were only receiving four; as the government made it obligatory on them to present such vouchers to the priest before they could be bound in marriage.

The result of this was a widespread disregard of the marriage ceremony among all classes, and especially among the humbler ones. And when we read the frightful statement in the statistics of Vienna, that nearly half the births are illegitimate, we find the valid reason in the trammels that the government and the church have so long wound around the marriage ceremony. Thousands on thousands of parties live in unsolemnized unions, because of the multitudinous hinderances cast into their way. Many hope, and some succeed, in having their union made legal and their children legitimate, in after years, when better circumstances shall have favored them. Others by this petty persecution, utterly regardless of the moral requirements of society, and the frequency of this breach of social laws, weakens the dishonor and opens wide the door to those who are impatient of the restraints of society.

It is not strange, therefore, that when the tocsin of liberty was recently sounded in Austria, that the first demand was the removal of these restraints on marriage, and its total liberation from the control of the Jesuits. 'Civil Marriage' became the watchword among the high and low; it seized the country as a panic, and carried with it all but the extreme church conservatives. These latter became alarmed and determined to make a desperate fight, calling even a papal proclamation to their aid, and inducing the pope himself to make a personal appeal to the emperor.

The new ministry, to their honor, came out fairly and squarely in favor of civil marriage, and presented a bill, with this intent, to the House of Lords, composed, of course, of the aristocracy and the princes of the church. It was debated with zeal, yea, more, with desperation for three days. All classes of the population thought and talked of nothing else, and from day to day the excitement on the street and throughout every stratum of society increased in intensity. When the day for the decision arrived anxious expectation was depicted on every countenance, and crowds gathered around the Parliament House, and filled every avenue leading to it. Every shade of society, from noble to peasant, mingled in the surging crowd, wavering between anxious doubt and the confidence of victory.

As matters inside presaged victory for the liberals, the glad tidings flashed abroad like an electric current, and every word that was spoken within was faithfully reproduced without. All the windows of the splendid private residences in the neighborhood of the Parliament House were opened and filled with ladies, who took an active interest in the scene. During the long hours of the proceedings, from eleven till five, the excitement on the street seemed to increase, and the crowd listened to every new rumor with breathless anxiety. At last the cry of 'victory' burst forth, and ran like a flash through streets and houses. The masses rocked to and fro like the waves of the ocean; the ministers and liberal orators, as they left the House, were greeted with wild applause. The ladies in the windows waved their handkerchiefs and cast flowers at the victors as they passed, nearly smothered by the joyful crowd. The ministers were cheered by name as they came out of the House. Cheers for Auersperg! Cheers for Berger! Cheers for Giskra! and these were echoed from street to street till they reached the most distant suburb of the great capital.

It was after five in the afternoon, and already the shades of evening were gathering, when a voice exclaimed, 'Let us illuminate the city!' The cry ran from mouth to mouth, so that it seemed the spontaneous expression of all, and by seven o'clock Vienna was in a blaze of joyful light all round the public buildings. From there it spread in every direction through the city and suburbs—gas, lamps, candles, tapers, anything that could light up a window was brought into requisition. The main streets were soon in a blaze of light, and from there it extended to side streets and narrow alleys, and into dark courtyards that had never before been cheered by the joyous light of a general illumination.

The crowds in the streets surged to and fro, cheering, and singing, and shouting. A dense mass of men gathered around the statue of the liberal Joseph the Second, who had contended against the papacy for this very right for his people, and, adorning it with flowers, greeted the name of the liberal emperor with cries of joy.

There was but one dark spot in all Vienna that night—it was the palace of the archbishop. The quiet of the grave reigned there, and a victorious people were too magnanimous to insult it by word or deed. Vienna never knew such joy before; it will be the jewel of her history.

THE North British Review for June has recently been issued by the Leonard Scott Publishing Company, and complete their series of publications for the quarter just closed. This Review is a great favorite with many readers; the editor has of late years shown good judgment in the selection of subjects, and it has ceased to be the organ of mere local interests. Of the eight articles in the present number, those on the History of Writing, on Sleep, and on Louis IX, of France, (St. Louis,) will be acceptable to all classes of readers. The first named article gives an account of fac-similes of national manuscripts lately published by authority in England, and is full of antiquarian information of the most readable kind, and the paper on Louis IX. is one of marked biographical and historical interest. Other articles are—Mistral's Mireio (a review, with many extracts, of a very pleasing Provencal poem,) The Greek Idyllic Poets, Memoirs of Baron Bunsen, Schools and Universities, Churches and Creeds. He must be hard to please who finds this number dull reading.

THE colossal statue recently erected at Worms in honor of Luther was inaugurated on the 24th of June. The statue of the great Reformer is surrounded by those of Savonarola, John Wycliffe, John Huss and Peter Waldo, who have been chosen as representatives of Italian, English, Bohemian and French Protestantism respectively.

MISSIONARY NEWS.

ROMAN CATHOLIC MISSIONS.—As very few of our readers have any definite idea of just what is done by the Roman Catholics for foreign missions, we propose to give from their own authorized reports a brief financial account of their operations. In this account five francs are reckoned as equal to one dollar, and dollars are all in gold.

The Society for the Propagation of the Faith is the great Catholic Missionary Society. It has its headquarters in Lyons, and its plan is to collect one cent a week from its members. It is an entirely separate organization from the Congregatio de Propaganda Fide at Rome, though often confounded with it. The latter educates, appoints and sends out priests and bishops to missionary fields.

The total receipts of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, in the year 1867, amounted to $1,029,984. This is an increase of $872 over the previous year; this increase being in donations, while the weekly cent collections decreased by $20,623. The revenue of the society is mainly derived from France, while but a trifling amount is received from this and other Protestant lands. The Romanists here are no less liberal; but their contributions are given, as are our own, mainly to home objects—to the erection, endowment and maintenance of churches and religious institutions in our own country.

Of this million of dollars, France contributes $716,532, Germany $52,441, Belgium $61,305, Spain but $5,455, Great Britain $34,144, Italy $74,733, the Netherlands $20,558, Portugal $6,847, Switzerland $9,662, Asia $1,464, Africa $5,204, North America, $25,388, South America $10,321, and Oceanica $1,055. Of the receipts from North America, $13,073 comes from British America, and $9,613 from the United States. It will be readily seen that our Catholic population give all their contributions to objects at home. The insignificance of their contributions to foreign missions is more clearly evident when we learn that New York gives but $2,698, New England but $433, Maryland but $445, and Louisiana but $213, for this their great foreign missionary society.

The money received has been expended in every quarter of the globe. The expenses of the publication of the Annals of this society, issued bi-monthly and translated into several languages, have been $47,458, being four and six-tenths per cent. of the receipts. The expenses of management in France and abroad have been $7,421, being about seven-tenths of one per cent.; leaving in all 94 and 7-10 per cent. of the income to be expended in direct missionary effort. Of this amount $54,404 have been expended in England, about the same amount in Germany, and $60,463 in European Turkey. Asiatic Turkey and Persia absorb $61,908, Hindostan $87,373, China and Japan $161,075, Africa $92,796, and Oceanica $01,456; of which $8,000 goes to the Tahitian Islands, $8,979 to the Sandwich Islands, and most of the rest to Australia. There are $94,698 expended on the United States, and $95,332 on the rest of North and South America.

The missionaries, as they are called, of this society are literally all over the world. They are a remarkably self-denying, devoted and enthusiastic body of men.—Having no families to support, their expenses are almost nothing, their own converts or the labor of their hands supplying their wants, and nearly the whole of the appropriations given to the several fields being used in purchasing land and erecting churches and religious establishments. Their system is as nearly complete as it can be made for propagating their form of Christianity; and no other missionary organization, unless it be that of the Moravians, is able to accomplish nearly so much with so small an outlay of capital.

THE Queen of Madagascar has just died. During her illness her European physicians recommended her to go to the mineral springs of Tintingue, at the eastern extremity of the island; but the palace sorcerers, after consulting the spirits, persuaded her not to go. They advised a plaster made of a shred of the high priest's gown, which was applied; but the charm failed to give relief.

DAOOD PASHA, who has been added to the Turkish cabinet, is a Christian and a literary man. Several Christians had been created pashas before, but none had reached the rank of vizier.

A GERMAN TRUST SONG.

Just as God leads me, I would go,
I would not ask to choose my way;
Content with what he will bestow,
Assured he will not let me stray.
So as he leads my path I make,
And step by step I gladly take,
A child in him confiding.

Just as God leads, I am content;
I rest me calmly in his hands;
That which he has decreed and sent,
That which his will for me commands,
I would that he should all fulfill,
That I should do his gracious will
In living or in dying.

Just as God leads, I shall resign;
I trust me to my Father's will;
When reason's rays deceptive shine,
His counsel would I yet fulfill;
That which his love ordained as right,
Before he brought me to the light,
My all to him resigning.

Just as God leads me, I abide;
In faith, in hope, in suffering true;
His strength is ever by my side—
Can aught my hold on him undo?
I hold me firm in patience, knowing
That God my life is still bestowing—
The best in kindness sending.

Just as God leads, I onward go,
Oft amid thorns and briars seen;
God does not yet his guidance show—
But in the end it will be seen
How, by a loving Father's will,
Faithful and true, he leads me still.
—Lampertus, 1625.

For the Advocate.

Vermilion Letters from China.—No. V.

SHANGHAI, China, April 21, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: It affords me great pleasure to acknowledge through your excellent paper the receipt, by last mail, of two contributions of twenty dollars each from your city, in behalf of our long-neglected schools — one from Sister J. B. Walker, and the other from the Felicity street Juvenile Missionary Society. They are the first and only contributions I have received for that purpose since my arrival in China, and as the remittances from the board in our best days seldom or never exceeded the bare necessities of our work in other respects, schools have formed no part of our operations for at least six years past.

Last year the opening for the establishment of schools was good, and accordingly both Brother L. and myself determined to support one each by our own exertions, hoping that the new year, 1868, would bring us not only encouragement to continue, but also to enlarge and multiply them. It is, therefore, with unfeigned pleasure that we now record the encouragements so timely vouchsafed by the generous donors of the contributions above acknowledged.

For the benefit of those who have contributed, and the encouragement of others from whom we hope soon to hear favorably, I will here state our school plan.

At present, to use a vulgar phrase, we propose "to kill two birds with one stone." We have three or four very promising and zealous young men who are very anxious to make themselves useful as teachers, class leaders and exhorters, and as there is perhaps no better way to utilize and at the same time cultivate and enlarge their capacities for future usefulness in the mission, we propose to give them each a day school, either at Shanghai or at those cities in the interior where we have native Christian families residing. By that means we intend to constitute them our immediate pupils while they are engaged instructing the pupils of their respective day schools. At class and prayer meetings they shall be encouraged to take a leading part, and on the Sabbath, together with all their pupils, shall be required to attend the Sabbath school. Those who may be assigned to schools in the interior shall be required to assemble all the pupils of their schools together with the Christians and friends in the vicinity on the Sabbath, and have regular services with them in the school room.

It is needless for me to enlarge this sketch by details. You doubtless will see at a glance the scope and bearing of our plan, which I unhesitatingly pronounce at once the most practicable, extensible and at the same time the most economical.

Every family that avails of the school will render itself thereby accessible to the teacher and to Christianity, and in consequence will greatly enlarge the area of direct contact with the truth; and it is by this direct contact, this personal influence, that we expect in the future, as in the past, to effect our greatest successes.

It is the most economical every way—but chiefly in that, with one expense, and that a comparatively small one, we can accomplish two objects—the instruction of numerous children, and the training and development of those who may ultimately become most valuable native preachers.

Each school can easily have from twelve to twenty pupils, though the Chinese seldom admit more than fifteen into their schools, and each teacher can be supported at from eight to ten dollars—gold or Mexican—per month, the lowest possible average.

Thus you will see that a school or number of schools, with four teachers and fifteen pupils each, will cost much less than one small boarding school, and is susceptible of a much wider influence.

The average expense for each pupil in a day school will not exceed six or eight dollars per annum, whereas in a boarding school they will each average not less than thirty-three, including all the necessary expenses connected therewith.

A mission without schools is an anomaly. Nearly every mission at every missionary station in China has schools. Some have both boarding and day schools, for boys and girls, and they are numerously and hopefully attended. Seven are supported out of the general missionary fund, but most of them are sustained by private individuals and Sabbath schools in America and England.

Some boards, as for instance the London Missionary Board, refuse the use of their funds for the promotion of schools, that part of their work being sustained separately and distinctly by individuals or churches—and sustained well, too. And though I have not heard our board openly disavow an interest in our schools, yet I am constrained by past experience and observation of other societies operating here to suggest to those interested in them not to trouble the board with their specifications, but send us the money direct, through their pastors or their conference missionary treasurer, and thereby assure both themselves and us that their veritable contributions have attained to the object whereunto they were sent.

We are ready—have the teachers, the houses, the books and the pupils at call—and are anxious to engage in a work at once so useful and hopeful. We could just now employ most profitably four or five of our Christian young men in that capacity if we only had the means. Unfortunately, however, we are yet in the subjunctive mood, and an if spoils all our best concerted plans of usefulness.

Are there not individuals and schools who will gladly and at once emulate the examples above given in so worthy an enterprise? Shall the China mission of the M. E. Church South, our only foreign mission, continue to present herself "lying to under close reef," the only anomalous and even progressive representative of Christianity in the East?

But I will not complain. Better times are coming. Thank God our ship is raised a little and we are now preparing to unfurl our sails to more propitious breezes.

In conclusion, I would only add, let what you intend to do for us in this matter be done by next October or November, at the very latest, so that we may hear from you or receive your contributions on or before the Chinese new year, which occurs in our February. All schools are engaged by that time. With kindest regards to Sister Walker and the children of the Felicity street Juvenile Missionary Society, believe me

Your's, more hopefully,
YOUNG J. ALLEN.

Sunday School Visitor please copy.

SIR R. MURCHISON has expressed the opinion that the return of Dr. Livingstone may be looked for in August.

MY EXPERIMENT.

I believe in my heart that as there is not a happier or nobler occupation in the world than that of developing the minds that are to work in the next generation; so there are very many good men and women now occupied in teaching children conscientiously and with exceeding care.

Yet upon this subject of teaching I have long had crotchets of my own, of which Dr. Quemaribus and many other clever men used to declare to me that they were purely theoretical, that they were quite impossible of execution. Every practical man would tell me so. Every practical man did tell me so. "My dear fellow," said Quemaribus, "it is a very pretty amusement to plan model school systems, but you don't know the difficulties with which we have to contend. There is not time for all you would have done, and you set out with a wrong notion of the nature of a boy. Your method never could be worked." "Doctor," I said, "by the thunder of Jove, and by the whistle of the steam engine, I'll try."

I did try, and met with the result that I expected. After two years of school-keeping, during which I put my crotchets to a full and severe test, I left, in a town which I had entered as a stranger, some of the best friends I have ever made, or ever shall make. I left there also children whom I never shall forget—by whom, too, I hope never to be forgotten. Moreover, I did not lose money by the venture; in a commercial sense, the experiment succeeded to my perfect satisfaction.

One notion of mine was, that if children could be interested really in their studies—as they can be—so long as they were treated frankly and led by their affections, the work of education could be carried on entirely without punishment. I had been, as a boy, to many schools, and knew how dread begot deception, and we were all made, more or less, liars by the cane. Even our magnanimity consisted frequently in lying for each other, and obtaining for ourselves the floggings that impended over friends. I knew how deceits rotted the whole school intercourse to which I had myself been subject; how teachers, made distrustful, showered about accusations of falsehood; how we cribbed our lessons, and were led to become sly and mean. I do not mean to lay it down as a principle that schools should be conducted without punishment; I can conceive a dozen kinds of men who would know how to do good, with a few floggings judiciously administered. But I was not one of the dozen—I should certainly have done harm. Corporal punishments being abolished, there remained few others. For I uphold it as a principle that punishment which consists in the transformation of the school room to a prison, or in treating studies and school books as if they were racks and thumbscrews—instruments of torture to be applied against misdoers, in the shape of something to write or something to learn—to learn, forsooth!—defeat the purposes of education, heap up and aggravate the disgust which it should be the business of a good teacher carefully to remove as it arises.

I set out, therefore, with the belief that I could dispense wholly with punishment, if I could establish perfect openness of speech and conduct in the school. Accordingly, a little ceremony of signing a book was established on the entry of each pupil, whereby the signer formally promised in all dealings with his teacher or his companions "to act openly and speak the truth." All motive to deception being as much as possible withdrawn, the strongest motive penalty could give was put in the other scale; for it was established as a fundamental law that a first falsehood would be forgiven, but that after a second the offender would be required to leave the school. This law was taken, as it was made, in sober earnest. There was only one transgressor, a youth of fifteen, blunted in feeling by a long course of mismanagement. He did not remain with us three months. Systems, and very good systems, too, according with the individuality of other teachers, would provide for cases of that kind; mine did not. It was so far faulty. It would suit forty-nine children out of fifty, but the fiftieth would need another kind of discipline. A little pains being taken to keep up the feeling, perfect openness was secured, and no tale-telling was possible, for every one told frankly his own offence.

And that too was the case, although it was found in practice not quite possible to go on wholly without pains and penalties. At first, when there were half a dozen pupils, all went well; but when the number had increased, though all continued to go well, and the best spirit was shown by the children, it was not possible for them, gathered in groups, to exercise so much self-control as they might themselves wish, and as was necessary for a reasonable discipline. The joyousness and restlessness of youth, not being chilled in any way, would now and then break out at inconvenient times, and every idler was a cause of interruption to his neighbors. Penalties were therefore established. They were of the lightest kind, and represented nothing but the gain or loss of credit. They would have been ridiculous, except in as far as they were applied to children anxious to prove their resolution to do right.

Rewards were established with the penalties, and it is necessary to explain their nature first. I think it may be laid down as a principle that the practice of urging school boys, or even young men, into fierce competition for a book, a medal or a sum of money, hurts more than it helps the work of earnest education. The true teacher ought not to give prominence to an unworthy motive for exertion; only a false teacher does that to escape, in an artificial way, some of the consequences which result from the false principles on which he goes to work. It was my crotchet to give nobody a book for being more quick-witted than his neighbor, but, as much as possible, to set each working for his own sake, and to fix a common standard—not of intellect, but of application and attention, which each was to endeavor singly to attain. It was possible that at the end of a half year every pupil might receive a first prize. It was certain that, as prize or present, every one would receive a book, and that although there were first, second and third prizes, the difference between them was not to consist in money value.

This was our system of penalties, by which alone the little state of children was held in sufficient check: Whoever during work-time was a cause of interruption, had an interruption marked against him. If he interrupted three times, it was said that he lost half a day; if six times, he lost the day, and for the day, had nothing more to lose. If he chose—as he never did choose—it was to be supposed that, having got so far, he might make as much noise as he pleased thereafter. Gay spirits now and then indulged themselves in the luxury of two offences against order, stopping at the third. Every offence against discipline went by the name of interruption; and we called a day a ticket. At the end of the half year each pupil's lost days were counted, and according to their number was the number of his prize. Within the cover of his book was pasted a small printed form, which, being filled up, carried abroad the exact intelligence that its owner had been present and attentive at school a certain number of days, absent or inattentive another certain number of days, and had received that book as a first, second or third prize. The success of this plan was greater than a man putting no faith in children might suppose. Stout boys who could pull at an oar with a strong arm were not too big to cry, sometimes, over a lost half day. The ages of the pupils ranged between eight and fifteen. Now and then it happened that some great event outside, such as the freezing of a pond, produced an irrepressible excitement. Common restraints would not check talking and inattention. The punishment then introduced is horrible to tell: There was no teaching. All lessons were put aside. Instead of extra lessons for a punishment, no lessons appeared to me the best mark of supreme displeasure. Lessons were not to be regarded as their pain, but as their privilege; when they became too unmanageable the privilege was for a time withdrawn. Whatever you may choose to call a punishment becomes one to an honest and well-meaning child. Stoppage of lessons checked all turbulence at once, and the school looked like a dismal wax-work exhibition until the prohibition was withdrawn.

Children are very teachable, and it is just as easy to excite in them, and to lead them by, a sense of honor and self-respect, as to spur them on by promoting among them rivalries and jealousies, and to try to drive them out of mischief with a cane.

Having explained our criminal code, let me describe next our ordinary constitution, which was from beginning to end one shock to the feelings of Quemaribus when I detailed it to him. Children are not fond of gloom or ugliness, and it is not wonderful if they have little admiration for the customary school room and its furniture. My crotchet on that subject was, that the best room in the teacher's house should be the school room, and that he should do all he in reason could to give it a cheerful and even elegant appearance. The school of which I speak was established by the sea shore, and there was a very fine view from our school room window. It must be confessed that there was plenty to look at, and sometimes certainly a ship or a donkey would appear at inconvenient seasons; but, as we did not shut the world out from our teaching, there was no good reason why it should be shut out from our eyes. There was a back room used for supplementary purposes, but the front room was the main work-place. I was the first tenant of the house, and papered it. For that school room, in defiance of all prejudice, and in the mad pursuance of my crotchet, I chose the most elegant light paper I could find—a glazed paper with a pure white ground, under a pattern that interfered little with the whiteness and delicacy of the whole effect. After two years of school work in that room, it being always full, the paper was left almost without a soil. There had been a few ink spots that could readily be scratched out with a knife, and one mishap with an inkstand, of which the traces were sufficiently obliterated with the help of a basin of cold water.

Upon the mantelpiece were vases, which the children themselves kept supplied with flowers. The room was carpeted, and it must be granted that the carpet soon wore out. There were neat little cane chairs instead of forms, cheerful looking tables instead of school desks. The aspect of the room was as cheerful as I could contrive to make it, and was a great shock to the prejudices of Dr. Quemaribus. It did contain, however, a blackboard, a pair of little globes, and a great map of the world; to which our references were so incessant, and I believe often so pleasant, that I think we all were glad to be familiar with its features.

Dr. Q. called on us one Monday morning before his own Christmas holidays were over—ours being short—and he made a grimace when he found us very snugly seated about the room, one stirring the fire, and all talking about the news of the day. I was insane enough to devote every Monday morning to that sort of study, and the Doctor candidly confessed, before he left, that it was not altogether folly. Boys accustomed to discussions upon history looked at contemporary events from points of view that appeared quaint to him, and not entirely useless. There was a new scientific discovery of which they were endeavoring to understand as much as possible, and they were criticising social movements in a startling way. The Doctor observed, too, how the tempers and the humors of the children were displayed in this free talk, and how easy it became, without effort or ostentation, to repress in any one an evil tendency—the tendency, perhaps, to pass summary and contemptuous opinions—and to educate the intellects of all. A great deal may be done when all seem to be doing nothing. When news was scarce, and time was plentiful, we filled that morning with a lesson upon what we entitled "common knowledge." That topic recurred two or three times a week, and was concerned with reasonings and explanations on the commonest of every-day words and things.

We divided the day into two very distinct parts. Half was spent upon book study, as of languages, arithmetic and mathematics; the other half upon history and science. I began to struggle—through the history of man—fully enough to occupy over the task five or six hours a week, and get to the end in about three years. In the same time we were to get through the story of the world about us, and complete the circle of the sciences. Geography we learnt insensibly with history and science, filling up our knowledge of it with the reading of good books of travel. In these studies the interest taken by the children was complete, but partly because I felt that there was insecurity in oral teaching by itself, partly because I wished to see how we were getting on, a practice was established of mutual examination in all things taught verbally to the whole school together. All were parted into two sides, matched pretty evenly, whose work it was to puzzle one another. The sides were often shifted, for the eagerness of competition became sometimes greater than was wholesome, though it was a pure game of the wits, in which there was no tangible reward held out to the victor. Very proud I felt at the first trial when I heard questions asked and answered upon facts in history or natural history, or explanations of familiar things taught verbally, in some cases, twelve months ago. It was felt to be of no use to ask anything told within a month or two, because that probably would not have been forgotten. I got a book and entered every question that was asked, wording it in my own way, but altering or prompting nothing; and the book now lies before me, an emphatic proof of the degree and kind of interest that children, taught without compulsion, and allowed to remark freely upon all that they are doing, can take in the acquisition of hard knowledge. They began curiously with thoughts rather than things, and with thoughts, too, that had not been discussed among us for a twelvemonth. "Why does China stand still in her civilization?" was asked first; that being answered, the other side returned fire with the same kind of shot, "Why did our civilization begin on the shores of the Mediterranean?" That was remembered, and there was a return question ready, "Upon what does the advance of civilization depend chiefly?" That, too, was known, and there was a shot more in the locker, "Why is England so particularly prosperous—why not some other island?" Then there was a change of theme; a demand for the habits of the sexton-beetle, was returned again in kind by a demand for ditto of the ant-lion, and upon the white ants there was a retort made with the gad-fly and the Bosphorus. Then one side grew nautical, and wanted a description of all the parts of an ancient ship of war. They were remembered—for the topic was but a few months old—and the retort was, "Describe the spy boats of the ancient Briton." That day's engagement ended with the question, "Why is it close and warm in cloudy weather?" to which the return inquiry was, "Why is it colder as you rise into the air, though you get nearer to the sun?" Every question asked that day was fairly answered.—On the next day of battle I find one side asking to be shown the course of the chief ocean currents, and the other demanding to be told what causes ebb and flow of tide, spring and neap tides, and to be shown the course of the tide-wave. I find questions in the same day on the wars of Hannibal, the twinkling of the stars, the theory of coral reefs, the construction of the barometer and thermometer, the tide in the Mediterranean, and how one branch of a fruit tree can be made to bear more than the rest.

After this system of natural examination was established, a new phase of our school life displayed itself. The oral teaching, which had evidently not been thrown away, was cultivated with new care; a great system of note-taking arose; all kinds of spontaneous efforts were made to retain things in the memory; and the result was, that, as I read before I taught, and could not remain always so full of information on a topic as I was while teaching it, the children over and over again remembered more than I did. I soon needed all my wits not to be nonplused myself, when they were laboring to nonplus one another.

Now if work of this kind can be done merrily, stopping at the end of every hour for five minutes of play, and throughout without any employment of a harsh restraint; if over work of this kind faults of character or temper can be easily and perfectly corrected—as with us in two or three instances they were—a spirit of inquiry can be begotten. That done, a boy can be made to feel the use and enjoy the exercise of education, and in the end will turn out eager to go on acquiring knowledge for himself. Surely if this be so, there must be something rotten in existing school systems, planned upon the models set up in the middle ages! Truly, I think there is great room for a Luther among schoolmasters; and I do marvel greatly at the pertinacity with which society adheres, in these days, to scholastic usages whereof familiarity breeds in it no contempt.—Household Words.

A LETTER from the wilds of Cheshire was received at London one morning, having the simple superscription, 'For moi Son, London.' After passing through a succession of hands, it was at length duly deposited, along with a thousand other letters, at a left-till-called-for office, there to await the chapter of accidents. A few days afterward a simple-looking countryman presented himself, and inquired, 'Han yo gooton a letter for me fra moi feyther?' A titter, a whisper, a significant nod of the head on the part of more than one official, then a rummage amongst the pigeon-holes, and 'feythur's' letter was found and handed to the son, who looked upon the whole proceeding quite as a matter of course.

TWENTY-NINE years ago the Countess of Morningtou filed a bill in the Court of Chancery to enforce payment of an annuity of £1,000 a year to which she was entitled. The case was decided in her favor a month ago, after the costs had swelled to £35,000, and she had been compelled to sue in forma pauperis. Surely, the abuses which Dickens satirizes are not all reformed.

THE work of enlisting soldiers for the Pontifical army, in the Dominion, continues active. Three hundred more Canadian Zouaves, accompanied by a priest, have left St. John, en route for Rome. The Italian government has issued a protest against enlistments for Rome being carried on in this country.

SIR JOHN PACKINGTON has stated in the House of Commons that one of the new cannon now required could not be proved so as to ascertain whether it was an efficient gun or not without firing off $10,000 worth of shot.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

Ah! here it is, that dear old place,
Unchanged through all these years;
How like some sweet, familiar face
My childhood's home appears!
The grand old trees beside the door
Still spread their branches wide;
The river wanders as of yore,
With sweetly murmuring tide;
The distant hills look green and gay,
The flowers are blooming wild,
And everything seems glad to day,
As when I was a child!

Regardless how the years have flown,
Half wondering I stand,
I catch no fond, endearing tone;
I clasp no friendly hand;
I think my mother's smile to meet,
I list my father's call,
I pause to hear my brother's feet
Come bounding through the hall;
But silence all around me reigns,
A chill creeps through my heart,
No trace of those I love remains,
And tears unbidden start.

What though the sunbeams fall as fair,
What though the budding flowers
Still shed their fragrance on the air,
Within life's golden hours?
The loving ones that clustered here
These walls may not restore;
Voices that filled my youthful ear
Will greet my soul no more;
And yet I quit the dear old place
With slow and lingering tread,
As when we kiss a cold, cold face
And leave it with the dead.

For the Advocate.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Editor: No one, especially no child or young and feeble person, can be fed altogether on strong food. The constitution would soon be weakened, the appetite gone, and the person unwilling and unable to take food of any kind. There must be a full, free supply of vegetable diet—the growth of the garden. Not the spontaneous growth, the noxious weeds, but the healthy, life-giving vegetable, that is produced by careful preparation and cultivation of the soil and good seed.

So it is with the mind and heart. Strong intellectual food for the young is not well. Where this alone is administered they soon lose their relish for it. It becomes obnoxious to their taste, and they turn to other sources for the food they require. It is useless for us to say that under the present system of worldly pleasures they fail to be fed. They are oftener poisoned. But God, with his usual goodness, has provided for all this. He has placed a garden-spot in the mind of every one, which he designed we should cultivate, and in which to produce that fruit necessary to give health, strength and beauty to the moral man. We do not propose to speak of this faculty, this garden-spot, in its broad limits, but merely of one small portion—the love of amusement.

This love is no extraneous faculty, introduced by the operation of sin, as some would have us believe. It is no useless creature of worldly-mindedness, nor an alluring agent, devised by satan for the increase of his kingdom. It is an inherent faculty, the gift of God, for the benefit and happiness of his creatures. Its office is to render life pleasant, to cheer and encourage man along the way, to open our eyes to the beauty of God's works, to his kindness, his goodness to us, and surely prepare our minds and hearts, and render us the more willing to enter into his service. But it seems that we have lost sight of this altogether. This ground has never been cultivated. No one has ever sown any seed there except the enemy. His agents have been wiser than we. They have long been busy. They have taken the soil, however, in its rude state—have sown bad seed, and raised, Oh! how much poisonous food for the children of men. How many pleasing, interesting amusements they have!—but not one that has a tendency to elevate mankind or lead them to God.

Satan is very wise; and to render his instruments more effectual he has given some of them an intellectual or moral turn. But they always have more poison than happiness. Who can honestly say, the day after attending these amusements, that they are better prepared to glorify God? Whether we engage in the business of the world, the business of the temple, or the pleasures of life, we are to remember that every act should be done for the glory of God—all should be done for the same end. It is for this that we were made.

But because this is the state of affairs is no reason why we should kill this love for amusements. Because our gardens, when entirely neglected, will bring forth weeds, some poisonous and some worthless, is no reason why we should sow them in salt—destroy their fertility. We should kill the weeds. But we cannot do this by nipping the flowers. We must root them out by preparing the ground and substituting and cultivating good seed in their stead. Many persons, aye thousands, have been led astray and eternally destroyed by the evil influence of our halls of pleasure. And why? Because they were never taught that these were hurtful. They had a natural love for such things. That love would naturally seek its gratification—it ought to seek it. But where? It asked for bread; but the world gave a stone; for a fish, but we gave a serpent. Who is responsible for all this? The unfortunate ones who are lost? Not alone. "The servant which knew his Lord's will and prepared not himself, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes." How many who were destroyed by the light and pleasant, yet poisonous, food, having of course no relish for the stronger, might have been saved had they been permitted to see that the ways of usefulness and glory were pleasant withal? How many of the poor, sickly, feeble Christians, who find it so hard to labor in Christ's kingdom, might have been strong, healthy laborers if, when they were being trained, they had been fed upon some of the lighter and more pleasant food, along with that which was strong and substantial? How many of our great men might have been giants had this been the case?

Then what are we to do? Let us urge the world, the social, the educational, the Christian world, to take hold of this thing. Let them introduce a system of amusements that will be pleasing to the eye and fancy, and at the same time will feast the reason and fill the soul with healthy moral food, and prepare it for the great truths of education and progress. God's service does not require us to be always in the temple, nor yet in the fields, nor market places, nor in our tents at home. Let the halls of pleasure be opened for his praise; let the beauties of nature be used, and all the pleasant and glorious arts and sciences, with which God has so richly endowed us, be combined to give beauty and joy and happiness in the great work of glorifying his name. We may "praise him with the sound of the trumpet; praise him with the psaltery and harp; praise him with the timbrel and dance; praise him with the stringed instruments and organs."

This cannot be perfected in a day, any more than our educational system, which is still far from perfect, could have been completed in a day. But let the work be commenced and carried forward as rapidly and perfected as soon as possible. We rob God so long as we delay. G.

For the Advocate.

Evergreen Circuit Alabama Conference.

Evergreen, Ala., June 27, 1868.

Mr. Editor: It occurred to me, a few days ago, that from certain circumstances some of our old friends would like to hear how things are progressing on Evergreen circuit.

Owing to protracted sickness in my family I could not even come here to survey the work until about the close of January. I met the Rev. W. P. Miller at the Union Camp Ground, on the fourth Saturday in January; and requested him to give me a true statement of the condition of the work. He went on to tell me of his success at this, that and the other place, and of the insignificantly small number he had left on our muster rolls; and, as one would readily suppose, he alluded very particularly to the financial condition of the work, stating that for two years' services he had received about one hundred dollars, all told. As it is now, said he, you may expect to have to support yourself. But I determined at once that I would risk the consequences. So I hastened back to Skipperville, and in a few days, in company with J—— and the little ones, was en route to my new field of labor. In less than six days I found myself away out here, one hundred miles from my former home, without provisions, among strangers, and with an itinerant's constant companion—a thin pocket-book. But as soon as my wants were made known they were provided for—the circuit having already paid largely over what it paid the last two years.

Notwithstanding the fact that Miller, in his letter to Bro. West, wrote that the Methodist Church South was about dead in this section, if his brethren of the Northern M. E. Church were to come down here, and see with their own eyes and hear with their own ears, they would find it most provokingly different. They preach at six churches on the circuit; we at fifteen. They have from fifty-five to sixty members; we have from one hundred and ninety to two hundred. And as to the two churches he alluded to in his communication to the Northwestern Christian Advocate: I live within three-fourths of a mile of one of them—Union Camp Ground. He has only a half interest in that, and the entire house and lot would be dear at three hundred dollars. The small interest he holds in the other one is not worth a shilling, for it stands on land belonging to an insolvent estate, and the parties who gave the title had no more authority to do so than I or any one else had, and if Miller denies it we will contest the matter. His glorious "old mother church," as he calls it, cannot prosper here while the present state of things exists. J. L. Skipper.

CHINESE ANCESTRAL WORSHIP.

The following article is from a correspondent of the New York Commercial Journal:

The arrival in this country of embassadors from the Chinese Empire, accompanied by Mr. Burlingame, has awakened an unusual desire to know more of the manners, customs and worship of this strange people.

Rev. M. J. Knowlton, of Ningpo, China, has kindly put us in possession of very interesting information in regard to certain superstitions, rites and practices which constitute their principal religion. The most prominent feature is ancestral worship. This doctrine he regards as the chief obstacle in the way of disseminating the gospel among the four hundred millions of idol worshipers, who live in the eighteen provinces constituting the Celestial Empire.

The Chinese believe in the existence of a world of light and a world of darkness. The world of light is the visible world in which they live, and the world of darkness is the world in which men live after death. The world of darkness is supposed to be the counterpart of the world of light, (China,) and to be governed by similar officers, from the emperor down to the lowest policeman in a Chinese Ya mun. The mental and moral characteristics of the inhabitants of the world of darkness are supposed to be precisely like those of the world of light, and their necessities and comfort must be provided for; but as they are invisible, anything which is designed for their use must also be rendered invisible, and for that reason it is burned.

They believe that a man has three souls—one in the head, one in the chest, and one in the lower extremities. At death one of these souls takes its position with the ancestral tablet—a bit of board upon which is inscribed the name, birth and death of the deceased, ornamented according to the wealth and taste of those who erect it and the station occupied in life by the person whose name it bears. Another soul stays with the corpse, and the third goes into the world of darkness for trial and punishment. From the world of darkness the spirits of the departed can see those who dwell in the world of light; can avenge themselves for neglect, or reward survivors for their remembrance and the proper provision for the necessities of their condition. To the influences which spirits in the world of darkness exert upon the affairs of the living are largely attributed the evil and good which attend the existence of those who remain in the world of light. Such influences, in connection with the "fung shuy," (literally translated "wind and water," but having a far deeper signification, to which we shall refer in a future article,) are believed to control the destinies of man. Those who die at sea or in war, or the location of whose grave is from any other cause unknown, are believed to be reduced to beggary in the world of darkness, and to avenge their sufferings upon those in the world of light, who are in no way responsible for their neglect. They believe that the punishments of the world of darkness are the same as those that prevail in the world of light, and involve the idea of physical suffering; but as they do not believe that the powers of those in authority are greater than those who dwell in the world of light, they think such punishments may be evaded as they are evaded in this world.

Naturally, then, the object of the worship of the dead is, so to speak, to keep peace between the inhabitants of the two worlds. To this end a Wayquan is established by those who congregate in distant cities to aid in the support of the dead of their native place, and to assist in the recovery of the bodies or bones of deceased friends; and various other means are adopted to facilitate provision for the wants of the dead, and to conciliate them, or to obstruct the operation of the evil influences which they are supposed to exert upon the affairs of the living. For when a man is dead he is in a position to avenge himself upon those who may have injured him while living, and it is by no means an uncommon occurrence for a man to take his own life in order to obtain such an advantage over those who persistently wrong him in the world of light.

As the character of a man's residence and his style of living are marks of respectability, so the coffin and other adjuncts of burial are supposed to confer respectability upon the dead, and great pains are taken to provide a decent burial for friends. Many, indeed, attend to the matter of burial for themselves, and superintend the construction and embellishment of their own coffins.

Temples are erected for the accommodation of idols, which are representatives of the governmental authorities of the world of darkness. The superiors only occupy these temples or Ya muns; the subordinates being placed, like policemen, in positions where they can best control the turbulent beggar spirits which roam about the world of light to inflict injuries upon the living. They believe that these authorities can be bribed, and, therefore, upon the death of a friend, care is taken that he shall be provided by the burning of a quantity of din, with ample funds to purchase release from the subordinates of the world of darkness before they can be handed over to higher authorities for condemnation and punishment. Din is the silver currency of the world of darkness. It is made of thin paper and tinfoil pasted together. Some is made of gilt paper, and in certain parts of China paper dollars are prepared with the stamp of the old Spanish dollar, one hundred of which are worth about ten cents.

When one member of a family falls ill the others sacrifice to and worship before the ancestral tablets, to conciliate the spirits departed in case they may be the cause of the illness, on account of negligence in providing for their wants, or to obtain their aid, if the illness has been occasioned by a wild beggar spirit. To ascertain which is the case, a medium (usually a woman) is called, who gives the required information. If the discontented ancestors are the cause of the trouble, din is burned before the ancestral tablets. If a beggar spirit is causing the mischief, din is burned outside of the door to appease it. If the sick person becomes delirious, or the extremities get cold, one of the three souls has been captured by a loving spirit, and thereupon some member of the family stands outside the door, holding a lighted lantern, and calls, in anxious and affectionate tones, upon the departed by name to return. The moment a man dies he is supposed to be arrested by the authorities of the world of darkness. His friends, who were at a loss to know what to do for him while he was sick, know his requirements perfectly when he is dead. A cup of cold water is placed at the outer door that he may take his last drink. A suit of good clothes is burned that he may present a respectable appearance to the authorities who take him into custody, and thereby secure the kinder treatment which the police of the world of light accord to well-dressed culprits; the feelings of the authorities of the world of darkness being supposed to be influenced by the same considerations. Din, in proportion to the exigencies of the occasion, is supplied, and the bed of the deceased burned, that, whether he makes good his escape or otherwise, he may not lack the solace of comfortable repose. After having thus provided for the deceased, the family and relatives next proceed to protect themselves from the evil influences which he is now supposed to be capable of exerting. From the 9th to the 18th day, according to the day of the month upon which the death took place, the spirit is supposed to return to its old abode, bringing with it a host of ravenous beggars to aid it in its revengeful visitation. The family, in order to counteract the baneful influences of this visit, employ Tauist priests to perform the ceremony of Koongtuh—meritorious service. The opportunities for preying upon the pockets of the people, by practicing upon their credulity in the performance of this service, are enormous.

The priests, the interpreters and agents of the gods, like the mandarins of this world, are ever on the alert for an opportunity to squeeze the rich. They are ever mindful of the welfare of their parishioners, not only of the living but of the dead also. In their watchful devotions before their deities they frequently discover that some one of their charge, who was arrested several months before, and whose family is more fortunate in life than many of his fellows, is in great agony in the other world, and they manage very delicately to communicate the fact to the family of the deceased. They, greatly distressed and alarmed, send for the priest, who was so kind as to communicate to them any tidings of their departed friend. They wish to know the particulars of his misfortune. The priest, in whom they have trusted for years, goes into an investigation and discovers that the poor unfortunate is confined in a deep pit, guarded by sword and spear; and, with some show of emotion, informs the family that nothing short of three days of "Koongtuh" and a large expenditure of money will rescue him from that place. The family, anxious to do something for his relief, urgently inquire what sum it will take. The answer is usually in accordance with their ability to pay. We will say his demand in this instance is an amount in Chinese currency equal to $1,000. The astonished family plead their inability to pay so much. The priest is not inclined to undertake it for less, and reminds them that the consequences of allowing their friend to remain where he is will not rest upon him. They hold a hasty consultation as to what they shall offer. Half the original sum is proposed. The priest refuses to undertake it for the amount offered. After further consultation they offer $700. The priest with hesitation agrees to undertake it for that amount. At the same time he informs them that it will be very difficult. On the day appointed the reception hall is stripped of all its furniture and decorated in the most gorgeous manner with temple regalia, richly embroidered satin hangings suspended from the ceiling, on which are emblazoned the emblems of authority in the world of darkness. The ancestral tablet of the unfortunate one, elevated to a golden throne, is placed in the midst of ornamental insignia of authority on a table in the centre of the hall. Around this tablet, five, seven or nine Tauist priests, attired in richly embroidered imperial robes, march and chant their incantations. This ceremony, enlivened by music and gong, is kept up day and night. Meanwhile, the relations, invited guests and priests live on the family. On the afternoon of the second day the abbot, or master of ceremonies, with some confusion and great emotion, informs the family that the position of the unfortunate is unchanged, and that the authorities of the spirit world will not entertain the idea of releasing him for the sum agreed upon. They, full of apprehensions, bestir themselves to borrow, if they cannot otherwise raise the additional sum of $300. The priests return to their service with new zeal. The chanting is more energetic; the step much quicker; the ringing of the bell is more frequent, while the family weep over their misfortune. In due time the master of ceremonies announces a commotion in Yun-kan, (prison of the world of shades,) and that the unfortunate is about to be released. This news is both a proof that the additional payment had its desired effect, and some consolation to the anxious family for their unexpected outlay. On the third day the master of ceremonies makes an examination; informs the family that the unfortunate man is nearly out of the pit, that he is clinging to one side and looking with anxious solicitude for further aid, but that the priests cannot induce the authorities to allow him to escape even for the sums already paid. Now, what is to be done? The friends, frantic with anxiety, tear the bangles from their arms, the rings from their hands, and produce other jewels and articles upon which money can be had from the pawn-brokers, and thus manage to pay the priests still more. The priests, judging from appearances that they can get nothing further, return to their arduous undertaking with redoubled zeal, and ere the sun sets the fearful din of gongs and fire crackers announces to the anxious family that the incarcerated spirit has been set at liberty. The design of the fire crackers and gongs is to frighten the bewildered spirit far away from that horrible pit. Congratulations are exchanged, and the family is relieved of much anxiety and a large sum of money. This "Koongtuh" may be repeated if the priests, who are ever on the alert for opportunities, can manage to make the necessity of it apparent, as in the case of sore afflictions of the family.

One feature of this "Koongtuh," as performed by either Tauist or Buddhist priests, is worthy of note. The relief afforded an unfortunate prisoner in Chinese purgatory is only temporary. They do not profess, for the large sum of money they receive, to rescue a person and remove him to a place of safety. They only propose to extricate him from present suffering. Indeed, a heaven, or place where the good may find protection and be at rest, is not predicated of this or any other of the Chinese systems of religion. They have no heaven presided over by a god of justice, for they have no such official in the world of light. Devils and demons reign supreme in the world of darkness. There is no charity there. Those who are incarcerated must be supported as men are in prisons in this world by their friends. Hence the necessity of ancestral worship.

To provide for its proper execution and perpetuation is the great concern of life. The laws of the land are based upon it, and the practice of polygamy is the result of the desire for offspring, which are rendered by this system so essential to the future welfare of souls. The rites of ancestral worship must be performed by a blood relative of the male line. It is by inheritance the right, the privilege and the duty of the oldest son, or his heir, to perform this sacred service. This explains the great preference for sons over daughters, and the joy which accompanies the birth of a son. Under these circumstances it is difficult to conceive the estimate placed upon an only son, whose death without male issue would consign all his ancestry to perpetual beggary.

The moral courage required to enable such a man to embrace Christianity, and to call down upon him the curses and denunciations of his family and neighbors, must indeed be great. An instance is related of a father at Shanghai threatening to take his own life in order to be able to punish a son who wished to become a Christian. For a son to provoke his father to such a degree that he would take his own life in order to avenge himself is one of the highest crimes known to the Chinese law. The son, under such circumstances, would be regarded as a paricide, and would be certainly decapitated.

The form of ancestral worship most in vogue is that of public contributions to the poor dead, or those whose places of burial are not known, or if known, are destitute of any friend to minister to their wants. There are three public festivals for this purpose each year. At these feasts idols are paraded and large quantities of din are contributed, each family being expected to give at least one hundred cash, (ten cents,) while the rich often give very large sums of money. This din is distributed and burned in the places supposed to be most frequented by beggar spirits. The amount annually expended to keep these disorderly and evil-disposed spirits quiet is estimated at an aggregate of upward of $30,000,000. It is also estimated that each family expends for the worship of its ancestors an average of at least $1 50. With a population of 400,000,000, averaging families at five persons each, we have 80,000,000 families, and $120,000,000 expended by them in private ancestral worship. When the amount of the public charities for this purpose is added, a total of $150,000,000 expended to quiet the dead is attained.

The living are the slaves of the dead, and stand in lonely fear of their molestations. The most formidable evils in morals and legislation which burden the population arise from the system, and it is this formidable obstacle that impedes the progress of Christianity within the Chinese Empire. That the dead may not be neglected, the living crowd together, and poverty, squalor, vice and disease are the result. "They devour each other while chained to the tomb."

The Christian Advocate.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

OFFICE—No. 112 CAMP STREET.

Three Dollars per Annum, in Advance.

Address—Rev. J. C. KEENER, 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

AGENTS—All the members of the patronizing Conferences.

CONFERENCE PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard.
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. James A. Godfrey,
Rev. G. H. Clinton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1868.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

N. B.—Agents are requested, wherever practicable, to invest and remit funds in a Post Office Order, DRAFT, or by express. If this cannot be done, REGISTER the letter at our expense.

When money is forwarded in either of the above methods we will be responsible for it, but not otherwise—beginning on the eleventh of July. Our losses by mail have been very heavy of late. Send the money forward, and send it in the safest way.

TO AGENTS.—A NEW THOUGHT!

We wish them to forward promptly the money when they send the name of the subscriber, not because their credit is not the very best at this office, but because we need daily food, and the food of a printing press is money. But we urge them, by all the thieves in the Post Office Department, and they are legion, to either remit in a post office order, in a draft, by express, or register. We have given the order of preference as to security. To hold back a subscription one month is to each of our five hundred agents a small matter. To us it is like cutting the Croton Aqueduct.

AN AGENT'S CHALLENGE.

MR. EDITOR: I am not a "war horse" nor a "fighting man," yet I challenge all other pastoral charges in the patronizing conferences of your excellent paper to do as well as our little "saw-dust town" is doing. We average more than one copy for each male member in our charge, and I now forward you another. Your's truly,

J. A. PARKER.

TO THE MERCHANTS OF NEW ORLEANS AND MOBILE.

The great number of points to which the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is sent in the States of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, constitutes it as good a medium for reaching the people who trade with this city and Mobile as any offered in the Southwest. Our circulation is widening daily under the care of several hundred Southern Methodist preachers, who are both the agents and the owners of this sheet. A man who wishes to be known in the country is certainly much in his own light who does not display his name in our advertising columns. Our terms are precisely the same as those of other weekly newspapers in this city. We have fewer advertisements than the secular papers, but what we have are read with that conscientious regard for everything that appears in a Christian paper which takes hold—in fact, too strong a hold—and holds the editor responsible for all the patent medicines, hardware, shoes, pork, flour and even "whisky," which may be set forth in its columns.

OUR COLLEGES HOLDING ON.

Every one ought to read the history of the Dutch Republic, just to learn what a virtue there is in a purpose that lasts two life-times. A Dutchman fights, like he smokes, as if he intended never to quit. This is the element the American needs to give value to many qualities which otherwise pass for nothing. And this element of constancy our people are showing in a conflict, through which they are now passing, that involves the welfare of everything in the church and in the State. The report of the action of the trustees of the Southern University, at Greensboro, will be hailed by all Southern Methodists with profound satisfaction. The college goes on: the price of tuition is reduced, and board will be furnished at the low rate of $16. Our sons may be educated, notwithstanding the triple failure of crops and the ruin of the war's wide tornado. When plenty comes back again, and the land smiles with peace, the church and the country will not forget the sacrifices which these noble educators of youth made for the public good in the hour of its distress. Their labors and generosity will secure to the South its proper place in the control of affairs, which would simply be impossible if her youth were suffered to grow up without the advantages of a liberal education. Even now we are distressed daily by the thought that, with every possible reduction of cost, there are hundreds of our young men who by social position and merit are entitled to every opportunity that money can purchase, but are doomed to unrelieved physical labor. Would that we could teach a thousand at one time, and board them for nothing! We know of no purer benefaction, next to that of leading a soul to Christ. The loss we suffer positively in this direction is far greater than the direct loss of agricultural wealth. This might be repaired, but the lack of brain-culture and development at any period, from any cause, cannot be remedied, because the world moves incessantly forward, and the highest brain-power is needed at every moment of its progress. It is hard for a people or nation to catch up that, in these days, from any cause, lags behind. The shadow is not often driven back upon the dial.

Many families that cannot afford to send a youth to college for four years can send him for two. Let them send him, by all means. We believe that under the tremendous stimulus of necessity a young man will receive and assimilate more instruction and a better education in two years than he would have in four years, in those easy times when "going to college" was regarded as a somewhat ordinary luxury, and to be endured only for one's friends' sake. The testimony of all our schools and colleges is, that those who are now there are no triflers. They work like men who see the sun going down. The times have sobered our young people; they have learned great truths during the wars. They know that the fate of empires and battles depends upon mental training and power full as much as upon military drill—that the greatest events of the great issues are largely questions of brain quantity. It would be a pity, indeed, if, with all our misfortunes, we might not derive some great good out of the war which those who come after us cannot.

Nations recover with marvelous speed from the effects of devastating wars. The period immediately succeeding them—in the history of the last three hundred years—has always been marked for its rapidity of growth; fresh and strange impulses seem to preside over the various departments of a nation's life, and in a little while all traces of its misfortune vanish. This would have been our history already, but for that madness which it seems cannot be appeased, and which has checked again and again those powerful tendencies for good throughout the South. We are far, very far, however, from despairing that this general law will yet assert itself, in spite of the petty purposes of the dominant party. This cannot last long, and when the sun shines again we wish to have young men of polish and power among us, who will be capable and ready to maintain and advance all our interests in the council, on the platform or in any position of life, which demands either letters, logic, science, art or skill in their brightest development.

Dr. Neely gives us notice of the commencement occasion of the Southern University, so satisfactory that we wish it had been longer.

CHINA MISSION.

The Rev. Young J. Allen does not say that the money received from the Felicity street Sabbath school was the only and first money received by the mission, but that it was the first received for "our long-neglected schools. * * * They are the first and only contributions I have received for that purpose." We understand that the impression was made upon the Sabbath school that the money given heretofore by them and everybody else, for China, had failed to reach the missionaries, excepting its twenty dollars! A singular mistake.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

F. KUES, boot and shoe manufactory, No. 27 Exchange alley, between Customhouse and Canal streets. We take much pleasure in calling the attention of our friends to Mr. K.'s establishment. He does excellent work, and is as worthy of patronage as any hard-working young man we know of.

THE KENTUCKY WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY.—This Methodist institution is under the superintendence of Rev. Dr. Charles Taylor, formerly of the South Carolina Conference, and for some years a missionary to China—one better known to the church than the editor is. To speak further of the Doctor's fitness and high qualities for his present position, we might add that for many years he has been engaged in educating the youth of our church.

This university is located in the heart of the Blue Grass region of Kentucky—the wealthiest and most delightful portion of that State. The number of students is constantly increasing. He writes that many of them are "devotedly pious, and several are already licensed to preach; that the college has already furnished men for the itinerant ranks." We refer our readers for more particular information to our advertising columns.

MR. F. M. ECKFORD and Mr. GEO. A. CAGE have formed a partnership under the style of Eckford & Cage, for the transaction of a cotton factorage and general commission business. Office, No. 42 Union street. Mr. Eckford is from Columbus, Mississippi, where he has been most favorably known as a merchant. He has been residing in this city for several years past, and was of the firm of Campbell & Eckford. See advertisement.

A PRESENT.

Messrs. Palmer & Co., 93 Camp street, have, in their usual spirit of liberality, presented the church at Ocean Springs with a carpet for the pulpit platform.

THE LOUISIANA LEGISLATURE.

This body is moving on with all the racket of a crow's roost—overriding all constitutions, even the State, all elections, all parliamentary law, all usage, and apparently all rights, corporate and individual. It is reducing everything to a Radical pulp. The minority have no showing beyond a mere recognition. Doubtless the negroes and whites in the ascendency are working by the card, upon telegrams from the chairman of the Reconstruction Committee at Washington, and have but one idea—that of electing representatives and Senators who shall have no mind of their own, and who will pledge themselves in advance to impeach the President. To this result everything is being hurried up; not altogether, however, losing sight of the main chance—the State plunder, its offices, emoluments, perquisites etc., etc. It requires a little more patience than our people have to stand all this, but they have an eye to the fall elections, and "stoop to conquer."

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Rev. J. C. Brogan, of Littlesville Circuit, Mobile Conference, writes: "God's work is prospering in this section. Religion is recovering from the shock of war. At my regular monthly appointments I have had forty-five accessions to the church this year. I have ten Sabbath schools, averaging from thirty to seventy scholars each. I am now commencing a protracted meeting, and hope to have a general revival."

Brother B. sends a subscriber and the money in a registered letter. He says upon this point: "If you would credit the preachers for the money until conference, so that we could credit reliable subscribers, I believe we could do more for the paper." [Probably so; but where is the money to come from to print the paper—some thousands of dollars—while everything is holding back until conference? Who can afford to advance the amount for the benefit of these "reliable subscribers" until their crops come in? The fact is, money is as scarce in the valleys as it is in the hills, and as hard to come at in a station as on a circuit.]

Rev. J. C. A. Bridges writes from Montevallo Circuit, Alabama: "I think the prospects are flattering for a glorious revival—congregations are large and attentive. We have six very interesting Sabbath schools."

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The platform has been adopted and is strong enough to support the man who may be selected to represent it. Two principles will elect those who advocate them: one is to pay the bonds in greenbacks; the other, that this is the country of the white man, and of the white man only. If there be added to this the other two: that the country and its legislation is to return at once to a full recognition of the Constitution, and that the civil law must be over the military, and paramount, this platform would seem to be impregnable and invincible.

Upon the eighth ballot Mr. Pendleton received 156 votes, and upon the eighteenth Gen. Hancock received 144. To obtain a man who represents in himself all the points of the platform seems difficult. It would seem possible that some one may yet be selected like Franklin Pierce, of New Hampshire, who would fully represent the one great idea of an immediate return to the Constitution.

CHINA.

Besides the letter from the secretary, Dr. Cunnyngham, our readers will find another "vermilion" letter from our missionary, the Rev. Y. J. Allen, dated at Shanghai, in this week's ADVOCATE.

A CHOICE LIBRARY OF MUSIC.—The United States Musical Review, published by J. L. Peters, 200 Broadway, New York, is before us, and merits the attention of all lovers of music. It is a mammoth monthly magazine, sheet music size, containing over seventeen pages of musical news, reviews, and choice art items, every line of which is readable, and we should say, invaluable to all musicians. This alone is well worth a year's subscription, which is only $2. The publishers, however, do not stop here, for, in addition to the above, each number contains four pieces of choice new music by the best writers in America, thus giving a select library of new music at such a low rate that even the poorest may indulge in what has hitherto been considered a luxury.

The music in the Review is of the best, as the following select list will testify, all of which has appeared within its pages during the last six months: 'Nora O'Neal,' 'Katy McFerran,' 'You've been a friend to me,' and 'Kiss me good-by, darling,' all by William S. Hays; 'Good-by, but come again,' and 'Do you think the moon could have seen us?' by J. R. Thomas; 'Ally Ray' and 'Little Brown Church,' by William S. Pitts; 'Maribell,' by Danks; 'Let the dead and the beautiful rest,' 'Break, break, O sea,' etc.

Also Kinkel's 'Maiden's Blush Schottish,' and 'Heavenly Thoughts,' Mack's 'Damask Rose' and 'White Rose, March,' and several other choice pieces, amounting in all to $9 at retail prices.

The United States Musical Review is published at $2 per year; single copies, 20 cents. No musical family should be without it.

Lay Delegation and the Methodist Episcopal Church North.

It is a matter of some moment what the action of the General Conference at Chicago accomplished in the interest of the friends of lay delegation. So far as we are able to judge, the whole question received a severe check. Several editors who were in favor of the lay policy have disappeared, and a new set are placed in charge of those Advocates which heretofore ranged themselves in its favor. The Methodist presents a singular contrast with its issues just before the General Conference. Then it was burdened with the great conception; now it has a short, lean paragraph instead, which suggests, possibly, the Horatian deliverance—a muss! Things look that way, if we may judge also from the tone of the Western, the New York and the Northern Advocates. We give one or two extracts. The Northern says:

"In all Christian frankness, we return for the calm consideration of the Methodist, the kind wish it expressed in our behalf some time since; that "its spirit may be improved." There is increasing need for attention to the spirit department of that sheet. It is already sour, and is growing bitter toward the institutions of the church. It is the legitimate result of the attitude it has taken in regard to the church, and can only be counteracted by great vigilance and a strong will. It is remarkable that about all the bitter things said on the subject of lay delegation are said in the columns of the Methodist, and said, we suppose, by preacher editors. When the laymen speak for themselves they are courteous and considerate; when the preacher speaks for them, in the assumed organ, there is too often the lack of these commendable qualities. This course, if pursued, will most assuredly injure the prospects of lay delegation."

The Western says:

"It should be understood, however, that those who voted for the submission of the plan to the people are not thereby bound to favor it before the people, or to vote for it when it shall be submitted to them in the annual conferences. The plan is not formally adopted. Many voted for its submission who will feel it their duty to oppose it hereafter. In this they violate no obligation, nor will their personal consistency be involved in the least. We say this much, lest the action of the General Conference be misconstrued."

The New York Advocate gives its rendering of the action as follows:

"The matter submitted to the church at this time differs from that before voted upon only in its form. Then only the abstract 'principle' was submitted, leaving the preparation of a plan, if any should be called for, to future action. This submits a definite plan to be approved or rejected by the popular vote; and further arrangements are made, should the vote be favorable, for so completing the process that lay representatives may be admitted to the next General Conference. We think the present a great improvement over the former method, as it will more clearly and definitely elicit the real preferences of the laity in the case.

"A great and important extension of the privilege of voting on the subject is also made, in giving the right to females to vote in the election that is ordered to ascertain the wishes of the church. This is something quite apart from the woman's rights question, as agitated in various quarters; it is a recognition of the radical character of the change proposed, and the right of referring its decision to all church members of proper age. Whether or not the admission of females to vote will affect the final result is uncertain, and of very little importance. It is right that all the subjects of government should be allowed to speak when radical modifications of the form of the government are proposed. We trust all our laity, both men and women, will at the proper time make known their wishes by the ballot."

When all the sisters, as well as all the brethren, get to voting, that is, legislating, we think the trouble will begin. That a confused mass, even more like the Mountain of the French assembly than that of the Latin poet, should be able to intelligently and calmly discuss the difficult question of lay delegation is a simple impossibility. The "old sides"—as the conservatives used to be called in the days of the Radical controversy, 1828—have managed to defeat the lay question before the General Conference most signally. We say managed, because the real strength of the lay party was certainly very great in that body. It was "out-generaled." But such triumphs are usually disastrous, and we suppose this will prove so in this instance. Even the action which was adopted is being ignored by the "old sides," and a question of good faith is already adding its weight to the general complication.

THE CHINA MISSION.

LETTER FROM THE SECRETARY.

ABINGDON, Virginia, July 2, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: Our Indian and China missions are needy. The efforts of Bishop Marvin have been successful in relieving the immediate necessities of the brethren in the Indian missions, but they must have a regular supply or they cannot keep up that work. The church cannot afford to lose the advantages gained by years of labor in that field. We must do our part in educating and preaching the gospel to these unfortunate children of the wilderness. They have been, and now are, the victims of the white man's cupidity. Every right, national and individual, has been outraged by those calling themselves Christians. It is as little as we can now do to labor for their conversion to Christ. But those who preach the gospel to them must be supported by the missionary funds of the church. These funds are not sufficient at present. We must increase our contributions largely, or this important department of our foreign missionary work must suffer.

Our China mission has as yet received but little from the church since the war—not enough to pay the debts which the brethren were compelled to make in order to live. They have supported themselves by acting as school teachers, interpreters, etc. But this means of support is now failing them. Bro. Lambuth writes me that he is out of all secular employments, and is therefore wholly dependent upon the remittances sent out from home. Brother Allen may any day lose his place in the government school, and will then be left without anything. The church should remember that these brethren went to that field of labor as its agents, and with the promise of a comfortable support. Will it desert them now, and leave them to perish?

China is becoming intensely interesting as a mission field. The Christian world is preparing to increase its working force there. Shall we give up the field, just at the moment when the signs of promise are so encouraging? Surely we dare not do such a thing?

Will not the preachers throughout our church make one more effort to save our foreign missions? Brethren, now is the time. The crisis is upon us. If we meet it as we ought, all will be well. But if we fail, a century will not suffice us to recover our loss. Will not the editors of our church papers take up the subject? Make a specialty of it for the next three months. I fear all do not appreciate the importance of prompt general action. It is not an empty cry of alarm; it is not exaggeration to say if the church does not do more the coming year than it has the past our foreign missions are ruined. It is time this serious fact receive the attention of the whole church. Our enemies exult in the prospect of our ruin. Thank God! it is not in their power to effect it. We only can do it. If faithful to God, and the work committed to our hands, we can laugh the envious and malignant prophets of evil to scorn. Come brethren, friends of Christ and perishing souls, let us up and do this work like men and Christians!

W. G. E. CUNNYNGHAM.

Wetumpka District Meeting.

MR. EDITOR: Brother D. M. Hudson, our presiding elder, I see, has announced that the Wetumpka District Meeting, Montgomery Conference, is to commence at Tallassee, Alabama, Thursday, 13th of August, 1868, at 4 o'clock P. M. Allow me to say in addition, to all the delegates, that the trains on the Montgomery and West Point railroad meet at Cowel's station, (the nearest point to Tallassee,) at 8.37 A. M., and at 6 to 7 P. M. Conveyances for all the brethren who choose to come by railway will be furnished on Thursday and Friday mornings. We hope to have a full attendance of all the delegates. Ample provisions for all. R. A. TIMMONS, Pastor.

For the Advocate.

Southern University, at Greensboro, Alabama.

MOBILE, Alabama, July 4, 1868.

MR. EDITOR: I have just returned from the annual commencement of this institution, where your State was nobly represented, on commencement Sabbath, in a most appropriate sermon, by my old friend and fellow-laborer, Dr. Walker, of your city, and also by two young men (students) from Louisiana—your son and the son of Dr. Walker. The citizens displayed a royal hospitality, and there was an unusually large number of visitors to share it. The students acquitted themselves with honor, both to themselves and their teachers. Arrangements have been made for two additional schools—law and medicine—in connection with the university. Board has been reduced to sixteen dollars per month, and measures adopted by which to give the benefits of the institution to a number of young men preparing for the ministry, free of all charge.

The clouds which have hung over the university for the past three or four years are departing. A brighter day is dawning. If our Methodist friends in Alabama will only rally around it, they can make it equal, if not superior, to any institution on this continent. Its faculty will compare with any in the world. All it wants is patronage. Why will our Methodist people send their sons elsewhere, with such ample and superior advantages offered them at Greensboro? Where is their loyalty to Methodism? I trust that they will do better in the time to come, and that the halls of our glorious university will be crowded with students next year.

Your's, in haste,

PHIL.—P. NEELY.

THE health of Bismarck has improved very much.

OBITUARIES.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. REBECCA E. HIBBEN, relict of Arnold W. Hibben, of South Carolina, departed this life, in sure and certain hope of blissful immortality, at Cherry Grove, Ohio, on the 2d of June, 1868. Although the summons was sudden, no alarm was felt. With a mind early imbued with Christianity, she made public profession of her faith in God, uniting with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Mount Pleasant, Hadrill's Point, in her twenty-second year, sustaining consistently the reputation of a devoted disciple of her Lord during the term of thirty-seven years, having attained her fifty-ninth at her demise.

A friend, a brother, this memorial gives
Of her who now gloriously lives
In joy eternal at the sacred shrine,
To worship ever at the throne divine.
Sister with sisters that have gone before,
Their praises mingle "on the other shore;"
(At most a few brief years will intervene
Ere we in ecstacy observe the golden sheen
To us revealed in the sacred word,
Reflected by our dear ascended Lord.)
Thy worth, thy virtues, were by all confess'd, Thy children and their off-spring rise up and hail thee bless'd.

M.

Charleston papers please copy.

ARTHUR LEE POWEL, son of Mrs. Sarah A. Powel, departed this life on the 15th of June, 1868, aged four years and six months.

Arthur was a sweet little boy. The day before he died he asked his mother if his pa—who had died some time before—was in heaven. On being answered, he said: "Well, I want to go there too if pa is there." Happy child! How sweet thus to die! Well might he have exclaimed: "Oh, death, where is thy sting? Oh, grave, where is thy victory?"

Mother, weep not for your dear boy, for he is not lost. You have not lost him, but he is treasured up in heaven.

F. M. FEATHERSTINE.

BEDLAND, Miss., June 23, 1868.

Mrs. CHRISTIANA GREEN was born September 4, 1793, in Sumpter district, South Carolina; married Mr. Moses T. Green, May 9, 1816; moved to Montgomery county, Alabama, in 1826; professed religion in 1832; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church under the ministry of Rev. S. B. Sawyer; and died April 4, 1868, at the house of her son-in-law, P. Melemore.

The house of Mother Green, as long as she had one, was well known to many of the preachers of the Alabama Conference. She was religious from principle, quiet and consistent in her deportment, and pure and exemplary in her life. Some two weeks before her death, being conscious that her end was near, she called her children and grandchildren around her and gave them an affectionate farewell, exhorting all to prepare for a reunion in heaven. She was truly a mother in Israel. Left a widow when her children were small, she struggled through adversity and trials with a steadfast firmness and faith that gave strength and influence to her godly life. Several children and a husband had gone before her, and a godly brother had preceded her but a few weeks. She departed us in the calmness of sleep.

J. A. SPENCE.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

Mrs. ELIZABETH PAYNE, widow of the late Daniel Payne, died at the residence of the Hon. Frank Fuller, Shiloh, Union parish, Louisiana, on the 4th of June, 1868.

Mrs. Payne was born in the State of Georgia in 1794—uniting herself to the M. E. Church, of which her parents were members. She continued for more than half of the last hundred years an active and useful member of that church. Her zeal and earnestness did not relax with the infirmities of age. As physical strength waned under accumulating years her spiritual strength increased and was "renewed day by day." Her's was indeed the path of the just, "shining brighter and brighter, even unto the perfect day." Her life was quiet, even and unostentatious, "without hypocrisy, and full of mercy and good fruits." She never made any noisy demonstrations, and it is not known that she ever shouted aloud the high praises of God until the last hours of life. But when she came at last to stand upon the margin of that river which separates temporal from eternal things, looking beyond into that griefless, graveless world, with its unalloyed delights and sinless purity, she then in the last accents of expiring nature lifted heart and voice to "praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

She will be remembered long and fondly, not alone by her surviving relatives, but by many who shared her generosity, and who were aided by her open-hearted Christian liberality. Her body has gone

To the deep, deep sleep of the dead,
And the lowly pillow of dust, and her freed spirit to its rest in that temple whose columns are beams of morning light, whose ceiling is pearl, and whose streets are paved with burnished gold.

H. T. LEWIS.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Jackson District, Mississippi Conference, will be held in Jackson, commencing on Thursday, July 30, 1868. Accommodations will be provided for all. Visitors from a distance will please call on Rev. W. B. Lewis, at the parsonage. R. ABBEY, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The Gadsden District Meeting, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Center, Cherokee county, Alabama, commencing on the 17th day of July. Traveling and local preachers and official members, and ministers from a distance, are expected to be present: T. MOODY, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

Bishop William M. Wightman, D. D., L. L. D., will hold a District Meeting for the Wetumpka District, Montgomery Conference, at Tallassee, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M., on Thursday, August 13, 1868. Preachers and delegates are urged to be present with full reports at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew, D. D., is expected to be present. Rev. S. A. Pilley will preach the introductory sermon on Thursday night. Ample accommodations for all. D. M. HUDSON, P. E.

SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTITUTE.

A Sunday School Institute will be held at Opelika on the 22d and 23d of July. Pastors, superintendents, officers, teachers and friends of the cause, in connection with the M. E. Church South, within the limits of the Montgomery District, Montgomery Conference, are earnestly invited to attend. Persons of other communions will be welcomed. E. D. PITTS,

Chairman of Committee.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Gadsden District will be held at Center, Cherokee co., Alabama, commencing on the 17th day of July next. Traveling and local preachers, and official members of the church in the district are expected to be present. Ministers from a distance are also expected.

T. MOODY, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for the Lafayette District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Hillabee Camp Ground, Tallapoosa county, Alabama, commencing on Thursday, the 16th of July.

All the preachers and delegates are requested to be present at the opening exercises. Bishop Andrew is expected to be present. The opening sermon will be preached by Brother W. S. Turner, at 11 o'clock on Thursday.

JOS. T. CURRY, P. E.

Southern Christian Advocate please copy.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The District Meeting for Yazoo District, Mississippi Conference, will be held at Durant, Holmes county, Mississippi, commencing on Thursday, the 6th day of August next, at 9 o'clock A. M.

Brethren, on arriving at Durant, will report to Brother T. C. Parrish or Brother Madison Weems.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

N. Orleans Dist., Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

German churches, Dryades st....July	5
German Quarterly Conference, at Dryades street	3
N. Orleans circuit, at Algiers	19
Quarterly Conference for do	18
At 112 Camp street, at 6 P. M.
Jefferson City	26
Morena street.....Aug.	2
Thibodeaux	9
Felicity street	16
Carondelet street	23
Baton Rouge..... 29,	30
Plaquemine.....Sept.	7

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

Mobile District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Eastern Shore, at Daphney...July 4,	5
Whistler, at Daphney..... 11,	12
Citronelle, at Citronelle..... 18,	19
Mobile, St. Paul's.....	26
Mobile, Franklin street.....Aug.	2
Mobile, St. Francis street...	9
Cottage Hill..... 15,	16
Pascagoula, at Vernal..... 22,	23
Ocean Springs, at McLelland's 29,	30
Bay Shore, at Village.....Sept. 5,	6

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

Brookhaven (Col.) Dist., Miss. Conf'e.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Scotland circuit, at Pleasant Valley.....June 27,	28
Liberty circuit, at Liberty..July 4,	5,
Summit circuit, at Summit.. 11,	12
Brookhaven.....	.. ..
Meadville, at Bench Grove.. 18,	19
Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth.. 25,	26
Fayette, at Bethel.....Aug. 1,	2
Georgetown, at Georgetown. 8,	9
Chrystal Springs, at Chrystal Springs..... 15,	16
Hazlehurst, at New Church, near Bahala..... 22,	23
Brushy Creek, at Tabernacle. 29,	30

The official members of the above circuits, and the preachers in charge of the work, are informed that Bishop Kavanaugh will hold the first Mississippi Colored Conference. All who expect to enter this conference must be recommended by their respective Quarterly Conferences.

JOHN B. BOWEN, P. E.

Macon District, Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Livingston.....June 27,	28
Meridian.....July 4,	5
De Kalb, at Mount Hebron. 11,	12
Summerville, at Spring Hill. 18,	19
Macon..... 25,	26
Enterprise.....Aug. 1,	2
Marion, at Pleasant Hill.... 8,	9
Gainesville and Scooba, at Sumpterville..... 15,	16
Enterprise ct., at Sageville.. 22,	23

S. H. COX, P. E.

Shreveport Dist. Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many mission, at Many.....June 13,	14
Mansfield ct., at Mansfield... 20,	21
Keachie ct., at Keachie..... 27,	28
Natchitoches.....July 4,	5
Anacoco ct., at Oak Grove.. 18,	19
Springville, at Holly Spring. 25,	26
Greenwood, at Mt. Zion....Aug. 15,	16
Shreveport..... 29,	30
Pleasant Hill, at Pleasant Hill.....Sept. 19,	20

The District Meeting will be held at Pleasant Hill, Sept. 18th, 19th and 20th.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Yazoo District Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Providence...June 13,	14
North Carroll, at Pine Ridge. 20,	21
Carrollton, at Mount Zion...July 4,	5
Sunflower, at Bear Creek.... 11,	12
Buck Hawk, at Sweetwater.. 18,	19
Durant, at Shady Grove.... 25,	26
Richland, at Goodman.....Aug. 1,	2
Yazoo Ct., at New Hope... 15,	16
Yazoo City station..... 22,	23
Mt. Olivet, at Short Creek.. 29,	30
Bee Lake, at Lodi.....Sept. 5,	6

The District Meeting will be held at Durant, commencing on the 6th day of August.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Natchez Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Clinton circuit, at Olive Br'h, June	6, 7
Jackson circuit, at Pipkin's Chapel.....	13, 14
St. Helena circuit, at Centre.	20, 21
East Baton Rouge circuit, at Jones' Creek (Zion).....	27, 28
Percy's Creek circuit, at Percy's Creek.....July	4, 5
Woodville station.....	18, 19
Wilkinson circuit.....	25, 26
Amite circuit, at Adams'...Aug.	8, 9
Liberty circuit, at Liberty ..	15, 16
Kingston circuit.....	29, 30
Natchez station.....Sept.	5, 6

JAS. A. GODFREY, P. E.

Paulding Dist., Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mt. Carmel, at Mt. Moriah..June	27, 28
Columbia, at Byrd's Chapel..July	11, 12
Rankin, at Salem.....	18, 19
Ocoha, at Sharon.....Aug.	1, 2
Handsboro' and Biloxi, at Handsboro'.....	8, 9
White Plains, at Coalville...	15, 16
Sylvarena, at Mt. Olivet....	22, 23
Paulding, at Holder's.....	29, 30

HENRY P. LEWIS, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WANTED.—A MUSIC TEACHER, competent to give instruction on the Piano, Guitar and Violin can get board and $25 to $10 per month during the summer, and from October to June I can promise $60 to $75 per month and board. Must bring satisfactory testimonials as to character, qualifications, etc.

H. T. LEWIS,

july11 1m Farmerville, Union parish, La.

KENTUCKY WESLEYAN UNIversity, at Millersburg, Bourbon county, Kentucky.

FALL AND WINTER SESSION.

From the third Monday in September to January 1..... $16 00
From January 1 to April 1, 12 weeks... 12 00
From April 1 to close of June, 12 weeks. 12 00

INCIDENTAL FEES—First session, $2 50; second session, $2; third session, $1 50. All payments in advance.

Indigent young men can have tuition FREE, but will be expected to pay the incidental fees.

Boarding can be had (including lodging, washing, fires and lights) in the families of citizens at $5 per week.

Boys who have made some progress in Arithmetic, English Grammar and Geography can be received into the Preparatory Department. Terms, same as above named.

For further information address

REV. CHARLES TAYLOR, july11 12t President.

F. KUES' BOOT AND SHOE MANUFACTORY,

NO. 27 EXCHANGE ALLEY,

Between Customhouse and Canal streets,

je6 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

NOTICE.—F. M. ECKFORD, BY mutual consent, has this day withdrawn from the firm of D. L. Campbell & Co. Either party will sign in liquidation.

D. L. CAMPBELL.
F. M. ECKFORD.
J. F. CAMPBELL.

New Orleans, July 1, 1868.

PARTNERSHIP.

The subscribers have this day formed a partnership, under the firm of Eckford & Cage, for the transaction of a

COTTON FACTORAGE AND GENERAL COMMISSION BUSINESS,

and respectfully solicit the patronage of their friends and correspondents.

Particular attention will be given to filling orders. Consignments of all kinds of Produce solicited. Strict attention will be given to all interests entrusted to our care. Liberal advances made on consignments.

F. M. ECKFORD.
GEO. ALPH. CAGE.

Office, No. 42 Union street.

New Orleans, July 1, 1868. july1 6m

GEN. R. E. LEE'S OWN PEN.—The best Pen in use. Every Pen warranted. Try it. Price, $1 50 per gross. Sent by mail. A sample box, containing two dozen Pens, sent free by mail on receipt of 30 cents.

A. EYRICH,
Successor to Blelock & Co.,
Bookseller and Stationer,
je27 1m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

SPECIALTY.—A QUIRE OF THE finest Note Paper and Envelopes, elegantly stamped in Old English, with any letter, in a handsome box. Sent by mail, to any address, for $1. Address A. EYRICH,

Successor to Blelock & Co.,
Bookseller and Stationer,
je27 1m 130 Canal street, New Orleans.

TOBACCO ANTIDOTE.

WARRANTED TO REMOVE ALL desire for Tobacco. This great remedy is an excellent appetizer. It purifies the blood, invigorates the system, possesses great nourishing and strengthening power, enables the stomach to digest the heartiest food, makes sleep refreshing, and establishes robust health. Smokers and Chewers far Fifty Years Cured. Price, Fifty Cents, post free. A treatise on the injurious effects of Tobacco, with lists of references, testimonials, etc., sent free. Agents wanted. Address DR. T. R. ABBOTT,

Jersey City, N. J.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.—One box of Antidote cured my brother and myself. It never fails.—Rev. Isaiah W. Shoemaker, Kelley's Station, Pa. je27 4tr

BURNETT'S COCOAINE,

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH of and beautifying the Hair, and rendering it dark and glossy.

The Cocoaine holds, in a liquid form, a large proportion of deodorized Cocoanut Oil, prepared expressly for this purpose. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair.

LOSS OF HAIR.

MESSRS. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.:—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—Cocoaine.

For many months my hair had been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely.—The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation. In three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared, the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair.

Your's, very truly,

SUSAN R. POPE.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

EAST MIDDLEBORO', Mass., June 9, '64.

MESSRS. BURNETT & CO.:—I send you a statement of my daughter's case, as requested. She will have been sick six years if she lives until the 1st of August next.

When her hair came off she had been afflicted with neuralgia in her head for three years. She had used, during that time, many powerful applications. These, with the intense heat caused by the pains, burned her hair so badly that, in October, 1861, it all came off, and for two years after her head was as smooth as her face.

Through the recommendation of a friend she was induced to try your Cocoaine, and the result was astonishing. She had not used half the contents of a bottle before her head was covered with a fine young hair. In four months the hair has grown several inches in length, very thick, soft and fine, and of a darker color than formerly. She still continues to use the Cocoaine, and we have little fear of her losing her hair. With respect,

WM. S. EDDY.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE is the best and cheapest hair dressing in the world. It promotes the growth of the Hair, and is entirely free from all irritating matter.

JOSEPH BURNETT & CO.,
Boston, Manufacturers and Proprietors.
For sale by Druggists everywhere.
may2 3mr

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

OF THE

Central Pacific Railroad Comp.,

BEARING SIX PER CENT. PER annum. Principal and interest expressly payable in

GOLD COIN

OF THE UNITED STATES.

These Securities, based upon the most favored portion of the Great National Pacific Railroad Line,

representing the first claim thereon, and which rest upon a valuable and productive property furnished by an equal amount of the Government Bonds, and a similar amount of private capital, net earnings, donations, etc. They have thirty years to run, are already taken in large amounts for steady investments both in this country and in Europe, and are favorably regarded as being among the very offered on this continent, and are believed to be secure against all ordinary contingencies.

Best and Safest Corporate Obligations

The Bonds are $1,000 each, with semi-annual coupons attached, payable in New York city in January and July, and are offered for sale at

103 Per Cent. and Accrued Interest,

in currency, from the date of the payment of the last coupon. At the present rates of gold they yield

More than Eight Per Cent. upon the Investment,

with the prospect of a steady appreciation of the premium upon the Bonds.

The Company have now built and in successful operation 150 miles of road, on both slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains, including by far the most difficult and expensive portion of the whole. They have also an unprecedented force, extending the track into the Salt Lake basin, the middle of which will be reached in autumn, making more than 330 miles in operation. Several important tributary branch and connecting roads are projected and now being built, and the prospect is fair that the continuous will be completed early in 1870, or about two years from this time.

Through Line Across the Continent

The net earnings from local business merely, for the past year, upon less than 100 miles, operating under temporary disadvantages, amounted to $1,087,901, in gold, over the operating expenses; and the gross earnings for the first quarter of the current year were 50 per cent. greater than for the same period in 1867. It is estimated that the net earnings for 1868 will reach $2,500,000, which, after deducting interests payments (estimated at less than $1,000,000,) are applied to construction purposes. Besides further subscription to the capital stock and other resources, the Company will be receiving from the United States Government its 30-year six per cent. Bonds, at the rate of $32,000 per mile, and are therefore enabled to carry forward the enterprise with the utmost confidence and vigor.

☞ The Company reserve the right to advance the price at any time; but all orders actually in transitu at the time of any such advance will be filled at the present price.

We receive all classes of Government Bonds, at their full market rates, in exchange for the Central Pacific Railroad Bonds, thus enabling the holders to realize from five to ten per cent. profit and keep the principal of their investments equally secure.

Orders and inquiries will receive prompt attention. Information, descriptive pamphlets, etc., giving a full account of the organization, progress, business and prospects of the enterprise, furnished on application. Bonds sent by return Express at our cost.

FISK & HATCH,

Financial Agents of the C. P. R. R. Co.,

No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

Offices of the Central Pacific Railroad Co.:

No. 54 William street, New York, and

Nos. 56 and 58 K street, Sacramento, Cal.

Subscriptions Received Through Banks and Bankers Generally.

☞ All descriptions of GOVERNMENT SECURITIES bought, sold or exchanged, at our office and by mail and telegraph, at market rates.

Seven-Thirty Notes converted into the new Five-Twenties, or any other class of Government Bonds.

Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, and favorable arrangements made for desirable accounts.

Gold, Coupons and Compound Interest Notes bought and sold.

Miscellaneous Stocks and Bonds bought and sold at the Stock Exchange, on commission, for cash.

☞ Dealers and Investors out of the city desiring to make negotiations in any of the above may do so through us, by mail or telegraph, as advantageously as though personally present in New York.

FISK & HATCH,

BANKERS AND DEALERS IN GOV'T SECURITIES,

No. 5 Nassau street, New York.

je27 5tr

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

S. M. PETTENGILL & CO.,

37 Park Row, New York, and 10 State St. Boston,

Are Agents for all the Newspapers in the United States and Canadas. They have special arrangements with the religious, Agricultural and other Newspapers. dec7 1y

BATCHELOR'S HAIR DYE.

THIS SPLENDID HAIR DYE IS the best in the world, the only true and perfect dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; removes the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and saves the hair soft and beautiful black or brown. Sold by all druggists and perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond st, New York mar7 1yr

A CLEAR, SMOOTH SKIN AND beautiful complexion follow the use of HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED EXTRACT SARSAPARILLA.

It removes black spots, pimples, moth-patches and all eruptions of the skin.

IN THE SPRING AND SUMMER months the system naturally undergoes a change, and Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla is an assistant of the greatest value.

YOUNG LADIES, BEWARE OF the injurious effects of Face Powders and Washes. All such remedies close up the pores of the skin, and in a short time destroy the complexion. If you would have a fresh, healthy and youthful appearance, use Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla.

NOT A FEW OF THE WORST disorders that afflict mankind arise from corruption of the blood. Helmbold's Extract Sarsaparilla is a remedy of the utmost value.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT SARSAparilla cleanses and renovates the blood, instils the vigor of health into the system, and purges out the humors that make disease.

THOSE WHO DESIRE BRILLIancy of complexion must purify and enrich the blood, which Helmbold's Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla invariably does. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENtrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla eradicates eruptive and ulcerative diseases of the throat, nose, eyelids, scalp and skin, which so disfigure the appearance, purging the evil effects of mercury, and removing all taints, the remnant of disease, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by adults and children with perfect safety.

Two tablespoonfuls of Helmbold's Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED Extract Buchu is the great diuretic.—Helmbold's Concentrated Extract Sarsaparilla is the great Blood Purifier. Both are prepared according to rules of pharmacy and chemistry, and are the most active that can be made.

The best test of their purity and superiority will be a comparison with the properties as set forth in the United States Dispensatory.

My laboratory for the manufacture of Fluid Extracts has been visited by thousands of physicians and druggists from all parts of the United States, and the mode of preparation received their unanimous commendation.

Helmbold's Highly Concentrated Fluid Extracts are pleasant in taste and odor, and immediate in their action.

None are genuine unless done up in the steel-engraved wrapper, and signed H. T. HELMBOLD.

The proprietor was compelled to adopt such a wrapper because of the growing popularity of his articles, and to prevent spurious and dangerous counterfeiting.

H. T. HELMBOLD, druggist, of eighteen years' experience, and manufacturer of Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Principal Depots—Helmbold's Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New York, next Metropolitan Hotel; and Helmbold's Medical Depot, No. 104 South Tenth street, Philadelphia.

☞ Sold by druggists everywhere.

Price $1 25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6 50. may30 3mr

DUTCHER'S LIGHTNING FLY-KILLER.—The original article, containing more than double the poison of any other, and therefore better and cheaper. Every sheet will kill a quart of flies.

Sold everywhere. je27 4tr

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN EMPLOYED.—Picture business. Very profitable. No risk. Seventeen specimen pictures and catalogues sent for 20 cents: twice as many, 30 cents. MANSON LANG, je27 4tr 94 Columbia St., N. Y. City.

$10 A DAY FOR ALL.

STENCIL TOOL SAMPLES FREE. Address

A. J. FULLAM,
je27 4tr Springfield, Vermont.

$10 TO $20 A DAY, SURE, AND no money required in advance. Agents wanted everywhere, male or female, to sell our Patent Everlasting White Wire Clothes Lines. Address the American Wire Company, 75 William street, New York, or 16 Dearborn street, Chicago. je27 4t

PERSONS SUFFERING FROM Deafness, Asthma, Whooping Cough, and other diseases of the Lungs, Fever and Ague, Piles and Chronic Diarrhea, may find a cure by addressing DR. BOARDMAN, je27 4tr 38 St. Mark's Place, N. Y.

EUREKA.

EUREKA, THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Dr. Van Zandt, one of the oldest and best physicians of St. Louis, has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair, preventing its falling off by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the Eureka, and you will not be disappointed. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by

ROBT. FISHER, Agent,
may2 1y No. 203 S. Fourth St., St. Louis.

A NEW PORTRAIT OF GRANT, large size, handsomely engraved on steel. Price, $1 25. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Also, small portraits of Grant and Colfax, 25 cents each. Liberal discount to agents. Address J. C. BUTTRE, je27 4tr 53 Franklin street, N. Y.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

JOHNNY'S LESSON.

BY MRS. SARAH E. HENSHAW.

Johnny, come here and look at the cat!
Notice how nicely she washes her face;
Now rubbing this cheek, now rubbing that,
Carefully putting each hair in its place.
Johnny, you dear little dirty elf,
Don't you feel just a little ashamed of yourself?

Her hands she takes next—now, Johnny, look there!
Carefully—daintily—see her scrub!
Now she arranges her soft, silken hair,
And her tail and her ears have an extra rub.
She owns neither looking-glass, towel nor comb,
Yet she keeps herself neat, abroad and at home.

Johnny, what do you think of this?
With that smile on your bright little smutty face;
I declare there is not a spot I can kiss!
And you know that your hair is never in place.
No wonder your hands in your pockets go!
You're ashamed of them, Johnny! you are, you know!

Playing with marbles down on your knees,
Grubbing for angleworms under the ground,
Riding the fences and climbing the trees,
You're the dirtiest fellow anywhere 'round;
You know you are, Johnny, you need not look hurt!
You know you delight to play in the dirt.

O Johnny! O Johnny! what shall I do,
Is a question that puzzles me evening and morn,
With a dear, loving little fellow like you,
Who is always dirty, and tumbled, and torn?
Johnny, if you don't do better than that,
I believe I shall send you to school to the cat.

THE PLATE OF CHERRIES.

Of all the cherry trees in our village there was no one like that which grew in Widow White's little garden. The children, as they came out of school, were sure to stop and look at the red-cheeked fruit in the cherry season. But it is a sad thing to tell, that there were some of the schoolboys who not only threw stones to knock down the cherries, but took a delight in playing some other foolish tricks, which often ended to their own hurt and shame.

By the side of the cherry tree at Widow White's was a large water-butt, placed near the gate which opened into a green, shady lane; and to this spot some of the bad boys would often slily creep, and then turn the tap, that the water might run to waste, while they got quickly away. This conduct was the more shameful as water was scarce in the village, and people had to bring it from a distant brook.

Many a time did the poor widow try to overtake the wicked boys, but they were too swift of foot for her to secure. One day, however, just after the school had broken up three of the boys made their way to the garden gate. They looked up and down the lane, and over the common. They saw no one at hand, so they slily opened the gate, and set the water running all over the path. They were about to hasten away, when who should turn the corner but Widow White; and little John Turner, in his flurry, ran directly against her, and was caught in her arms.

John tried hard to get away, but holding him fast by the collar of his jacket, she managed to take him through her kitchen, into her little front parlor. 'There, now, sit down,' said Mrs. White, almost out of breath; 'sit there, I desire you, till I return.' She then went out of the room, taking care to lock the door after her. John sat down, and was now left to his own thoughts, which were not of a very pleasant kind.

'How foolish have I been to get into such trouble!' said John.

'What will my mother say to me, and what will the schoolmaster do when he knows what I have done? And how the boys will laugh at me for being caught and punished!'

While John was thus speaking to himself he heard the steps of Widow White at the door. As the lock was unturned, his eyes at once fell on the hands of the old lady, for he made sure she had gone into the garden for a stick to beat him. But what was his surprise when he saw in her hand a plate of ripe cherries!

'Do you like cherries, my little boy?' she said, in her usual kind manner. John looked at her, and did not know what to answer. 'Does she mean,' thought he, 'to give me the cherries first, and the flogging afterward?' 'Come, do not be afraid; see if you think they are ripe,' she continued. John now took one. 'There, don't be afraid; take a few more.' Widow White then placed the whole plateful on the table, and invited him to take as many as he thought would do him good.

The boy could not make out what it all meant. But as he saw she did not look angry, he took courage, and ate nearly all the fruit. 'Well, John,' said she, 'are they not fine cherries?' In a short time he began to think that Widow White was, indeed, a good old woman; and the more so when she sat down by his side, and talked to him kindly of the folly and sin of playing hurtful tricks, and of joining bad boys in their ways. She told him to ask God for his Holy Spirit, to give him a new heart, that he might be made sorry for his sins, and find mercy for the sake of Jesus Christ, the only and ever-blessed Saviour.

After she had thus spoken to him she said, 'There, John, you may now go home, or your mother will think some harm has come to you; but before you go I wish you to tell me if you will turn the tap any more, and waste the water from the butt.'

'Oh, no,' cried John, as the tears came into his eyes, and his heart beat quickly, 'that I never will; and if I see any other boys about to do it, I will try all I can to stop them.'

The Widow White's forgiving conduct had touched the heart of little John Turner; and it is reported in the village that from that time the boys never again threw stones at the cherry tree, nor acted rudely in any way to the kind old woman. As for John, when he used to meet her, he always made a low bow, looked up in her face with a smile, as the thought would come into his mind of the way in which she led him to repent of his bad conduct by the gift of a plate of ripe, red cherries.

'Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.'—Rom. xii., 21.—N. Y. Independent.

SCIENTIFIC.

MISCELLANEA.

A NEW MUSTARD PLASTER.—A portable and convenient mustard plaster has been recently invented, which seems to possess some decided advantages over those commonly employed. The mustard in substance forms a uniform layer on the paper, is sufficiently pliable, and adheres firmly, and when dipped in water is ready for application in half a minute, adhering sufficiently to be easily retained in position with a bandage. Applied to the arm its action is stated to be sensibly manifested in three minutes, with the usual symptoms of good mustard. As this preparation retains its power unaffected by age so long as it is kept dry, it may be found exceedingly valuable in all cases where a rubefacient is indicated, and convenient for travelers and country physicians, as well as in families.

TO MAKE a cast-iron magnet, take a smooth bar of cast-iron, place the middle of it to the north pole of a magnet and draw it to the end, repeating the stroke always from the middle to the end, and rubbing in the same way each time. Then place the middle of the bar to the south pole of the magnet, and rub toward the opposite end of the bar, repeating as before. Magnets can be made in this way of steel as well as of cast-iron, and may be in the form of a horse-shoe or star, as well as a straight bar.

IT has been found, while firing at the 'running-man' target at Wimbledon, (England,) which is scarlet on one side and gray on the other, that the scarlet dazzles the eye, and is hence the most difficult to hit, from leaving a red streak behind it in its advance, which unsettles the aim. The gray side was struck seventy-four times and the red only forty-two times. It is a curious fact, too, that those with gray eyes hit fairer than those with eyes of other colors.

LETTERS directed with pencil are treated by the Post Office Department as dead letters.

CHICAGO has sixteen grain elevators, with a total capacity of over 9,000,000 bushels.

WE read a curious paragraph in Once a Week about a Frenchman who died in penury, after preserving the corks of the bottles with which he had at one time sumptuously entertained his friends. The corks contained melancholy inscriptions bearing upon the hardness of human nature; such as, "Champagne cork; bottle emptied 12th of May, 1843, with Mr. B——, who wished to interest me in a business by which I was to make ten millions. This affair cost me 50,000f. Mr. B—— escaped to Belgium. A caution to amateurs." On another appears the following note: "Cork of Cyprus wine, of a bottle emptied on the 4th of December, 1850, with a dozen fast friends. Of these I have not found a single one to help me on the day of my ruin. The names of the twelve are annexed below." It may be worth remarking, that this eccentric gentleman must have been from the commencement suspicious of his acquaintances, and that they only justified his bad opinion by their neglect.

STRAWBERRIES need much moisture while setting and growing the fruit, which should be applied artificially, if practicable and necessary. The best way to secure sufficient moisture, however, is by mulching immediately after cleaning off the beds in spring. Pine shatters or straw are both very suitable for the purpose. A rich soil is very necessary to secure an abundant crop, and to make the fruit large there must be room enough between the plants.

FARM AND GARDEN.

THE USE OF LIME IN ENGLAND.

NUMBER I.

The diversity of opinion that exists as to the application of lime to the land, with the view to the increase of its productive powers, and the frequent and sometimes serious mistakes made, lead naturally to the conclusion that the subject is but imperfectly understood. At one time we hear of the wonderful results that have followed a dressing of lime, and at another that no benefit at all was derived, and that it was just so much money thrown away. All the arable land on my farm, near Penyfai, I have for many years cultivated on the usual four-course system of rotation, and it has received a dressing of lime every fourth year, about four tuns or loads to the acre, applied as a dressing for the wheat, which I call the fourth or last crop of the course. It is to the part that this dressing of lime takes in the course that I beg to draw your special attention. The first crop of the course being roots, is manured with about 15 or 20 loads of farm-yard manure, and 4 cwt. of dissolved bones per acre; the second crop of this course is barley, and the third clover with Italian grass, neither receiving any manure; then in the autumn the dressing of lime is spread on the clover-ley and immediately plowed in as a preparation for wheat, which is the fourth crop of the course. Now, what sort of crops do I get from this management? The roots (mangolds and swedes) have been almost invariably a heavy crop, and you will please mark that they are always carted off the land. The barley, (Chevalier), I believe I may truly say, averaged over 40 bushels per acre. The clover I cut twice, and the hay of the two cuttings has been valued in the ricks at 3½ tuns per acre. The wheat, I think I may say, has averaged not much short of forty bushels per acre. I must state that the wheat gets a very slight dressing of dung, called a half or quarter dressing, spread on the surface, and worked in, before sowing, with Colman's cultivator. This slight dressing of dung has sometimes been applied to the clover between the first and second cuttings, and has doubtless increased the crop, although given with reference to the following wheat. If I had no dung to spare, I have assisted the young wheat, when a few inches high, with a sprinkling of artificial manure, such as guano or malt dust. Had I fed off the clover with sheep, I should not have given the wheat any kind of manure, but I keep no sheep on this farm. I do on another under a five-course rotation, the clover-ley being grazed the second year. This rotation and management I have followed with but little deviation for a long series of years, and the land has not only maintained its fertility, but improved in strength and heart. I mention this because there is a generally prevailing idea that our light lands will not bear to be kept in this way regularly under the plow—that they are too weak. My soil is light and rather shallow, yet of sufficient strength and generosity to repay with good interest what is expended on it. Now, I have made this particular statement that I may institute the inquiry—what office has the lime performed in this course? Although the land was well manured and deeply worked and cleaned for the root crop, the removal of the roots and following crops of barley and clover have been a considerable draught on it; and, though by no means exhausted, it requires this small dressing of lime to stimulate it, and dissolve the more inert organic matter and manure as food for the growing wheat; it does more—it enters into the structure and composition of the straw and grain itself. The reason that the land is never run out is, that the exhausting process is never carried further than that stated. After harvesting the wheat course begins again, and the soil is renovated and replenished by the manuring and cleaning process of the root crop; but if, instead of this, I were to take a second, not to say a third, corn crop, I should then have fairly entered upon the impoverishing system, and in following it, be obliged to lay the land down full of weeds, and in an unprofitable state, to rest for years waiting the slow progress of nature to give it a thin sward of fertility, that I might again exhaust it in the same way. Under a regular rotation of crops, whether a four, or five, or six years' course, I am fully persuaded that the small and frequent application of lime is preferable and more effective than heavy doses at longer intervals, as, in the former case, the organic matter in the soil is more gradually dissolved and supplied as food to plants, whereas a heavy liming would be likely to dissolve and dissipate it too quickly to feed all the following crops for a more lengthened period.—Southern Cultivator.

DIETARY.

Let every housewife acquaint herself with the laws of physiology and chemistry, and she will then be enabled to fulfill her duties satisfactorily and faithfully as caterer and manager of a "vast concern."

After ascertaining that the peculiar mechanism of man proves his dependence upon variety in food, and that the kind and amount of food is regulated by climate, state of health and the occupation of an individual—each member of the family may be supplied with appropriate and an ample quantity of food, corresponding in its nature with the loss which has been sustained during the day; for instance, if one who spends the day in manual labor is to be recuperated and strengthened for the next day's work, give him a liberal amount of meat, vegetables, oat-meal, pork and beans, bread and milk or a bowl of Indian mush with a cup of good coffee or tea, and he will awaken in the morning as fresh and strong as ever.

But for one who leads a sedentary life, or whose work is all brain labor, the waste is of entirely a different nature, therefore the above diet would fail to nourish, while it induced that wretched disease of repletion, familiarly known as dyspepsia. In preparation for brain work, a meal of fish, eggs, game, a little oat meal, with a cup of coffee, (of equal quantities of Java and Mocha,) a cup of tea, (an infusion of one quarter Young Hyson and three-quarters Oolong,) or a cup of light chocolate will furnish mental fuel for a day of arduous labors.

The colder the climate, or the particular season, the more hearty and stimulating should be the diet, while for the Southern latitudes or warmer weather of the Northern States there are vegetables and refrigerant fruits.

Old persons and children require quite a different regimen; the first from the decay of the functions, and the second from the undeveloped state of their digestive organs and muscles. With the aged there is an absolute necessity for some stimulating drink to lessen the waste of nervous force. For this purpose the best black tea ranks highest. A glass of pure wine is also a gentle and useful stimulant. The food should be taken oftener and in smaller quantities at one time, than is advisable for persons in the prime of life. For children, a drink of new milk, some bread and butter, a good supply of farinaceous food, with a little underdone beef or mutton, afford the most wholesome and easily digested diet. They should also eat as often as once in three hours, taking only a small quantity at one meal.—The Household.

THE Birmingham Post publishes the abstract of a curious sermon recently preached by the Rev. C. H. Crauford, of Old Swinford, on the occasion of his own marriage with his housekeeper, in which the reverend gentleman, after descanting on the illustrious lineage of the Craufurds, admitted that the alliance he had contracted was very like that which King Cophetua contracted with the beggar girl. He assured his parishioners that Mrs. Crauford, although of low birth and imperfect education, is kind, loving and pious, qualities which he infinitely prefers to a smattering of French and Italian, a little playing, a little singing, and a great proficiency in "round dances." Her vocabulary, he admitted, is not that generally in use in polite society, but then, he asked, how many of his congregation themselves habitually disregarded or perverted the use of the letter "h?" He implored them not to be so brutally deficient in good breeding, so unchristian like, as to ridicule her for her educational shortcomings, and assured them that in consequence of his infirmities, his studious habits, his numerous avocations, and her quiet domestic nature, the society of Old Swinford would see very little of either of them in future, as they had resolved to devote themselves to the improvement of their minds, to the duties of their station, and to the preparation of their souls for heaven.

THE last public execution has taken place in England. It was that of Michael Barrett, the Fenian who fired the barrel of gunpowder in Clerkenwell Prison, by which so many were killed or wounded. He was respited for a week, to allow some further investigations into an alibi alsim made in his behalf by some perjured witnesses. This execution was virtually a private one, as the public were deceived in reference to it.

THE new Council of State of Constantinople is remarkably liberal in its composition. It comprises forty-five Turks, nine Armenians, seven Greeks, and three Jews. The list of members of the Supreme Court of Justice has also been published, and consists of eight Turks, three Armenians, and two Greeks.

THREE things to govern—temper, tongue and conduct.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A J Wright, A M, President
Mrs A A Wright, Principal,
Mr R Scott Ricketts
Miss Anna M Ross
☞ Miss C A Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.
Other Instructors will be announced.

☞ This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1831, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars Apply to A J WRIGHT,
D G Hamphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. aug 21

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October, 2d, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session. $360.

PAYMENTS.—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability,

W. H. N. MAGRUDER.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3-6m

BOOTS AND SHOES.

D. TILLOTSON,

SUCCESSOR TO

C. E. Cate & Co.,

AT THE OLD STAND,

18 CAMP STREET,

UNDER THE CITY HOTEL.

Keeps constantly on hand

THE BEST CUSTOM-MADE

BOOTS AND SHOES

ALSO, CONTINUES TO MANUFACTURE

Sumpter Brogans and Russets

LADIES AND GENTS,

—AND—

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S SHOES,

—AT—

Hammond Station.

Nov9 1y

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

On the corner of Camp and Common sts.

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building,)

Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals or Book-keepers in a large portion of the old houses of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR,
nov 17 1y President.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W COFFIN & CO.,
102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.
Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.
All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.
Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. jel6 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturer's prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS,
n17 1y

G. W. W. GOODWYN, (SUCCESSOR to Austin & Goodwyn,)

Wholesale Dealer and Manufacturer of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

Of all kinds; sole Agent for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

No. 62 Camp Street,
Next door to the Picayune Office,
oct20 1y NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 163 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev J E C Doremus, D D.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explore and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testamentary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans: then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?

The payment of $50 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not: to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S.: by loanding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them: according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church, the Board of Directors, representing in its body all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God, for except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the heart-ery of the Great Reformation. No forbidding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment: God's Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. u25 1y.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
a 1120 1y New Orleans

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES of ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Everysort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by J. E. BAILEY,
feb9 1y Formerly of Chartres Street.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for lastrue ilos and comfort. The institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjeyment of a large patonago.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent.....$67 50
Tuition and Incideatal Fee, in currency 27 00
French..... 15 00
Music, with use of instrumeat,..... 37 50
Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies designing to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President,
aug 10-3m Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY,

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

O H McOMBER, A M, Pres't, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Gen. J C MOORE, A M, Prof. of Mathematics.
Rev. B F KAVANAUGH, M D, Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
T H KAVANAUGH, M D, Prof. of Natural Science
B F BROWN, A B, Principal Preparatory Department.
B V LUNN, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868 closes last Wednesday in June,

TERMS

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

Collegiate.....$21 00.....Preparatory.....$20 00
Elementary.... 10 00.....Primary..... 13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate.....$36 00.....Elementary.....$24 00
Preparatory... 30 00.....Primary..... 20 40
Modern Languages: (extra) $2 00 per month.

No Incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in Specie—a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—

O. H. McOmber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas.
july 13-tf

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. J & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The institution is under control of the M. E Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125.00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address

REV. B. F. JOHNSON,
jy 13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

Jackson, Louisiana,

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty per Cent, as Compared with any other Stove,

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to THE GOOD SAMARITAN, as its height above the heater is such that a large and capacious one can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon those advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this appuratus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believing, as we do, THE GOOD SAMARITAN to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommemded to all. A fair and impartial trial is all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, I also have a large and complete assortment of COOKING STOVES, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

G. W. W. GOODWYN,
(Successor to Austin & Goodwyn,)
july 6 1y 62 Camp street,
Next door to Picayune Office.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " $9.
COAL $1.

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 120 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention. nov 1 1866

GEO. W. RACE, W. H. FOSTER. E. T. MERRICK,
La'e Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sep15 1y New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—THOSE DESIRING THE NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. ROBT. J. HARP, Agt., Lock Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.

For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5..... " 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address..... " 40c
For any number over 25..... " 30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays,—Biographical and Descriptive,—Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenæum, The Examiner; The London, Saturday, and Fortnightly Reviews; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'evenement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represeated in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs' Oliphant, J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swineburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR AND FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Feb 9 Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews	$4	per annum
For any two of the Reviews	7	"
For any three of the Reviews	10	"
For all four of the Reviews	12	"
For Blackwoods's Magazine	4	"
For Blackwood and one Review	7	"
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews	10	"
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews	13	"
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews	15	"

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48,00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the POSTAGE to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS:

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:

The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

☞ Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the

FARMER'S GUIDE,

by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORTON, of Yale College. 2 vols. Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8. feb 2

JOHN G. PARHAM, Of New Orleans. BEVERLY BLUNT, of Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,
AND
Commission Merchants.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug 24 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

One Million Acres of Land for Sale.

The undersigned are the sole Agents of Messrs YOUNG, TOLEDO & Co., for the sale of their lands, in British Hondnras.

For particulars apply to J. P. HARRISON, 52 Union street, New Orleans, JAS. M. PUTNAM, Belize, British Hondnras. nov 23 1y

JAMES A. GRESHAM,

BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER,

94 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.,

Would respectfully call the attention of those in want of FAMILY BIBLES.

He has Harding's celebrated edition, with places for portraits, and containing Brown's Concordance, the Psalms in Meter, a Dictionary of dates, the Apocrypha, Indexes, Tables, etc. Prices range from $1 to $15, handsomely bound. Also various other editions of the Holy Scriptures.

Methodist Hymn Books in all styles of bind ing.

The Methodist Pulpit South, containing portraits of many of her distinguished clergymen.

Those living in the country in want of books, either law, medical, school or miscellaneous, can have their orders filled at the lowest Northern prices by addressing

JAMES A. GRESHAM,
Bookseller and Stationer,
mar14 3m Lock Box 817, N. Orleans P. O.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,

(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College,)

Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anæsthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth. oc27 1y

Emory College.

THE SPRING TERM OF THIS INstitution will open JANUARY 15, 1868.

FACULTY.

Rev Luther M Smith, D D, President and Professor of Belles Lettres, Moral and Mental Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

Rev A Means, D D, LL D, Professor Physical Sciences.

Rev Geo W W Stone, A M, Professor Mathematics and Astronomy.

Rev Josiah Lewis, A M, Professor Greek Language and Literature.

Rev J O A Clarke, A M, Professor Latin Language and Literature.

Mr Sidney Lewis, A M, Principal of the Preparatory Department.

Students not desiring to pursue the regular Collegiate course of four (4) years will be entitled to graduation on completing a three (3) years' course of English and scientific studies.

Tuition, in College, $45 for spring term of six months.

Tuition, in Preparatory school, $30 for spring term of six months.

Board from $15 to $20 per month.

Books furnished by the College at reasonable rates. The good health and good morals of Oxford are proverbial.

JOSIAH LEWIS, JR.,
ja 11-3m Secretary Board of Trustees.

TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Under the patronage of the Mobile Conference.

W C I Richardson, M A, late Lecturer on Chemistry and Geology in the University of Alabama, President.

Mrs Kate Richardson, Co-principal.

Mrs M B N Stafford, former principal of the Alabama Female Institute, Belles Lettres.

Mrs Hortense Rodes, (widow of Gen. Robert E Rodes,) Musical Directress.

Miss Ellen Guild, School of Design.

Miss T M Walker, Primary Department.

RATES.—In compliance with the resolution of the Mobile Conference, Tuition has been reduced thirty per cent. in this institution for the term just commenced.

Tuition in Primary Department, $3 per month. In Collegiate Department, including Latin and Vocal Music, $6 per month. Drawing, Painting and Music extra.

Board, with room furnished, $20.

The above, with washing and lights, $25.

Boarding pupils received at any time during the year, and charged only from time of entrance.

BENEFICIARIES.—Daughters of all ministers of the gospel, engaged exclusively in the exercise of their holy calling, are entitled to instruction, in the regular course, free of charge.

For circular of pertienlars address the President, or F. F. HEMPHILL, mar14 3m Secretary of Local Board.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subsciptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18,) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARP, Publisher, N. O. Ed.
sept 28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College.....$30 00
Contingent Fee..... 3 00
Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School.....$15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee..... 2 00

☞ Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C RAIFORD,
aug 31-2m Sec'y of Board.

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for

CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 56 Camp street, New Orleans,

THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of

PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,
Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:

DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therfore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefitted.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,

We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULDON, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of house of Fellowes & Co
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. HOWSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.

New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:

4 oz. Bottles.....$2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33⅓ per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sep22 1y THOS. K. PRICE.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,

Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them; very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc; and every variety of Lanteras from the small Hand to the large Station. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.

Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
nly Between Natchez street and Times Office

GEORGE STROUD,

Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD

MARBLE WORK

158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,

One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.

—Good agents wanted to introduce our New Star Shuttle Sewing Machine. Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class low-priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address W. G. WILSON & CO., Saint Louis, Missouri, Cleveland, Ohio, or Boston, Massachusetts. mar28 3m

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,

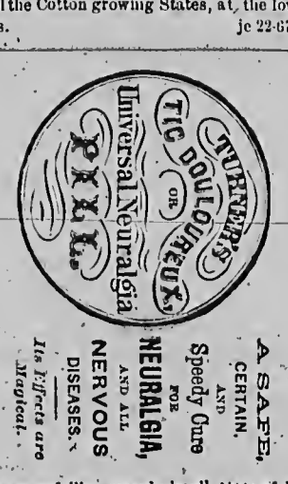
For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans' Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-67-6m



It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialia, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements,—of many years standing,—affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package,	$1 00	Postage	6 cts.
Six packages,	5 00	"	27
Twelve packages,	9 00	"	43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors.
e 22 120 Tremont street, Boston Mass.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S

COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,

Corner of Canal and Carondelet Sts.

Open day and evening the entire year.

Penmanship, Book keeping, Mathematics and Languages

taught by experienced professors. Instruction is private to each student, who can select his own hours.

The department of Penmanship is in charge of Prof. Eastan, whose beautiful specimens were exhibited at our late State Fair.

The principal has been established in New Orleans since 1851.

Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Students from the country can board with the principal.

sp14 6m J. W. BLACKMAN.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,

Grocers and Commission Merchants,

95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,

Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.

☞ Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.

W H HENNING & CO,
a25 6m 95 & 97 Camp street, New Orleans

EMORY AND HENRY COLLEGE,

Washington county, Virginia.

The FALL SESSION of this Institution begins on the 20th of August next.

Our terms, for a session of five months, are as follows:

Tuition in Collegiate course, payable in advance	$30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, payable in advance	10 00
Board, at $13 per month	05 00
Washing	7 50

Tuition in the Preparatory Department is $5 less. Board is payable monthly in advance. Students supply their own beds and furniture for their rooms, and take their meals with the families boarding them.

We invite those seeking collegiate culture to consider the excellent advantages here offered.

For a catalogue, or for any other information, address E. E. WILEY, Pres't.,
je27 3m Emory P. O., Va.

BOOKS!

JUST RECEIVED:

	Price.	By mail.
Azile,	$1 50	$1 60
Work of Christ, Marvin,	65	75
Ecce Ecclesia,	1 75	2 00
Davis and Jackson,	1 25	1 50
Lee and his Generals, half calf,	3 00	3 40
Official Reports of Battles,	3 00	3 40
Southern Generals,	2 00	2 40

We are now prepared to fill orders for Stationery on good terms. List of prices will be sent to those who may desire it.

ROBT. J. HARP,
apr25 Agent, 112 Camp street

CHILDREN.—All parents should understand that children's shoes, with metal tips, will wear at least three times as long as those without. The new Silver Tip is decidedly ornamental, and is being extensively used on children's first class shoes.

Sold everywhere. je27 4tr

NEW PATENT PIANOS.

RAVEN & BACON, (established in 1829.)

Warerooms, Nos. 644 and 646 Broadway, NEW YORK.

Manufacturers of Piano Fortes, with their patent Combination Sounding-boards,

Patented August 14th, 1866.

This invention, introduced exclusively into our Pianos, is of the greatest advantage to the tone of the instrument, as it affects the sounding-board, the very soul of the Piano, and produces thereby a pure liquid tone greatly superior in quality and power to that of the ordinary Piano. The sounding-board released from its connection with the Piano case, and resting upon under sounding-boards, is relieved from the rigidity caused by such connection, and its vibratory quality increased.

Our Pianos are first-class in every respect, and purchasers will have not only our own guarantee as to their quality, but also the guarantee of the reputation of the instrument, obtained from the experience of our patrons, who have used them for a generation. All lovers of this eminently household instrument, as well as parties proposing to purchase new Pianos, are invited to call and examine our assortment.

mar28 1y

NEW BOOKS.

BRANCH

Southern Methodist Publishing House

112 CAMP STREET,

NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH-WEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25

AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 50c

THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINESCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50

PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00

SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail 1 25

NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

"ALBERT N'YANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile. Baker.....$5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt..... 6 50

ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans.. 2 00

BILL ARP..... 1 50

PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS..... 10 00

KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth..... 25 00

Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.

Catalogues sent to all who request it.

Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months	$150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos.,	60
" " Preparatory " "	40
Fuel, for Boarders, " "	10
" " Day scholars, " "	5
Music on Piano, " "	50
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each,	6

No extra charge for Greek or Latin.

Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of pianos.

Oil Painting	$30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each,	20

No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi annually, in advance:

For further information, apply to july 4-3m B. ARROGAST, Pres't,

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fiftieth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healty one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months	$15 00
Primary Department	20 00
Collegiate	25 00
Music and Piano	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Vocal Music	2 50
Incidental fee	2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month	18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month..... $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks	$30 00
Music	25 00
Use of Instrument	7 50
Languages, each	10 00
Incidental Fee	2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month	20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing	16 00

aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices

☞ Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,

Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct6 1y NEW ORLEANS

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course,	$30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee,	10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in privete families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information.

Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't.
je 29 Emory P. O., Va.

CENTENARY INSTITUTE.

SUMMERFIELD ALA.

Notice is hereby given that, in view of the decline in the price of cotton and other articles, tuition and board are reduced to the following rates in currency.

FEMALE COLLEGE.

Tuition in the regular course, including Latin and Modern Languages..... $80,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00

MALE INSTITUTE.

Tuition in the entire Course..... $75,00
Incidental Fee..... 5,00
Board exclusive of Lights and Washing. 20,00

We commend the Institution to the public as worthy of the highest confidence, and respectfully solicit its patronage. Address,

A. H. MITCHELL, Pres't. of Board of Trustees
Oct. 19th, 1867.

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1868.

Months.	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
JAN.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
FEB.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
MAR	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31
APR				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30
MAY						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
JNE		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
JLY				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
AUG							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30	31
SEP.			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30
OCT					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
NOV	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
DEC			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31

TO AGENTS.—A straight pencil-mark in the above calendar indicates the date of a money-letter received

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The limited movement in the general market, noticed last week, has been still farther diminished by the observance of Saturday, the 4th, as a national holiday, on which, agreeably to the laws, the banks and most of the public offices were closed.

The weather has continued warm, but on Saturday we were visited by a copious rain, which probably extended to the adjacent agricultural districts. Our accounts from the country are still generally encouraging, but some private letters speak in less favorable terms of the cotton prospects. In several districts the corn crop has been much curtailed by drought, and vegetables have suffered considerably also.

We have no change to notice in the way of freights. There is but little going forward, and an ample supply of tonnage for the demand.

The river continues to fall slowly, being four feet six inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—We left the market, at the date of our last report, ruling at 27½ to 28c. for Good Ordinary, 28½ to 29c. for Low Middling, and 30 to 30½c. for Middling, showing an advance during the previous three days of fully one cent per lb. With no later cable dispatches, and no market at New York, where the day was observed as a national holiday, the sales on Saturday were confined to 40 bales, at about previous rates, but on Monday, under the stimulating influence of favorable accounts from both Liverpool and New York, buyers came forward with renewed spirit, and took 325 bales, at figures one cent higher than Friday's rates, Good Ordinary closing at 28½ to 29c, Low Middling at 29½ to 30c., and Middling at 31 to 31½c. On Tuesday the telegraphic advices received up to 12 M., from New York, reported that market firm at 38c. for Middling Uplands, while at Liverpool rates were unchanged. The movement in this market was restricted by the limited character of the supply offering, as well as the enhanced pretensions of factors. The sales, nevertheless, summed up 225 bales, mostly on the basis of 29⅞ to 30c. for Low Middling. At the close, however, purchases could not have been made unless at rates in conformity with the outside figures of our quotations below.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 590 bales, taken partly for the North and partly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening amount to 224 bales, against 237 during the corresponding period last week, showing a decrease of 13 bales.

The receipts at this port since the 1st of September (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas) are 585,790 bales, against 705,478 bales to the same date last year, and the increase in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 292,317 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is an increase of 52,678 bales to Great Britain, of 3,781 to France, and of 105,728 to other foreign ports.

Referring to our remarks above, we now quote as follows:

Low	—	to —
Ordinary	—	to —
Good Ordinary	29	to 29½
Low Middling	30	to 30½
Middling	31½	to —
Strict Middling	—	to —

COTTON STATEMENT.

Stock on hand Sept. 1, 1867, bales	15256
Arrived past three days	224
Arrived previously	656105—656329
Made from waste and damaged cotton, samples, etc	8019—664348
	679604
Exported past three days
Exported previously	672706—672706
Stock on hand and on shipboard	6898

SUGAR.—During the past three days the market for Cuba sugar has continued very dull, and the transactions were confined to jobbing and retail lots, in which there has been a slight improvement. The stock on hand is only moderate, though ample for the limited demand which prevails. The only sale within our notice was 100 boxes on private terms, on Monday. We quote Cuba sugar at 12¾ to 13½c. per pound for Muscovado, 14 to 14½c. for Porto Rico; white 15 to 15¾c., yellow 12¾ to 14½c., brown 12 to 12½c. What little Louisiana sugar there is remaining in market is retailing slowly at 13½c. for fair and 15c. for prime.

MOLASSES.—Cuba molasses, since our last review, has continued dull and depressed, without even a fair retail business. The stock on hand is good, with very little demand for distilling purposes. The receipts of the last week have been offered, but no buyers could be found at the present ruling rates.

CATTLE MARKET.

JEFFERSON CITY, Tuesday Evening, July 7, 1868.

Western beef, choice, per lb net	12 to 15c
Western beef, second qual, per lb net	— to —
Texas cattle, choice, per head	$25 to 30
Texas cattle, second qual, per head	15 to 20
Texas cattle, third qual, per head	10 to 12
Hogs, per lb gross	8 to 10c
Sheep, first quality, per head	$— to 0
Sheep, second quality, per head	— to 3
Sheep, third quality, per head	— to 1½
Milch cows, choice, per head	80 to100
Milch cows, per head	50 to 60
Texas cows, with calves	— to —
Yearlings, per head	4 to 8
Calves, per head	4 to 7

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES.	FROM	TO
Agricultural Implements.
Cotton and Sugar Plows	4 00	20 00
Yost's Plows and Scrapers	9 50	10 50
Cotton Scrapers	6 00	6 50
Sweeps	6 00	6 50
Cultivators	10 00	11 00
Shovels	10 00	18 00
Spades	11 00	19 00
Axes	15 00	17 50
Bagging, ₩ yard:
Kentucky	20	23
East India	23	25
Bale Rope, Kentucky, ₩ lb	..	9
Bran, ₩ 100 lbs	..	1 10
Bread, ₩ 100 lbs.: Pilot	..	7 50
Crackers	8 00	..
Bricks, Lake, ₩ M	13 00	14 00
English, Fire	45 00	50 00
Candles, ₩ lb:
Sperm, N Bedford	45	50
Tallow	..	20
Adamantine	17	21
Star	18	25
Chocolate, No 1, ₩ lb	38	55
Sweet and Spiced	35	67
Cider, Western ₩ bbl	..	..
Northern	13 00	..
Coal, Cannel ₩ ton	..	15 00
Anthracite ₩ ton	..	10 00
Western, ₩ barrel	..	60
Coffee, Rio, (gold) ₩ lb	14½	18
Havana	45	55
Java	35	40
St. Domingo	none	here
Cotton Seed:
Rough, ₩ ton	15 00	.. ..
Hulled, ₩ bushel	..	.. ..
Copper, Braziers' ₩ lb	35	36
Sheathing	..	.. ..
Copper Bolts	35	36
Yellow Metal	28	29
Cordage, Manilla, ₩ lb	23	24
Tarred, American	..	21
Russia	30	.. ..
Corn Meal, ₩ bbl	4 50	.. ..
Dyes, ₩ lb:
Logwood, Camp'y	..	3½
—St. Domingo	4	.. ..
Fustic, Tampico	5	.. ..
Indigo, ₩ lb	1 25	1 75
Madder	16	18
Eggs, ₩ doz. Western	15	18
Feathers, ₩ lb	..	..
Fish, Cod, ₩ box	..	.. ..
Herrings	60	..
Mackerel, No. 1, ₩ bbl	..	21 00
——— No. 2	..	17 00
——— No. 3	..	10 50
Flaxseed, ₩ lb	4	6
Flour, ₩ bbl:
Superfine	7 25	.. ..
Extra	7 50	13 50
Fine	6 25	6 50
Fruit, Prunes, ₩ lb	..	18
Figs, Drum	18	20
Dried Apples	6	6½
Currants, Zante	8	..
Almonds, soft shell	33	..
Raisins, M R, ₩ box	none	here
——Layer	4 40	4 50
Lem's Sicily ₩ box	none	here
" Malaga, ₩ box	..	.. ..
Oranges, La. ₩ 1000	..	.. ..
Sicily ₩ box	..	.. ..
Glass, ₩ box of 50 feet:
French, 8 x 10	3 80	.. ..
10 x 12	3 90	4 00
12 x 18	4 40	4 90
Grain, ₩ bushel:
Malt, Western	2 80	2 85
Canada	2 90	2 95
Oats	..	70
Corn, shelled ₩ bushel	90	95
Beans, ₩ bbl	..	.. ..
Hops, ₩ lb	25	45
Gunpowder, ₩ keg	8 50	9 50
Gunny Bags, ₩ bag	20	.. ..
Hay, Western, ₩ ton	..	21 00
Northern	..	.. ..
Louisiana	..	.. ..
Hides, ₩ lb
Dry salted Mexican	16	18
Wet salted, city slaughter	9½	13
Kip Skins	..	.. ..
Dry country	17	19
Pelts ₩ piece	..	.. ..
Iron, Pig ₩ ton	45 00	.. ..
Country, Bar ₩ lb	5	6
English, ₩ lb	4½	5
Hoop, ₩ lb	7	10
Sheet	6	9
Boiler	8	10
Nail Rods	10	12½
Iron Cotton Ties	6	6½
Castings, American	6½	8
Lime, Western ₩ bbl	1 65	1 90
Shell Lime	1 75	.. ..
Rockland, &c	2 25	2 40
Cement	3 00	.. ..
Molasses, ₩ gallon:
Louisiana	..	.. ..
Muscovado	..	.. ..
Refinery, Rebolled	75	85
Moss, ₩ lb:
Gray, Country	3	.. ..
Black do	4½	5½
Select, water rotted	6½	7½
Nails, Am. 4 a 8d. ₩ lb	5½	5½
Wrought, German	15	20
English	16	18
Naval Stores, ₩ bbl:
Tar	3 00	3 50
Pitch	4 50	.. ..
Rosin A No. 1	3 50	4 50
No. 2	.. ..	2 75
No. 3	.. ..	2 50
Spirits Turp ₩ gallon	40	42
Varnish, bright	50	55
Oils, Lard ₩ gallon	1 50	.. ..
Coal Oil	39	42
in cases	50	55
Cotton Seed, Crude	..	85
Refined	1 05	1 10
Tanners' ₩ gallon	90	1 15
Oil Cake, Linseed ₩ ton	.. ..	.. ..
Cotton Seed	.. ..	35 00
Meal	.. ..	.. ..
Provisions, ₩ bbl:
Beef, Mess, Northern	none	here
" Western	18 00	21 00
" North half bbl.	15 00	15 50
Dried, ₩ lb	15	16
Tongues ₩ doz	5 00	7 00
Pork, Mess	28 50	28 75
Prime Mess	.. ..	26 00
Hog, round, ₩ lb	13½	.. ..
Bacon, Hams, ₩ lb	16	..
Do., canvassed	20	21
Sides	16	17
Shoulders	13	..
Green Shoulders	..	12
Lard, Prime, in tierces	18½	..
in kegs	19	..
Fair, in tierces	.. ..	17½
Butter, Northern	35	40
Western	28	34
Cheese, American	15	16
Potatoes, ₩ bbl	2 75	3 00
Onions	4 00	4 25
Green Apples	3 00	.. ..
Rice, ₩ lb, Louisiana	6	10
India	10½	..
Carolina	..	12
Saltpetre, refined, ₩ lb	14	25
Crnda	13	15
Salt ₩ sack:
Liverpool, fine, warehouse	2 50	2 55
from store	2 00	2 65
coarse, cargo	.. ..	2 65
from warehouse	2 60	2 65
from store	2 50	2 55
Turks Island, ₩ bushel	1 80	1 90
Soap, ₩ lb, Western	8	10
Northern	10	12
Southern	8	10
Castile	18	19
Sugar, Louisiana, ₩ lb:
In the city	13½	17
Havana, White	15	15½
Yellow	12½	14½
Brown	12	12½
Tobacco, in hhds, ₩ lb:
Balers & Cutters	..	..
Choice and Selections	17	22
Fine Leaf	15	20
Medium Leaf	9½	12½
Fair Leaf	12	15
Common Leaf	8	11
Good Refused	7	8
Common Refused	6	7
Twine, Cotton, ₩ lb	60	80
Bailing	21	22
Wool, Washed, ₩ lb	32	34
Burry	10	15
Louisiana, Native	20	25
Texas, ₩ Merino	26	28

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,

Office—680 Magazine Street,
Between Philip and First Streets,
NEW ORLEANS

Will call daily at College Building, (corner Common and Baronne streets,) between 11 and 12 o'clock. je29 1y

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

I BEG LEAVE HEREBY TO INform the public that I will guarantee a

POSITIVE CURE

in every case of Cancer, except where the disease has taken hold of a vital organ.

In confirmation of my ability to cure this disease I beg leave to offer the following certificates of two cures effected, from most respectable parties, who now reside in this State. I will give to those applying for treatment the names of some of the most reputable gentlemen in this city as reference for my personal responsibility and experience as a regular practitioner of medicine during the past twenty years. I have selected these certificates out of a number which I have received from parties who have been cured of Cancer, of long standing, by my treatment.

Persons wishing to consult will find me at No. 83 CARONDELET street.

T. S. COLIER, M. D.

ATLANTA, February 13, 1868.

I certify that I had a very large Cancer on my lip, and one on my nose, both of which continued to grow worse for years. My friends, as well as quite a number of physicians, thought my case hopeless. I had paid out hundreds of dollars without finding any relief. On seeing one of Dr. T. S. Colier's cards, and hearing that he had never failed in curing Cancers, I went to him on the 5th of last month for treatment. I am now well, and would recommend him to all who have Cancers. For any further information write to me at Waterproof, Tensas parish, Louisiana. THOMAS A. JAMES

We, the undersigned, citizens of De Soto parish, Louisiana, do hereby certify that we saw Mr Thomas A James—now a resident of Tensas parish, Louisiana—in the year 1865, in this parish, suffering with Cancer on the lip, which we thought to be incurable

WILSON GODFREY, M D,
Mansfield, La
WILLIAM C TAIT, M D,
Mansfield, La

The following is signed by most respectable citizens of Wynn parish, Louisiana:

We certify that Mr T A James, as well as quite a number of others, have been cured of Cancer by Dr T S Colier, and we believe that his remedies are an infallible cure for Cancer

REV J F BELLAMY,
REV J F WYNN,
W Y MOORE,
B F MATTISON,
WM INGREM, J P,
JOSEPH BAIRD,
P K SMITH,
E PEACE,
T J HODNETT,
SAMUEL PEACE.

I hereby certify that I had been afflicted with an eating Cancer for ten years. I tried every remedy that I could hear of, but to no purpose; till, hearing of Dr T S Colier's success in curing Cancers, I applied to him for treatment, when, to my utter astonishment, I was cured in a short time, leaving not even a scar. I believe Dr Colier can cure any case of Cancer

ROSANA ALBRIGHT

Attest: W Y MOORE

We certify to the correctness of the above certificate, having witnessed the cure

JOHN F BELLAMY,
J F WYNN,
B ALBRIGHT.

I certify that I am acquainted with Mrs R Albright, and know that she had Cancer on the face, which was cured by Dr T S Colier

mar7 3m E L CARY, M D.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.

A FULL ASSORTMENT OF THE publications of the

SOUTHERN M. E. PUBLISHING HOUSE

are kept at the

BOOK DEPOT,

113 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

and sold at

CATALOGUE PRICES,

with the same terms to the trade and to preachers as at Nashville.

FAMILY BIBLES,

of various sizes and prices, ranging from $5 to $30.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ALBUMS,

from pocket size to 4to., and from 75 cents to $15.

DICTIONARIES.

Worcester's and Webster's unabridged, Watson's, Buck's, Covel's, and the Sunday School Union's Biblical, and Author's Classical,

Books for

PRIZES, HOLIDAY GIFTS AND PREMIUMS,

beautifully bound and highly illustrated, selected with great care.

BOOKS OF THE A. S. S. UNION.

A good supply on hand.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

A number of colleges and schools are now obtaining their entire supply of text books from us, and find it to their interest to do so. Send us a list of your text books, and we will return it with prices annexed.

STATIONERY.

We have made arrangements to keep a full assortment of stationery, and solicit orders from our friends.

CHURCH REGISTERS.

We have on hand a large quantity of Church Registers, full bound and half bound:

SABBATH SCHOOL BELL.

Single Bell, $4 25 per doz.; double, 60 cents each. Musical Leaves, Sunday School Singer, Glad Tidings, and Sweet Singer. Specimens of the four latter sent by mail, prepaid, for 50 cents, with prices.

Catalogues of our books will be sent to persons who request it.

ROBT. J. HARP, Agent.

fe29

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY,
GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W M Wightman, D D., LL D.
Rev. E Wadsworth, A M, D D,
O as A M.
Rev. J C Wills, A M.
N T Lupton, A M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term	$40 00
Incidental fee	5 00
Tuition in Preparat'y school per term	$30 to $35
Contingent fee	$2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

july 27-tf O F CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

FRANKLIN SEMINARY.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has in charge FRANKLIN SEMINARY, and has a good school, which is designed to be permanent, in successful operation, and that he is prepared to receive any number of pupils that may be entered to his care. He would board, in his own family, some eight or ten pupils.

His experience enables him to assure patrons and friends that the education of their children and wards will be secured by confiding them to his institution.

The following are his terms of tuition, payable in advance, per session of five months:

Elementary Branches	$20 00
Higher Branches	25 00
Latin, Greek, etc	30 00

French, extra.

Board can be had, in good families, for $15 per month, exclusive of lights and washing. Present session ends on the 7th of February, and the next ends on the 10th of July. No vacation until July. Pupils can be entered at any time. For further particulars apply to

B. CLEGG, Principal.

Franklin, La., Jan. 4, 1868. ja 18-1 m

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin	60c.
Sent by mail at	70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan	$1 50
" Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep	$1 25
Roan	1 50
Roan Gilt	2 00
Turkey Morocco	3 00
S. S. Bells (single)	$4 25 per doz.
" " (Double)	6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

july 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

E. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

july 27 tf

H. F. GIVEN, W. O. BROWN.
D. A. GIVEN, R. E. DUNKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.,

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.,

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

General Commission Merchants,

186.....COMMON STREET.....186

feb3-67 1y

SHAKSPEARE IRON FOUNDRY,
308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(JOHN GEDDES—JOS. A. SHAKSPEARE—S. SWOOP.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.,

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gin Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

may 18 '67, 6m

DR. J. M. MAGEE,

DENTAL SURGEON,

No. 107 Carondelet Street,

One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.

jan 26 1y

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 1y

W. G. COYLE, & CO.,

COAL MERCHANTS,

Office—142 GRAVIER ST.,

Yard—Cor. Magazine and Girod sts., N. O.

PITTSBURG, ANTHRACITE and ENGLISH CANNEL COAL, delivered at the lowest market rates to Families, Hotels, Cotton Presses, Foundries and Steamboats. nov9 6m

T H HIGGINBOTHAM, C. W. HODGE W. R. MAYO,
New Orleans. Union Parish, La. New Orleans

MAYO, HODGE & CO.

COTTON FACTORS

—AND—

Commission Merchants,

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS,
uly6 1y LA.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR SARATOGA WATERS.

COOLING, REFRESHING AND PLEASANT!

CITRATE OF MAGNESIA,

In 6 oz. bottles, in powder. This Magnesia is a mild purgative and aperient, very acceptable to the stomach for sick headache, sour or sick stomach, and all febrile cases. For sale by BARNES, WARD & CO., New Orleans, and by most druggists. Prepared by

ARTHUR ROGERS,
may16 3m 193 Spring street, New York.

A VALUABLE GIFT.—80 pages.—Dr. S. S. Fitch's Domestic Family Physician describes all diseases and their remedies. Sent by mail free. Address

DR S. S. FITCH,
may2 7mr 714 Broadway, New York.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.,

No. 17 Chartres Street, New Orleans, La.,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN CARPETS, Floor Oil Cloths, China and Cocoa Matting, Table and Piano Covers, Window Shades, Crumb Cloths, Rugs, Mats, Carringe, Table and Enamel Oil Cloths.

CURTAIN MATERIALS, LACE, DAMASKS,

Reps, Cornices, Binds, Pins, Gimps, Loops and Tassels, Hair Cloth, Plush and Moquette.

mar14 1y

J. L. DUNNICA. G. P. HARRISON.

J. L. DUNNICA & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 99 Poydras street, New Orleans, La.

Agents for the following brands of flour, all guaranteed to give satisfaction:

McCutcheon, Gordon & Co, choice XXX. W Rosborough & Co, choice XXX. Sucker State choice X. Sparta Mills choice superfine.

All orders from the country accompanied by the money will be carefully filled at the lowest market prices. J. L DUNNICA & CO.

sep22 1y

BOTANIC DRUG STORE.

A fresh supply of all the various Thomsonian Medicines and Preparations; also Dr. Jones' Preparations.

Sold Wholesale and Retail at the

PHYSICIAN'S DRUG STORE.

F. B. ALBERS, Agent,
No. 12 Baronne st., near Canal,
dec14 1y New Orleans.

WATERS'

FIRST PREMIUM PIANOS, with Iron Frame, Overstrung Bass and Agraffe Bridge.

Melodeons, Parlor, Church and Cabinet Organs

The best manufactured, warranted for six years.

One hundred Pianos, Melodeons and Organs of six first-class makers, at low prices for cash or one-quarter cash and the balance in monthly or quarterly installments. Second-hand Instruments at great bargains. Illustrated catalogues mailed. (Mr. Waters is the author of six Sunday School Music Books: "Heavenly Echoes" and "New S. S. Bell," just issued.)

Warerooms, 481 Broadway, New York.

apr4 1yr HORACE WATERS & CO.

JNO. C. BULL. JNO. P. BULL. WM. BULL.

JNO. C. BULL & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No. 64 North Commercial street.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled: aug 24-1y

J. R. POWELL,

COTTON FACTOR,

AND

COMMISSION MERCHANT,

190 Common Street,

W. R. STUART, Late Stuart & James. NEW ORLEANS

Represented by CAPT. J. A. BINFORD, Duck Hill, Miss. oc20 1y

SPEED, SUMMERS & CO.,

46 Carondelet street, New Orleans,

COTTON AND TOBACCO FACTORS,

General Commission Merchants,

And COMMERCIAL AGENTS. aug25 1y

J. H. CARTER,

Wholesale Grocer,

Nos. 8 and 10 Tchonpitoulas Street,

And 8 and 10 New Levee,

aug18 1y NEW ORLEANS.

F O BARRIERE G W BABCOCK

F. G. BARIERE & CO.,

Importers and Dealers in

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS,

No. 135 Canal Street, New Orleans.

n10 6m

WM. EDWARDS & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

27 Camp Street, New Orleans.

WM. EDWARDS.
EDWD. J. GAY. sep15 1y

J. O. ELLIS. W. O. CHAMBERLIN

ELLIS & CHAMBERLIN,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

42 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS,

Are prepared to make cash advances on Cotton, Sugar, and other Produce consigned to them, and solicit the patronage of their friends and the public. jan20 1y

TOM HENDERSON, Late of Henderson, Terry & Co.
SAM HENDERSON, Late of Violett, Black & Co.

TOM & SAM HENDERSON,

COTTON FACTORS AND

General Commission Merchants,

12 UNION STREET,

dec 9 1y New Orleans

J. C. M'ALLISTER E. M'NAIR

M'ALLISTER & M'NAIR,

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

No. 74 Common Street,

ap7 1y NEW ORLEANS.

J. P. HARRISON & SONS,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

51 UNION STREET,—UP STAIRS,

New Orleans.

J. P. Harrison, (formerly Payne & Harrison)
Edward Harrison,
J. P. Harrison, Jun.,
Sidney Harrison,
John N. Harrison. july7 1y

C. L. WALMSLEY & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchants,

No 31 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

mar7 6m

A. D. GRIEFF, Wholesale Grocer,

COMMISSION MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN SOUTHERN AND WESTERN PRODUCE,

48, 50 and 52 Old Levee st., corner Bienville st.,

aug25 6m NEW ORLEANS.

ROBERT L. WALKER,

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

190 COMMON STREET NEW ORLEANS.

aug 8'67 1y

BRITISH HONDURAS.

JAMES M. PUTNAM,

General Commission Merchant and Customhouse Broker,

BELIZE.

Consignments of Western Produce, Groceries, and merchandise solicited. ja25 1y

J. N. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS. M. J. WICKS

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,

aly 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,

General Commission Merchants and

COTTON FACTORS,

57 Poydras street.

Cotton Office—192 Common street—in charge of RICHARD J. NUGENT. aug4 1y

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. R. ALSOBROOK.

WM. C. TOMPKINS & CO.,

WHOLESALE DRY GOODS,

No. 2 Magazine st., corne Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade. feb18-67 6m

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.,

Cotton Factors,

No. 32 Union Street,

NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, W. H. DAMERON, G. W. HUNTINGTON, H. M. PAYNE. je23-1y

O. M. STEIRER, THOS. O. SALTER

G. M. STEIRER & CO.

GROCERS,

572 and 574 Magazine street,

(opposite Magazine Market,)

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Hams, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and Preserves;

—Also—

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER.

Goods delivered free of drayage. Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FAMILY orders. mar9-6m-67

D. A. BLACKSHER. JOHN C. MILLER

BLACKSHER & MILLER,

COTTON FACTORS AND

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

13 ST. CHARLES STREET,

feb2 1y NEW ORLEANS, LA.

S. M. SWENSON, N.Y., late of Austin, Tex. W. M. PERKINS, D. L. KENNON, Of Perkins & Co., N.O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

s29 1y

E S KEEP. I. CAULFIELD.

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oc13 1y

R ATKINSON & CO: New York. JAMES HEWITT & CO Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants

188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS:

Cash advances made on consignments to us by HEWITT, SWISHER & Co., Galveston Texas. sep15 1y

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA

REFERENCES: Messrs. Nulle, Day, & Co. Spyke & Sandidge, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. L Walker, New Orleans, La. july 25

D. H. HOLMES,

Direct Importation of

FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS

AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

No. 155 Canal Street,

sep1 6m NEW ORLEANS

W. A VIOLETT. R. Y BLACK. R. H SNOWDEN

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And General Commission Merchant

15 6m 138 Gravier street, New Orleans.

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D F. BRITTON

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

jaly-5-6m

F. L. RICHARDSON J. D. COLEMAN

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

.....No. 5 Commercial Place.....

fely New Orleans.

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 110, Mechanic's Exchange will be attended to. sep

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

VOLUME XIV.—NUMBER 26.
WHOLE NUMBER..... 688.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1868.

$3 00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—113 CAMP STREET.

DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE.

THE PLATFORM ADOPTED AT NEW YORK

The following is the platform adopted by the national Democratic convention in New York:

The Democratic party, in national convention assembled, reposing its trust in the intelligence, patriotism and discriminating justice of the people, standing upon the Constitution as the foundation and limitation of the powers of the government, and the guarantee of the liberties of the citizen, and recognizing the questions of slavery and secession as having been settled for all time to come by the war, and in the voluntary action of the Southern States in constitutional convention assembled, and never to be renewed or reagitated, do, with the return of peace, demand:

1. The immediate restoration of all the States to their rights in the Union under the Constitution, and of the civil government of the American people.

2. Amnesty for all past political offences, and the regulation of the elective franchise in the States by their citizens.

3. The payment of the public debt of the United States as rapidly as practicable; all money drawn from the people by taxation, except so much as is requisite for the necessities of the government, economically administered, being honestly applied to such payment; and, where the obligations of the government do not expressly state upon their face, or the law under which they were issued does not provide that they shall be paid in coin, they ought, in right and justice, to be paid in the lawful money of the United States. [Thunders of applause.]

4. Equal taxation of every species of property, according to its real value, including government bonds and other public securities. [Renewed cheering and cries of "read it again."]

5. One currency for the government and people, the laborer and the office-holder, the pensioner and the soldier, the producer and bond-holder. [Great cheering, and cries of "read it again."]

[The fifth resolution was again read and again cheered.]

6. Economy in the administration of the government; the reduction of the standing army and navy; the abolition of the Freedman's Bureau, [great cheering,] and all political instrumentalities designed to secure negro supremacy; the simplification of the system and discontinuance of inquisitorial modes of assessing and collecting internal revenue, so that the burden of taxation may be equalized and lessened, and the credit of the government and currency made good; the repeal of all enactments for the enrolling the State militia into the national forces in time of peace, and a tariff for revenue upon foreign imports and such equal taxation under the internal revenue laws as will afford incidental protection to domestic manufactures, and as will, without impairing the revenue, impose the least burden upon and best promote and encourage the great industrial interests of the country.

7. Reform of the abuses in the administration, the expulsion of corrupt men from office, the abrogation of useless offices, the restoration of the rightful authority to and the independence of the executive and judicial departments of the government, the subordination of the military to the civil power, to the end that the usurpations of Congress and the despotism of the sword may cease.

8. Equal rights and protection for naturalized and native-born citizens at home and abroad; the assertion of American nationality, which shall command the respect of foreign powers, and furnish an example and encouragement to people struggling for national integrity, constitutional liberty and individual rights, and the maintenance of the rights of naturalized citizens against the absolute doctrine of immutable allegiance and the claims of foreign powers to punish them for alleged crimes committed beyond their jurisdiction. [Applause.]

